HAVE NEW ROOMS

Omemee Tannery Club Comfortably Located—House Warming Held.

OMEMEE, Jan. 29.—The Omemee Tannery Club has secured the rooms over Mr. T. A. MacPherson's store, formerly known as the C.O.O.F. Hall, where it is now comfortably located. On Friday evening last many of the members with their wives and friends gathered in their new quarters, and spent the evening in social intercourse and progressive euchre after which a dainty lunch was served and later Mr. W. Bennett capably acted as chairman and called on several of the gentlemen to assist him in an impromptu programme and after a certain amount of hesitation had been shown, a few responses were made. Music on the Victrola helped to brighten the evening's entertainment at the close of which all were well pleased. The prizes for the euchre were won by Miss Jessie Lamb and Mr. A. Sloan while the consolation prizes went to Mrs. S. J. Mackey and Mr. S. Clemett.

ANGLICAN CHURCH

Annual Vestry Meeting at Madoc—Ladies' Aid Society Active.

MADOC, Jan. 29.—The annual vestry meeting of St. John's Anglican Church was held on Monday evening, Jan. 25. Very satisfactory reports were read from the different departments of the church. The Ladies' Aid have raised over four hundred dollars and have a small balance on hand. Their activities this year have included the payment of a note, taxes and a donation to the church wardens. The A.Y.P.A. have over a hundred dollars on hand toward the fund for an electric blower for the pipe-organ. The choir and Sunday School have balances of $21 and $23, respectively. The general finances of the church are in a better condition than they were at this time last year.

A motion was passed that a financial statement would be issued to every member of the congregation. The mission givings are fully paid up. During the year the church was redecorated for the 60th anniversary, and a new roof put on the vestry.

The wardens were re-elected for the ensuing year: Mr. C. Hart, Rector's Warden; Mr. E. Tufts, People's Warden, and E. T. Nayler, Clerk of the Vestry.

Trust not the populace; the crowd is many-minded. — Pseudo-Phoecyl.

Y.M.C.A. Annual Reports

GENERAL SECRETARY.

The year that has just closed has been one in which we have encountered more difficulties than in previous years, particularly in the Financial and Membership Departments. This is not surprising, of course, when we view general business conditions prevailing during 1925. We hope that the tide has turned and from all sides there come heartening statements of improved conditions throughout the country which are bound to have their effect in industry and business in our city and will undoubtedly result in improved conditions in our association work. Most of our activities have been in a flourishing condition during the past year and there are many things for which we are deeply grateful, particularly the loyalty of members, directors and committee men generally.

There have been no changes in the personnel of the Board of Directors or the officers of the association during the year. The president, Mr. G. A. Gillespie, was re-elected for the tenth consecutive term of office and has given to the leadership of the association his best endeavour and under his guidance the work of the board has been most efficient. The financial canvass, conducted by the board in the spring, assisted by members, met with good success, although there were some shrinkages and the net result was approximately $200.00 less than called for by the budget.

During the year the internal revenue of the association decreased $236.00, $156.00 of this being in the Dormitory Department. In view of our financial returns it has been impossible to avoid a deficit which amounts to $548.00. It might be pointed out that the budget for the year was planned to take care of a note for $1,250.00, $500.00 annual subscription to the National Council, in addition to the operating expenses for the year. The note represents shrinkage in subscriptions during the last three or four years of business depression. The association has been directly affected in the following manner. From sources which yielded $550.00 formerly during the last four years we have received only $30.00 and our total loss in subscriptions from shrinkages during this period has not been less than $700.00 annually.

MEMBERSHIP.—The membership in the association is slightly, less than last year, largely owing to the number of young men who have left the city during the recent months. We find that the same condition prevails in other centres. A shrinkage in membership in the Toronto associations is noted in their annual report and by the way there is also recorded a deficit for the year's operation of $17,000.00 by the city, the central building being affected most with $13,000.00.

RELIGIOUS WORK.—At the Friday evening meeting at the supper hour a number of addresses by the different pastors of the city were presented in addition to other topics of different character. Every address, however, was one which contained inspiration and instruction. The boys' Bible classes have maintained their interest. The program this fall has been varied somewhat. The junior school boys observe a devotional period on Saturday morning. Numerous personal interviews have been held during the year. Friday evening meetings have been varied.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES.—The outstanding social activity was that of Friday evening supper meetings which has maintained its popularity under the leadership of Mr. J. F. H. Wallace. The attendance on Friday evening is somewhat less than that of the first two or three years. Various social activities have been held during the year in which the gymnasium, bowling alleys and other games have been used by the visitors, making them more familiar with the program of the association.

BOWLING DEPARTMENT.—The bowling has steadily increased under the leadership of Mr. Max Sloane and we find it impossible to provide for all the demands for bowling with our limited equipment of two alleys. There are four leagues being operated this year with 24 teams.

DORMITORY DEPARTMENT.—During the spring and summer the dormitories were occupied almost to capacity but in October and November there was a serious falling off, owing to the fact that a number of our young men occupying the rooms left the city, and for that period a considerable number of them were vacant. This condition is gradually being improved and the outlook for the future seems much brighter in this department.

GENERAL.—The association building continues to be the popular headquarters for meetings of various organizations. The Boys' Work Board, Religious Educational Council, Ministerial Association and other civic bodies hold their meetings in the building without charge.

LADIES' AUXILIARY.—The Ladies' Auxiliary have served the association splendidly and have responded to all appeals. A report of their activities is being presented separately.

Reports of Physical and Boys' Departments will be presented separately.

NEW BASIS OF MEMBERSHIP.—The Canadian associations adopted at the Preston convention in November, 1924, an alternative basis of membership and we are asked to deal with the matter as an association. The old basis membership was as follows: Male members in good standing in an evangelical church who are not less than 17 years of age may become active members of this association. Only active members will have the right to vote and hold office. A new alternative basis of membership is as follows: Active membership shall be open to any man over 17 years of age who is a member of an evangelical church or who signs the personal in addition, believes in statement of purpose of the association and commits himself to voluntary service and support. After the adoption of the alternative basis at Preston by the Canadian association, the matter was next put before the International convention which was held in Baltimore lead by Mr. Rollie McWilliams, formerly of Peterborough, now president of National Council. The Preston convention adopted the alternative basis of membership as our constitution calls for a unanimous vote before the article in question can be changed it would be in order to give notice of motion at this meeting so that a vote may be taken at the next annual meeting unless it is decided that this meeting has the power to amend the constitution at the present time.

CONCLUSION.—In concluding this report I would like to express my sincere thanks for the loyal service and co-operation of the staff and would like to take this opportunity of thanking the directors' patient consideration and unfailing and optimistic leadership.

We should look forward with the same optimism to the immediate future and with hard work, enthusiasm and large vision and see a marked and wholesome improvement in all branches of the association work during the coming year in Peterborough.

G. H. ROPER.

PHYSICAL DEPARTMENT.

In reporting the work of the Physical Department for the year 1925 I desire to call to your attention the splendid enrollment and record of attendance. This is approximately 400 in excess of the record covering the same period last year.

In April we held the annual closing exhibition of gymnastic work. This was well attended by parents and interested friends.

George A. Corsan, the International expert, conducted the spring learn-to-swim campaign. Sixty-three were enrolled for these special classes. Following the special course we arranged to give lessons throughout the entire summer.

Military work was carried on in the recognized manner last summer. The physical director was under canvas with the men and arranged all sports programs.

City championships were run off in conjunction with athletic day at the Industrial Exhibition. Prizes for the various events were awarded by the Exhibition Board.

A leaders' corps of twenty members is functioning in association affairs through the Physical Department.

In addition to the above, which are our regular classes, we have 13 periods wherein we take charge of the calisthenic work of the Collegiate.

Respectfully submitted,
B. D. HALL.

BOYS' DIVISION.

I have much pleasure in submitting for your approval the report of the Boys' Division for the year 1925. The Boys' Division embraces those of our members between the ages of 10 and 16 inclusive—divided into three sections, namely, beginners, juniors and intermediates. This report is designed to convey to the Board of Directors and active members of this association a survey covering all phases of activities carried on during the year. Statistics are an index pointing to continuous activities but they can never visualize actual results, therefore they are avoided, save when necessary to more adequately explain the workings of any plan.

Boys are super-sensitive to any publicity when it refers to character reformation and we give you no reports along this line. Our efforts, however, to assist individual chaps have been successful in many cases. In the interests of certain boys we have conferred with parents, teachers, employers and with the boys themselves in order that the best solution to an individual problem might be reached.

We are often called upon to advise a boy along the lines of vocational guidance. While this is a field of a specialist we feel none the less that our efforts have been of assistance in helping a boy to decide about his future. During the Christmas vacation just passed we arranged to have ten of our boys—chosen from different types—examined in the Stanford Revision of the Binet-Simon Intelligence Test by Mr. C. R. Armstrong, B.A. The results were forwarded to the parents of the boys examined.

At the beginning of the fall term a boys' cabinet was organized from the boys of the Intermediate Section. The cabinet undertakes to assist the secretary in the program of the boys' division as a whole. Their duties are along the line of supervision of younger boys in the swimming pool and showers; the care of the locker and tote box rooms during class sessions; supervision of game room; arrangements for boys' social nights; pianists for boys' devotional periods and for the motion picture projector for the boys' department shows.

Boys' camp was held as usual during the first two weeks of July with 55 boys in attendance, including leaders. This number was made up of High school boys 8, Public school boys 40, employed boys 2, leaders 5. Of this number 39 were members of the association previous to enrolling for camp. A leadership training course of six lectures was provided for the leaders prior to leaving for camp.

We continue to make good use of the movie machine in the lobby and boys' division. A change in policy at the source of supply has enabled us to procure first-class programs at a very low rate. During the fall In addition to the use of this machine within the building, we have supplied operator and machine to outside organizations for a nominal fee.

The first world conference of the Y. M. C. A. will be held in Helsingfors, Finland, in August next. During the past term our boys' groups have given their answers to a prepared discussion outline which will give the delegates to this conference the view-point of the average boy in matters pertaining to boy life. This discussion has been used by the boys of the Y. M. C. A. groups throughout the entire world in order that the adult view-point would not be considered as absolute, when the conference meets.

Boys' devotional groups from junior and intermediate section meet weekly. The study in the junior group at this time embraces the life of Christ, as they each week dig our an answer to the question: "What manner of Man is this?" "The Problems of Older Boys" is the study course of the intermediates.

In the development of service ideals our boys have expressed themselves very credibly through their contributions to the foreign work. To date we have actually paid in contributions from 83 boys. Thirteen of these fellows rank in the gold star class, having each contributed one dollar or more to the fund.

In concluding this report we desire once again to call attention to the fact that this can but lightly touch the work which goes on from day to day. The main objective of our work is to train boys to live a Christ-like life. By means of personal contact and by all the various activities used to create and develop personality and Christian character, we seek to make our association a channel through which the Master can speak and work for the extension of His Kingdom.

Respectfully submitted,
J. E. SMITH,
Chairman, Boys' Committee.
F. G. MCNEELY,
Boys' Work Secretary.

LADIES' AUXILIARY.

The auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. meets on the fourth Friday of each month, with the exception of the summer months.

The object is to make plans for the comfort of those residing in the Y. M. C. A. building and to secure needed supplies for the dormitories.

In order to raise funds for the work a Valentine tea was held at the home of the secretary on February 12.

A St. Patrick's tea and sale of cooking was held at the home of Mrs. J. J. Turner on the 18th of March.

A third tea and sale of cooking was held at the home of Mrs. E. F. Mason on June 11.

Instead of the regular meeting in October, a tea and sale of cooking, as well as useful household articles, was held in the reading room.

With the money thus secured 96 yards of sheeting has been bought and made into sheets for the dormitories.

The auxiliary has also bought 6 pairs of tea towels, 12 pairs of hand towels, 24 pairs of bath towels.

RAILWAY CUT.

JERUSALEM, Jan. 28 (Canadian Press).—Damascus bankers have received letters warning them that Syrian rebels plan to make another attack on the city shortly and advising them to take steps to insure the security of their families.

The insurgents have cut the railway from Damascus to Haifa, near Deraa and also have interrupted the service between Rayak and Aleppo.

ST. JOHN'S VESTRY

Annual Meeting Showed Organizations Flourishing—Officials Elected.

The annual Vestry meeting of St. John's church was held on Monday evening in the Parish House. Reports from all the organizations showed all of them in a flourishing and healthy condition. The Warden's report was presented by Mr. E. S. Martin, people's warden, and supported by Mr. S. T. Medd, vicar's warden. Total receipts from all sources, apart from the rectory fund, amounted to $12,746.53. Of this amount $1,643.96 were expended in extra parochial objects apart from the various branches of the W. A.

Major S. T. Medd was re-appointed vicar's warden and Mr. E. S. Martin was re-elected people's warden. A nominating committee, consisting of Dr. G. S. Cameron, Mr. Robert Fair and Mr. W. J. Kent, with the vicar, reported the following who were elected:

Sidesmen, Mr. F. M. Dela Fosse, Col. J. Mills, Messrs. C. E. Jamieson, C. F. Brewer, B. D. Hall, Col. Stevenson, W. F. Turner, W. R. L. Blackwell, Dr. Hammond, F. Hills, Col. A. C. Ackerman, C. G. Graham, C. E. Coleman, G. Davis, Bert Graham, R. M. Jones, also the following extra: Arthur Amys, Lorne Conway and Bruce Mills.

Advisory Board—Messrs. J. A. Aylmer, Dr. G. S. Cameron, W. R. Morris, A. W. Turner, J. J. Howden, Robert Fair, W. Dolby, L. H. Bond, A. L. Killaly, H. Long, F. K. Kerr, K.C., Dr. Holloway, R. Denne, W. R. Thompson, G. B. Boucher, J. B. Horn, Gerald Wood, W. C. Ackerman, W. Comstock, E. Sorby, C. Rogers, F. L. Roy, R. N. Stuart, W. J. Kent, D. J. Melton, Wm. Sangster, J. F. Strickland and Mrs. A. H. Stratton, Mrs. A. W. Turner, Mrs. Geo. Wesley, representing the women's organizations, also the wardens, Messrs. F. D. Kerr, K.C., B. D. Hall and Robert Fair were elected delegates to the Synod, and D. J. Laurie auditor.

D. J. Milton reported for the Centenary fund, showing nearly $7,000 subscribed, of which about $1,200 was already on hand.

Warm expressions of appreciation were given the Vicar and the choir and the different organizations that are working so hard and faithfully in the interests of old St. John's church and of the Master's kingdom.

LUMBERMEN MEET

Deprecate Buying on Instalment Plan.

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 29 (Canadian Press).—The instalment plan of purchase was deprecated, and the opinion expressed that its adoption in the lumber business was not advisable, by several speakers at Thursday afternoon's session of the 35th annual convention of the Western Retail Lumbermen's Association.

The discussion of "credits" was introduced by W. N. Poole, credit manager of the Revelstoke Sawmill Company, Calgary. During the discussion, R. Skov, of High River, Alta., said the wheat pool had improved the farmers' credit, but at the same time restricted his cash purchasing power, and made him a more conservative buyer.

NO OFFICERS SAVED.

Three Firemen and Three Sailors Were Taken Off Laristan.

HALIFAX, Jan. 29. — Canadian Press. — None of the officers was taken off the British freighter Laristan, which is believed to have foundered in mid-Atlantic on the night of Tuesday, Jan. 26th, after the German steamer Breman had rescued six of her crew. The captain of the Bremen to-day wirelessed the names of three firemen and three sailors who were saved.

Salesman For Face Cream Learns a Lesson
New York City. Mr. H. B. AUDITORS' REPORT TO SHAREHOLDERS

WE REPORT TO THE SHAREHOLDERS OF THE DOMINION BANK:—

That we have audited the above Balance Sheet as at December 31st, 1925, and compared it with the books and vouchers at Head Office and with the certified returns from the Branches. We have obtained all the information and explanations that we have required, and in our opinion the transactions of the Bank which have come under our notice have been within the powers of the Bank.

In our opinion the Balance Sheet discloses the true condition of the Bank and is as shown by the books of the Bank.

BIG PRIZE

Balloon Race

Starts at The Examiner
At 2 o'Clock
TOMORROW

Twenty Balloons and Prizes for their captors to mark the release of splendid new serial —yellow stubs marked with numbers.

EVERYBODY ELIGIBLE!
TWENTY WINNERS!

Because "The Yellow Stub" is the greatest mystery story The Examiner has ever obtained the serial rights to;

And because "The Yellow Stub" has as great romantic interest as any The Examiner has ever printed;

And be cause you cannot obtain "The Yellow Stub" in any other form, it never having been issued in book form;

It is desirous that everyone in Peterborough and district know about and have the opportunity of reading "The Yellow Stub," which starts in The Examiner tomorrow.

Therefore, to celebrate the occasion and make it more widely known, there will be released from The Examiner office tomorrow at 2 o'clock twenty balloons bearing prize winning tickets.

All Prizes

Every balloon will carry a yellow stub, numbered from 1 to 20 inclusive. These numbers were shaken up in a hat and one drawn against each prize. As it turned out, number 13 tag is the lucky one, and number 7, usually considered good, is only second best. Here is the list:

Tag number	1..... prize	25c
	2.....	5c
	3.....	10c
	4.....	10c
	5.....	5c
	6.....	10c
	7.....	50c
	8.....	10c
	9.....	5c
	10.....	5c
	11.....	5c
	12.....	10c
	13.....	$10
	14.....	10c
	15.....	5c
	16.....	10c
	17.....	5c
	18.....	10c
	19.....	5c
	20.....	10c

If you are trying for the $10 prize and don't get it, hand your tag to some youngster who is hanging around.

Every tag is marked clearly with the number. Tags must be brought to The Examiner office for payment of the prize. There is no time limit.

They May Travel

The balloons will not be filled with gas, as this would make them fly for days, perhaps. They may sink to earth on George street, or if there is sufficient wind they may carry a long way before landing. You will have time to join in the chase and get back in time to get the first full page instalment of "The Yellow Stub" just coming off the press.

The permission of Chief of Police Newhall and of Utilities Superintendent Ross L. Dobbin have been obtained, the former in anticipation of a crowd on the main streets, and the latter because The Examiner does not wish to wreck the lighting service of the city by short-circuiting wires.

If the balloons catch on power or telephone poles, don't climb for them. You may touch a live wire or fall off.

All You Have To Do

Catch one of the twenty balloons; bring the yellow stub to The Examiner office, and collect the prize marked opposite the number that is on the stub.

Watch your step;
Safety first;

And then—

Brazilian and Smelters Led Spectacular Session

TORONTO, Jan. 29.—(Canadian Press).—Providing as spectacular a performance as any during the week Consolidated Smelters and Brazilian again dominated the session of the Toronrto Stock Exchange this morning, leading the market in renewal of the upward swing. Smelters was traded in comparatively lightly, but it climbed to a new peak of 205, and closed the morning at 202, a gain from yesterday of 3½. Brazilian, with a turnover of more than 1,500 shares, ranged during the session between 87 and 89, and closed at the high, a half point advance. Brompton was another strong spot, climbing 1 1-8 at 29 1-8. Abitibi advanced 1¼ at 81, and C.P.R. gained one at 148¾. Twin City and Winnipeg eased slightly, the former at 75¼, and Winnipeg a point at 53. Lake Shore led the mines with a 45-cent advance at 12.95.

Kirkland Lake Leads Firm Standard Mining Exchange

TORONTO, Jan. 29.—(Canadian Press.)—General firmness characterized the market on the standard mining exchange this morning and though the total transactions were not heavy some stocks were very active. Leading these was Kirkland Lake, which closed the morning two higher at 122. Lake Shore climbed 50 at 13/00 and Chaput Hughes 2 1-2 at 18. Teck Hughes advanced six at 351. Beaver led the silvers with a three point advance at 80 and Castle Trethewey and Canadian Lorrain each gained one, at 162 and 84.

Wheat Price Fluctuated Within Narrow Limits

CHICAGO, Jan. 29. — Canadian Press. — Affected by profit taking sales and by assertions that the recent advance of the market had been too rapid, wheat prices averaged lower to-day during the early dealings. Liberal shipments from Australia attracted considerable notice as a bearish factor. Chicago opening figures, unchanged to 3-8c off, May 175½ to 175 and July 152¼ to 152⅛ were followed by numerous fluctuations within a range of about 1c.

Upward Move Resumed On New York Market

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—(Canadian Press.)—A resumption of the upward movement in to-day's stock market was featured by bullish demonstrations in a number of food specialties and the revival of speculation interest in rails. Persistent rumors that negotiations were in progress for a merger of the California Packing and Postum Cereal Companys stimulated a demand for the former stock, which soared 13 points to a new record high at 170 1-2. General Electric was bid up 56 points in apparent anticipation of another favorable dividend distribution and Famous Players jumped 5 1-2 points. Oils maintained a strong undertone. The rails made a belated response to publication of favorable December earnings statements.

Is Now About 150 Feet From Helen M, Reports Aviator.

MUSKEGON, Mich., Jan. 29 (Canadian Press).—The Goodrich steamer Alabama, in an attempt to reach the fishing tug Helen M., imprisoned in the ice in Lake Michigan, has crashed its way to within 150 feet of the craft. Lt. George F. Schouden, in rescue plane made this announcement on his return from a trip over the lake this morning.

KIWANIANS HAVE FARMER'S DAY

lish cordial relationships between Peterborough and the country is the building up of an acquaintanceship. "You have only to know a man to like him," the speaker said. "When the strangeness wears off there is so much in the other chap to admire and like, that it's a pity we should remain strangers."

The second necessity is a right understanding, even of economic relationships. Nothing is less understood and more misunderstood than the relationship between the producing classes and the others that the farmers in Western Canada call the "big interests." It is necessary to know just what the farmers contribute to the national well-being, and what the other interests contribute.

Difficulties Disappearing.

Whatever misconceptions they have had in the past, the speaker said, the farmers are realizing today that it takes more than one occupation to make the country great, and that Canada has gone ahead through commercial development. The country never can be a great nation without commercial and industrial as well as agricultural development.

One of the things which, in the speaker's mind, severs farmers and city dwellers more than anything else, is the undue emphasis laid upon the idea of profit to the individual or concern and not enough emphasis on service to the welfare of the country.

In Kiwanis Club, he said, the idea of service is emphasized, and if through such clubs and the Church it can be impressed on the minds of the people that service should be the controlling motive and profit the second, that severing factor would be eliminated.

Professor Reynolds went into detailed figures to show the benefit of the Agricultural College in improving the yield and quality of grains and the improvement in the whole farming procedure of the province. While the number of farmers in Ontario has decreased in 30 years by 70,000, the total invested in agriculture has increased during that time from $975,000,000, to $1,738,000,000.

Dairy farming in Ontario was lauded by the speaker as the sensible and profitable line, developing in pace with the development of the cities and towns where a year-round market is available for dairy products.

'Varden Curtis.

The County Warden, Reeve Curtis of Havelock, moved a vote of thanks to Kiwanis Club and to the speaker of the day. He expressed his pleasure in being present to hear Professor Reynolds, remarking that he had a good knowledge of the relationships between country and town, having lived on a farm for 28 years, worked on the railroad for 10 years, and is now in business in a village.

Ex-Warden H. B. Rye, Reeve of North Monaghan, in seconding the motion of thanks, remarked that it is necessary for the rural and suburban and city people to get together, but it is also necessary for all lines of business to get together in co-operation.

President Jack Seels, of the Rotary Club, announced a similar gathering under Rotary auspices on Monday week.

President John J. Craig remarked in closing the meeting that this is the beginning of a movement in Kiwanis Club to promote better relationships between city and country.

Telephone Rates at this Exchange

THE following table shows the principal rates now in effect for this exchange, and the new rates for which we are asking the approval of the Board of Railway Commissioners:—

	Present Monthly Rate	Proposed Monthly Rate	Monthly Increase
Business Service
Individual Line	$3.08	$3.75	.67
2-Party "	2.46	3.00	.54
Residence Service
Individual Line	$2.57	$2.50	—.07
2-Party "	2.05	2.00	—.05

It will be seen that in order to bring the city's telephone rates into line with our proposed new schedule, the rates for residence service, both individual and 2-party line will be reduced. This will mean that the great majority of our patrons will pay less than heretofore, and the result will be to encourage the development of residence service.

Merchants and business men, while asked to pay a slightly higher rate for business telephones will benefit in the enlargement of the scope and value of their service by the development of residence telephones.

We believe our patrons will agree that to maintain and extend a service vital to the welfare of the community far outweighs in importance the moderate increases a relatively small number of citizens will be asked to pay.

HONOR VETERAN

Port Hope Oddfellow Receives Jewel From Otonabee Lodge.

The officers elect of Durham Lodge No. 78, I.O.O.F., Port Hope, were duly and regularly installed in their respective chairs on Tuesday evening, by District Deputy Grand Master, Mr. Sid Little and staff from Bowmanville.

After the installation another very interesting event took place when Mr. Wm. Mitchell was called to the front and in a few complimentary words, the D.D.G.M. pinned on Mr. Mitchell's breast a twenty-five year veteran's jewel, a gift from Otonabee Lodge of Peterboro, where he has been a member continuously for over twenty-five years.

Mr. Mitchell made a suitable reply and thanked the brethren for the honor bestowed upon him.

JOHN M'CUBBIN, REEVE OF PERCY, CHOSEN WARDEN WHEN COUNCIL OF UNITED COUNTIES WAS OPENED

Seven Votes Necessary Before Majority Was Obtained.

THREE CANDIDATES

Reeve Clarke of Cramahe Dropped Out—Davidson Beaten 21-19.

(By a Staff Reporter)

COBOURG, Jan. 28 — John McCubbin, reeve of Percy Township, is warden of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham for 1926, having been elected at the meeting of the Counties Council Tuesday night, beating out Reeve Charles H. Davidson of Campbellford on the seventh vote by a count of 21 to 19. At the beginning of the contest Reeve S. A. Clarke of Cramahe was nominated but he dropped out after the sixth vote. The division was almost a straight party vote as the Council is divided politically 21 to 19 and for the first time the Liberals have elected a warden of their party. Since 1918 when Fred J. Slade won over M. E. Maybee, his success having been made possible when a Conservative member vaulted the party fence.

The Nominations

When Clerk MacNachtan called for nominations Deputy Reeve Nelson of Percy was on his feet like a flash, beating Deputy Reeve Palliser to his feet by the fraction of a second, to present the name of Reeve McCubbin, this nomination being seconded by Reeve H. R. Mouncey of Alnwick. Reeve Davidson's nomination was made by Deputy Reeve Palliser and Reeve Clarke was placed in the running by Deputy Reeve Murphy of Cramahe and Reeve W. T. Wood of Millbrook.

The Different Votes

The first six cotes resulted as follows:

First vote—McCubbin, 10; Davidson, 18; Clarke, 11.

Second vote—McCubbin, 16; Davidson, 16; Clarke, 7.

Third vote—McCubbin, 12; Davidson, 19; Clarke, 8.

Fourth vote—McCubbin 13; Davidson, 14; Clarke, 10.

Fifth vote—McCubbin, 12; Davidson, 17; Clarke, 10.

Sixth vote—McCubbin, 13; Davidson, 17; Clarke, 9.

The Council then adjourned for five minutes and when it re-assembled new nominations were called for Reeve McCubbin and Davidson again being placed in the running by their respective sponsors. Reeve Snetsinger of Colborne, who had been absent during the fist six votes, arrived during the recess and on the seventh vote all 40 members declared their choice, Reeve Snetsinger voting for McCubbin.

When Reeve McCubbin was declared elected he was invested with the vote of office and escorted to the Warden's chair by his mover and seconder. In a brief address he thanked the members of the Council for having placed him in one of the most honorable offices in the United Counties. He said that the position was one which he had been ambitious, during the last two years to fill, as the electors of his township, Percy, had given him the highest honors in their gift and at the recent election had allowed his return by acclamation so that he might make an effort to secure the peace in which he had just been elected. Some quest, it has been said, comes to every man once in his lifetime and he supposed that this was his hour.

Warden McCubbin hoped that this would be a year of contentment and peace and that the Council would continues as harmonious as it had always been in the past.

Reeve Davidson is certainly a good loser. As soon as Reeve McCubbin was declared elected he crossed the floor of the Chamber and congratulated him on his victory, the first man in the room to do so.

Gets Down To Business.

Rev. Dr. T. S. Boyle of St. Peter's church, Cobourg, opened the Council with devotional exercises and for his services was rendered a vote of thanks on motion of Reeve Wood of Millbrook.

The Council, once under way, listened to the reading of a bunch of communications by Clerk MacNachitan and these were referred to the various committees to be dealt with. At four o'clock Wednesday the members will visit the local hospital, this being a preliminary step to considering a request for increased grants by the three hospitals in the counties.

Appointing Committees.

By rotation, the deputy-reeve this year will select the various committees, each of the latter to choose its own chairman. These committees will be reported to the Council tomorrow and another session will be held at 2 p.m. Several delegations are expected to address the members at 3 p.m.

Deputy-Reeve Nelson made a fight to have the committees chosen at once so that they could begin work in the morning, but he was voted down on a division, Reeve T. Baker of Darlington and Deputy Reeve Mahre of Cobourg leading in the contention that the selection of the committees was too important a matter to be done hurriedly.

The two leading candidates for the Wardenship were well supported by a number of friends who came here to see them through the struggle. Among those from Percy were: W. S. Nelson, C. H. Curtis, W. Dingman and James and Joseph Lamey. Campbellford's contingent included Mayor J. M. Bygott, Roy Bell, R. J. Allan, ex-Reeve A. H. McKeel, J. D. McEachren, A. L. Riendeau, Stephen Twigg and Clarence McKeel. Among the political notables who watched the proceedings were ex-Warden F. J. Slade and Major Belford, M.L.A. J. L. McCamus, who was Warden last year was a spectator and was invited to a seat on the platform. He made a short address congratulating the new Warden on his election.

Veteran Missing.

Among the 12 missing from the membership roll are four of the oldest veterans, Reeve Haig of Haldimand, Deputy Reeve Patterson of Clarke and Reeve Lawson and Deputy-Reeve Wilson, both of Hope township. The pitchers went to often to the municipal well and were broken at last by an erratic public that eventually fails in its appreciation of the most faithful service. The redoubtable Thomas Baker, reeve of Darlington, is back again. In the 21 years of his public service he has been called up to face an election only twice.

Victim of Circumstances.

Reeve Davidson was simply unfortunate. He made his race for the wardenship when the political stars in their courses were against him.

ICE-CUTTING STARTS ON MILLBROOK POND

Is One Week Earlier Than Last Year—Millbrook News.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 29. — Ice-cutting on Attwooll and Sheppard's pond began on Tuesday morning, about one week earlier than last year, February third being the date in 1925. The ice is in good condition, and about twelve inches thick, with a comparatively small quantity of snow on the upper surface.

The first robins, two of them, of the season were seen locally on Tuesaday morning, and the first pussy-willows, well out, were gathered on Saturday. This apparently constitutes a record for this vicinity so far as the pussy-willows are concerned. A lone robin has occasionally been seen in January of other years.

The annual vestry meeting of St. Thomas' church was held on Monday at 8 p.m., the rector, Rev. Canon Allen, presiding, and a fair representation of the congregation being present.

The rector's warden, A. J. Fallis, M.P.P., presented the financial report of the church for the past year showing receipts, parochial, $1,518,-04; extra parochial, $280.21; balance from 1924, $80.75; total $1,878.82. Expenditures, parochial, $1,424.50; extra-parochial, $299.68; total, $1,-724.18; balance on hand, $154.64. On motion the report was adopted.

The following officials were elected for 1926:

Rector's warden—A. J. Fallis. M. P.P.

Peoples' warden—J. J. Clarke.

Secretary-Treasurer —H. J. Grassett.

Vestry Clerk—T. H. Bradley.

Sidesmen—H. Jordan, Allen Pitt, Robert Shaw, H. B. Allen, J. J. Clarke, A. J. Fallis, Geo. Fowler, G. F. Harrington, L. W. Fallis, J. Dawson, J. A. Vance, H. J. Grassett, F. Lowery, D. Fowler, R. I. Fallis.

Delegates to Synod—A. J. Fallis, H. B. Allen, J. J. Clarke.

Auditors—T. H. Collins, A. A. Smith

Executive Committee—Mrs. John Allen, Mrs. G. F. Harrington, Mrs. L. S. Morton, Mrs. C. McNeil, Mrs. H. J. Grassett, Mrs. A. J Fallis, Mrs E. Grandy, Mrs. M. B. Turner, Messrs. J. A. Vance, R. Stone, A. A. Needler, G. F. Harrington, H. J. Grassett, Lavergne Fallis, J. J. Clarke, A. J. Fallis, John Dawson, J. E. Allen H. C. Attwooll, H. B. Allen, G. Fowler.

Cemetery Committee—T. J. Lang, T. H. Collins, A. A. Needler, T. H. Bradley, J. Mitchell.

Reports from the A.Y.P.A., Woman's Auxiliary, and the Sunday school were satisfactory from every standpoint, each organization having a balance on hand after all obligations had been met.

Rev. Canon Allen, and his assistant, Rev. D. R. Dewdney, extended a hearty vote of thanks to all who had assisted in the work of the church, and assumed office in its various organizations, during the year, and voiced an optimistic outlook for the current twelve months.

Relieved of lame back overnight

STIFFNESS AND ACHE GONE IN ONE NIGHT

Sportsman is "as good as new" after one treatment

Sportsmen have learned a simple way to take out pain and stiffness when they get lamed up from exposure or over-exertion.

A Philadelphia sportsman writes that he caught cold in his back while out gunning and the next day found himself so stiff and lame he could hardly bend.

"I went to work, but had to come home," he writes. "I applied Sloan's freely and went to bed. The next morning I was as good as new, thanks to the quick and sure action of Sloan's Liniment." (Name and address given on request.)

It is amazing what Sloan's does for any kind of muscular pain. Just pat it on lightly. No need to rub. Sloan's alone does the work.

Instantly it sends a healing tide of fresh, new blood right to the sore spots. Your muscles limber up, stop aching and get back their tone. So clean and pleasant to use, too. Get a bottle today. All druggists—35 cents.

EGG CIRCLE HAS A HIGH RECORD

English Line Annual Meeting Hears Excellent Reports —New Officers.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 29.—The annual meeting of the English Line Egg Circle was held in the club rooms on Wednesday. The attendance was only fair as other meetings interfered. The manager, Thomas Rowe reports a very successful season, with sales of 64,357 dozen of eggs for total receipts of $19,679.10 at an average price for the season of 30½ cents, netting 28.4 cents per dozen, after expenses were deducted. This is one of the highest averages among circles in Eastern Ontario. The grading returns also compared favourably with those in other districts.

Mr. Buker of Brockville addressed the meeting on the subject of poultry fairs. These fairs are held in the district around Napance and Kingston and are proving very satisfactory as dressed poultry is brought in and sold on the open market to the highest bidder. At fourteen fairs in this district $237,120 worth of poultry was sold.

The officers of the English Line Egg Circle for 1926 are as follows:

President—W. H. Locke.

Vice-President — Mrs. Garnet Curle.

Secretary—E. L. Anderson.

Directors—Mrs. George Nelson, Mrs. Wm. Craighead, Mrs. Grills, Mrs. A. Barnum and E. J. Bonney.

Auditors—Mrs. P. B. Nelson, Mrs. E. McCook.

Manager—T. H. Rowe.

There is a period of life when we go back as we advance.—Rousseau.

SPLENDID YEAR FOR LADIES' AID

Omemee Organization Holds Meeting—Reports Show Progress.

APPRECIATION SHOWN

OMEMEE, Jan. 29.—The Ladies' Aid Society of the United Church met last week for the regular monthly meeting with nineteen members present. The president, Mrs. Wm. Henderson presided. Following the opening hymn and a season of prayer by Mrs. F. G. Sandy and Mrs. J. Bushnell the scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Harry Lamb. In the absence of the secretary, Mrs. J. Widdis, the report of last meeting was read by Mrs. E. Bradburn. The treasurer, Mrs. C. L. Morcombe gave a very encouraging report of the finances.

The Society has recently paid off the remaining debt on the church shed of $125, purchased a stove for the infant class room in the Sunday school, entertained the Sunday school scholars to a Christmas tree and remembered all the shutins in connection with the church with either fruit or flowers at Christmas, and have yet a neat balance in the treasury of $125.

Letters of appreciation were read from F. G. Sandy for the kind remembrance of the Society to his father, Joseph. Sandy, also from Mrs. I. Glenny for a box of fruit.

Plans for holding a social of some sort during the winter were discussed but as yet nothing definite has been decided on. The meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

A.Y.P.A. Meeting.

Edification, an important item of the four fold principle of the A.Y.P.A. was developed in an address by the Rev. A. T. Weir at the meeting on Monday. The subject of his address was "Why I believe in the Holy Ghost." The speaker brought forward several reasons for belief and said that when certain excellent qualities were evident in one, there was proof that the Spirit must exist in that one. A desire for the good and beautiful, and for knowledge, a striving to better the conditions of the race and a confidence in God's Divine laws, are evidences of the Spirit's presence. The president thanked Mr. Weir, on behalf of the Society for his excellent address.

Y.P.C. Play.

The young people of the Young People's League, who dramatized the play on Christmas night entitled "Deacon Dubbs" journeyed to Reaboro on Wednesday night and were greeted by a fairly large and most appreciative audience.

POLICE REPORT

Cobourg Had 171 Cases in Year—51 Were for B.O.T.A.

COBOURG, Jan. 29.—The report for the year 1925 submitted to the Town Council Monday night by J. C. Rose, Chief of Police, shows that 117 cases came before the Magistrate during the year. 51 of these were B.O.T.A. cases. The total amount of fines collected was $942.90, and $1,446 was collected for licenses.

PROHIBITIONISTS BUSY

Organizer in Kingston Preparing for Provincial Election is Satisfied.

KINGSTON, Jan. 29.—(Special).—Mr. William Bolsam, organizer for Eastern Ontario, of the Ontario Prohibition Union is in the city doing some preliminary work in organizing for the next provincial election. He stated at 1. has been all over Eastern Ontario, during the past two months and is well pleased wih the way in which the temperance people are organized. He says that there is a determination on the part of the temperance people of all shades of politics, to see that candidates for the legislature who desire their support, undertake to support the Ontario Temperance Act.

OBITUARY.

DR. SAMUEL NICHOLS

COBOURG, Jan. 29.—The funeral took place on Wednesday with Masonic honors of Dr. Samuel Nichols. He was born in Hamilton township, being a son of the late Charles Nichols and his wife, Margaret Grandy. He graduated from a Veterinar. College in Toronto and practiced his profession in that city and at Wilkesberre, Pa., before returning to this locality, where he has engaged in farming operations on the Provincial highway, West, since about 1901. Dr. Nichols is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Carrie Powers of Port Hope, a daughter Margaret and a son John A. Nichols, and by two brothers, Nathon of Port Britain and Matthew C., merchant of Cobourg, and by one sister, Mrs. McGee of Forget, Sask. The interment was in St. John's cemetery, Port Hope.

WIFE'S CLAIM

Interesting Case Argued in Cobourg—Judgment for $500.

COBOURG, Jan. 29.—An interesting case came up for argument in the Surrogate Court here on Tuesday before His Honor Judge McGlade. It was brought by Mrs. Annie White to recover $500 from the estate of her late husband. Mrs. White claimed that in 1921 she bought a butcher business in Newcastle. Her husband did not wish to buy, but she bought it and paid for it taking the receipt in her own name. Last spring Mr. White died and his wife claimed she had never received her money back. Deceased left a will the executors of which were Geo. S. Wright, Newcastle, and Dr. Butler, Newcastle. The executors did not wish to pay the money, unless Mrs. White's case was proved, and the court so directed. H. A. Ward, K.C. for Mrs White, W. A. F. Campbell for the estate Judgement was given the plaintiff for the $500 and costs.

BIRDS COME BACK.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29. — A squad of city firemen has begun a battle with a new enemy, birds. Hundreds of starlings and sparrows chose as their home a row of trees along Pennsylvania avenue between 13th and 14th streets. The firemen turned the hose on them one night recently but the birds came back next day.

CAN. PROBLEMS REQUIRE ENGINEERS

Leaders in Profession From All Canada Assemble in Toronto.

R. L. DOBBIN ELECTED

More than 400 delegates to the fortieth annual convention of the Engineering Institute of Canada met in the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, on Wednesday. Yesterday the number reached nearly 600, which included engineers renowned in the various branches of their profession. Some 25 branches throughout Canada having a total membership of 5200, are represented at the convention and much of the time in the morning was given over to the consideration of reports from these local groups.

Medals Awarded.

Presenting the report of the Gzowski Medal Committee, F. B. Brown, chairman, recommended A. G. Tayley, St. John, N.B., for decoration as the author of one of the best papers on the subject of "Concrete in Sea Water." Other names submited were Messrs. Henry, Wynne-Roberts, Oxley, Fortin, Blair, Theurkauf, Bronson and Smith, C. V. Corless, Sault Ste. Marie, was recommended for the Leonard Medal for his paper on "The Mineral Wealth of the Pre-Cambrian." The Plummer Medal will go to C. B. Bronson for his paper on "Steel Rails."

Mayor Thomas Foster welcomed the delegates at a largely attended luncheon at which Professor T. R. Loudon, chairman of the Toronto branch, presided. The importance of a sound engineering profession to a country could hardly be estimated, said the mayor. The St. Lawrence waterways would give tremendous impetus to Canada's industrial progress, he said, and its development would be among the great engineering achievements of the century.

R. C. Harris, Commissioner of Works of Toronto, was the second speaker. The efficiency of public services depended upon the skill and honesty of the engineers, he pointed out, and during many years of close contact with the profession he had learned to regard them as courageous, resourceful and faithful to the public trust.

At the close of the afternoon session Mrs. C. H. Mitchell, assisted by a committee of seventeen, held a reception on the parlor floor of the King Edward for the visiting wives and daughters of the delegates.

Officers Elected.

Dr. Arthur Surveyer, President, of Montreal, presided at the morning session, and in the afternoon the reins of office were given over to George A. Walkem, M.E.I.C., of Vancouver, President-elect.

Other officers elected for 1926 were as follow.: Vice-Presidents — G. S. Dawson, Calgary; Peter Gillespie, Toronto; K. B. Thornton, Montreal; W. G. Mitchell, Kenogami; G. D. McDougall. Past Presidents are: J. M. R. Fairbairn, Montreal; J. G. Sullivan, Winnipeg; Arthur Surveyer, Montreal. Councillors — F. C. Green and James Muirhead, Vancouver; John Dow, Lethbridge; R. S. Trowsdale, Calgary; A. W. Haddow, Edmonton; H. R. Mackenzie, Saskatchewan. D. L. McLean and E. V. Caton, Winnipeg; G. H. Burbidge, Lakehead; C. H. E. Rounthwaite, Sault Ste. Marie; I. E. Porter, Border Cities; E. V. Buchanan, London; T. S. Scott, Niagara Peninsula; W. F. McLaren, Hamilton; J. M. Oxley, F. G. Hewson and H. K. Wickstead, Toronto; R. L. Dobbin, Peterboro; O. S. Finnie and I. L. Rannie, Ottawa; L. M. Arkley, Kingston; J. L. Busfield, C. M. McKergow, J. T. Farmer, J. H. Hunter, O. Lefebvre and Geo. R. McLeod, Montreal; A. B. Normandin, Quebec; F. O. Condon, Moncton; A. G. Tapley, St. John, N.B., C. H. Wright, Halifax; W. C. Risley, Cape Breton

THE DOMINION BANK SHOWS GOOD YEAR

Increase in Deposits, Earnings, and Larger Liquid Assets Reported at Annual Meeting.

One of the most gratifying features of the annual report of the Dominion Bank, which was unanimously adopted by the shareholders at the meeting in Toronto on Jan. 27, was the substantial increase shown in deposits. A gain of nearly five milion dollars to a total of $96,227,162.86, was naturally accepted as an evidence of strong public confidence. Interest-bearing deposits acounts for the main increase; they now total $76,285,014.44, as compared with $71,862,525.00 a year ago.

A strong liquid position has always been noticeable in the reports of the Dominion Bank, and this year there is further improvement. The quickly realizable assets are now $71,591,187.42, or equal to 60.94 per cent. of the bank's total liabilities to the public. This compares with 61.40 per cent. at the end of 1924. A consistent investor, at all times, in Dominion, Provincial, Municipal and other high-class securities, the bank's holdings now amount to $25,284,126.30, an increase of nearly four million dollars in these securities during the year.

Notwithstanding the fact that business has been hesitant, it is evident that the bank's funds were well employed in the commercial affairs of the country, which has always been a foremost aim of the management. The profits for the year showed a satisfactory increase and amounted to $1,156,840.43, which, with $900,124.87 carried forward, made a total of $2,056,965.30 available for distribution. The regular dividends of 12 per cent. with 1 per cent. bonus, were paid, amounting to $780,000. A contribution of $45,000 was made to the Officers' Pension Fund, as in the previous year. The amount written off Bank Premises Account was increased by $25,000 to $100,000. Dominion and Provincial taxation paid totalled $167,667.14. There was then left a balance to be carried forward of $964,298.16, the largest sum carried forward in the history of the bank. The paid up capital remains at $6,000,000, while the Reserve Fund and Undivided Profits amount to nearly $8,000,000.

The report was considered by the shareholders as in every way commendable.

The affairs of the bank have been audited on behalf of the shareholders by A. B. Shepherd, C. A., of Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Company, and Percy C. Baxter, C. A., of Macintosh, Cole and Robertson.

WELL-MERITED SUCCESS

A distinguished citizen, honored politically and professionally, Dr. R. V. Pierce, whose picture appears above, made a success few have equalled. His pure herbal remedies which have stood the test for many years are still among the "best sellers." Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a blood medicine and stomach alterative. It clears the skin, beautifies it, increases the blood supply and the circulation, and pimples and eruptions vanish quickly. Beauty is but skin deep and good blood is beneath both. For your blood to be good, your stomach must be in condition, your liver active. This Discovery of Doctor Pierce's puts you in fine condition, with all the organs active. Ask your nearest druggist for Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, in tablet or liquid form, or send 10 cents for trial package of tablets to Dr. Pierce's Laboratory in Bridgeburg, Ontario.

The Slight Cold Of To-day May Be Serious To-morrow

On the first appearance of a cough or cold, do not neglect it, but get rid of it at once before it has a chance to grow worse and becomes settled on the lungs, for once it does become deep-seated you are going to have a lot of trouble in getting rid of it.

Our advice to you is that on the first sign of a cough or cold you should procure a bottle of as by its timely use you may save yourself many years of suffering from some serious bronchial or lung troubles.

"Dr. Wood's" has been on the market for the past 37 years; so you are not experimenting with some new and untried remedy; put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

CHICAGO STREET FLOODED BY MAIN

Huge Pipe Burst, Ruining Stock in Many Basements.

CHICAGO, Jan. 29 (Canadian Press).—The bursting of a 36-inch main here flooded hundreds of basements and stopped all traffic on several streets. Firemen, who tried to repair some of the damage after the water had been cut off, estimated that the damage might run as high as $2,000,000. Water department officials estimated that water poured into northwest side streets at a rate of one million gallons an hour.

EXCELSIOR LIFE SUCCESSFUL YEAR

Statements at Annual Meeting Show Progress Made.

The statements submitted at the annual meeting of the Excelsior Life Insurance Company, presided over by the First Vice-President, Alex. Fasken, K.C., show 1925 to have been another very successful year for this strong and progressive Canadian company.

The amount of new business, issued and revived, and the increase in the premium income were the largest on record. The company enjoyed a continuance of its well-known favorable mortality, the actual to the expected mortality being only 37.8 per cent. The company writes business in Canada exclusively. The insurance in force now amounts to $61,746,263.09. The assets, which includes over $4,000,000 Government and municipal debentures total $10,992,576.61.

The interest earnings were very satisfactory, averaging 6.52 per cent. on the whole of the investments. The unallotted surplus was increased to $1,394,000.92.

These favorable results were attained with a decrease in expense rate of 3.2 per cent.

Mr. A. J. McClellan, branch manager for the Excelsior Life at Peterboro, is optimistic as to the prospects of an increased volume of business for the Excelsior in Central Ontario in 1926.

MUSSOLINI PLEASED BY PAYMENT TERMS

Hopes They Will Bring Two Countries Closer Together.

ROME, Jan. 28 (Canadian Press)—Premier Mussolini yesterday expressed his personal satisfaction over the war debt settlement with Great Britain. He hoped that from the understanding would arise an even more identical view of Anglo-Italian problems in the mutual interest of the two countries which he said, "never were enemies throughout the centuries and have in common the noblest ideals."

SHIPPING BOARD HAD OYSTER SUPPER

South Monaghan U. F. O. Entertained Patrons Last Week.

BAILIEBORO, Jan. 28.—On Thursday evening the members of the South Monaghan United Farmers shipping board held their third annual oyster supper, and social evening in the Sunday school hall at Centreville.

This year they were pleased to find out that the membership has increased considerable since last winter. About three hundred people partook of the bountiful supper which was daintily served by the ladies.

At the conclusion of the supper the crowd moved down the street to the U.F.O. hall, whee the programme was given. The President, Fred Wood, acted as chairman, and in his opening address thanked all of those present for their patronage during the past year, and also for coming out and helping to make the annual oyster supper a success. Mr. Wood also stated that the amount of business transacted during the past year amounted to $28,967. Last year during the month of January the club shipped only one carload of stock to the stock yards, and this year already it has shipped four carloads of hogs sheep and cattle.

Mrs. Webster, district president of the U.F.W.P.O. clubs of Ontario, from Cambray, was the first speaker of the evening. Mrs. Webster declared that the present United Farmers' organization has sprung up from the tiny spark that was kept alive from the former Grange. The Grange was simply the commencement of the farmers' organization. Then the patrons of Industry organized after the Grange had fallen through, and that organization existed only for a short time. In the year 1914, the United Farmers lined up again under the leadership of J. J. Morrison, and the organization at that time was in such poor circumstances financially that there was not money enough in the treasury to secure a berth in the train for their "good old war horse," Mr. Morrison, when he went to Winnipeg to attend the first convention which was held there in 1914.

So the little spark that had kept alive from the former Grange commenced to flicker and grow once again. Mr. Morrison found that to keep this organization gaining prominence throughout the continent the ladies must also cooperate with the men. A big country-wide convention was held in Toronto, at which the men and women from all over Ontario gathered at, and there the great organizations, commonly known as the U.F.O. and U.F.W.O. and U.F.-Y.P.O. were first thoroughly discussed and organized.

At the beginning of the organization Mrs. Webster was appointed convenor of the young people's organization. The speaker stated that her idea of the young folks movement was to educate them to have the ideas of farmers being united, because she knew that at the present day lack of union was the greatest drawback with the farmers.

In conclusion Mrs Webster quoted the following words.—

To live as nobly as I can
To be, no matter where, a man;
To take what comes of good or ill
And cling to faith and honour, still:
To do my best and let that stand
The record of my brain and hand,
And then should failure come to me,
Still work and hope for victor.

To have no secret place wherein
I stoop unseen to shame and sin;
To be the same when I'm alone
As when my every deed is known;
To live undaunted and unafraid
Of any step that I have made.
To be without pretense or sham
Exactly what men think I am.

Mr. Zeagman of the United Farmers' Stock Exchange of Toronto was the next speaker of the evening.

He stated that there were three things very essential in raising live stock, they were first the feeding. He declared that live stock raising wasdca road to success, and if the farmers did not raise live stock they were land robbers. Further, he stated that when motoring along through the country it was quite easy to distinguish the farms whereon live stock was raised. On these farms there is a prosperous appearance, which looks as though that farmer is making a success of farming. His land looks rich and clean, his buildings and fences look tidy and neat, and there is the general air of prosperity around a farm where live stock is raised.

He advised the farmers to stay with the Co-operative and ship their hogs co-operatively. The packers want and are demanding a better grade of export bacon than they ever demanded before. Canada is determined to compete with the Danes and regain their market for their bacon on the English market. To do this and regain their place on the English market Canadians must produce a better grade of hogs. So, through the grading policy the fmerse tho are taking advantage of shipping their hogs through the co-operativ and selling them on a graded basis are encouraged in raising a more select grade of hogs and thus the Canadian bacon is, year by year, regaining the English trade, which will mean that the Canadian farmer wil, receive the highest price for his hogs, and every year there is a great increase in the amount of hogs shipped through the co-operative to the Toronto market.

In concluding his address Mr. Zeakman congratulated the South Monaghan Club upon their able shipper, Mr. Wood, whom he stated was a very capable man for the position. capable man for the position.

Mr. Robt. Morrison, son of Mr. J. J. Morrison was also present and gave a brief address, stating his intentions of McCammus of Ida were present and rendered several comic duets during the programme which were very much appreciated by those present. Mrs. L. Winslow was the accompanist at the piano.

At the conclusion of the programme the Stewart and Moncrief orchestra furnished music for dancing, while both old and young joined in the dances for a couple of hours.

This oyster supper and programme has been declared by many, the most successful and best ever yet held by the members of the South Monaghan United Farmers' Shipping Board.

NEW POLICE POST

Constable for Red Lake Mining Area.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., Jan. 29.—The establishment of an Ontario provincial police post in the Red Lake mining area has been sanctioned by Commissioner Victor Williams and a constable, to be appointed within a few days, will leave for the new camp to take up his duties about February 15.

There is a possibility that the Kenora mining recorder, who will open an office at the Red Lake camp, will act for the time being as magistrate.

ROUND UP DOGS

Ottawa Fears Outbreak of Rabies.

OTTAWA, Jan. 29.—(Canadian Press.)— Fears of a general outbreak of rabies in Ottawa yesterday saw Chief of Police A. M. Ross order police to round up stray dogs and turn them into the city pound. Mayor Balharrie's telephone was besieged all morning by anxious residents, so that the Mayor advised the Chief of Police to take immediate action.

"The city should appoint a dog catcher," stated Deputy Chief of Police Joseph Gilhooly. "We are receiving hundreds of complaints and our force isn't large enough to respond to every call."

WELCOME PERSONALS

WELCOME, Jan. 29.—On Monday evening Mrs. Harvey Wallace gave a birthday party to the boys and girls in honor of Master George Giggins. A good time was enjoyed by all.

Mr. J. C. Staples is visiting his brothers in Baltimore for a few days this week.

Rev. D. R. Clare, accompanied by his sister, Mrs. Sanderson, went to Toronto on Tuesday to attend the Provincial temperance convention. Zion appointment sent two delegates, Mr. Staples and Mr. Dickenson, to the temperance convention.

Misses Marion and Doris Martin are on the sick list.

FARM NEWS AND PROBLEMS

FOUR MENIE DISTRICT FARMERS PLAN TO PUT IN TILE DRAINAGE THROUGH THEIR LOW LYING LAND

All Are Firm Believers in Value of Proper Drainage.

PROSPEROUS FARMS.

All Four Keep Large Herds of Dairy Cattle—Good Alfalfa Land.

BURNBRAE, Jan. 29.—If plans which are taking shape now, materialize during the coming summer, no doubt will be cast upon the progressive tendencies of Burnbrae district farmers. Four farmers in the Menie district, Messrs. Wm. Rannie, Ernest Eagleson, Neil Thirch and Chas. Hutcheon have decided to install a system of tile drainage during 1926, and have been making inquiries regarding tile and digging equipment. While they are not sure of obtaining the services of a traction ditcher, they intend to go on with the job as they think the benefit derived will amply repay them even when ditches have to be dug by hand labour. Mr. Eagleson already has a home-patent ditcher operated with three horses or a tractor which has enabled him to dig shallow drains at a record speed. Mr. Hutcheon has done considerable tile-draining before and is so pleased with the results of his venture that he is anxious to try this method on the rest of his low land.

At least two carloads of tile will be purchased by these farmers. Mr. Eagleson states that he can handle 15,000 tile or a good deal over a carload himself. The Eagleson farm is probably the finest in the Menie and Burnbrae district, but about half of it is unfortunately very low and level, so that good natural drainage is hard to obtain in a very wet season. As Mr. Eagleson is a firm believer in the merits of alfalfa as a hay and pasture crop, he is endeavoring to find a means whereby he can bring his whole farm into the regular rotation with this crop.

Good Alfalfa Land.

In spite of the low land, he has had wonderful success with alfalfa during the past four or five years, having no trouble in securing three crops a year. Indeed, all the Menie district seems to have land well suited to the culture of alfalfa and this is reflected in the general prosperity enjoyed throughout the locality. Messrs. Rannie, Eagleson, Thirch and Hutcheon all keep large dairy herds, sending milk to Menie and Kimberly cheese factories. Mr. Rannie keeps a herd of mostly grade Ayrshires, while Mr. Eagleson has a herd of pure-bred Holsteins. Messrs. Thirch and Hutcheon keep herds of high-grade Holsteins which have proved themselves money-makers. Mr. Thirch's herd at one time last summer averaged over 60 lbs. of milk per cow per day which is rather above the average. All these cattle are housed in up-to-date stables with water always before them. Mr. Hutcheon has also clipped his cattle this winter, resulting in a much improved appearance as they are

In addition to other improvements, Mr. Hutcheon is considering installing a home lighting plant. Some few years ago the farmers to the west of Menie tried to reach an agreement with the Hydro but failed, so that the private plant seems to be the only way to bring the comforts of light and power to the farms here.

Hay Bros, Menie, have been busy drawing gravel from Little's pit for their new barn foundation on the farm bordering the sixth line. It is intended that a modern steel structure will be erected during the coming summer.

Hog Prices Higher.

Hog prices are on the upward trend again, buyers quoting $13 per hundred, with prospects of a further raise.

Egg prices were somewhat weaker during the second week of January, going down to 35c per dozen, but have come back to the 40c mark. Extra heavy production, due to mild weather was the reason given by Toronto wholesale firms for the drop in price. As well, a number of U.S. eggs have been coming in and these do not improve the market conditions for the Canadian product.

Butter is Scarce.

Butter does not seem very plentiful as most farmers prefer to ship cream direct to the creameries and save work. Butter prices vary from 35 to 45c per lb., with plenty of buyers even at the top figures.

The value of newspaper advertising is sometimes brought to light in a rather startling manner. Recently, Messrs. Hume & Co. advertised in a local paper that they had a number of young sows for sale. Within forty-eight hours of the issue of the paper, every sow was sold and a number of farmers who were too late applying were badly disappointed.

W. Goodwin of Terrace, Central British Columbia, has placed fifty well-bred Alberta Southdown ewes on his Kalum Lake ranch. His plans are to build up a big flock. This is the first lot of sheep taken into that part of the country.

From locally produced seed, cross polonized, Fred Barnes, of Lakehill, Vancouver Island, harvested a crop of 107 tons of mangels from two and a half acres. He sold the roots for $10 a ton.

During the twelve months ended October 31st last, 486 new settlers took up land in the districts of Thunder Bay, Kenora and Rainy River, Northwestern Ontario. These districts are traversed by the Canadian National Transcontinental and Winnipeg-Port Arthur lines of the Canadian National Railways.

A very substantial reduction in the steamship passenger rate between Great Britain and Canada is expected to result in the influx of at least 200,000 selected immigrant to the Dominion from the British Isles this year.

COBOURG MAN HAS FINE HERD

Has Seven Year Old Ayrshire That Has Made Record.

BUYS PRIZE BULL.

COBOURG, Jan. 29.—Mr. T. J. Hume, of this town has a seven-year-old Ayrshire cow that has just made a Canadian record of 650 pounds of butter fat from 14,965 pounds of milk in a 305 day test.

This is equal to 614 pounds of butter fat. Mr Hume purchased a prize young bull at the Winter Fair in Toronto which, with his good cows, gives him a fine herd. He is an old Seymour Township boy and a progressive breeder and farmer.

DENMARK FIRST TO REMOVE BARBERRY

About Twenty Years Ago Rust Breeder Was Eradicated.

Denmark was ahead of Ontario in discovering the effect of barberry in propagating rust on wheat and in taking steps for the eradication of that pest. The late Joseph Goodfellow, of Innisfil township basing his action on personal observation, was the first to start the movement for eradication in Ontario, and from Ontario, the movement spread to the adjoining states.

Barberry bushes, a U.S. department of agriculture bulletin says, were first taken to Denmark in the seventeenth century and by 1805 their effect in the spread of rust had become generally observed. Many farmers destroyed their own bushes and noticed a decrease in rust as the result, but it was not until 1869 that legislative authority was given to anyone to demand eradication. This was not sufficient, and twenty odd years ago a law was passed requiring the complete destruction of barberry, except in botanical gardens and a few other restricted areas, and the law became effective January 1, 1904. The eradication campaign was effective. Not only were the bushes destroyed, but the black rust also practically disappeared.

ANTI-TUBERCULOSIS VACCINATION.

According to Hon. W. R. Motherwell, minister of agriculture, preventive vaccination against bovine tuberculosis has been the subject of a great amount of experiment and research by the health of animals branch for more than five years, and the outlook is promising, but the public is warned against accepting the opinions and hasty conclusions of pseudo-scientists. As a practical measure for the prevention of tuberculosis in cattle, vaccination must stand in obeyance until the experiments now in progress in Europe and America have been completed and its efficiency has been clearly demonstrated.

The output of the new sugar factory at Raymond, Alberta, following the first season's run will be about 80,000 bags of sugar from about 45,000 tons of beets. The run was not as heavy as first expected, but was quite satisfactory. The pulp and other by-products of the plant are to be used in stock feeding experiments.

Southern British Columbia orchardists and gardeners have organized a fruit and vegetable exchange and will be incorporated. It is claimed that the organization will make for efficient distribution by stabilizing prices and will also eliminate brokerage houses.

BITTER TASTE COMES IN MILK FROM BACTERIA

Feed Also Gives Taste to the Milk at Times.

CONTAMINATION.

Usually Comes From Utensils Not Properly Sterilized.

Exposed as it is to contamination, not only in the stable, but also with every subsequent handling, milk is always infected to a degree, depending upon the sanitary conditions employed, by many types of bacteria which finde in it ideal conditions for growth. Some bacteria cause no noticeable change while others, by affecting the color consistency, odour or flavour, often injure the milk to such an extent as to render it, as well as products made from it, worthless.

A bitter taste in milk is occasionally due to specific substances in the feed which are absorbed into the milk. In such cases the milk is bitter when drawn, while the remedy lies in removing the offending feed. Other cases, often epidemic in nature, arise where bitterness develops after the milk is drawn and in such instances bacteria are the cause of the trouble. As this frequently occurs even where sanitary conditions are in general good, the tource of the trouble is often hard to locate and remove. In an investigation conducted at the Central Experimental Farm, studies were made of conditions affecting the production of bitterness connected with an outbreak where bacteria were found to be the cause. The bacteria in water supplies and contamination from the utensils is believed to be the source. Remedial measures, then, should consist in paying special care to the cleaning and sterilization of all containers, by using scalding water or steam as a final treatment. Final wiping with a cloth is to be discouraged.

The production of bitterness by the bacteria was found to be encouraged by contact of milk with air, either by increasing the exposed surface or by agitation. When milk is stored any length of time it is better, in dealing with bitter milk troubles, to keep the exposed surface at a minimum in proportion to volume and to minimize agitation. Furthermore, the bitter bacteria studied were found to be more resistant to heat than the majority of milk bacteria. It was found that imperfectly pasteurized milk was specially prone to turn bitter due to the greater resistance to heat of the bitter bacteria than that of other germs able to keep the former in check. Pasteurization, then, should be thorough, and when there is danger of bitterness developing, it would appear advisable to exceed the usual time or temperature commonly employed. —Dr. A. G. Lockhead, Dominion Bacteriologist.

TREBLE PRODUCTION SINCE PRE-WAR DAYS

Nova Scotian Apple Crop Equals That of Rest of Empire.

HALIFAX, N.S., Jan. 29 (Canadian Press).—Many Nova Scotians, to say nothing of Canadians in general, will be surprised to know that the export of apples in Nova Scotia is much greater than the combined apple export of the rest of the British Empire, according to Albert E. McMahon, Manager of the United Fruit Company, in a recent article. In 1924, writes Mr. McMahon, the export of Nova Scotia apples exceeded by 400,000 barrels the export of apples from all the other producing sections of the British Empire. He points out also that the apple production in Nova Scotia has almost trebled since the years before the war. At that time the ordinary crop was 700,000 barrels. During the last six years the average annual production has been 1,700,000 barrels.

Nova Scotia has the most congested apple growing area in the world, according to Mr. McMahon. The entire production of this enormous crop is almost wholly confined to a stretch of country abont ninety miles long and varying from three to twelve miles wide, constituting the Annapolis and Cornwallis Valleys.

Occasionally the apple crop in Nova Scotia is a partial failure, and 1925 is an instance. During that year the climatic conditions were probably the worst ever experienced, says Mr. McMahon. Continuous periods of wet weather in spring and early summer were conducive to orchard diseases that could not be successfully combatted with the known methods, and fhis, coupled with low temperatures and lack of sunshine in the late summer and autumn, resulted in a greatly inferior crop. Such conditions have been rare in history and may not occur again for many years.

The apple blossoms of Nova Scotia have long been a source of delight to visitors from far and near. During the few weeks in June when the orchards are a mass of pink and white, the roads through the apple bearing districts are thronged with motorists.

SUNFLOWERS VALUABLE.

Sunflowers yield approximately 50 per cent more dry matter an acre than silage corn, according to studies made by dairy cattle feeding specialists. The sunflowers also yield more ash, crude fiber and crude fat than corn.

TREES "GO TO SLEEP."

Trees put themselves to sleep for the winter, according to investigations conducted by the Westinghouse Lamp Co. These investigations show that the belief that trees are "put to sleep" by the various seasonal changes is inaccurate as the trees "go to sleep" themselves.

SOME VARIETIES OF SWEET CLOVER

Quite a Number Are Grown —Biennial White in Demand.

In his pamphlet on "Sweet Clover," published by the Dominion department of agriculture, R. A. Derick, of the Brandon experimental farm, discourses interestingly on the varieties. There are many varieties of sweet clover, some very indistinct. There are annual and biennial white, as well as annual and biennial yellow-blossoming varieties. At present the demand is mainly for the biennial white type, commonly referred to as white sweet clover. The yellow is somewhat smaller, growing and maturing earlier than the white. It has also more tillers and a finer stem and leaf growth. Although not grown in Canada to any great extent, Mr. Derick says the yellow seems as hardy if not hardier than the white. It is usually believed, however, to produce less forage.

Arctic, a white-flowered biennial variety that came from northern Siberia has been developed at the University of Saskatchewan. While it is generally accepted to be exceptionally hardy, Mr. Derick says that at Brandon, this trait has not particularly shown itself because all of the biennial types of sweet clover tested have proved hardy. In maturity, he states, that Arctic is slightly earlier than the common white.

Hubam, a white-flowered annual, has received considerable consideration of late. Tests at Brandon have shown that it requires a long season to reach full maturity and that the average growing season in Manitoba would not permit full development of the crop. This variety grows rather early and later on produces a quick, rank growth that Mr. Derick suggests may prove useful ploughed under as a green manure.

In a summary of his own pamphlet Mr. Derick recognizes Arctic as a standard variety and says that it has given favorable results.

STANDARD LIST OF SEED VARIETIES.

In its service of protecting the farmers and gardeners who purchase seed grain or seed of other crops the Dominion seed branch prohibits the use of false or spurious variety names and other misrepresentation in advertising and selling. In order to make this work more effective the branch has compiled a simplified and standardized list of variety names o all kinds of agricultural field root and garden vegetable seeds to be used in certain cata'ogues and other forms of advertising in the seed trade. That this undertaking had become necessary is shown by the fact that chiefly through the elimination of synonymous names no less than 2,167 names have been omitted from the original list compiled from seed catalogues. The list as it now stands consists of about three hundred names of principal varieties and is held open for revision from time to time.

Agricultural production in 1925 showed a significant readjustment in favor of livestock producers, the Dept. of Agriculture points out in its report of the agricultural situation.

BETTER KEEP YOUR BUILDINGS PAINTED

Not Only Brightens Yard, But Preserves the Wood.

The use of paint mixed with lin seed oil not only brightens up the buildings and home surroundings, but preserves the wooden structures, adds to the value of the property, enhances credit and self-respect.

All wood is subject to decay when exposed to moisture and air. Rot in wood is caused by a tiny fungous plant that grows inside the wood and feeds off the body of the good wood. The rot plants grow a small spore which floats in the air and lies in the ground ready at all times to grow when conditions are favorable. If the spore falls on a damp piece of wood on a warm day in the presence of air, all the conditions are good and rapid growth and production of more rot plants takes place.

A condition most needed for decay is moisture, but air is also necessary. Farmers know that fence posts rot off near the surface where they get moisture and air in the right proportions. They rot more slowly below ground, because there is less air. Spiles driven into the water under bridges and piers will last below the water line indefinitely because of insufficient air in water for the growth of rot plants. The spiles will rot off at the water line, however, where they get both moisture and air.

When paint is applied to wood, decay is prevented, shutting out both moisture and air. Where white lead is used the wood fibres are poisoned so that rot plants cannot live in it. In time, however, the paint wears off and the rot spores will find lodgement.

The remedy is to paint the buildings at intervals of a few years. It is not expensive and it pays in many ways.

CANADIAN BUTTER AT BRISTOL.

According to reports made by Mr. Douglas S. Cole, Canadian government trade commissioner at Bristol, satisfaction with this year's quality and improved grading of Canadian butter is expressed by prominent importers in Bristol, one of the most important distributing centres of Canadian butter in the United Kingdom. The trade commissioner adds that if Canada keeps on shipping fresh butter, in time it will have an effect on the English market to the detriment of other sources of supply. Mr. Cole states that "increased quantities of Western Canadian butter are coming into that market, and this new source of supply upholds the reputation the Canadian product has won in the trade." The Irish exporters were formerly the chief competitors of the Canadian produce in the west of England.

The special prize of $50 offered by the Canadian National Railways for the Canadian scoring the highest in timothy seed at the International show at Chicago has been won by A. Loughheed, of Bowden, a well-knownAlber ta registered seed grower.

A press despatch from Dallas, Texas, states that Mennonites returning to Western Canada from Mexico are passing through that place every week. They say conditions below the Rio Grande were very disappointing, and all those who left Canada are looking forward eagerly to the time when they will be able to return.

Work With Commercial Beekeeper For Season is Valuable.

(Experimental Farms Note.)

The prospective beekeeper should give careful consideration to present-day conditions and requirements of the beekeeping industry. He should compare it with other callings and should not allow glowing accounts of what other beekeepers have done to unduly influence his decision in the matter.

If ambitious to become a large or small beekeeper, let him consider first of all marketing conditions. If he lives in one of the older provinces, where beekeeping is considerably developed, he sh uld bear in mind that the large amount of honey produced demands marketing through a sales organization. For the provinces where beekeeping is yet young, local markets may be secured.

Beekeeping may be said to consist of production and marketing—the latter to a large extent governs the former.

The first consideration in production is to gain experience; this may be obtained by working for a season or two with a commercial beekeeper or it may be acquired, more slowly, by keeping one or two colonies, which is the maximum advised for any beginner to start with—None but modern equipment is recommended.

While gaining experience, he will learn that all operations must be done at the proper time, that slip-shod methods will not do, and he will also have an opportunity of deciding, before investing his money, whether or not he likes the work.

Much money has been wasted by over-anxious, inexperienced beginners imbued with the idea that beekeeping was an easy way of getting rich quickly.

Having decided on taking up the work, he will do well to conform to the beekeepers' etiquette, the Golden rule, which is to abstain from locating in an already crowded district. And let him remember that his duty to his neighbour as well as to himself is to wage incessant war on disease should it attack his colonies. —A. H. W. Birch, Apiarist, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

AT CAVAN.

CAVAN, Jan. 29.—Mr. Wm. Tinney shipped a carload of hogs from Cavan station on Monday.

Messrs. Wm. and John Stark are getting out timber preparing to build a new barn next summer.

Mr. S. Boyle intends building a new house next summer.

Mr. E. Syer has purchased a large evaporator to be used in making maple syrup, and has it placed in his woods, in a suitable building.

Recently, when Mr. Lloyd Sutton was loading some beef cattle, which he intended to take to Toronto to sell, a fine beef cow jumped out of the stock yards, at the C.P.R. station, Cavan, and was killed on the track by a freight train.

The clover threshers have finished their threshing in Cavan Centre. Alsike yielded well in this vicinity this year and was a pretty good sample Mr. Arthur Jamieson had eleven acres, which yielded twenty-five bags.

R. S. Staples had fourteen acres which yielded seventy-three bushels. F. M. Staples had ten bags off six acres. The price received was ten and a half dollars a bushel.

These fields were an average crop.

MODERN PIED PIPERS USE FERRETS

By NEA Service.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Jan. 29.—Modern Pied Pipers no longer entice rodent pests with the silvery notes from a flute, but the offers made by the renowned piper and baby stealer continue to stand.

Dr. Ralph Gray and Tommy Mellon are modern Pied Pipers who guarantee to rid a building of rats and leave the children safe in mothers' arms.

These men saw the need of ridding the city of rats, but since neither of them could play a flute, banjo or saxophone well enough or bad enough to make the pests leave their haunts and do a mad Charleston to the river front, they hit upon the idea of training ferrets to do the job.

The ferrets conduct a business like warfare on the rats and do an efficient job in eliminating the pests. Their work will probably continue until a musical genius rediscovers the pipe which lures the rodents to a watery grave.

The ferrets receive a regular education. They must be trained for three months before they are ready to shift for themselves and give their owners cause to worry about the income tax.

A well-trained ferret can kill more than 25 rats in a night, says Dr. Gray. And if the animal has had a good education he will drag his victims into a pile.

The ferrets breed twice a year and are always sold in pairs. Hamburger meat, table scraps and chicken heads form the diet for these rat-killing pets.

Dr. Gray and Mellon raise the ferrets and train them. Then they sell them or rent them to persons who are anxious to see rat pests live in spirit rather than in body.

Over 2,000 Shipped From Northumberland in December.

505 SELECTS.

COLBORNE, Jan. 29.—The report of hog shipments for Northumberland county in December is as follows:—Total number of hogs shipped, 2008. Total number of select hogs, 505.

Number of hogs shipped from Colborne, 85; number of select hogs shipped from Colborne 25.

Total number of hogs shipped from Grafton 85. Total number of select hogs shipped from Grafton, 31.

In November, the Okanagan Valley Co-operative Creamery association paid 45 cents per pound for special quality cream at its Armstrong factory, the price for lower grades being from two to four cents a pound less. Members received full returns for their cream, less one cent a pound for handling and management.

The 1,100,000 bushel terminal elevator erected at Buffalo by the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator company began handling grain last month. The site owned by the company is sufficiently large to permit of the capacity of the elevator being extended to four million bushels storage capacity.

The output of creamery butter in Saskatchewan from January 1st to November 30th, last year totalled 15,227,281 pounds, an increase of 2,304,111 pounds, or 17.8 per cent., compared with the same period of last year. November production amounted to 739,658 pounds, against 724,906 pounds for the same month a year ago. During the eleven-month period production showed the largest increase in the Northern district, amounting to eleven per cent.

In Some Counties Tillable Land is Used For Grazing.

FOUR ACRES EACH.

Not More Than 200 Lbs. of Beef Per Acre of Land.

In some sections of Ontario large numbers of cattle are fattened off grass with fairly good results. Of course, rough land may always be used for grazing purposes but there are sections of excellent tillable land, particularly in parts of Middlesex, Lambton and Huron counties, which are almost entirely devoted to grazing of beef cattle. Of course, there are smaller areas in many other counties similarly handled. With good grass in the form of permanent pastures largely composed of bluegrass, grazers figure on about twenty-five heavy steers per 100 acres. By heavy steers is meant cattle from 1,100 pounds up, and investigation has shown that to make a success of the grazing business it is necessary to have more than 200 pounds of beef to the acre. It has also been shown that for highest results, even in the good grazing areas, that from 30 to 40 per cent. of the returns from the farm should come from cash crops or sources other than the beef cattle specialty.

It should also be noted that the cattle which make the highest gains on grass are generally well-bred cattle in good thriving condition but not carrying very much fat when they first go to grass. Cattle that have been heavily grain fed during the winter, and particularly fat young cattle, are liable to go back unless the pasture is particularly luxuriant. In five groups of cattle fed at the Ontario Agricultural College and averaging just over 700 pounds each when turned to grass after a winter of generous grain feeding the average loss per steer during the first week on grass ran from 81.7 pounds in the thinner steers to 98.3 pounds in the fattest group, and these steers continued to lose weight during the second week on grass. In three weeks after going out all groups were gaining, but they did not get back to their they were first turned out and consequently made rather poor gains for the summer even though they were on good grass. It would seen, then, that it would be more profitable to market fairly well finished young cattle rather than turn them to grass, whereas older, heavier and thinner cattle will make rapid gains on good grass.

For pasture for beef cattle no other feed seems to equal bluegrass for the production of rapid gains and firm fleshing. Mixtures of timothy and the clovers are fairly satisfactory, but the clovers, including alfalfa and sweet clover, while they may produce a luxuriant growth, are not as satisfactory in beef production as they are for dairy cattle so far as pasturing is concerned. However, fair results have been obtained from mixtures and from alfalfa and from sweet clover, but it is well where one is using these as part of his pasture system that he have a permanent bluegrass pasture as a part of the ration for his cattle. The same may be said where rape is being used as a fall pasture. Rape makes a fairly satisfactory pasture for beef cattle, but, unless it is used in conjunction with an old pasture, cattle are liable to scour badly, and, as with sweet clover or alfalfa, it is generally profitable to use the rape in conjunction with an old blue-grass pasture.

FERTILITY OF SOIL AND FERTILIZATION

High State of Production Can Be Maintained or Built Up.

A high state of soil productivity can be maintained or built up by proper treatment. Soils deteriorate rapidly under continuous cropping without treatment," said Director Williams of the Ohio agricultural experimental station at the recent meeting of the American Society of Agronomy.

The statement was based on the results of the long-time fertility experiments at Rothamsted and Woburn, England, and at the Pennsylvania, Ohio, Missouri, and Illinois stations in the United States. Yields of wheat grown continuously without fertilizer or other treatment at Rothamsted declined 42 per cent. in 60 years; at Woburn, 47 per cent. in 30 years; at the Ohio station, 27 per cent. in 20 years. Oats grown continuously without treatment at the Ohio station declined 29 per cent. and corn 57 per cent. in 20 years. Rotation of crops, including clover, has not maintained production without treatment. At the Ohio station the average yields of five crops in rotation without treatment declined 25 per cent. in 20 years. Lime alone in a short rotation in which clover is grown, has, under some conditions, maintained production at a moderate or low level. Manure, acid phosphate and lime at the Ohio station for more than 27 years have maintained a yield of 70 bushels of corn, 30 bushels of wheat and 5,600 pounds of clover.

The Fashionable Flare

Fine wool twill fashions this frock with the front of the skirt flaring in the dashing new manner. Very simple and very chic are the lines of this youthful frock, which may be worn successfully for any day-time occasion. The plain back extends over the shoulder at the front in yoke effect, to which the front is slightly gathered. Small, round buttons fastening with loops of braid make an attractive closing for the convertible collar, which is worn buttoned close to the neck. The lower section of the full sleeves is banded with a handsome oriental trimming, a narrower width being used for the collar. The diagram pictures the simple design of No. 1222, which is in sizes 16, 18 and 20 years (34, 36 and 38 inches bust). Size 18 years (36 bust) requires 4¾ yards of 36-inch, or 4¼ yards of 40-inch material. Price 20 cents.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my teens and deeply in love with a boy three years older than I. My mother likes him very much. He doesn't live here but comes every Summer. He is the only young man I care for. He has told me that when he is older and able to care for us both he will ask me to marry him.

I have allowed him to kiss me because I know I really love him.

Do you think I am doing wrong?

DOUBTFUL.

DOUBTFUL: My dear, demonstrations of affection between you and the young man were improper, for although he promised to ask you to marry him in the future you are not now engaged and should not allow such familiarity. I think your own good sense, my dear, makes you doubtful that these actions are conventional—or wise.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

(a) Is it right for me to let a man come to see me who is married? Although his wife has left him he has no divorce. (b) Is it proper to let a man kiss me? (c) What can I do to keep so many boys from coming to see me at the same time without hurting someone's feelings?

BROWN EYES.

BROWN EYES: (a) It is highly improper for you to go about with a man who is married, Brown Eyes, and I am very sorry that you have not realized this. Even though his wife has left him, you have no right to accept his attentions, and please, for your own sake, refuse to see him again. (b) Demonstrations of affection between a young man and woman are never proper unless the two are engaged. (c) If the young men call at your home without previously making an engagement you might suggest to each that you would be at home the following night and would be glad to see him then, or name some particular date in the future.

HEDDA HOYT TALKS ABOUT THINGS THAT INTEREST THE BUSY WOMAN OF 1925

ON FIFTH AVENUE.

(Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—(United Press).—Twice this week, once in a shop and once on the Avenue, have we seen a curious new bonnet made entirely of fringe, arranged so as to look like a coiffure. The fringe was held together in a seam which extended from the center of the forehead to the middle of the neck at the rear—acting as a hair-parting.

The long fringe was then drawn toward the ears where it wrapped in bun-effect over the ears. The model worn on the street was of black silk fringe and the wearer looked as though she wore no hat but had black hair parted in the center with buns at the sides. The other model was of gray fringe and designed for evening wear. The eccentric dresser might find them becoming.

Flappers in New York have suddenlys started to wear their felt hats well back off the forehead and tilted a bit to one side. One sees so many young Misses with bright little felts perched high on the head exposing the parting of the hair. Aside from its being a fad, we cannot believe it is chic.

Beret tams are still so new that we rarely see them except on smart women but these small felts in slightly tam effect are really as smart as they are new. Most of them are built or folded high at the rear and extend downwards at one side where a rhinestone trim or feather fancy is uesd. One model made of soft yellow felt is draped high in the rear and low at one side where a brown burnt-ostrich fancy extends shoulderward. Others in that becoming new shade of pink—a pink which suggests pale ashes of roses—are adaptable for dress wear.

This same soft pink, combined with a soft shade of light blue or with green is used for many little frocks of afternoon type. The material is generally crepe de chene and the price of these pastel frocks is often only around $15. Women do not care to pay higher prices for soilable garments. The blue or green shades on pinkish frocks are generally used as pipings, collars or facing.

THE GIANT CACTI.

In barren Arabia the giant cacti trees thrive.

They rise in prickly green columns, twenty to fifty feet tall, with grotesque side arms, sometimes in ones or twos, or as an army of green ghosts from nonsense land.

These cacti are the tallest of the desert trees, soft and green within, a firm pulp molded upon woody ribs.

Where there is no other long straight wood the Mexicans and Indians use the sahuaro ribs for a roof frame supporting the thatch, or for building light fences.

The cholla cacti tempt the hungry cattle with succulent green, behind thorns more terrible than those possessed by any other American plant. Yet a single match will ignite the whole dreadful barricade and leave behind wholesome green juicy fodder.

SMALL HATS.

A few small black hats, trimmed with sumptuous birds of paradise, are seen on Fifth avenue.

MEDIAV AL SLEEVES SWAY THE MODE

At the Left Is an Evening Wrap of Tapestry and Metal Brocade, with Flowing Sleeves. At the Right Is a Velvet Gown with Frilled Sleeves.

This Novel Treatment Marks New Gowns and Evening Wraps.

ANNETTE BRADSHAW

By ANNETTE BRADSHAW.

Sleeves have been uppermost in fashion interest this season, for the simple reason that smart and unusual things are constantly being done to them to add interest to the garments which they grace.

Long sleeves seem to be the unvarying rule for daytime, and the newest of the long-sleeved frocks add interest in their cuff treatments.

A typical example of this is seen in the velvet afternoon frock sketched at the right. The tiers of the frock and the split sleeves are bound with ochre velvet. The sleeves have wide frills of lace inserted up above the slit, to drop through the slit and enclose the wrist in their graceful folds.

The other model, a wrap for evening, is of tapestry and metal brocade in old Italian colors. The very long folds which drop almost to the floor create unusual sleeve interest. The collar and hem border are of chincilla.

Other frocks enhance their long sleeves by having them decorated with horizontal lines of color just above the cuffs.

A number of smart new dinner frocks have forsaken the sleeveless mode, and have tiny cap sleeves which extend only a few inches over the shoulders, barely covering the upper part of the arms. Still other dinner frocks have long tight sleeves, and make up for this by very decollette neck lines.

THE PROBLEM OF NUTRITION

We hear a lot these days about being overfed or underfed, and what happens in each case. Some people object to being fed on the system of measurement called calories. The appetites of children are coaxed or restrained, according to their tendencies. However, those who have considered the vitamines a joke are beginning to realize the joke is on them if they overlook their importance.

The alphabetical growth of vitamines is gaining. There are now five letters to their credit. Vitamine "A" is a necessity in aiding children to grow. It is present in butter, milk, egg yolk, cream, cheese, carrots, spinach, lettuce and so on.

Vitamine "B" supplies the factor of stimulation to the appetite, and its lack causes inflammatory nervous troubles. The foods containing this letter are cereals, fruits, nuts, yeast, milk, green plant tissues, liver and so on.

Vitamine "C" is that which prevents scurvy and other like conditions. Citrous fruits, tomatoes, and many of the green vegetables contain it.

The lack of Vitamine "D" is frequently the cause of disease, for its presence builds up resistance to disease. Its total lack is responsible for the disease known among children as rickets.

Scientists are not as well acquainted with "D" as with the others but in time they will know just where its best points lie.

Vitamines "E" and "F" are still shady in just what they do if present or lacking. But the first three are important enough to set us thinking on the diet question, not only for children but adults as well. A lot of queer things happen to us if we are undernourished; bad dispositions and inclinations towards criminal acts are laid to this condition. Poorly nourished parents are often those who have defective children. Air, water, sunlight and good food are necessities. If your child is cross and disagreeable, look to its food. If it does not sleep well, and does not grow as it should, look to its food. There are standards nowadays of height, weight and strength, procurable to all, poor as well as prosperous people.

Time has passed when people can stay willfully ignorant on these vital points of existence.

It is a duty to study foods and what they mean to human life. It is well to understand the measurement of it in the calory system. It shows the underfed how to pull up and the overfed how to reduce. Medicines in either case will not do the work; it must be through foods that both conditions are met.

Wisely fed people are happy, for they are equipped for the daily battle of existence physically and mentally. Feeding the family is a profession, and we must study if we are to win honors in this line of endeavor.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

TO MAKE THE HOME CHARMING AND ATTRACTIVE.

Dressing up the home is the housewife's job and one there is a lot of fun in, even though you may not have a lot of money to spend. Good taste and clever fingers can do a lot with the pretty modern materials. For instance, what can be more charming than linen bedspreads, or those of unbleached muslin, embroidered in basket designs with colored cotton floss? The long spread that is bolster and spread combined is a popular model.

If unbleached muslin is used, the curtains should be the same and also the table and couch cover. The couch pillows may be slipped with cases in pastel linens, some embroidered, some ruffled, some plain; one must also match the cover. The latter pillow may be finished with an edge of the old-fashioned sewed points two inches deep. Each of the points must be made separately but they are lovely when finished.

Pretty soft pillows dress up a room amazingly, pertly set on a plain, dark couch. Short lengths of expensive curtain materials are frequently to be had in the large shops at bargain prices. Maybe there will be enough for two pillows by using plain matching satin linings. Or remnants of lovely silks are to be found where there will be enough to cover both sides alike and the cost won't be serious. Those made with the soft outer fold hem are always attractive.

Re-covering chairs also brightens things up. Buy the covering yourself and you can always find an upholsterer who will come in and do the job at small cost, providing of course you cannot do it yourself.

Get rid of the old extension or round table and get a gate leg, or some sort of a drop leaf table that matches your chairs, and dress it with a pretty fruit bowl and a pair of candlesticks and see what a difference it makes in the appearance of the room.

Book shelves in odd corners and corner closets are always attractive. The little, very low table beside a comfy chair draws you right towards it, a place for papers, letters, cigarettes, right at hand. These tables by the way are old English and Chinese in model and they are a revival, and a happy one, in furniture circles. A charming one finished in red lacquer is decorated with gold lotus flowers, and the edge is scalloped in a slanting wzy that is strictly Chinese. Some in old English design are made of very heavy wood and make one think of dwarf figures, stubby and strong.

TODAY'S HOROSCOPE

FRIDAY, JANUARY 29.

A dull and routine day may be expected from the entire absence of important mutations among the heavenly lights. Under the circumstances it might be well to attend to affairs in the usual run of events, cleaning up accumulations from days of greater activity and stress.

Those whose birthday it is may find the year ahead one of routine affairs, with things moving in even and peaceful grooves. Although quiet is forecast to reign there is no sign of menace. A child born on this day may probably have a serene and philosophical attitude toward life. It may not find its affairs very lively, but on the contrary there may not be much in the way of anxiety.

The Small Girl Wears an Ensemble of Woolen and Crepe de Chine.

The ensemble idea has spread to every field of clothing, and it appears in most effective versions for the little girl.

Above is shown an outfit which combines woolen cloth and crepe de Chine, much like the ensembles for the grown-ups. The woolen cloth in this case is brown, and the crepe de Chine a lovely butter cup yellow.

Fitch fur makes the collar and cuffs, and the small hat is of braided brown grosgrain ribbon.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

BETTY FINDS A NEW WAY TO DRY CLOTHES.

"Oh, dear!" Betty growled when her mamma asked her to hang up the clothes, "I just hate to hang up the old wet clothes. I just wish . . ."

"Tut, tut, tut," interrupted a merry voice and out popped a funny little head from behind one of the wash tubs.

"Gocomeback!" cried Betty. "I don't care, I do wish I lived some place where folks didn't have to hang up their clothes to——"

Before she could finish her sentence, Betty found herself swept into the air by a heavy wind. At first she was a bit startled, but when Gocomeback caught hold of her hand, she began to laugh.

"Goodness, why the sudden rise?" she giggled, when she could get her breath.

"Why, don't you know?" Gocomeback laughed. "You were standing on a wishing pebble when you made that wish. If I hadn't been here to catch your hand, there's no telling whether you would ever get back to America again. That's why you should always be careful about making funny wishes. You never can tell when there's a wishing pebble under your feet. Well, here we are."

They slowly drifted to the ground, and Betty found herself in a strange little city nestled at the feet of a beautiful mountain.

The few wide streets were filled with brown people, most of all of them wearing white. Betty thought of the terrible washing they would have to hang up to keep themselves looking clean.

"Here we are in Seoul, the capital of Korea," said Gocomeback, "It's one of the largest cities in the Far East. Now we'll go and see my little friend," and he led Betty towards the outskirts of the city.

"Goodness, Gocomeback," whispered Betty, "I don't see how they ever get their clothes dry if they don't hang them on a line. Does everyone wear white?"

By this time Gocomeback stopped besides a little low house, and Betty could see a little girl about her own size out in the yard pounding two boards together.

"Oh, Gocomeback, do come in."

"You Were on a Wishing Pebble."

the little girl cried, when she saw the elfin and Betty. "I won't be long."

Betty followed Gocomeback into the yard, and Betty stood watching the little brown-faced girl pounding a pretty white dress between two heavy boards.

"What in the world are you doing that for?" she laughed.

"This is the way we dry our clothes in Korea," replied the little brown girl, "I like pounding them dry much better than to hang them on a rope as Gocomeback tells me you girls do in North America," and she went on with her pounding.

"My," whispered Betty in Gocomeback's ear. "I'm glad you were near me when I made that wish," and before Betty knew what was happening, she found herself beside her own tubs in America.

That was the last time her Mamma ever heard her complain about hanging up the clothes.

The ORACLE

This day we fashion Destiny, our web of Fate we spin. —Whittier.

Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute. —Milton.

W. A.—You were born with original ideas and should follow them out in your own way—copy no other person.

You have creative power and should always have something to occupy your active attention—sewing, crocheting, painting.

You are destined to bring joy to those about you, but, unless you are careful, you will possess a tendency toward coarseness. Do not associate with cross or coarse people—you will readily take on the characteristics of those about you.

You are ambitious and possess a good deal of tact. You would make a very good teacher. However, you should marry young—someone born in May, July, February or November.

Dress as well as your means will allow—take care of your personal appearance in every way and regard yourself with respect and confidence.

You were born on Tuesday.

Your colors are blue and silver.

L. G.—By natural inclination, yours is a strong character, active and daring, but with limited vision and a tendency to disregard the rights of others. You would do better to associate yourself with others in business enterprises, but you do not care to do this, preferring to stand alone and resenting any interference, even if well meant. You are fortunate in business, but will lose friends through quick temper.

You bitterly resent any criticism, but I am going to tell you quite plainly that, unless you resolve to control that capricious element in your own nature, and your jealous instincts, you are going to make life a torment for yourself. You are inclined to be cruel at times, and this girl whom you think of marrying is the type who shrinks from cruelty and will become a morose, saddened woman if you treat her with the temperamental exhibitions that afflict your life at times now. She would make you a fine wife and that bit of gloominess in her nature will change to happiness and joy when she is your wife—if you treat her as she should be treated. It is up to you absolutely.

Do not drink. If you once start, you will end in a drunkard's grave.

You were born on Monday.

Bert.—For you, the Golden Rule is the motto of life. If you follow it out, you will have less difficulty in surmounting the obstacles of life. You are inclined at times to disregard the rights of others and to be too self-centred. That is your natural inclination, but the destiny mapped out for you points to a life of service—the service inspired by love. So that you will have to, at all times, fight your own nature and never become discouraged, remembering always that service to others is the keynote of your existence.

The city is the place for you—not the country.

Cultivate self-control. To master your fate, you must first master yourself. And when you do you will succeed—sooner or later.

Yes, you were born on Monday.

Flame, from orange and yellow to hazy blue are your colors.

Em.—Yours is a conflicting personality. You were born for the domestic life above all else and would make an admirable home builder. You will make your husband happy in the extreme.

However, other influences which control your destiny point the way to a successful business career.

You had better marry young and turn your undoubted commercial talents to helping your husband to success. In this way, you will be sure of a rounded, full life—the life that was meant for you.

You may suffer in learning one fact from Fate—perhaps you may forestall the lesson by trying to impress it on your mind now—that perfect honesty and truthfulness are necessary to the formation of great characters.

Do not think too much of personal appearances—materialism may trip your feet in years to come.

You were born on Saturday.

Orange or heliotrope are your colors.

L. S. M.—Well, you are well poised, but you dwell too much on the gloomy side of life. When you wish to retire somewhere and have a good cry, don't do it. You will be astonished, if you refuse to give way to this feeling, just what reserves of power you can cultivate after conquering these fits of depression.

If you wish to be successful, you will have to do a considerable bit of spade work on your own character. You must look adverse circumstances in the face and resolve to conquer them. Restlessness and anxiety and brooding over things that are often imaginary will never get you anywhere.

Within the next ten years you may have a serious illness, but do not worry. Steadier conditions of life will prevail after it is over.

A certain amount of travel is a good thing for you.

Yes, you were born on Saturday. The date you ask about is past.

Your colors are steel or brick.

Elf.—You have good ability to plan out enterprises, large or small, and will be dominant in home or family life. You are generous and kind-hearted but are too sensitive to imagined slights. Pleasant people and places should be sought out by you. You must guard against hoarding money, and against changeableness.

You were born to achieve and attain, but circumstances have set you in a life of reserve and retirement. You have a tendency toward the occult that should be guarded against. Think more of the light side of life.

Yes, you were born on Tuesday.

Your colors are the opal shades, also tan and buff.

J. O. P.—Yours is a pleasant personality. You have a quick temper but seldom allow it to master you, as you like peace in business and home relations. You are generous-minded and apt to be careless about money matters. You will do best when associated with others in any type of enterprise.

Strive for habits of order and, above everything else, follow your own intuitions. Do not think too much of the appreciation and praise of others. If you have patience, you will achieve a certain amount of success, but it may be late in life.

You should live in a city rather than in a small place.

Your motto should be: "Be a doer—not a dreamer."

You were born on Wednesday. Your colors are orange and grey.

The day of which you enquire, a Saturday, would be an excellent one on which to remain entirely passive. Avoid arguments and undertake nothing new.

Mar.—To round out your destiny and be all that you were meant to be in this life, you must always be happy. And you must learn to realize that happiness can be had even if you cannot be at the head of everything, as you wish to be. To enjoy a happy married life, you must govern yourself and cultivate poise at all times. You have the quality of strong, permanent love, but thrive only when surrounded by those whom you like.

Do not fear poverty. It will not come to you if you prove the helpmate you were meant to be. And do not be too sensitive. People do not wish to hurt your feelings.

You were born on Saturday.

Red and brown are your colors, also green or grey.

M. A. M.—By natural inclination, you are possessed of a strong, active, creative personality, inclined at times to disregard the rights of others and to strive to domineer.

However, circumstances over which you may at present have no control, as you are still in the formative stage, have brought you under the dominance of others. This is a good thing—for a time. When you have attained the years of discretion, branch out for yourself—follow your own impulses, but do not forget the feelings and rights of others around you. You have the privilege of demanding a good education—then the choice of your own path in life. You will have a successful life, if you strive to conquer your faults, particularly worry and jealousy—and cultivate a broad outlook on life and mankind in general.

Be kind and gentle and—go your own way.

You were born on Wednesday.

Your colors are the variations of flame.

M. L. Y.—Yours is a fine character, highminded and strong. You were a good wife, but your children have always held first place in your heart.

You have excellent powers of memorization, and a keen quality of understanding. You are just a little inclined to enjoy a "dish of gossip," even about your best friends, but do not care for any criticism of yourself, even when meant for your own good. If you resent the small bit of criticism contained in the foregoing sentence, you will realize at once what I mean.

You are apt to have some trouble with the throat, lungs or kidneys, but have the ability to throw off any disability through your own strong healing powers.

Look at all times for the bright side. You are one of those fortunate people who can bring sunshine to the lives of others at all times—if you so desire.

You were born on Tuesday.

Red and brown are your colors.

THE DAY'S HUMOR

PREREQUISITE.

Son—Father, what is a debutante?

Dad—A debutante is a young unmarried girl whose father has money.—Boston Bean Pot.

YOU BRUTE.

She—I'm sorry but I can't return your ring.

He—Well then, just give me the ticket.—Pitt Panther.

THEN THEY PARTED.

"A little bird told me what kind of a lawyer your father was."

"What did he say?"

"Cheep, cheep."

"Well, a duck told me what kind of a doctor your father was."—Cornell Widow.

FAIR MEANS.

Vicar—We still need 75 pounds to complete our parish hall. I have tried to raise the money by every honest means possible and now I fear we must resort to a bazaar.—Bystander.

VINDICATED.

The Rector—Now what are you two boys fishing for.

Sandford—He called me a blinkin' liar.

Merton—You're a blinkin' liar, I didn't.—Punch.

SEARCH FOR GIRL

Montreal Girl Missing Since Sunday.

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 29.—(Canadian Press.)—The Montreal police have been requested to institute a search for Elizabeth MacKintosh, 24, who has been missing from her home here since January 24, when she left to go to church. Miss MackIntosh is of fair complexion, fair hair, and blue eyes and weighs 125 pounds.

FAMOUS FORTUNES

By Barbara Bayne

He Secured Employment in a Sawmill.

FREDERICK W. WYERHAEUSER —"THE LUMBER KING."

His name conveys no meaning to the average reader, yet Frederick W. Weyerhaeuser was lord of vast reaches of primeval forests; his business was one of magnificent distances.

Though he lived as simply as when working in his first sawmill, it was estimated that his timber tracts, if turned into cash, with his stocks, bonds and negotiable securities, would total the enormous aggregate of $300,000,000.

Weyerhaeuser was born in 1834 in Germany, and at eighteen emigrated to the United States and settled in Pennsylvania. For five years he worked at odd jobs. Then removing to Rock Island, Ill., he secured employment in a sawmill. In six months he was superintendent. In a year he owned it. That mill laid the foundation of his fortune.

Another mill was added to the first then another. By that time the upper Mississippi timber region claimed his attention. He made a trip of exploration which resulted in the organization of the Mississippi Boom and Logging Co. As president of the company he bought out the best mills in the region and established others, each in charge of a local partner. In time he became known as "a man of a thousand partners." Not one had the slightest idea of what his relations with another partner were.

In 1864 he made his first big timber purchase—in Wisconsin. As years passed, his properties were scattered throughout Michigan, Wisconsin, Idaho, Minnesota, Oregon, Washington and California.

About 1872 Weyerhaeuser began to create the giant industry that became known as the "Weyerhaeuser Syndicate," whose ramifications reached every lumber camp in the Northwest. But the original Mississippi Boom and Logging Co. was the central cog in the machinery.

He secured possession of timber land in enormous tracts stretching from Montana to Puget Sound. He controlled the output of forty mills.

Weyerhaeuser was never a plunger, but in 1900 he made one big splurge. The company paid $6 an acre for 1,000,000 acres of Northern Pacific land lying West of the Cascades. Legislation enabled the company to acquire 800,000 acres of land in the Klamath reservation, 87,000 acres of which was valued at $3,200,000.

These are only a few of his widely scattered interests. It was estimated that 30,000,000 acres of timber land was under his control.

Weyerhaeuser seemed to have acquired some of the brooding silence of his vast forests. He was a man of secretive methods and kept his own counsel. "I have two eyes and two ears," said he, "but only one mouth and that is to eat with."

Shifting the burden from his aging shoulders, he gave most of his property to his children about 1906. His eldest son, Frederick, was elected a director of the Northern Pacific to fill the vacancy caused by the death of James J. Hill, who had resigned the presidency to Louis W. Hill.

The "greatest lumberman in the world" died April, 1914, at Pasadena, Cal.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

As I wrote these lines I was on a train crossing Southern Alabama. At a season when it is cold in the North, so cold that the newspapers tell of severe snow storms, down here it is balmy and deliciously warm.

On every street corner and in the dooryard of every house there are sensible persons enjoying the sunlight and pure air. They look happy and I know they have a right to be, because they are absorbing the healing and invigorating rays of the sun.

We cannot say too much about the good that comes from these rays. We haven't learned everything about them yet, but enough is known to justify the positive statement that they impart to us life-giving effects.

The kind and wise doctors who are spending their lives in the study of ways and means to better child health have decided that sunlight is an effective agent in preventing and curing rickets. Cod liver oil was the nauseous stuff which had to be depended on in the old days. Fortunately, the laboratory workers have extracted from that the disgusting flavor and have given us tablets easy to take and possessing all the curative virtues of the original oil.

When I mention the value of sunlight, I have no desire to weaken faith in the qualities of cod liver oil. When it is indicated, it should be provided. But that does not do away with the importance of giving large doses of sunlight in addition.

However, I did not set out to talk about curing disease. What I have in mind is to tell you how to prevent disease. That is more important, isn't it?

Everybody—particularly babies—should be given the inestimable privilege of a sun bath every day there is sunshine. In Winter especially this is desirable.

You can find a room in your house where there is a flood of sunshine at some time during the day. Spread a clean sheet or blanket on the floor. On this deposit the baby, stripped to the skin. Permit him to stretch and kick and roll, giving his muscles the best possible sort of exercise.

Of course, you will make sure the temperature is high enough so the baby won't be chilled. He will have sense to keep comfortably warm by exercising his muscles.

Every minute this precious being lies there in the direct sunlight, he is absorbing some mysterious force from the sun which gives health and vigor. The fant is taking possession of something he can get in no other way. I beg every mother to note what I say in this connection and give her baby the great benefit of the sunlight.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES.

L. M. Q.—What causes ringing in the ears?

A.—Usually nasal catarrh which has extended to the middle ear. Therefore, you must treat the nasal condition before you can relieve the ringing in the ears.

M. E. J. Q.—Is goitre curable?

A.—In most instances, yes. Fresh air, sunlight, good food and a placid mind are essential to the cure.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

"Ah Ha! I heard you that time," said a hollow voice, as Mister Havalook was showing his treasures to the Dolls in Hidy Go Land.

Plucky Mister Havalook began to tremble until he nearly lost his ear-trumpet and his eyeglasses. Then remembering his change of name he straightened up and said bravely, "Who are you?"

"Ha, ha, ha! Ho, ho, ho! Who am I? Why, I'm your old enemy, Mister Snoopsy, of course."

And at that a perfectly enormous shadow appeared.

The Twins and all the dolls and Sniff Whisker saw it very plainly against one of the walls. There were so many electric lights in the treasure room, where they were, you know, that the shadow looked all the blacker and fiercer.

"Oh!" shrieked the lady dolls. "Oh! Oh!"

"Now please don't faint," said plucky Mister Havalook sharply. "You've fainted quite enough already and you can readily see that I have my hands full as it is."

"That's the way to talk to them," said Nick.

"I should think so," said Nancy. "It's only an old shadow anyway."

"Oh, ho! So I am only an old shadow, am I?" said the black figure on the wall. "Look closely all of you and see what I am."

The shadow had on an enormous hat and high boots, and he had a hooked nose that turned down and a crooked chin that turned up and a long coat and a big sash tied in a bow at the side. And a sword and handkerchief tied around his neck in two long ends, and a mustache that hung down in two long stringy ends, and earrings!

"A pirate! Mister Snoopsy's a pirate. Oh, dear! Oh!" shrieked the dolls.

"A pirate!" said Sailor Sam in a shaky voice. "I do hope he hasn't a plank, so we'll all have to walk it."

"No, sir, I've no plank," said Mister Snoopsy hollowly. "What would I do with a plank in Hidy Go Land? No, sir. I came for pennies, and pennies I am going to have."

"Pennies!" cried Plucky Mister Havalook. "Then you'll have to get them over my dead body."

"That's the way to talk," whispered Nick. "Show him that you're not scared."

"It certainly is!" whispered Nancy. "I'm not a bit frightened myself."

"I am," said Miss Tootsie Bobb, "and I'm going to faint if I want to." And she did, right in the Tin Soldier's arms, as usual.

"He didn't show us any pennies," said Calamity Jane to Teddy. "And I don't consider pins and collar buttons treasures."

"I want the pennies and I am going to have them," said Mister Snoopsy, folding his arms and looking so fierce, where he stood against the wall, that his eyebrows stuck out like toothbrushes. "You can't tell me that all the pennies that roll down cracks and fall down street gratings and disappear through registers in the floor and fall out of holes in pockets—you can't tell me that all these pennies don't come to Hidy Go Land. I know they DO! And I'm going to have the millions and millions and millions of them that you have put away in some secret place, Mister Havalook."

"Oh! Oh! Oh!" shrieked all the dolls.

"Aha!" muttered the Tin Soldier. "I wondered why there was going to be a revolution. Now I know. Something is going to happen."

BETHLEHEM STEEL EARNINGS LARGE

Totalled $38,988,742, President Announces Yesterday.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Characterizing 1925 as one of the most remarkable in the history of the steel industry, Eugene G. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, announced Thursday that the company's earnings totalled $38,988,742, equal after charges and preferred dividends to $5.30 on the common shares, compared with $33,996,489, or $2.56 a share in 1924.

The final quarter's operations yielded the corporation the largest profits of any period during the year, net earnings of $10,543,136 comparing with $10,399,316 in the first quarter, $9,708,528 in the second and $8,337,762 in the third.

"The general outlook in the steel industry for at least the first half of 1926 is favorable," Mr. Grace declared.

ARTICLE No. 31

A large proportion of the questions submitted by correspondents are in reference to a take-out of partner's no-trump when second hand has passed. Every player has his own pet theory and the writer is no exception. In his opinion, a player should overbid partner's no-trump under the following conditions:

(a) Having an original bid in either major suit;
(b) Any six or more cards in either major suit;
(c) Any two five card suits;
(d) Any five card major suit if the hand contains a void suit, a singleton or no help for partner's no-trump.

In any discussion as to the advisability of taking out partner's no-trump bid with a bid of two hearts or two spades, careful consideration should be given to what the no-trump bidder should do. That is, if the dealer bids one no-trump, second hand passes and the dealer's partner bids two hearts or spades, with what type of hand should the dealer bid two no-trump or pass? Any theory of the take-out that you may adopt is incomplete without a thorough understanding between partners as to the procedure dealer should follow subsequent to the take-out. I am of the opinion that if this procedure becomes thoroughly understood, there will not be the various differences of opinion as to the take-out. With a partner who understands what to do after a take-out, it is much easier to arrive at the best bid of the two hands. The purpose of the take-out, of course, is to bid a suit that offers a better chance for game than the no-trump. If, however, the original no-trump bidder still considers the no-trump offers a better chance for game, he should bid two no-trump. If you adopt this procedure it is much safer to take out the no-trump with any five card major suit. Such a bid gives that information to partner and if he doesn't consider it the best bid for game, he should bid two no-trump. Such a procedure can never do any harm and in many hands will enable partners to make a game not otherwise possible. Auction is a partnership game and gives the best results when partners endeavor to bid twenty-six cards correctly, rather than thirteen. The free take-out of partner's no-trump handled by both players as just outlined seems to obtain the best bid of the two hands, and for that reason seems to be the right thing to do.

In the following hands there is no score, partner has bid one no-trump and second hand has passed. Do you think you should take him out? Think it over and compare results in the next article.

THRILLING FINISH TO BONSPIEL BY ORILLIA RINK CAPTURING TWO TROPHIES FROM PETERBORO SKIPS

Dr. J. N. Harvie's Ten-Year Quest Richly Rewarded by Great Play.

DOUBLE VICTORY

Won Second Trophy by 12 to 11 Score Over George Hill.

BONSPIEL RESULTS

Morrow Trophy—Won by Dr. J. N. Harvie, of Orillia.
Matthews-Blackwell Trophy — Won by Dr. J. N. Harvie of Orillia.
Peterboro Cup—Won by Chas. Peacock of Oshawa.
Waddell Cup—To be competed for by the Peterboro rinks in the bonspiel.

With the Morrow Cup and its first prizes packed away in their grips, Dr. J. N. Harvie's Orillia rink won the Matthews-Blackwell trophy and its four silver tea sets by defeating George Hill of the Peterboro club by the score of 12 to 11, about one o'clock this morning, scoring a perfect two-shot end with his last stone in one of the most spectacular finishes in the history of local curling, bonspiel or otherwise.

It was a superlative performance with both rinks and a crowded gallery at high tension, until the deciding Orillia rock rested close to the button. Furthermore, it was the realization of the ambition of every skip who starts in Peterboro's big annual tourney, and for Dr. Harvie and his rink it was a rich reward for ten years' battling against the best curlers of Central Ontario.

Always conspicuous in the local bonspiel, and after getting within grasp of either trophy, and on one occasion almost winning both, only to slip at the threshold of victory, the tall, quiet Orillia doctor cleaned up the bonspiel honors last night, and wrote a lustrous chapter in the records of the Peterboro Curling Club.

The final rounds of the Morrow trophy were a walk-over for the Harvie quartette. They bumped George Hill's men by 15 to 4 in the semi-finals and then walloped Jimmy Connal by 18 to 5 in fourteen ends, the Peterboro skip throwing in the sponge with two frames to go.

Then in the Matthews-Blackwell they ousted Walter Rye's youngsters by 10 to 7 and again faced George Hill who had trimmed Alex Kay by 14 to 10. Incidentally Hill and his rink cut a wide swath in both competitions, and earned a big share of the glory.

Thrilling Finish

The final game was a bitter duel. Hill opened with one shot and Harvie followed with a pair of deuces. Then Hill laid down a three and two and went ahead by 5 to 4.

Harvie followed with two single point ends, and Hill tied it up on the eighth frame with the score 7 all. And so it went. Hill made the count ten to ten in the fourteenth and went ahead with another single point in the fifteenth. Coming home, Dr. Harvie had the last shot of the game. He needed one to tie and two to win. And that last end seemed to concentrate all the excitement of the bonspiel. Harvie had a double victory ahead of him if he could lay a two over the Peterboro rink, and that task seemed impossible of achievement.

Dr. Sutton had given Hill a chance by resting a stone almost on the inner ring, and Orillia had second shot near the second ring on the other side of the tee. A. B. Thompson, the Orillia vice-skip, then raised a guard that caroomed to the Orillia stone which bumped across the rings, pushed the Sutton shot out of the picture and stopped close to the inner purple lid. That play was greeted by long cheers from the gallery, but the imperturable Thompson never blinked an eye. Dr. Harvie laid a long guard in front to save his counter, and then Hill fell short, putting another rock in front. And with his last stone, Dr. Harvie drew around the guards and nestled up against the Thompson stone, a beautiful draw that gave Orillia that one extra point they needed, and put a glowing period to the 1926 bonspiel's chronicles. The old rink is still re-echoing the crowd's enthusiastic cheers to the victors, and to the congratulations to Hill's fighting finalists.

Dr. Harvie's double success was wrested ot the expense of Hill's double defeat,—but such is curling.

Prizes Presented

Bill Campbell, in presenting the Matthews-Blackwell Cup and club bags to the winning rink said the gallery had been given one of the most spectacular games in the history of the Peterborough club. On the night's play, he said, the competing rinks deserved equal credit.

To Dr. Harvie, he said the members of the Peterborough Club have awaited this opportunity for a long time, and are gratfied that he has succeeded in carrying away both trophies. He has consistently and loyally supported the bonspiel for a great many years, and succeeded in almost every occasion in winning through to the finals, without winning any prizes. This year, he had made up by taking both the Morrow and the Matthews-Blackwell trophies.

Dr. Harvie and his rink had always shown the greatest sportsmanship and a spirit of fraternal good fellowship that made their annual visit a pleasure to the Peterborough club.

Charlie Seymour presented silver tea sets to the runners-up, commending them on their achievement in coming so close to victory.

Dr. Harvie remarked that he had been participating in the Peterborough club bonspiel for about ten seasons, and did it for the pleasure and good fellowship it brought. He commented on the benefit of a large spiel such as this, where so many good fellows and good curlers are met.

George Hill said he was proud to have his rink take second place, and handed a great deal of the credit for this achievement to the other members of his rink.

MENIE DEFEATED BY CLOTH MAKERS

Good Hockey in Campbellford League Opening.

CAMPBELLFORD, January 28.—The town hockey league staged their opening at Connert's arena last night with two fast games, the Hydro and Outlaws playing a four-all tie while the Campbellford Cloth Co., took the Menie Sextette into camp by a 3 to 1 score.

The Hydro-Outlaw game started at a fast clip, both teams playing good hockey with honors about even, McKeel started the fireworks when he gave Beatty a nasty toss at centre ice and after that both teams played the man, and it was a ding dong affair for the balance of the session.

Referee Daniel handed out numerous penalties, but it failed to cool the ardor of the Gladiators, and several near fist fights came near ending the game abruptly.

Apparently both teams were equally at fault and the boys want to learn that they are out on the ice to play hockey and not to settle any old grievances.

The line-up:

Hydro: Goal, Smith; right defence, Col. Watt; left defence, Beatty; centre, Cowell; right wing, Henderson; left wing, Johnston; subs. Cecil Watt, Nesbitt and Hall.

Referee, Rev. C. D. Daniel.

Menie and the Cloth Company staged a very interesting struggle with honors very even, Menie having many opportunities to register but they fell down badly when in a scoring position. They also lacked condition and capable subs., but they give promise of being up with the parade with a few more practices.

Both teams were inclined to roam all over the ice and bunch together, slowing up the game considerably.

Rannie, Hume and Shillinglaw of the old Menie team, played good hockey while they lasted, while Hay and Lynn are comers and will improve.

The Cloth Co. original front line of Ayrhart, Rouselle and Zvisky were the best part of the team.

BOWLING with the CHAMPION

MAKING SPARES.

Don't fail to get your spares. A missed spare here and there can raise havoc with your score. And not only that, it tends to shake your confidence, especially where your first ball kicks down nine of the pins. Get the remaining one on your second attempt.

In making spares on the right side of the alley, do not turn your hand at all. Simply slide the fingers together in gripping the ball and shoot cross alley at them.

Next to strikes, spares are the big things. Obviously one cannot throw strikes consistently. But he should be able to come through with a spare frequently, especially after he's out of the beginner's stage.

Practice shooting at a single pin, either the one on the seventh or tenth spot is the best to try your aim against. For it's usually either one or the other that stays up when you get nine on your first ball.

Go after the spares. Pick up all you can. And you'll soon find your score improving.

Tomorrow: Making Splits.

CHAMPION SKATER AND SISTER

Miss Cecil Eustace Smith, right, Toronto, Canadian woman amateur figure skating champion, who took first place in the women's senior school figures at Lake Placid last week. She is shown in a fancy pose with her sister, who is also an adept skater.

BILLY EVANS Says:

UNUSUAL NAME.

A champion in any sport with an unusual name is always the subject of much comment. Take the case of Fidel La Barba, holder of the flyweight title.

When he is announced as one of the performers of the evening in the main bout, his first name is given as if spelled Fiddle, common for violin.

For boxing purposes La Barba will probably always be known as Fiddle. However, the correct way to pronounce the champion's front handle is "FI-DELL."

La Barba admits he is far more particular about the size of the gate than the pronunciation of his name.

GORGEOUS GEORGES.

It must be rather disconcerting to American light heavies to note the fuss that is being made over Georges Carpentier.

I believe I am conservative in venturing the opinion that there are at least a half dozen fighters of Carpentier's weight who could take him.

Despite this, American promoters are falling all over themselves in an effort to induce Carpentier to sign a fight contract at a fancy figure.

The popularity of Carpentier with promoters as well as fight fans can be attributed to color. In sport, color means the fellow who is different.

Battling Siki had color, literally and otherwise. Color in sport can assert itself in many ways.

Carpentier was the Gorgeous Georges, the matinee idol, the Orchid Man. He broke into the society columns as often as the sport page.

Siki was just a poor "nut," constantly doing something ridiculous, but nevertheless breaking into print as often as Carpentier.

It seems the curious public is often more interested in the mannerisms and habits of a fighter than in his real ability in that direction.

Perhaps in no sport is dress quite so essential as golf.

The football player when he dons his uniform has the thought of protection uppermost in making the selection of his outfit.

The ball player gives some consideration to protection, but the big idea in the baseball uniform is a light flannel that will absorb perspiration and at the same time look passably well.

The boxer and swimmer wear the lightest possible uniform so as not to handicap their efforts.

It is the same with practically every sport except golf with reference to the uniform. The golf player dresses largely for the matter of looks.

The latest plus fours, some of the knickers look like "Big Sixes," with hose and sweater of many colors to match, topped off by a snappy cap, gets a big play with most golfers.

However, we have noted that the best dressed golfers are usually the poorest players, Walter Hagen excepted, of course.

SWEET REVENGE.

Mickey Walker, welterweight champion, doesn't seem to gibe very well with the New York Boxing Commission.

Because of his refusal to box Dave Shade, Walker was on the suspended list in New York State for over a year. He finally got back into the good graces of the powers that be.

Signed to box for charity, recently, Walker balked on the figure named for his services. He suddenly developed an infected toe and canceled his engagement.

A few weeks later, offered in the neighborhood of $30,000 to box Tommy Milligan, the infected toe soon got well. The sudden recovery of Walker offered the commission a chance for revenge.

About a week before the bout the commission after looking over the injured toe decided it was not well enough to permit Walker to give his best. The bout was called off.

Peeved, Jack Kearns announced that he would take the proposed bout to Europe, hoping it might cause the commission to relent. Nothing doing.

When Kearns announced that Scotland has offered $100,000 for the bout the commission knew Walker's manager was bluffing.

PINCH-HITTERS.

While John McGraw may not miss the pitching of Jack Bentley, it is a certainty that his absence will be felt when it comes to the pinch-hitting business.

McGraw has always worked on the theory that a pennant winning ball club should have a capable right-hander and left-hander to be used in the pinches.

It might be added that he has been very successful in carrying out that line of resistance.

While McGraw may have had to pick the spots for Bentley as a pincher, due to the fact that Jack's style of hurling was effective only against a certain style of batting, there was no pinch-hitting situation where McGraw hesitated about using Bentley. Jack did his best work against right-handed pitching although he also took a mean cut at the southpaws.

Moose McCormick, Otie Crandall, Sammy Strang and Mike Donlin are just a few other noted McGraw pinch-hitters that I recall.

RECORD CROWDS.

Recently I received a query asking which sport other than racing has to its credit the largest crowd and how the first three ranked.

Unless I am mistaken football gets the call. At the 1925 clash between Ohio State and Illinois with Red Grange playing his final game, 85,000 people were in attendance.

While the Dempsey-Carpentier fight was said to have drawn 90,000, the meeting with Firpo at the Polo Grounds with 82,228 fight fans locking on, is reckoned as the biggest boxing card.

Babe Ruth and the New York Yankees playing the Giants in the 1923 world series, attracted 62,871 to one of the games at the Yankee Stadium.

So it looks like football, boxing, then baseball for the win, show and place.

Since baseball is played continuously for six months while football and boxing only at stated intervals, a direct comparison is hardly fair to the national pastime.

HOCKEY AT MARMORA

Metals Defeated the Silver Plant in a Fast Game.

MARMORA, Jan. 29.—At Deloro on Tuesday evening the Metals engaged the Silver Plant in hockey. They ran out winners by 4 to 2. Goals were scored for the winners by Bond (3) and Ralph (1). Jack and Berry scored for the losers.

BOLTS BEAT STEAM.

WEST BROMWICH AGAINST VILLA IS CUP FEATURE

Midland's Battle Feature of Saturday's English Soccer.

TIED IN LEAGUE.

Sheffield United Confident of Defeating Sunderland.

LONDON, Jan. 29 (Canadian Press Cable)—With the third round of the English Cup wiped off the slate, the fans are now fixing their attention on the next instalment of the competition which is scheduled to be played off on Saturday. Apart from the fortunes that may be met with by the present cup-holders, Sheffield United, by far the most absorbing feature of Saturday's games is the contest slated for West Bromwich, where the local Albion lock horns with Aston Villa. Thus a stern midlands battle is carded and its outcome will be awaited with the utmost interest.

The Bromwich had an easy time in the third round when they downed Bristol City by four goals to one, or were the Villa at all tested at Hull whom they blanketed by a trio of counters. Only the league form of the two teams furnishes any index of their play, and it is noteworthy that in this respect they are almost tied. Aston Villa played West Bromwich early in the season and the result then was a one-goal draw. This may mean nothing at all, particularly when the great difference between league and cup play are considered. The Villa are doughty cup-fighters and veterans at the game, and the general opinion is that they will advance.

Blades and Sunderland

Sheffield United are called upon to defend their title against the strong Sunderland team, and the game is set down for Bramall Lane. The "Blades" will start off with a tremendous advantage, for it is less than a week since they severely castigated Sunderland on the same terrain by four goals to one in a league match. Meeting for two weeks in succession on the same ground is rather unique, but it puts Sheffield in an excellent position. They are confident that they will be able to repeat their last Saturday's victory, and they are not without the determination to go right ahead and retain the cup for another year.

Huddersfield Town, the league leaders, travel to Manchester to take on the City. The Yorkshiremen did not have it all their own way against Charlton Athletic in the third round, winning the game by the only goal registered. Against that, however, is the rather poor display shown by Manchester City against the amateur Corinthian team whom they drew by 3-3 in the first tilt. A replay brought out a far different result, however, the Corinthians being avalanched by four goals, without response.

Cardiff at Home

Cardiff City, last year's runners-up, had to take two falls out of Burnley before they could get into the fourth round. The first game saw a two-goal draw, but in the second, the Welshmen stacked up a couple of counters to nil. On Saturday, Cardiff again play on their own ground and are hosts to Newcastle United. The Northumbrians had it rather easy with Aberdare in the previous round.

One of the pairings went to three games, that between Derby County and Portsmouth. Following two drawn contests, one each in home-and-home games, the County finally secured the advantage at Leicester. On Saturday, Derby County travel to Southend and their supporters express no apprehension as to the result.

The other fourth round pairings are:—

Stoke at Swansea; Liverpool at Fulham; New Brighton at Notts County; Manchester United at Tottenham; Swindon at Notts Forest; Birmingham at South Shields; Blackburn Rovers at Arsenal; Bolton Wanderers at Bournemouth; Middlesborough at Clapton Orient; Millwall at Bury; Chelsea at Crystal Palace.

RESIN ON BASEBALL CICOTTE'S SECRET

Revealed in Demonstration on 1926 Ball.

CHICAGO, Jan. 29 — (Canadian Press)—What is believed to have been the secret of Pitcher Eddie Cicotte's famous "sailor" ball while a members of the Chicago White Sox, was revealed yesterday in a demonstration of the use of resin on a new baseball by Umpire George Moriarty of the American League. Instructed by President Johnson to experiment with the use of resin, Moriarty found that he was able to imitate the famous "sailor" and made the ball do almost everything he desired. Cicotte, when barred from organized baseball after the "Black Sox" scandal, took the secret of his "sailor" ball with him.

Moriarty said after the demonstration that the use of resin will enable many pitchers who are on the verge of stepping out of the major leagues to regain their effectiveness and in some cases send them on their way to more effectiveness than they possessed in their heyday.

EXAMINER DEFEAT BARRIES 3 TO 2

Alf. Phillips' Newspaper Men Turned in Fine Game of Hockey.

The Examiner stepped into Barries last night at the Brock street arena and handed the Fur Cutters a 3-2 beating. The game was a hard fought battle all the way, both teams showing great speed and endurance. Both teams gave a good exhibition of stickhandling and both showed flashes of good combination.

For Barries, Crary, S. Calladine and Reynolds turned in good games, while Dwyer, in goal, also gave a masterly exhibition. For the Examiner there were no inividual stars, although Marchen went the full sixty minutes and showed some great hockey. All the rest of them turned in a good game, from Ward out.

First Period.

In the first period both teams registered twice. Barries scored the first goal when S. Calladine beat Warde from outside the defence after about five minutes of fast hockey. Crary registered a little later for Barries, when he carried the puck the full length of the ice, and after beating the forwards, he tricked the defence and scored from close in. After about twenty minutes had gone Collins scored for the Examiner on a nice individual effort, beating Dwyer with a vicious shot just over the blue line. The Newspaper boys got their next goal when Taylor passed the puck out from the corner to Dugan, who was parked in front of Barrie's net.

Second Period.

The teams did not let up any in the second period, both going great guns. Only great saves by the opposing net guardians kept the teams from scoring. About ten minutes of the second period had gone when Taylor passed one out from the corner and Franks, securing the puck, beat Dwyer, giving him no chance to save. The play continued fast till the end of the period, neither side being able to register.

The line up:

Barries—Goal, Dwyer; defence, Collins and Reynolds; centre, Koster; right wing, S Calladine; left wing, P. Caladine; subs, Crary and Nicholls.

Examiner—Goal, Warde; defence, Dugan and Taylor; centre, Collins; right wing, Franks; left wing, Marchen; subs, Duggan and Tedford.

Referee—Ted Le Barr.

Goal scorers—Barries: Crary and S. Calladine. Examiner: Dugan, Collins, Franks.

Penalties—Barries: Collins, S. Calladine; P. Calladine. Examiner: Marchen.

Fish and Game

ICE FISHING.

The season for fishing through the ice is now in full swing.

It affords delight to the man and boy in the ice belt. Fishing through the ice can well be classed as "a strong man's game," along with duck shooting and 'coon hunting. It's sport only for the fellow "in the pink."

The outfit used is a simple one indeed. Hook, line, sinker and bait. You can even dispense with the sinker at times. The best lure for bass, wall-eyes or croppies is the live minnow at this season.

The fishing resorts that remain open in the winter season will provide you with the outfit and furnish live "minnies." Likewise a pick for chopping the hole.

The method of hooking and playing bass and other fish is the same as in the summer, minus the rod and reel. Warm clothing, woollen socks and water-proof shoes are a necessity. But if the wind doesn't blow you don't notice the cold so much, especially if you get a bite now and then.

The commercial ice fisherman uses a snug little shack to fish from. He cuts a hole in the ice, pulls his shack over the hole, shuts the door, fires up his stove and goes to it.

While he fishes for so much per pound he usually welcomes company, and such fish you may catch while his guest. Of course, you are welcome to provide your own shack.

The shack should be placed over water from four to six feet in depth. There are no windows, and the door must be kept closed so the fisherman can better entertain the visiting members of the tribe of fins.

The eye of the perch makes the best and most enduring perch bait. In waters where great-northern pike are permitted to be speared, live perch are impaled by a hook through the dorsal fine and lowered three or four feet below the hole. They act as decoys to the voracious pike.

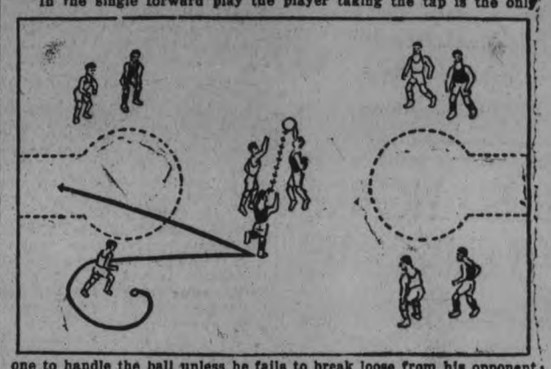
BASKETBALL

By THE CAPTAIN

NO. 15—SINGLE FORWARD PLAY.

No team can successfully compete with another unless it can run off formation plays on the tap-off. On each and every one of these five men must play as one; there are individual duties for all, and only co-operation will bring results.

In the single forward play the player taking the tap is the only one to handle the ball unless he fails to break loose from his opponent. The play is the simplest attempt at formation but is very effective at times.



The center taps the ball to his left side. The left forward, staying in front of the opposing guard, dashes up to meet and catch it. He then circles back to take a shot at the basket.

The right forward starts in with the left forward, but only fakes toward taking the tap. He must keep his guard from getting in the way of and stopping the left forward. After he sees that the play has worked he follows his teammates to the basket to shoot if the left forward should miss.

The center, after he also makes certain that the formation has not miscarried, follows up the center of the floor to serve a second follow shot should both forwards miss.

The guards run up with the opposing set of forwards, staying slightly in front of them but never letting them get loose to brush past or drop back quickly to the opposing team's goal. The guard play is not the least important, for should the formation be broken and possession of the ball be lost, it will be up to the guards to prevent the rival team using this advantage.

The single forward play can be used for either side, the forwards merely playing exchanging duties.

WORTH IN SPORT KNOWING

 George Sisler, manager of the St. Louis Browns, has been in the big leagues since 1915. And outside of his debut season, when he played in only about half the games, has never finished below the .300 mark in batting.

Sisler had his best year in 1922. He hit .420 that campaign, equalling Ty Cobb's American League record for sticking proclivities. Cobb set his mark in 1911.

Sisler, besides being a star clubber, has also done well as a run-getter and base-stealer. He has passed the century figure in bringing counters over the plate on several occasions and in 1922 topped the pilferers with 51 swipes. **

HELPFUL HINTS by GOLFING STARS

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH GOLFERS MAGAZINE)

If it comes at all naturally to the player to keep the back of the left hand turned over, showing on the top of the club, it is a point to cultivate. It has the considerable advantage of tending to keep the left arm straight. The tension of the left elbow is increased by it, and this helps to prevent the crumpling up of the left arm, which leads to loss of power and accuracy. But to most people this position is very unnatural and can even be painful, so that it would be unwise in any way to insist upon its adoption. Only let it be emphasized that any device which a player can make use of with the intention of increasing the straightness of the left arm and the consequent swinging directly and freely from the left shoulder is invaluable.

It is also necessary that the hands should be kept low in the address. This brings the body into the correct angle of position leaning over toward the ball, with the weight kept well back on the heels. If the hands are held high, the body becomes too upright.

MUSSOLINI TRIES TO PUT DOWN MAFIA

Parent of Black Hand Organization To Be Crushed.

PALERMO, Sicily, Jan. 29 (Canadian Press).—An attempt is to be made to weed out in Sicily the kind of men who grow into "gunmen," and other killers. Premier Mussolini has declared a war to the death on the Mafia, parent of the "Blackhand" organization, which has spread from the rustic backwoods of this island to the far corners of the earth, carrying death, crime and terror with it.

SABIN W. CARR

Sensational Yale pole-vaulter who established a new indoor world record by clearing 13 feet, one inch, at New Haven the other day. The former mark was held by Sherrill of Penn, who vaulted 13 feet. Carr's effort also betters the record of 13 feet, 5/8 inch, made by Dean Brownell, one-time Illinois star, on a dirt runway.

WORST BLIZZARD FOR MANY YEARS

Western Ontario Railway Lines Blocked By Drifting Snow.

TRAFFIC TIED UP.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Jan. 29. — Canadian Press, — Woodstock and Oxford county and other sections of Western Ontario, have been in the grip of the worst blizzard experienced here for many years.

Driving snow, accompanied by fierce winter gales and a temperature hovering around the zero mark, has completely tied up road transportation in every part of the county, and the rural roads are impassable, even to sleigh and cutter traffic.

The rural schools were all closed, owing to the pupils being unable to get away from their homes.

The Port Dover and Stratford Railway line is completely blocked, the morning train form the south being stuck fast in a huge snowbank, near Burgessville.

Many farmers reported by telephone yesterday afternoon that they were completely snowed-in in their houses, some of them stating that it was the worst blizzard they had seen for over a quarter of a century.

Too Tall To Attend School Is Plea Of New York Boy

NEW YORK, Jan. 29 (United Press)—When William Kalista stood up in the class room, he frightened the teacher and the pupils laughed at him. When he sat down there was no room for his long legs. So William took up his 6 feet, 3 inches and walked out of the room never to return. That was his explanation when arraigned in municipal term court for failing to attend Continuation School here.

He was sent to the New York Parental School for an indefinite term.

PARKDALE WILL BE STRONG IN TO-NIGHT'S GAME

Paddlers Fighting To Remain in the Group Race.

GREAT ICE SHEET.

Game Looks Like the Hockey Classic of the Season.

Parkdale will bring their strongest line-up to Peterboro for to-night's game, the Paddlers realizing that a defeat in this battle will be virtually fatal to their chances.

Parkdale will line up as follows:
Goal: Collett.
Defence: Lount, Gossett.
Centre: Morris.
Right wing: Jeffrey.
Subs.: Cawkell, Sullivan.

Mike Rodden will referee and will send the teams away at 8.30 o'clock sharp. Needless to say the ice is in grand shape and there is nothing to prevent the teams showing their fastest wares. It looks like the season's classic so far, and will draw a capacity house.

CHINA ACCEDES TO SOVIET REQUESTS

Russian Railway Manager and Companies Have Been Released.

MOSCOW, Jan. 29 — (United Press)—The Peking Government's reply to the Soviet note on the Chinese Eastern Railway situation made public today says China has satisfied the main requests of Russia, namely the release of the Russian Manager Ivanoff and companions who had been arrested by Chang Tso Lin, a Manchurian.

The note adds that the Tuan Chi Jui regime is confident that mutual sincerity and justice will enable a peaceful solution of the remaining railroad problems such as the maintenance of peace and order along the line.

A CORRECTION

In yesterday's Examiner it was stated that King Edward School had won the game played with Queen Mary School by the score of 4 to 0. The correct score was 13 to 0, and it was in favor of the west end school. The standing of the Queen Mary School should have been given as, Won 2, and Lost 0, instead of Lost 1 and Won 1.

Theatre

AT THE REGENT

BUCK JONES DOES IMPROMPTU SCENE WITH RAUCOUS RAM

Buck Jones, who is starred by William Fox in "The Desert's Price," a thrilling Western written by William MacLeod Raine, now at the Regent theatre, has had some gripping experiences in his colorful career, but he was confronted by something entirely new when filming his latest release.

"I've been called upon to do virtually everything a human can be expected to do," said Jones, discussing this new adventure, "but my director certainly gave me a jolt when he informed me I'd have to do a chase with a ram in "The Desert's Price."

"In stead, there was an old buckboard, with a pretty girl on the seat, and I was cast in the role of the rescuer. The director told me to chase the ram away—for the ram had made the girl climb.

"That sounded easy—chasing the ram.. But it was the other way. The dog-gone ram chased me.

"What'll I do now?' I yelled at Director Van Dyke. 'This beast is gaining on me!'"

"'Well, if you don't want to land on your ear, you'll climb into that buckboard — and make it snappy!' said the director.

"But those last few words were quite unnecessary. I was in that buckboard before he finished the final 'b' in 'buckboard.'"

AT THE GRAND

"THE GORILLA" IS MIXTURE MYSTERY AND BURLESQUE

(From the Mail and Empire, Toronto)

People who enjoyed "The Bat" will also appreciate "The Gorilla," which has the same internal structure of tense situations and inexplicable happenings, additionally buttressed with strong comic relief in the persons of Mr. Mulligan and Mr. Garrity, the two detectives — one might almost say defectives — who are brought in to solve the mystery. The desire to go one better than "The Bat" was evidently in the mind of the playwright, Ralph Spence, and he seems to have succeeded.

There are plenty of blood-curdling thrills and horrors in the piece, but the audience is never allowed to take them very seriously. Mr. Mulligan and Mr. Garrity see to that. While "The Bat" has evidently been the author's inspiration, he is all the time shooting this type of dramatic entertainment with the shafts of ridicule. In a mystery play that is intended to be serious, the audience is anxious to know the why and wherefore of all those mysterious happenings that occur, but the wish is seldom gratified. In "The Gorilla" one takes them as they come, and the explanation does not matter.

Last night at the Royal Alexandra a full house thoroughly enjoyed the initial presentation. Dull moments were unknown. Boisterous merriment and thrills succeeded each other, culminating in a finale which combined the two elements when the Gorilla escaped from the confines of the stage and capered up the aisles.

Edmund Elton and J. Harry Jenkins were an ideal pair of comic detectives and rollicked effectively through the three acts, while the other characters were in able hands, carrying through this pot-pourri of mystery and burlesque with the requisite amount of verve and flippancy. With the success of previous mystery plays before him, the author of "The Gorilla" must have felt pretty certain of a favorable popular reception, and the comedy that has been injected into it is an ingredient that makes the assurance doubly sure. "The Gorilla" may be recommended as a good evening for those who seek laughter plus thrills.

"The Gorilla" comes to the Grand Opera House, Saturday, Dec. 6th.

ST. JOHN'S BOYS HELD BANQUET

About Thirty Members of Two Clubs Assemble For Supper.

HEARD OF SCOUTING.

The boys' clubs of St. John's Church held a banquet on Friday evening last. There were about thirty boys present. The speaker for the evening was Dr. Murray Fraser who gave a most inspiring and delightful address on Boy Scouts. Music during the supper was supplied by Jack Marshall on the piano and Bert Budd on the saxaphone. The supper was under the supervision of Mrs. Heiderman, Mrs. Hawden and Mrs. Hake. Dr. Blagrave acted as chairman during the evening. The leaders of the boys' clubs are Bert Graham and Jack Collis.

ADDRESS ON IRISH GIVEN AT ST. JOHN'S

Mortgage Was Burned at Conclusion of Interesting Address.

The Church Women's Association of St. John's Church presented a very delightful evening's entertainment to the friends of the Church on Wednesday evening. The chief event was a talk given by Canon Fitzgerald of Kingston on "Ireland and the Irish." This was prefaced by a children's dance by pupils of Miss Littlefield of the Y.W.C.A., and two very delightful songs by Mrs. DeCourcy King, whose fine voice is so well known to Peterborough audiences. The occasion for the gathering was as stated by Dr. Blagrave, to show thankfulness for the paying off of the mortgage on the Rectory.

There was a very large audience present, perhaps one of the largest that has ever attended a purely Church entertainment at St. John's, and it must have been very gratifying to the members of the C.W.A. to witness the large turn-out of members of the church and their friends who came to show their appreciation of the success of this wonderfully active church organization in having paid off the mortgage.

Canon Fitzgerald's address was replete with humor and even in the more serious parts of it, one could note by the twinkle in his eye that he regarded life as a thing to be made the best of, and cheerfulness as a much better balm than tears.

The address, as the lecturer stated at commencemnet, was not intended as a description of Ireland from any particular standpoint, it was merely meant to be a talk on certain aspects of Irish life and character as they had presented themselves to him 25 years ago. Canon Fitzgerald related anecdotes and recited poems by Irish authors in a most charming manner and interspersed these with facts concerning the wonderful work accomplished by Irishmen, and particularly Ulstermen during the World War. The figures that he presented were a revelation to his audience.

At the conclusion of the address, the ceremony of burning the mortgage was proceeded with, and this was followed by the singing of the Doxology and the National Anthem.

RADIO COMPASS HELPED RESCUE

Enabled U. S. Liner To Reach Scene of Antinoe Disaster.

CAPTAIN GRATEFUL.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Jan. 29. Canadian Press. — Captain George Fried, commander of the United States liner President Roosevelt, in the first detailed reports receiv here of the heroic rescue of the crew of the freighter Antinoe, in the Atlant. t tributes his success to the radio compass which enabled him to reach the sinking vessel, when that ship had given a position a hundred miles from the point where found. The Leyle gun and the use of oil were additional factors in making the rescue a complete success.

He states that Captain Torse of the Antinoe had to be carried on board the Roosevelt and despite his physical condition asked to be carried to the bridge to express his gratitude. All the crew were in a pitiful condition having had no food or water for two days.

BARN QUESTION WAS RE-OPENED

Reeve of Lakefield Resigned From Refuge Board, But Reconsidered.

FUNERAL COSTS.

On the resumption of County Council yesterday afternoon J. C. Strickland re-opened the question of the House of Refuge barn, which had been discussed during the morning session. He declared that there should be a definite understanding of the county's intentions regarding the continuance of farming operations on the House of Refuge property. Futher, he stated, that believing the farm could not be made to pay unless a full time man was employed, he would wish his appointment as chairman of the House of Refuge Board to be cancelled.

Mr. Clark drew the attention of the council to the fact that it had a farm, it had machinery and it had the House of Refuge to maintain. It was impossible, he said, to make the house a paying proposition, and that the board of management had always been authorized to get the necessary help, but that it would be unwise for the council to hire a man for a year.

Warden Curtis exhorted Mr. Strickland to reconsider his resignation, and Mr. Smithson said that the committee could not be held responsible for not making the farm pay.

Considering these facts Mr. Strickland decided to withdraw his resignation.

A discussion then took place regarding the funeral expenses of an inmate of the House of Refuge. The expenses it was divulged, were considerably higher than usual owing to the fact that the body had been taken to Young's Point for burial.

The following is the motion which was adopted regarding this matter:

It was moved by G. Simpson and seconded by M. E. Smithson, that the account of Hunter and Webster re the burial of an inmate from the House of Refuge, be paid, but in the future this council places the regulations of such circumstances as follows: That any inmate not being buried in House of Refuge plot in the cemetery, that is to say, that the party or parties claiming the body for burial, must bear extra expense of burial, when it exceeds the charge for such services as now prevails, and also that provision be made for the burial of Roman Catholics inmates, who have no friends to apply for the body such funeral expenses to be borne by the county, and that the board be authorized to make arrangements with the undertakers to provide for the same.

At this juncture a deputation from the Children's Aid Society composed of John Edgar and Charles Cummer, presented an appeal for assistance.

The members of the deputaion enlarged upon the needs of the Society, and the increasing difficulty experienced in obtaining funds. Owing to the fact that tag days were becoming unpopular, and that the last one had been practically non-productive of funds, they had decided to abandon the practice. The sum applied for was $1909.84. The matter was referred to the Finance Committee.

A motion was proposed by H. B. Rye to the effect that qualifications for municipal office should be raised and placed upon the same basis as in 1914, e.g., $400 freehold, and $800 leasehold.

An amendment, introduced by J. C. Strickland, that the qualifications remain the same, carried.

MICHAEL O'BRIEN

Word was received in the city this morning of the death yesterday in St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, after a lingering illness of over a year's duration of Michael O'Brien, a former resident of this city and master at the Collegiate Institute.

The late Mr. O'Brien, who resided practically all his lif in Peterboro County, was born in Douro, on November 7, 1856, the son of the late Dennis O'Brien and Johanna Walsh. He was the eldest member of a family of eight children, and on the death of his father, took on much of the responsibility of the upbringing of his brothers and sisters. His primary education was received in a township school known as the Church School, Douro, and was finished later at the Peterborough Collegiate Institute and Queen's University, Kingston. He was a teacher in several of the county schools of Peterboro, St. Peter's School in this city, St. Mary's School, Lindsay, and was for several years a member of the staff of the Peterboro Collegiate Institute. In 1899, he was made Inspector of Separate Schools, and retained that position until his appointment in 1915 as secretary of the Catholic Educational Council of Ontario, in which capacity he had much to do with the preparation of the Separate Schools' Petition of Rights, which was argued recently before Mr. Justice Rose of Toronto. It was in 1916 that he severed a long connection as a citizen of Peterboro, and removed to Toronto, where he resided at 36 Boon Avenue.

The deceased married in Peterbro, Miss Johanna Sheehy, sister of the late Richard Sheehy of this city, and is survived by his widow; seven sons: John D., barrister of Toronto Richard V., contractor, of Detroit; Wm. J., barrister, of Toronto; Rev. Michael S., parish priest of Huntsville; James M., Ontario Moving Picture Censor, Toronto; Gerald, in the Post Office Department at Toronto; and Rev. Austin, of the Basilian Community, and professor at St. Michael's College, Toronto, and one daughter, Rathleen, in religion Sister Emerentia, of St. Joseph's Convent, Toronto. Four brothers and two sisters, also survive: Maurice of Duluth; P. W. and D. J. of Chicago, and James of Peterboro; Rev. Sister St. Michael of Mount St. Joseph Convent, Peterboro, and Rev. Sister Patricia, principal of St. Peter's School, Peterboro.

Three of Mr. O'Brien's sons served with distinction overseas in the late war; Williiam, Richard and James enlisting with the Canadian forces, the former winning a captaincy.

In the passing of the late Michael O'Brien, Ontario loses one of its outstanding citizens. The deceased was one of the most versatile educationists in the province, possessed of a broad and many-sided culture which made him a stalwart and outstanding figure in education circles. As a teacher, he was eminently successful, and many of his former pupils will remember with affectionate regret the man who took such a close interest in their tuition and never failed to follow with a sympathetic and intense interest, their success in life. To his pupils thorough grounding and welfare, the late Mr. O'Brien brought that conscientious vigor which was one of his main characteristics, and it could be said of him that he was large-minded and generous-hearted in essence and in practice. The success of others was to him at all times a joy, and the advancement of those about him, whether of close relationship or far removed from his own life, was a matter of interest and pride. To those in affliction, he was ready also at all times to extend a helping hand and to bring to their assistance his quality of broad-minded, sympathetic attention.

One strong, forceful character, the late Mr. O'Brien was a man of deep-rooted convictions and of uncompromising fidelity to principle. Of a deeply religious trend of mind, he was a devout member of the Catholic Church, always assisting with faithful piety at the ceremonies of his church, and making a practice of daily attendance at morning Mass and Holy Communion, whenever possible. Born of his sincere devotion to his faith and his strong love of God, his last severe illness, painful at all times, was faced with cheerfulness and resignation.

Of a keen insight and wide mentality, the late Mr. O'Brien might have been said to have made the cause of Catholic education his hobby in life, because he believed that the child in the class room should have its soul directed toward God as well as its mind trained in worldly education. From this ideal, he never swerved. He was a true son of the church in every sense of the word; as a Catholic, a man, a husband and father, a citizen and a teacher.

The late Mr. O'Brien was a charter member of the Knights of Columbus, and belonged to the Holy Name Society of St. Clare's Church, Toronto.

The C.P.R. noon train on Sunday will bring the remains to the city, where they will be taken to the home of Mrs. O'Brien's sister, Mrs. John Corkery, 487 Gilmour Street. Interment will be in St. Peter's Cemetery on Monday, preceded by a solemn requiem mass sung at St. Peter's Cathedral at 9 o'clock on Monday morning.

PRINCE EXPECTED RECOVER RAPIDLY

Scottish Homeopath Has Kept Him on Rigid Diet For Sime Time.

LONDON, Jan. 29.— (Canadian Press.)—The Prince of Wales, who suffered a fracture of his left collar bone in a fall while riding to the Hounds, yesterday, passed a good night and was making satisfactory progress this morning.

After a few days' rest, I have little doubt that the Prince will be out and about again," said his secretary, Captain Lascelles.

The Prince's physical fitness will undoubtedly help him to a quick recovery. The Evening News reports that, since his return from South America, he has been in the hands of a Scottish homeopath, who has seen to it that he had adhered to a strict diet. His luncheon often consists of thin slices of roast beef with vegetables, but no sweets. He foregoes alcoholic stimulants until sundown, has abandoned cigars and smokes only about four cigarettes daily.

OTTAWA DEBATE.

Bourassa Advises Canada Be Made More Attractive For Settlers.

OTTAWA, Jan. 30.—Continuing the debate on the address yesterday Henri Bourassa (Independent, Labelle) doubted the Government's ability to reduce taxes to a substantial extent. In his opinion it would be a mistake to reduce taxation and at the same time increase the country's debt. He favored, rather, a readjustment of our fiscal system in its actual operation, which suggestion he hoped the Minister of Finance would bear in mind in the preparation of the Budget.

Consideration should be had for the fathers of families shouldering the social responsibility of developing our manhood. In this respect, Mr. Bourassa advocated that, for the exemption purposes under Income Tax Act, the age of children should be raised, thereby increasing the extent of exemptions granted to fathers.

There should be a $500 exemption and 21 year age limit for the members of the family on whom exemption could be claimed. In the collection of income tax, there should be a distinction between salary earned and revenue from investments. The householder and father of families should not have to bear the heavy burden of income tax, while people without responsibility were able to live on profits from investments which were non-taxable. It was unjust and immoral that the profits of stock exchange operations should go untaxed.

Agrees With Progressives.

On immigration, Mr. Bourassa said that the only satisfactory statement he had heard in the House on this subject had been from Rsbt. Forke, leader of the Progressive party. Mr. Forke's views were coincident with the views of the people of Quebec. That is, the social economic conditions would have to be made such that desirable immigrants would want to come to this country. Mr. Bourassa said that he had visited French-Canadian centres in the New England States every year for 40 years, and the idea that those French-Canadian Americans could be brought back to Canada was unsound. He recalled that Sir Wilfred Laurier's maiden speech in the Quebec Legislature when the Conservatives had been in power, was exactly the gist of the arguments used by Conservatives in the last campaign for allowing Canadians to drift to the United States. Canada needed the policy of nationalism. No more imperial ventures, no more sending of our sons abroad to spill their blood on the fields of Europe, no more "Ready, Aye, Ready" speeches, said Mr. Bourassa.

Nationalism Lacking.

British voters could, by their vote, express their opinion on whatever British Government might be responible for war. The poorest cattle drover in the Old Country had such a right, but we in Canada had no more right in framing such policies than the people of protectorate empires in South Africa. The smallest country possessed a more dignified sense of citizenship "than we self-willed vassals of a foreign power."

Hudson Bay Railway

On the subject of the Hudson Bay Railway, Mr. Bourassa said that there was but one consideration. If the road was feasible, a water route to the markets of the world, during the winter when the St. Lawrence route was closed, then Canada should complete the Hudson Bay Railway as a national enterprise. He did not believe the Dominion Government could embark upon the enterprise on any other grounds, especially before the most searching investigation had been made into the probable cost of the road which, said Mr. Bourassa, had been estimated in the neighborhood of fifty millions. It was entirely wrong that any political consideration should enter into the question, and it was also wrong that the larger conception of the railway as a national asset should be obscured.

"Let us not conceal the big idea under the small nightcap of a pretence of colonizing portions of this country which are uninhabitable except by savages," exclaimed Mr. Bourassa. He enlarged on this idea by suggesting that only a part of the country traversed by the route of the Hudson Bay Railway was really fit for colonization.

The fringes of the Strait could not be considered arable land. He urged that the records of the Hudson Bay Company should be consulted to ascertain the practicability of the Hudson Bay route, and he wondered why this step had not been taken long ago. He reserved the right to pass upon the Government's

SWISS DIVIDED ON QUESTION OF SOVIET APOLOGY

Conservative Citizens Protest Against Humiliation of Nation.

ISSUE MANIFESTO.

Rather Lose League Than Apologize To "Despicable Government."

GENEVA, Jan. 30 (Canadian Press).—Switzerland continues to be violently divided on the question of whether the Government should apologize to Russia for the assassination in 1922 of the Soviet Envoy Vorowsky and acquittal of the assassin, so as to insure participation of the Soviet in the League's disarmament conferences at Geneva.

The latest feature of the situation is a manifesto addressed by a group of Conservative citizens of Geneva to President Haberin opposing "the humiliation of the nation," and declaring that they would prefer to last the League of Nations rather than offer excuses to a "cruel and despicable government which has destroyed religion, morality and family relations and persecutes all classes."

Sadowski arose at sunrise on his 100th birthday to work at his regular job as a farm laborer near the village of Palninken. "Hard work and short food rations did it," Sadowski said, referring to his longevity.

ALBERTA BASKS IN FLORIDA SUN

But Both Coasts Have Been Lashed By Storms.

57 VARIETIES.

CALGARY, Alta., Jan. 30 (Canadian Press)—While Eastern Canada has been shivering in temperatures far below zero and the west coast of the continent has just been swept by a storm, Alberta has been basking in weather of the tropical variety for practically the whole winter.

Golf and tennis have been played all during the season with only brief interruptions.

All along the British Columbia coast the barometer was still low yesterday, winds were light.

The British freighters Mabriton and Grainton, from the United Kingdom, arrived here Friday, little the worse for the high winds encountered on the open Pacific.

Quebec 21 Below

QUEBEC, Que., Jan. 30—A sudden drop in the temperature from 12 above at noon Thursday to 19 and in some places 21 degrees below zero Friday, accompanied by a wind blowing at a velocity of 34 miles an hour, caused a good many Quebecers to wish for a brief sight of sun bathed beaches and incidentally resulted in the fire brigade being called out eight times for chimney fires and incipient outbreaks.

In New Brunswick

FREDERICTON, N.B., Jan. 30—New Brunswick was in the grips Friday of a winter's worst storm.

Following in the wake of the snowfall there have been northwest gales which drove the temperature down below zero. Highways are blocked by huge snowdrifts, telephone wires are down in many directions and conditions throughout central New Brunswick were reported to be getting worse.

SON SWEARS TO AVENGE FATHER'S DEATH

Youth Will Go To Chicago To Trace the Slayer.

SAYS HE WILL KILL.

Sure No Woman is Involved in Mystery Death of Father.

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—Police of Grafton wired local police today that Detective Mooney would come here to seek traces of the murderer of Henry Rand. Mooney will be accompanied by James Rand, the dead man's son.

Young Rand is confident that if he can find the person who occupied the seat in a Chicago theater, indicated by the yellow stub found in the death room, he will be able to locate the slayer. Police are less sanguine.

Despite the theories held by the police, young Rand is insistent that a woman played no part in his father's murder.

"When I find the scoundrel who killed my father, I'll kill him on the spot," Jim Rand declared as he prepared to come to Chicago. "I don't know whether we shall find him in Chicago, but I'm sure that is where we shall find the clew that will locate him. Knowing my father as I did, I do not for a moment believe that a woman is involved in this."

35 MEN KILLED IN EXPLOSIONS IN U.S. FRIDAY

One Blast Kills 27 in Mossboro Mine—16 Were Negroes.

THREE ACCIDENTS.

World's Greatest Coal Producing Mine Scene of Five Deaths.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 30.—Canadian Press. — Rescue crews today were bringing out the last of the 27 miners, 11 white and 16 negroes who were killed in explosion at the Mossboro mine of the Premier Coal Company, near here, late yesterday.

Twenty-three of the 53 men in the mine at the time of the blast, escaped uninjured.

The tragedy brought the total number of miners killed in three explosions throughout the country during the day to 35. Five were killed at West Frankfort, Ills., in an explosion in the new Orient mine, the world's greatest coal producer, while three met death in a gas explosion in the Bear Canyon Coal Co. mine near Trinidad, Col.

GAS EXPLOSION TRAPS MINERS

Sixty-three Caught in Alabama Mine—25 Out Alive.

TEN KNOWN DEAD.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 30 (Canadian Press).—Sixty-three miners were trapped late yesterday afternoon in the Mossboro mine of the Premier Coal Company near Helena, and it is feared 38 of that number are dead, as the result of a gas explosion. Twenty-five have been brought out alive. The known dead number ten, that many bodies having been recovered.

A relief train was en route to the scene from Birmingham, carrying doctors, nurses' and miners rescue crews.

Twenty men alive were brought out in one group to be followed by another squad of 13 workers, reports reaching here said.

65 SUDDEN DEATHS.

Big Toll in Toronto in January—Nine Suicides.

TORONTO, Jan. 30 (Canadian Press).—Sixty-five sudden deaths occurred in Toronto during the month of January. Motor car fatalities were decreased but suicides numbered nine. Thirty-one sudden deaths were from natural causes.

SURTAX PLACED ON FOREIGNERS

French Chamber Passes Bill Taxing Sales of Land.

TWENTY PER CENT.

PARIS, January 30. Canadian Press. — By a vote of 165 to 70 the Chamber decided yesterday to institute a surtax of 20 per cent. on the sale of buildings in France to foreigners. M. Missoffe, the Parisian deputy and author of the measure, pointed out that while the number of French traders established abroad was less han 3600, Paris alone harbored 25,000 foreign traders, and there were 3,500,000 foreigners in France at the present time.

TUGBOAT SINKING.

Caught in the Hudson River Ice.

NYACK, N.J., Jan. 30 (Canadian Press).—The tugboat Clara, marooned in an ice-floe in the Hudson River for more than a week, was sinking off Nyack last night. Two of the crew, Oscar Quist and Jack Larson, both of Newark, N.J., were still aboard, but it is believed the men will get off safely.

Ice stove a hole through the boat's stern, and the hold is gradually filling. The captain and nine other members of the crew, after staying aboard for several days, until supplied were nearly exhausted, left the boat and made Tarrytown safely over the ice.

SPANISH PLANE ON BIG JUMP OF ATLANTIC FLIGHT

Left Cape Verde Islands This Morning For Pernambuco.

IS 1712 MILES.

Commander Franco Hopes To Make Journey in 16 Hours.

PORTO PRAYA, Cape Verde Islands, Jan. 30 (Canadian Press)—Commander Ramon Franco, in the Spanish seaplane Ne Plus Ultra, today is winging his flight southwestward from the Cape Verde Islands bound for Pernambuco, Brazil, a distance of 1,712 miles. Early this morning the Spanish cruiser Blas De Lozo towed the seaplane to a good spot in the bay from which to rise and after taxi-ing for a short distance at a high rate of speed, the aerial craft rose gracefully and Franco pointed its nose toward South America amid the plaudits of spectators afloat and on shore.

Commander Franco hopes to make the journey in around 16 hours, flying a little more than 100 miles an hour. On board the aircraft is a plentiful supply of gasoline and foodstuffs for the crew during the flight. If necessary to come down during the trip, the commander will steer for Fernando de Noronha, which lies 1,432 miles out from the Cape Verdes and 279 miles off the Brazilian coast.

Several Spanish war vessels will patrol the ocean between Porto Praya and South America, to give aid to the flyers if necessary.

SEAPLANE O.K.

PORTO PRAYA, Cape Verde Islands, January 30. Canadian Press.—A wireless message from the Spanish cruiser on Blas Lezo, received at 12.40 o'clock this afternoon, says Commander Franco's seaplane was flying in a normal fashion at that time headed for Pernambuco, Brazil.

KLAN DISCUSSED BY WOODSWORTH

Labor Member Reminrds Minister of Justice of Deportation Machinery.

REFERS TO ACTIVITY.

OTTAWA, Jan. 30. Canadian Press—The Ku Klux Klan was discussed in the House of Commons yesterday. J. S. Woodsworth of Winnipeg, North Centre, senior Labor member in the House, referred to the Klan's activities in British Columbia, and ironically suggested that while he would not urge upon the ministry of Justice the wisdom of deporting the Klan's membership, he would remind the minister that the machinery for

BILL PASSED TO RE-ORGANIZE ARMY

Peace Secure If Backed By Sword, Says Mussolini in Chamber.

ROME, Jan. 30 (Canadian Press)—After Premier Mussolini had made a speech in which he declared that the armed forces of the nation must be maintained with the highest efficiency and that Italy wanted peace, but that peace would be more secure if backed by the sword, the Chamber of Deputies last night adopted clauses of the bill for reorganization of the army.

General Cavallero, under secretary of the Ministry of War, said the reorganization called for by the bill was necessary to create a definite war administration in all branches.

United States' Citizens Will Finance Expedition To Explore North.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30 (Canadian Press).—An independent expedition to explore the Arctic from the air is being organized by Lieutenant Commander Richard E. Byrd of Winchester, Va., who commanded the navy section of the MacMillan expedition last summer.

The enterprise will be financed by United States citizens, among those who have already pledged support being John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and Edsel Ford, each of whom has offered $20,000.

ANCIENT TOMB FOR CARDINAL

Archbishop of Malines Reposes With Twelve Predecessors.

RING TO HALIFAX.

MALINES, Belgium, Jan. 30. — (Canadian Press).—As the famous Malines carillon pealed forth funeral music, the body of Belgium's great war prelate, Cardinal Mercier, was lowered into its final resting place, a crypt in the Cathedral of St. Rombaut, Friday. Thus, in the presence of ecclesiastical authorities of the diocese, the members of his family and his two faithful servants, Franz and Virginie, the beloved Cardinal was entombed in accordance with a tradition dating back to 1589.

Cardinal Mercier now reposes beside the mortal remains of his twelve predecessors in the Malines archbishopric. Fourteen cardinals have been enshrined in the cathedral, but the two oldest sarcophaguses have disintegrated with age and no trace of them is left. Burials in the crypt were forbidden in 1883, but Cardinal Mercier pleaded with the Government in 1920 that it permit the burial of his body in the cathedral crypt, thus carrying out the ancient custom.

Lord Halifax, representing the Anglican Church, was one of the last to bid farewell to his friend and fellow-worker for union of the Roman and Anglican Churches. Leaning on the arm of Abbe Portal, who also had a part in the famous Malines conversations, undertaken with a view to bringing about the union of the Churches, Lord Halifax stood close to the entrance of the crypt as the casket was lowered, and his features betrayed the sadness that was in his heart. The Cardinal had promised Lord Halifax a ring which he had worn since his consecration, and yesterday the Cardinal's valet, Franz, carried out the promise.

POLICE SEIZED BROKERS' BOOKS

Staff Had To Walk Three Miles To Refer To Accounts.

ALLEGED COMBINE.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Jan. 30 removal of business records from the premises under instructions from his commanding officer.

Criticism was made by E. P. Davis, K.C., of the manner in which books, seized by Sergt. R. H. Mercer, of the R.C.M.P. from Mutual Brokers, Regina, had been sealed. A string encircled the bound ends of the book or files of invoices and on this the sergeant had placed his seal. Counsel contended that this did not prevent pages being removed.

Sergt. Mercer stated the records, which he had seized, together with books and documents removed from the offices of defendant companies in Moose Jaw and Saskatoon were kept in the R.C.M.P. barracks at Regina. Mr. Davies elicited the information that the staff of Mutual, Limited, Regina were required to go three miles to the barracks for the purpose of referring to accounts, because all the business records had been seized.

H. B. Robertson, K.C., for the defence, objected to the admissibility of documents which ante-dated the period charged in the indictment for the conspiracy, that is, from 1920 to 1925. His objection was over-ruled by Mr. Justice McDonald, who quoted a case which admitted matters 30 years prior to the time specified.

KING PRAISES SAILORS.

Sends Cablegram to Coolidge on Rescue of British Crew.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30 (Canadian Press).—King George sent President Coolidge a cablegram yesterday praising the officers and crew of the liner President Roosevelt for rescuing in an Atlantic gale all hands of the British freighter Antinoe and expressing regret that two of the rescuing force lost their lives.

In reply, the President cabled that "The event is but another illustration of the heroism and gallantry which have characterized alike the mariners of the United States and Great Britain."

THREE DEAD AND TWENTY INJURED BY DERAILMENT

Two Men and Child Killed on Maine Central Railway.

TWO CARS OFF.

Boston Train Plunged Through Bridge—West of Marion.

MACHIAS, Maine, Jan. 30. — Canadian Press. — Two men and a child were killed and about 20 injured, six or seven rather seriously, late on Friday, when a passenger train bound from Calais to Boston, plunged through the Coldstream Bridge, on the Washington County branch of the Maine Central Railroad two miles west of Marion, derailing two cars.

The scene of the accident was 15 miles east of this town and 27 miles west of Calais. Doctors and nurses were rushed in a special train from Calais and on a locomotive from here. The injured were taken to an hospital at Calais.

The persons killed were reported in official despatches to the railroad officials, as Jason Gould of Calais, a Mr. Strout of Milbridge, and a child, about two years of age, named Hartford, from Woodland, near Calais.

The body of one man and the child had been recovered from the wreckage. The body of the second man was pinned beneath a coach and there was said to be a slight possibility that there was another body close to it.

The smoking car and coach, the last two cars of the train, which was Number 414, were derailed. The smoking car was tipped over while the coach rested on its side. The rear truck of the sleeping car, just ahead of these two cars, also was derailed, but no one in that car was injured, the officials stated.

OFFICER ARRESTS MAN FOR MURDER

John Parks Yields, But Denies Killing Game Warden.

OTTAWA, Jan. 29. — Canadian Press. — According to a report received by the Citizen from Pembroke the Provincial Police last night arrested John Parks of Whitney, Ont., who is wanted in connection with the deaths of Sergeant John Billings, game warden, and his guide, Joseph Stringer.

While the provincial police in the bitter cold were scouring the woods for Parks, Constable Elliott, who returned to Whitney, received word that the wanted man was at his father's house, and the officer made the arrest without any opposition.

Parks stoutly denied having anything to do with the deaths of the game warden and his guide.

(Canadian Press).—Evidence of a raid by Royal Canadian Mounted Police officers on July 15 on seven Winnipeg brokerage and jobbing houses, allegedly controlled by the Nash organization was given in the Court Friday in the trial of charges of conspiracy against the 53 defendants by Inspector F. J. Mead.

Assisted by 14 men, Inspector Mead stated that he supervised the

DEBENTURE DEBT INCREASE

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 30 (Canadian Press)—An increase of $5,300,000 in the municipal debenture debt of Manitoba, is shown in the statistical report for 1925, issued Friday by Hon. D. L. McLeod, municipal commissioner.

Geologists have estimated the lignite resources of Italy at 295,189,000 metric tons.

Official Acceptance of Invitation By League Will Be Next Step.

MEET IN FEBRUARY.

Conference Intended as Basis For Subsequent Discussions.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30. Canadian Press. — Plans for the United States participation in the preliminary disarmament conference at Geneva crystallized into a definite project on Friday when the Senate adopted without debate the resolution providing $50,000 to pay the expenses of a United States delegation. The House already had approved it and the next step will be communication to the Council of the League of Nations of an official acceptance of the invitation to take part and announcement by President Coolidge of the personnel of the delegation.

Meanwhile preparation of instructions for the delegation is well advanced. The United States group will be ready to sail from New York on Feb. 6th, if there is no decision in Geneva to postpone the meeting of the preparatory commission to a later date.

U. S. Delegation.

Minister Hugh Gibson at Berne, Switzerland, will head the delegation, and Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones and Brigadier-General H. A. Smith, who have been in collaboration with State Department officials, in preparation of instructions, now are slated for appointment as chief technical advisers. They will have the assistance of other officers of both the war and navy departments and will be authorized to draft military or naval attaches now abroad for service.

The instructions will be gone over by President Coolidge and Secretary of State Kellogg before they are finally approved. They will stress the desire of the Washington government to contribute in every possible way to the success of the attempt, which is the basis for a subsequent conference where actual international commitments for arms reductions could be worked out.

SENATOR SAYS GALES WERE FIERCE

Has Crossed Atlantic 46 Times—Never Saw Worse Weather.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—(Canadian Press)—Senator Charles Beaubien of Montreal, who arrived on the steamship France said he had never seen such terrific gales and such rough seas in all his forty six crossings of the Atlantic.

"Cape Rrace wired us that the wind velocity exceeded ninety miles an hour on Saturday night. This is greater than hurricane force. Sunday it was very exciting. One wave submerged the boat deck of the ship and we thought all was going to be smashed."

THE WEATHER.

Yesterday morning 20 below zero; this (Saturday) morning 35 degrees above. In 24 hours the temperature has spread 55 degrees. What effect such sudden changes have on the delicate mechanism of the human system, I leave for our doctors to say but to the ordinary individual who uses his thinking apparatus, it seems the strain must be tremendous. In some portions of the tropics, notably in Bermuda and the Baham Islands, the range of temperature during the twelve months of the year, is only about 20 degrees, and sometimes only 15 degrees. Here we can go 135 degrees on the thermometer scale. Lowest last night degrees; this morning at 7 o'clock, 35 above. — W. P.

TUGS CARRIED BY ICE FLOES

Two Car Ferries Also Caught Caught in Lake Michigan Ice.

IN NO DANGER.

MUSKEGON, Mich., Jan. 30. — (Canadian Press). — The fishing tugs Helen N. and Indian, along with the Canadian National car ferries Milwaukee and Grand Haven, drifted with a moving ice field last night and are 15 miles north of Muskegon, in Lake Michigan, this morning. The ships were being carried to the north at a rate of three miles an hour. The Goderich steamer Alabama is in the ice south of this port. None of the boats are believed to be in great danger.

The tugs, with five members of the crew aboard, are believed to have sufficient food and fuel for a day.

NORTHERN ONTARIO MAKING PROGRESS

Hon. Chas. McCrea Tells of Development and Boom.

TORONTO, Jan. 30 (Canadian Press).—Speaking at a meeting of Ward 2 Conservatives last night, Hon. Chas. McCrea, Minister of Mines, traced recent developments in Northern Ontario, described the boom in the mining business there, and presaged still greater activities in the future. While the previous year, he said, the mining industry involved $85,000,000; in 1925 business had mounted to $90,000,000. The nickel business which was handicapped during the war, showed in 1925 an increase of 40 per cent. in excess of pre-war production.

He sketched the policy of the Lands and Forests Department in the leasing of timber limits, emphasizing the value of the contracts calling for reforestation work. The north, he said, was attracting capital for pulp and paper industries and mining. Timber agreements signed by the Government would assure the expenditure of about $80,000,000 in Northern Ontario before the end of 1927.

RELIGION AND THE MAN FROM MARS

By GLENN FRANK

(Copyright, 1926, by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Foreign visitors who spend most of their time in New York, which is a sort of suburb to America proper, comment with sickening regularity upon the people's devotion to a sordid materialism and deliberate snubbing of things spiritual.

Some of us, however, whose duties have taken us into the by-ways as well as the high-ways of the United States, know that we are passing through a period of profound religious concern as well as religious confusion.

Particularly during the last five years I have found many of my friends in a mood of anxious questioning. They are wondering about the forms and fashions that have come and gone in religion. The Fundamentalists are wondering: the Modernists are wondering; and both are worried as they wonder.

Never in my life have I known as many men articulately anxious about finding authentic spiritual satisfaction; never in my life have I known as many men spiritually confused.

Many of us are confused if not handicapped by the innumerable catch-words of religion that have followed us from nursery days.

I have wondered, therefore, what questions a man from Mars might ask about religion, should he come among us with an ignorance of the history of religion that would place him above the battle of creeds.

One man's guess may be as good as another's, but here are six questions that I think an intelligent man from Mars might ask about religion after he had seen our churches and listened to our controversies:

Is religion a matter of a church, a matter of a book, or a matter of a spirit? That is, shall the court of last appeal in matters of religion be the organized church, the printed bible, or the inner response of the individual worshipper?

Is religion a matter of authority or a matter of adventure?

Is religion a matter of deliverance for the sick-minded or a matter of development for the healthy-minded?

Is religion a personal matter or a social matter?

Is religion a matter of creed or a matter of conduct? That is, shall its test be declarations or demonstrations?

Is religion a matter of science or a matter of mysticism?

Not only would a man from Mars be likely to ask these questions; thousands upon thousands of people are asking them in more or less articulate fashion.

The right answers to these questions will enable us to live with a more satisfying sense of inner peace and power.

The Lord's Prayer

BY LIEUT. H. F. ROBERTSON

St. Matthew vi, 9

De-pair not 'neath affliction's stroke, but rather Bring all thy troubles to the bosom of Our Father.
He comforteth, nor is there aught of leaven
In His relief; a tender Parent Thou
Wh'ch art in heaven.
'Mid sympathetic grace from Him, alway the same,
We grateful murmur
Hallowed be Thy name.
And with the angels cry—no voice there dumb—
Aloud, with one accord,
Thy Kingdom come.
And, as our hearts in gratitude to Him are won,
May we not truly supplicate
Thy will be done.
As did that band of old, that wonderful eleven,
His grac'ous spirit they received
On earth as 'tis in Heaven;
By Whose sustaining hand in hunger fed,
When faint they cried
Give us this day our daily bread.
To Him Who guardeth us from Satan's snares and nets,
We plead for grace, that He may thus
Forgive our debts
So we must likewise grant release from earthly fetters,
And may not hope unless we pray
As we forgive our debtors.
And as sin comes to all, whatever be our station,
So pray we (all)
Lead us not into temptation;
And when we're weakly tempted to believe ill
Of friend, or kin, He will Deliver us from evil.
As all shall test that grand and sacred story—
Thine is the kingdom, the power and the glory";
So when stern death this "mortal coil" shall sever,
Immortal life be ours
Forever and forever.
Amen.

BEREAN CLASS TEA A PLEASANT AFFAIR

Was Held at Home of Teacher, Mrs. J. F. Morrison.

The Berean Bible Class of Knox Church held a very pleasant tea on Thursday afternoon at the home of the teacher, Mrs. J. F. Morrison, Dalhousie street. Arrangements for the tea were in the hands of the president, Mrs. E. Benson, and Mrs. J. Foster. Tea was poured by Mrs. J. Johnson, assisted by Mesdames Chambers, English, Wood, Gerard, Londerville and Wells. Mrs. J. Bannon had charge of the candy sale. During the afternoon, a pleasing musical programme was given, with instrumental numbers by Miss M. Pollock, Mr. Chas. Peaker, Tom and Bob Allen, a vocal solo by Mrs. Spicer, and a violin selection by Robert Wylie, with piano accompaniment by Lloyd Wells.

WEEKLY SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

TEXT: John 6:1-14.

After these things Jesus went over the sea of Galilee, which is the sea of Tiberias.

And a great multitude followed him, because they saw his miracles which he did on them that were diseased.

And Jesus went up into a mountain, and there he sat with his disciples.

And the passover, a feast of the Jews, was nigh.

When Jesus then lifted up his eyes, and saw a great company come unto him, he saith unto Philip, Whence shall we buy bread, that these may eat?

(And this he said to prove him: for he himself knew what he would do.)

Philip answered him, Two hundred penny-worth of bread is not sufficient for them, that every one of them may take a little.

One of his disciples, Andrew, Simon Peter's brother, saith unto him,

There is a lad here, which hath five barley loaves, and two small fishes: but what are they among so many?

And Jesus said, Make the men sit down. Now there was much grass in the place. So the men sat down, in number about five thousand.

And Jesus took the loaves; and when he had given thanks, he distributed to the disciples, and the disciples to them that were set down; and likewise of the fishes as much as they would.

When they were filled, he said unto his disciples, Gather up the fragments that remain, that nothing be lost.

Therefore they gathered them together, and filled twelve baskets with the fragments of the five barley loaves, which remained over and above unto them that had eaten.

Then those men, when they had seen the miracle that Jesus did, said, This is of a truth that prophet that should come into the world.

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Jan. 31: Jesus Feeds Five Thousand Men.—John 6:1-14.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D.D.
Editor of The Congregationalist.

THIS lesson concerning the feeding of the five thousand brings us straight into the heart of the whole question of the miraculous. There are many miracles of Jesus that might be explainable upon the basis of higher laws, the nature of which has been partially discovered. We are realizing as never before the power of mind over matter.

Undoubtedly remarkable cures have been effected in recent years by those who have rather deliberately followed psychological laws in exercising such influence, sometimes under religious auspices but also in many instances without any association or profession of religion.

When one thinks of the personality and spiritual power of Jesus one is not amazed that the lame should have walked, that the deaf should have heard, and that many who were sick should have found new health and vigor in his presence.

We do not mean that miraculous circumstances are all to be explainable upon this basis of psychological influence though we should probably find that all circumstances, no matter how seemingly miraculous, have been in accordance with laws that we have not yet discovered. But when we come to an incident like this feeding of the five thousand we are in a realm where nothing that we have discovered of psychological force can account for so amazing a result.

Accepting Miracle.

There can be no use whatever arguing about this miracle. Some will accept the narrative as literal history and believe it without difficulty. Others may believe that it is of the nature of legend or tradition, a wonder story that has become attached to the life of Jesus just as wonder stories have become attached to the life of every great leader and teacher of the past.

If the significance of Jesus had been simply that he fed five thousand people with five barley loaves and two fishes, we should have little occasion for interest in him as a spiritual leader; that might mark his wonder working power, but it could not indicate his divine or his power of saving people from their sins. The significance of Jesus was that he brought to men the bread of life. He himself deprecated the dependence upon signs and miracles, and he spoke very plainly to those who sought him because of the loaves and fishes and not because of the living bread that he had to give.

This narrative might well symbolize the marvelous way in which Christianity has had its growth and influence. From very small beginnings it has brought the bread of life to innumerable thousands, and the richness of the provision of grace is symbolized by the abundance. We are concerned here not with a great magician but with a great Savior who loved the masses of the people and who looked upon them with compassion.

We may not have power to perform miracles such as Jesus did, but if we had in our hearts the deep love for our fellowmen that he had, if compassion moved the souls of all who professed the name of Christ as it moved our Master in his earthly life, could we imagine any one in all the world going hungry? There would be bread enough for all, and all would eat and be filled.

The Never-Filled.

It is touching to think of the vast mass of humanity who never know what it is really to be filled. We are told that there are hordes of people in India, even in the years when there is no famine, who never know what it means to have enough, and one thinks of the children of the Near East who, with all the provision that has come in recent years from Christian America, have not had during much of the time more than one meal a day. Here is where the lesson strikes home to those of us who are well fed and who never know what it means to miss a meal.

Instead of much controversy over whether the miracle happened or not would it not be well if we found in consecration to Christ the power to work modern miracles through the application of God's laws to human problems?

At any rate the lesson and its meaning are lost for us unless we find in Jesus the bread of life and feed upon him in our hearts by faith.

RADICALS SEEK NEW GROUND TO ATTACK DOUMER

Propose to Withdraw Their Finance Plans in Offensive Manoeuvre.

POLITICAL FIGHT.

Socialists Demand Vote on Government's Stamp Tax Measure.

PARIS, Jan. 30. Canadian Press.—The Radical and Socialist leaders decided on Friday that the financial battle in the Chamber is being waged on ground which is unfavorable for them and resolved to change their plans and draw the government, if possible, on to a new field where the Radical Socialist chances are better.

It was agreed by the Radicals and Socialists that the chamber should abandon consideration of the bills they themselves had presented through the Chamber Finance Committee and take a vote on Finance Minister Doumer's proposed stamp tax on all business transactions.

Supporters of the government, however declare that this manoeuvre merely shows the Radical-Socialist fight is on purely political lines. The procedure asked for by the Radical-Socialist leaders, it is pointed out, is contrary to Parliamentary rules, the finance committee having rejected all of M. Doumer's bills and reported on substitutes, which are the only measures now regularly before the House, with amendments which have been proposed.

It is held by the government supporters that the stamp act can be voted on only as an amendment to the measures of the cartel.

The different groups of the cartel will deliberate separately on the question to-day. The chances are that they will approve the manoeuvre suggested by Leon Blum, the Socialist leader, to force a vote on the government plan before the time comes for an issue on their own measures.

Bitter Comment.

Coming just when the talk of conciliation seemed to justify hope for an early favorable issue of the financial discussions, the Radical-Socialist move has caused bitter comment among all the groups. Feeling ran high throughout the afternoon debate in the chamber, in the course of which M. Doumer presented the government's views.

He told the deputies that the time had come for parliament to assume all its responsibilities. He decried the disposition of the parties to throw the blame for the situation on their political adversaries.

Every party is equally responsible, he said, and the consequence of failure to remedy the situation promptly and save the franc, would be shared by all.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 30, 1926.

AN ORILLIA TRIUMPH.

Congratulations are due Dr. Harvie of Orillia and his splendid rink upon the unique record they achieved in winning both the major contests of the Peterboro bonspiel this week, the Orillia entry capturing both the Matthews-Blackwell and the Morrow Trophies.

Even those who are not curlers can appreciate the physical and nervous strain involved in the feat of winning two strenuous competitions puted against forty-five other rinks and playing almost continuously, even if they fail to realize the fine playing, the foresight in planning and steadiness in execution that are necessary for such a complete success.

Dr. Harvie for ten years has represented the northern curlers at the Peterboro bonspiel, and while he has always made a keen fight, he has never before been successful in winning any of the prizes.

His good qualities as a sportsman and his great interest in the local competition have made him deservedly popular with the curling fraternity here, and his double triumph was as welcome to the Peterboro curlers as if it had been won by a local skip.

It was a popular win all round, and Dr. Harvie and his men have gone home not only laden with prizes but what is worth more, with the sincere tributes of local curlers still ringing in their ears.

A NOTED FIGURE GONE.

The news of the death in Toronto of Mr. Michael O'Brien, Secretary of the Catholic Educational Council, has been received with much regret by hundreds of local friends.

Mr. O'Brien was one of the outstanding figures this city and district had contributed to the educational field. A native of Douro Township and a product of the local schools and Collegiate Institute, he had further connected himself with education in this city by very successful service on the staff of the Peterboro Collegiate Institute, many local citizens now prominent in business and professional circles remembering gratefully the kindness and patience shown by Mr. O'Brien as their teacher.

Later he entered upon a broader field of service, being appointed Separate School Inspector for the Province, his duties carrying him all over Ontario and bringing him into contact with Roman Catholic educational authorities in all parts of the Province. During the years he occupied this responsible position he became known and respected in every section of Ontario, and the intelligence that he has passed on will bring general sorrow among his host of friends and acquaintances.

Since 1915 Mr. O'Brien had been Secretary of the Catholic Educational Council, a position which he very successfully filled.

The bereaved family will have the sympathy of the community.

TOWNSHIP BOARDS.

In view of the fact that Premier Ferguson intends to re-introduce his bill in regard to township school boards at the coming session of the Legislature, it is of interest to note that the plan is referred to in the annual reports presented to the County Council by School Inspectors Lees and Downey.

The township board scheme appears to be strongly favoured by educational authorities, but there is no indication that the marked opposition shown to it by the majority of rural residents when it was first broached has been in any way weakened in the year that has elapsed.

There are many advantages that suggest themselves as likely to follow the introduction of the Premier's plan.

Some of these mentioned by Inspector Lees are that it would ensure uniform taxation, would provide equal educational advantages, do away with small schools in which there are but a handful of pupils, make possible better equipment and accommodation, and in some measure at least result in permancy of teachers.

Rural school ratepayers, however, have as yet failed to show any enthusiasm for the proposal—in fact, many of them are actively opposed to it, and if the Premier is going to wait until rural sentiment is calling for the passage of his legislation it is evidently going to be a long time before Ontario will see the scheme in operation.

The legislation had better come first; the education of public opinion can follow.

ACTION IS NEEDED.

The reports presented to the County Council by School Inspectors Richard Lees and R. F. Downey contain much material that should give the responsible authorities something to think about.

Both Inspectors devote a considerable portion of their reports to pointing out that the condition of many of the schools from the viewpoint of health and sanitation is far from being satisfactory.

There is little justification for neglecting such an all-important matter as the health of the pupils.

The schools of Peterboro County, no matter what else they provide, should at least be supplied with adequate and sanitary toilet accommodation, satisfactory heating facilities, proper ventilation and a safe supply of drinking water, and it is evident from reading the reports of the Inspectors that although no details are given some at least of the county schools are deficient in these respects.

The Inspectors have done their duty in calling attention to the need of action and should be backed up by the Medical Officer of Health, as they undoubtedly will be.

That puts the matter squarely up to the various School Boards, and in the light of the official reports, they should consider the conditions existing in the school or schools under their jurisdiction and be ready to remedy any defects that may be found.

Reports that are filed away and forgotten are of little service, and it is to be hoped that this will not be the fate of those submitted by Inspectors Lees and Downey.

A COLOSSAL OUTRAGE.

The world's greatest robber and Germany's most barefaced grafter are some of the phrases being used in Germany to tell plainly what the people there think of the settlement of 500,000,000 gold marks on the ex-Kaiser, says the London Advertiser. In one popular demonstration in Berlin thousands marched in a procession that was headed with banners showing by comparison the wealth of the ex-Kaiser and the seven marks a week for crippled German war veterans. Another set forth the fact that the widow of the late President Ebert, to whom democracy in Germany owes its life, has to live on 20 marks a week.

The agreement worked out in Prussia was done in secret in order that it could be sprung on the Reichstag and the country as an accomplished fact. Prussia is to obtain 100,000 acres of land, some castles, theatres, etc. The ex-Kaiser claimed these, but there is nothing to show that they ever belonged to him. But the price of this concession is staggering. William Von Doorn gets 30,000,000 gold marks in hard cash. He obtains also 300,000 acres of land worth 100,000,000 gold marks. On these estates are more castles than he has fingers and toes. Four of them are priced at 70,000,000 gold marks. It makes in all a grab of 500,000,000 gold marks. Since Wilhelm fled the country he has received 12,000,000 gold marks (more than $4,250,000) per year.

All this fabulous wealth is taken out of the people of Germany—most of it comes from the poorer classes who can hardly afford to keep themselves. It is handed over to those who do not need it, who have done nothing to merit it and who will use it to wreck the form of government which the German people have selected for themselves.

The weighting down of the ex-Kaiser with the tonnage of money is one of the most cruel and damnable miscarriages of justice the world has seen. While the people from whom this money will be taken were facing the withering blasts of the aftermath of war, the man who had led them to ruin was taking mild exercise and substantial meals at Doorn. The smashing of industry, the collapse of business, the hunger and privation of his former subjects—none of these blighting forces penetrated to his snug retreat. Not at any time has there been a point of contact that would shock the snug complacency of a man who is called by the German people themselves the greatest grafter in the world.

If there is a flame of justice operative in Germany it should be fanned into a blazing conflagration of outraged indignation in an effort to strike down the dirty hands as they reach out for wealth that binds the yoke of hardship to the neck of the German people.

CALLS FOR AN ELECTION.

All the political parties are assailed by the Financial Post this week in a front page editorial calling for another general election as soon as possible. The Post believes that the public is disgusted with the leaders in general, and that they would flock to the standard of a new party with a business-like programme and constructive ideas.

The article is interesting even if you don't agree with it all. Here it is:

"There is one possible way out of the most disagreeable situation in Canada's political history—an election NOW. This is the view of most Canadian business men.

"Insistent as is this demand from coast to coast that Canada be given another election, the cry falls on deaf ears at Ottawa. The turmoil at the House drowns the voice of an exasperated people.

"The last election proved only that Canada is tired of its major groups of politicians. It was so much a defeat of these groups that it could not be a real victory for any group as constituted and led. The country voted against its chief political personalities not because of lack of faith in their policies but because of the insincere manner in which their policies were, in the main, offered and because they failed to recognize some of our most important national needs in shaping their platforms. A national policy that would win support from all groups in Canada would not be hard to crystalize from the seemingly diverse offerings of the various groups. Canadians are not at odds on the major problems of the day—taxation and immigration—and not so far apart as people think on the tariff and railway questions.

"The deplorable fiasco at Ottawa since January 6 has strengthened public dissatisfaction with the present heads of the country's political groups. It has done more; it has made Canadians lose faith in our present parliamentary system; a system that enables a hybrid majority to rule after clear defeat.

"There is only one compensating gleam of silver. Every day that Parliament wrangles sees nails driven in some important political coffins. Every day of cheap political controversy and insane speech-making adds to the exasperation of the public. Canada is beginning to anger. There is a rising flood of public disapproval that threatens to sweep many of our so-called national leaders into eternal discard. Let the self-impressed heads of our political organisms beware; the hands that cast the ballots are arming for a political massacre. Give Canada but one man, or one idea; or one group to fire public imagination and the men who are now making the House of Commons a horrible example of parliamentary government as its worst will find themselves washed up on a cruel, lonesome shore.

"Needed today is a spirit of self-sacrifice in public affairs. The old dictum that the first duty of a Government is to hold office needs considerable revision. The first duty of a Government at this time of crisis is either to lead—lead firmly and well—or give the people a chance to elect a leader and Government that will. But there is no evidence that public welfare is held by many members above personal position—and even personal profit.

"Such a spirit of sacrifice—such a willingness to sink self beneath country to bring about a situation that will enable public needs in legislation to be met is necessary—as necessary as it is now absent.

"The present deadlock is an interesting academic study for the student of constitutional procedure. It is a rare treat for the cartoonist and paragrapher. But it is a maddening and grim reality to business men and the country generally.

"Let us start all over again. We have had our election and failed to get what we wanted. There is now one thing left to do—try again NOW.

"Canada must have another election soon. Let us have it now and get to work."

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

AGAIN, THOSE "ELMS".

Throug a typographical error in Thursday's paper reference was made to "Citizen's" saying the trees were 150 feet high. Citizen, and the writer of Thtursday's letter, wrote "100 feet." EDITOR.

The intensive methods applied by Americans to business have resulted in jaded nervous systems that demand a return to natural conditions, at least for a time, if a national American nervous breakdown is to be averted. The reduction by Americans of business to a science has involved the reduction of flesh and blood to the same exact and exacting condition as part of the machinery. But flesh and blood are not parts of a machine or scientific system and cannot stand such treatment. Americans are paying the penalty of their amazing commercial success. It has been too great and too exacting for their nervous systems. Hence as we see they are pushing far into remote spots in the wilderness wherever possible in order to get back as far as possible to nature's own methods which alone can restore broken nervous systems to peace and happiness. So far this back-to-nature movement has been confined largely to the summer holiday time when excessive heat makes life in the hot zones almost unendurable. But the time is coming and coming rapidly for the reasons I have given when the winter season will be just as popular in our northern clime. As shown by the fall of many waters our northern townships in the counties of Peterborough, Haliburton, &c., clear back to the divide separating us from Algonquin Park are highlands, lands much higher than those on and near Lake Ontario and as in the case of Lake Ketchecum in Cavendish the water itself is astonishingly pure. The waters of Lake Ketchecum, which with Gull, Gold, Eagle, &c., lakes, are 15 miles straight north of Buckhorn to the immediate right of the government motor road that runs still further north, is, by chemical analysis, found to be actually 98 per cent pure. This means an entire absence of malarial conditions in that whole region and a purity of land and water conditions equal to the purity of the air.

Cavendish is about 400 feet higher than Peterborough, hence the purity and clearness of the air is much superior. There are no hardships in a winter in this wilderness if people have a little money and lay in a stock of necessaries. The cold is not nearly so biting as in lower altitudes and roaming or working in the woods is as great a pleasure as benefit. The house or cabin should have a fireplace, for wood is plentiful and always near at hand for the chopping. As it is possible to get out or in, with some labour, it is true, sometimes, and with roads not always the best, it is possible to keep in touch with the front in case of necessity and an infrequent though regular mail adds zest and interest to what we regard as a bore at home.

The north country in lumbering days was more thickly settled than at present and Cavendish and its surrounding territories have but few inhabitants. As a consequence deer are plentiful and their enemies, the wolves, not unknown. A winter in the wilderness would recall to a pioneer the pioneering days but beyond the complete change of occupation and scene and it may also be said of the attitude of the mind there is no discomfort. With the returned vigour of mind and body there is on the other hand a comfort, a repose which eager, active business-strained people do not know. They would give a mint of money for it and as I have pointed out in the case of Americans they are doing so. They must have it or become nervous wrecks. The futur will see if Ontario people do not give way to too many silly fads and unwarranted assumptions, great numbers of our neighbours coming into our northern lands in winter as well as in summer. Their own winter-resorts in the Adirondacks, Green Mountains, White Mountains, Maine woods, &c., are filling up and a rapidly increasing United States population demands further outlets.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

TILL WE MEET AGAIN

Although my feet may never walk your ways,
No other eyes will follow you so far;
No voice rise readier to ring your praise,
Till the swift coming of those future days
When the world knows you for the man you are.

You must go on and I must stay behind.
We may not fare together, you and I,
But, though the path to Fame be steep and blind.
Walk, strong and steadfastly, before mankind,
Because my heart must follow till you die.

Steadfastly and strongly, scorning mean success.
Lenient to others — to yourself severe.
If you must fail, fail not in nobleness,
God knows all other failure I could bless
That sent you back to find your welcome here.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal
Winnipeg

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Jan. 29—Receipts of cattle at the Union Stock Yards this week were less than 6,500 head, but prices all round were easier. The weakness was first felt in export steers on Monday when bids were lowered 50c a cwt. This made the trade slow, but by the afternoon sellers were compelled to accept the cuts which ran from 35 to 50 cents a cwt. Real good steers sold at $7.80 a cwt., against $8.25 the previous week. Coarse steers were as low as $7 a cwt. The drop in export cattle was due to the bad Old Country returns and instances are cited in which bullocks have lost as much as $22 a head.

Export heifers were not as weak and the prices on these were not much changed at $7 to $7.25 a cwt. a cwt. Only a few bulls were bought for overseas and these cost probably 25 cents a cwt. lower. Butchers' cattle were dropped with the export, but the change in the good to choice butchers was limited to 25 cents a cwt. Choice handyweights made $7.50 a cwt. in spots, with a range of $7 up. Good butchers were $6.50, and mediums $5.50 to $6 a cwt. Baby beeves were reasonably steady from $7.50 to $10 a cwt. One good load of feeders for Scotland sold at $6.75, and loads of Ontario feeders under 900 lbs. each were about $6 a cwt. Three loads of 650 lb. stockers sold well at $5 a cwt.

The cow market had a bad bump this week and prices are down from 50 cents to a dollar a cwt. Three loads of 650 lb. stockers sold well at $5 a cwt.

The cow market had a bad bump this week and prices are down from 50 cents to a dollar a cwt. One packing house was out of the market all week and quite a number of cows were carried over.

Choice calves brought 14 cents and a couple of really prime calves sold at 15 cents a pound. Any good calves were 12 cents and good mediums made 11 cents a pound. Bob calves sold around 8 cents a pound.

The lamb market is half a dollar a cwt. easier, with a close of 13 1-2 to 14 cents a pound on good ewes. Sheep have held firm with choice handyweights 8 to 8 1-2 cents a pound.

Packers have tried all week to coax lower hog prices, but the selling quotation has held rigidly at $13 a cwt., f.o.b., and on Wednesday some sales were made at a dime a

'WOLVES OF THE STREETS' CAUSE MORE CONCERN IN MOSCOW THAN REAL WOLVES PROWLING WOODS

Homeless Orphans Roam Streets, Committing Small Crimes.

PRESENT PROBLEM.

Government Trying To Get Them Off the Streets Into Proper Homes.

MOSCOW, Jan. 30.—(United Press).—"Wolves of the streets", the homeless orphans of Moscow are causing here great concern simultaneous with the raids of real wolves in the outlying woods.

So serious has the crimes of the waifs become that a special organization has been created by the Government seeking to get them off the streets and into proper homes. Newspapers are also taking up subscriptions to send the children to farms where they can be under proper influences. The most spectacular outbreak of the children occurred shortly before Christmas, when 100 of them raided the booths of the central public square.

Scarcely a day passes without individual crime from this army of children who are expert in picking pockets at markets, railroad stations and other crowded centres. Meanwhile wolves starving in the unusually severe winter are reported attacking persons in the wooded districts.

BOOKKEEPING OF DEPARTMENT LAX

Judge's Comment on Provincial Secretary's Office.

TORONTO, Jan. 30 (Canadian Press)—From the time of confederation the companies branch of the provincial secretary's department has kept its books in a very unbusinesslike way. At least, this was the comment of Mr. Justice Smith at the resumption yesterday of the hearing of the appeal of E. V. Donnelly, formerly secretary in that branch, from his sentence to 14 months imprisonment for theft. The comment was evoked when J. M. McEvoy, K.C., in his argument took up the matter of 50 missing vouchers involved in transactions in 1922. Mr. McEvoy urged that the fact that Donnelly was in charge of the office was not sufficient to convict him, when it was not the custom of the office system for him to check all transactions. Mr. Justice Smith agreed that it was possible for this sum ($6,084) to be stolen by someone else without Donnelly's knowledge.

FARMERS DRAFT BASIS OF UNION AT CONVENTION

Amalgamation of Saskatchewan Grain Growers and Farmers' Union.

SEEMS ASSURED.

1,500 Delegates at Joint Meeting Display Spirit of Harmony.

SASKATOON, Sask., Jan. 30. — (Canadian Press).—Union of two great farmers' organizations was in sight last night.

The combined conventions of the Saskatchewan Grain Growers' Association and the Farmers' Union of Canada ended an epochal session here yesterday by voting strongly in favor of a proposed basis of union.

The two conventions convened separately again last night to ratify the action of the joint convention with the prospect that before the sessions had ended the amalgamation would be an accomplished fact.

The joint convention voted that the new organization should be on a provincial basis "with an interprovincial objective."

Amalgamation would settle a question which had disrupted both organizations for the past few years. The 1,500 delegates who crowded into the Convention Hall displayed a spirit of give-and-take, and while at times the debate became heated, there were no sustained demonstrations from either section.

Debate Over Scope.

The question of the scope of the new organization, whether it should be provincial, inter-provincial Dominion or world wide, proved the most contentious clause in the agreement.

Before adjournment the joint convention had approved the following outline of the new organization:

The united body was a necessity if the two organizations were to best secure the purposes for which they had been formed. (Carried unanimously).

The new body should be organized on a provincial basis with an inter-provincial objective, and should be named the United Farmers of Western Canada, Saskatchewan Section. (Carried by 3-2 vote)

Public Excluded.

The new organization should conduct its meetings behind closed doors. (Small vote against).

There shall be no inter-locking directorates. (Carried unanimously).

The fee of the new organization shall be $5 or more, for one year (Carried practically unanimously).

The new organization shall not be the recipient of subsidies from any commercial organization. (Carried unanimously).

The term of elective office in the new organization shall not exceed two years. (Small vote against).

The new organization shall be non-sectarian and non-political. (Carried unanimously).

String of Pearls.

The Grain Growers' convention departed from routine yesterday to witness the presentation of a string of pearls to Mrs. Ida McNeal, retiring president of the women's section. The presentation was made on behalf of the women.

4,000 LUTHERANS TO SETTLE IN CANADA

Coming For Western Farms This Year.

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 30. — (Canadian Press).—Four thousand Lutherans will be brought to Canada during 1926 and settled on farms in the Western Provinces, Rev. E. Schmok, of Neudorf, Sask., announced here Friday on his return from Ottawa. Mr. Schmok reported that negotiations with Government transportation officials and steamship representatives in New York and Philadelphia had been successful.

A representative of the Lutheran Immigration Board will be despatched immediately for Europe and headquarters established in Hamburg, Germany. Offices will also be installed in Winnipeg.

The immigrants will be principally drawn from the Scandinavian countries, Poland, Jugo and Czecho Slovakias, Germany and Rumania.

U. S. SENATE FAVORS TAX REDUCTIONS

Repeal of Inheritance Tax is Disputed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30. (Canadian Press).—Clearing the revenue bill of non-controversial provisions, the Senate gave tentative approval Friday to widespread tax reductions in the first reading of the measure.

Provisions approved by the House slashing the normal income tax rates, increasing the personal exemptions and repealing many of the miscellaneous taxes, were accepted without debate. Although still subject to amendment, none of these rate schedules are expected to be opened again.

Among the amendments which went over for future consideration and which are expected to furnish the basis of the fight over tax reduction in the Senate, were those proposing repeal of the inheritance tax and publicity of tax returns, reductions in the surtax rates, increase in the corporation tax and reductions in the levies on automobiles admissions and dues.

ELECTORAL CHANGE.

No Counterfoils on Quebec Ballot Papers.

QUEBEC, Que., Jan. 30 (Canadian Press) — Important amendments to the Quebec Electoral Act are proposed in the measure which Hon. L. A. Taschereau will lay before the Legislature shortly.

The bill will do away with the counterfoil on the ballot papers. Another important amendment affects successful candidates. They are obliged at present to publish a statement of their expenses. This will be done away with in the general interest of truth and honesty.

WIFE'S STATEMENT IS CONTRADICTED

At Preliminary Hearing of Murder Charge.

SASKATOON, Sask., Jan. 30. — (Canadian Press). — Statements made to police and to the inquest by Mrs. Laura Johnson, charged with the murder of her husband here on Christmas night, that the latter had never left their home all day Christmas up to the time of the mysterious attack on him, were contradicted at the preliminary hearing here on Friday by B. J. Clarke, a C.N.R. fireman, who said that he had been with Johnson down town for some time on Christmas afternoon.

The morning session, which marked the third day of the preliminary hearing, was enlivened by a quarrel between Police Chief G. M. Donald and A. E. Bence, Mrs Johnson's counsel. Chief Donald resented Mr. Bence's suggestion that he was not a truthful witness.

OLD AGE PENSIONS ARE SATISFACTORY

Government's Bill is Approved By Two Labor Members.

OTTAWA, Jan. 30.—(Canadian Press)—Satisfaction with tentative proposals for the Government's old age pensions bill was expressed by both labor members of parliament on the ground that it was the first step in the direction of federal participation in much-needed relief. There are a number of things which the labor members will probably suggest as additions to the bill when it is before the House, but in the main they are anxious to get the movement started and will support the bill.

J. S. Woodsworth, Winnipeg North Centre, pointed out that a good feature of the bill was that it did not depend, as did former attempts at old age pension legislation, on the concurrence of all provinces but will pave the way for participation by any of provinces in the future.

MURDER TRIAL BY PRESS CENSURED

Evidence First Given To Edmonton Papers.

EDMONTON, Alta., Jan. 30 (Canadian Press)—Objecting that the murder of Jacob Milner was being tried in the newspapers before evidence was given in court, Gordon Winkler, attorney for Nick Hawryluk, one of the accused youths, made an application in police court yester for an investigation as to how evidence first came to be handed to newspapers. He also stated that he might apply for a change of venue of the trial. The other youth held in connection with the crime is Archie Killips.

Magistrate D. Primrose promised that any alleged confessions published by a newspaper and tendered in court as evidence would not be received by him, but he could not help any in the way of an investigation.

Asked later by The Journal what papers he referred to, Mr. Winkler said he did not have in mind The Journal.

HASTINGS REEVE WANTS PAVING

Wishes Grant From Counties For 20 Foot Strip.

COMMITTEE NAMED.

(By a Staff Reporter)

COBOURG, Jan. 29—Reeve Hess of Hastings is still set in his plan to have the streets of that village permanently improved. He arranged Thursday for a meeting of road officials to be held in Hastings at a later day to look over the situation and arrange the important matter of a grant. The officials who will meet are Engineer James of Toronto, County Superintendent Greer, General Chairman Bedal and Deputy Reeve Wight of the Counties Council committee on roads and briges, Warden McCubbin, and a Government representative. This meeting will prepare a report on the situation in Hastings to be laid before the Counties Council at the June Sessions.

The present prospect is that Hastings will be given a grant sufficient to defray the entire cost of paving 2 feet in the centre of the streets which form a connecting link in the good roads system.

TWO YOUNG MEN SIT IN COUNCIL

R. L. Drope, of Hamilton Township, Is 27—His First Term.

FOLLOWS FATHER.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

COBOURG, Jan. 29. — R. L. Drope, of Harwood, deputy-reeve of Hamilton township, who is serving his first term in the Counties Council, is at 27 years of age, the youngest member of that body and one of the youngest ever elected. Since his youth, Dr. Drope appears to have been precocious. At the age of 17 he was fighting in the front trenches in Flanders, and when only 22 he was elected to the Hamilton council.

A Son of His Father.

The late Fred Peake, of Seymour, went to the Counties Council when only 25 years old, setting a record. He made another record in 1908 when he was elected Warden by acclamation. His son, Russel Peake, is following in the footsteps of his distinguished father and now, serving his second year as deputy-reeve for Seymour, is regarded as a coming man. At the present session he has been made secretary of the county property committee, commissioner of two bridges, one at Allan's Mills and the other at Crow Landing, and was appointed to one of the most desirable positions, member of the Management committee.

STRICKEN AT DANCE.

Admiral Troubridge Dies at Biarritz.

BIARRITZ, France, Jan. 30 (Canadian Press)—Admiral Sir Ernest Troubridge, who held several assignments in the British Navy during the World War, died of heart failure here Thursday night. He was stricken while dancing. Admiral Troubridge headed the British naval mission to Serbia in 1915 and commanded the allied flotillas on the Danube in 1918.

This Lassie Has Her Colds "Rubbed Away"

The mother of this attractive little girl, Mrs. E. E. Emmans, of 215 Seventh Ave., N. E., Portage La Prairie, Man., is one of the many Canadian mothers who are enthusiastic about the vaporizing salve, Vicks VapoRub, for treating children's colds. Mrs. Emmans writes: "My little girl had croup at night pretty badly and Vicks did her a lot of good. I have also used it with very satisfactory results for head and chest colds."

Vicks is just "rubbed on" for sore throat, tonsilitis, bronchitis, croup or deep chest colds. When so applied, Vicks has a double direct action: internally medicated vapors are inhaled while, at the same time, externally, it is absorbed through and stimulates the skin.

VOTE WILL BE TAKEN MONDAY

If Decision Made By Party Whips Is Not Altered.

ON AMENDMENT.

OTTAWA, Jan. 29 (Canadian Press).—The vote on the Meighen amendment to the address will be taken Monday, if present plans are not altered. Hon. J. A. Robb, leading the House at adjournment last night in the absence of the Hon. Ernest Lapointe, stated that it was the intention of the Government to have the division on Monday.

The decision had resulted from the conference of party whips.

Outside the House, however, it is being stated that the vote will not come until Tuesday.

A number of Progressives and Liberals are said to be determined to speak.

Premier King is likely to be in the House before the address is disposed of.

NEW CLUE FOUND MAY SOLVE CRIME

Mystery Slaying Development Expected To Follow Sensational Discovery.

GRAFTON, Ill., Jan. 30.—(By N.F.A.).—A new clue has been discovered in the mystery case surrounding the death of Henry Rand. A yellow theatre ticket stub was shaken from the bed clothes by a reporter, and it is expected to lead to the apprehension of the slayer.

Facsimiles of the stub are being broadcast in hope that it may be recognized. There is no name of city or town, and there are believed to be many Paragon theatres. This is the facsimile:

Anyone able to throw light on the mystery, and those wishing to read the complete story of the mystery, are requested to turn to page 6.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat trouble. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchical asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or 'flu.

Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

CHAPTER I

HENRY RAND glanced up from the neat little array of papers on the desk in front of him, and coughed.

It was a gentle sort of cough. A quiet, almost orderly little cough, quite in keeping with Henry Rand and his immediate surroundings.

At its sound the stenographer half-way across the room halted in her typing and picked up her notebook. Whenever Henry Rand coughed Miss Fry knew she was to take more dictation.

"Miss Fry, bring your pencil, please."

"Yes, Mr. Rand."

Miss Fry seated beside him, Henry Rand leaned back in his swivel chair, took off his spectacles and polished them carefully with his handkerchief. Then he as carefully replaced them, clasped his hands with the tips of his thumbs and forefingers together and reflectively studied the ceiling.

"Take a letter, Miss Fry, to Mrs. Philip A. Ward—the address is on this report. Dear Madam:"

Henry Rand paused and cleared his throat. "Ahem." Like the cough, it was delivered quietly and without ostentation. Miss Fry, recognizing it as part of the ritual of dictation to which she was a party a dozen or more times a day, smothered a yawn and poised her pencil over her notebook.

"Dear Madam: We are pleased to inform you that we are extending you the convenience of a charge account."

"Fotm A," murmured Miss Fry, almost inaudibly.

"Did you say something, Miss Fry?"

Miss Fry blushed. "I was just repeating, Mr. Rand."

"Oh. All right. Ahem. Please be assured that Royal Brothers consider it a privilege to receive the favor of your patronage. We hope you will find the occasion to make frequent use of your account."

Henry Rand cleared his throat again. "Ahem. Let me see, Miss Fry. Read that last sentence again."

Miss Fry, without glancing at her notes, smilingly recited: "We hope you will find the occasion to make frequent use of your account."

"That's right, Miss Fry. Just close it respectfully yours. That's all! By the way, does something amuse you?"

"Oh no, sir. I was just wondering," she paused in the act of gathering up her notebook, "I was just wondering whether—do you mind if I make a suggestion?"

"Certainly not. Glad to have you. What is it?"

Miss Fry's smile had vanished. She blushed and studied the floor.

"Well, it's in regard to dictation. I believe there's a way for you to save a lot of your time—and mine, too."

"Ah, indeed. And what is this plan?" Henry Rand smiled benignly on his stenographer and again clasped his hands with the thumb and forefinger tips together.

"Well, a good bit of your dictation could be done away with if you'd adopt form letters. For instance, I regard the letter you just dictated as Form A. You use Form A whenever you tell somebody their application or credit has been O.K'd. When you turn them down, it's Form B. When somebody is overdue you send them Form C, and so on."

"I see." Henry Rand unclasped his fingers and picked up a pencil with which he drummed on his chair arm. "And when Form C fails of results the follow-up letter is Form D. And when we notify them of our intention to turn the matter over to our attorneys unless we receive payment within ten days—that, I take it, is Form E. Is that right?"

"Yes, sir."

"And you would have these letters mimeographed, with spaces left for names?"

"Oh no, sir. I would type each one, but instead of dictating, you could just tell me you wanted me to write Form A or Form B."

With his left hand Henry Rand smoothed the gray hair around the little bald spot on his crown. The pencil stopped drumming.

"How long have you been here, Miss Fry?"

"About two years, Mr. Rand."

"Two years. Well, Miss Fry, I have been with this department store for thirty years and ten of them I have spent as manager of the credit department. I have been dictating letters just like that for ten years and I see no good reason for stopping now."

Mary Lowell

"I'm sorry, Mr. Rand."

"No need to be." He waved his hand magnanimously. "Your plan is perhaps more efficient, but I prefer to keep the personal touch in my correspondence."

Miss Fry departed. After finishing the letter already in her typewriter she inserted fresh paper and, without glancing at her notes other than to verify name and address, she very swiftly and accurately finished Henry Rand's most recent letter.

This done, she laid her letters in a neat little pile on Rand's desk for his signature. The office clock told her it was ten minutes to five. She opened a drawer in her desk, drew a vanity case out of her bag and left the room.

. . . In the washroom, between dabs with the lipstick, she addressed her neighbor:

"Gee, Edna, I think Mr. Rand is awfully old-fashioned. But just the same, I think he's an old peach."

Emerging from the Royal Brothers' store, Henry Rand paused long enough to buy a newspaper and then walked over to the street car stop. There he waited.

He was hardly a figure to command attention in a crowd. A little under medium height; bulkily built; round, ruddy face. An overcoat of a neutral brown shade protected him from the brisk wind; a black derby hat sat evenly on his small head.

A street car groaned to a stop. Henry Rand hustled over to it, limping noticeably with his left leg. Inside, he glanced at the front page headlines, skipping over a sensationally played divorce, and turned promptly to the editorial page.

When he got off, half an hour later, he thrust the folded paper in his overcoat pocket and set off briskly down the street. He threw his chest out, tilted his head back and inhaled deeply. Then he exhaled very slowly. Henry Rand was indulging in his daily bid for health.

Three blocks from the car line he turned off the sidewalk in front of a little white house of "Dutch Colonial" design. A walk made of planks some two feet in width marred the appearance of an otherwise perfect lawn and contrasted sharply with the neat cement walks of his next door neighbors. As he opened the front door he pulled out his watch.

"Right on time, Martha," he announced as he hung hat and coat in the closet off the vestibule. He limped into the kitchen. "Quarter to six," he proclaimed. "Old Reliable himself."

"Just chase yourself out of the kitchen, Henry Rand. You're in the way." Martha Rand was stooping before the gas oven, basting a roast. She kept right on, without once turning her head.

Henry Rand bent over and kissed her on the ear. It disarranged her neatly arranged hair, sandy colored but streaked here and there with gray.

"Where's Janet?" heasked.

"She's in the dining-room setting the table, or was a few minutes ago. Don't bother me."

The sound of a piano, well played, came from the living-room.

"She's probably forgotten to set the table," grumbled Henry Rand's wife. "I suppose I'll have to do it myself."

Henry Rand had walked into the dining-room. "No such thing," he called back. "The table's all set. My dear, you'd do well to have a little more confidence in the members of your family."

He walked through the wide doorway between dining and living rooms. The girl at the piano looked up to receive his paternal kiss. "Hello, Dad."

"Evenin', Janet, what's this you're playing? MacDowell's Woodland Sketches? Something new? Sounds like good stuff."

His daughter rose from the piano bench to take off the apron that covered her dress. When she stood, her gray eyes, set wide apart, were quite on a level with her father's. Her dark brown hair was bobbed and curly, her face quite devoid of color except for the redness of her lips. Her straight nose enhanced the seriousness of her face.

She smiled. "Yes, it is well thought of, and quite difficult to play, if you ask me."

Henry Rand patted her shoulder. "Nothing's too difficult for you, honey. Schubert, Lizst, Rachmaninoff—even this guy, what's his name?"

"I hope you're not referring to Brahms, Dad."

"That's the bird."

She made a mock curtsy. "Thank you, kind sir. Suppose you study MacDowell while I help mother."

"Jimmy home yet?" he called after her.

"Nope."

The front door banged shut. "I am, too," came a loud voice from the hall. "Dinner ready?"

"You'll wash your face and hands before you sit down to the table, James Rand." It was Martha calling from the kitchen.

"How old do you think I am, Mother, seven?" A tall, broad-shouldered young man, gray-eyed and straight-nosed as his sister, leaped into the kitchen, seized his mother in his arms and kissed her. He ducked to avoid her slap, and plumped into Janet, who seized him by the hair.

"Cut it out, Sis, or I'll muss your permanent wave." He ran past her, shouted a greeting at his father and dashed up the stairs.

In the bath room he divested himself of his shirt and diligently scrubbed his face and hands. The athletic-cut underwear revealed slim but powerfully muscled arms. His face dried, he rubbed his fingers experimentally over his lean jaw, and fingered a close-cropped brown mustache.

"Good enough," he remarked. Retreating to his bed room he carefully combed and brushed his hair, parting it on the side. Like his sister's, his hair was brown, but it was quite straight and came down on the forehead in a "widow's peak."

By the time he had put on a clean shirt dinner was on the table and the rest of the Rand family waiting.

Henry Rand, with a preliminary "ahem," said grace. He said it rather pompously, in a slow, measured voice, hanging on each syllable as if he were reluctant to finish.

"Well, I see the sheik is all slicked up." Janet, turning toward her brother, made a gesture as if she were smoothing down her hair.

"Don't be young, Miss Rand," retorted Jimmy.

"If the young man would time his arrival a few minutes earlier," remarked Henry Rand, "he wouldn't have to break his neck to clean up in time for dinner."

"Oh you and your punctuality," retorted Jimmy, his mouth filled with baked potato.

"Punctuality," answered the elder Rand, "is a virtue. I have never been late for work in my life, except on the few occasions when the street cars were tied up. Eighty-thirty finds me at my desk. And quarter to six finds me home. I like dinner served at six, and whoever is late should go hungry."

"Twenty-nine years of it," observed Mrs. Rand. A fleeting smile lighted up her sharp features. She turned her pale blue eyes toward Jimmy. "I sometimes wonder what form of murder your father would commit on me if I happened to be late with his dinner."

"Twenty-nine years, eh," mused Jimmy. "And I hope you haven't forgotten that memorable day 27 years ago tomorrow."

The elder Rand paused in the act of buttering a piece of bread. "Your birthday, to be sure. My, how time does fly! Twenty-seven years ago tomorrow, my son, you came into the world a squalling, red-faced——"

Jimmy threw up his hands in mock horror. "Spare the horrible details, dad. I've heard all this for the last 15 years that I know of."

"And 30 years ago tomorrow," resumed Henry Rand, "I first went to work for Royal Brothers. I'm getting old." He smoothed his bald spot. His gray eyes—they were Jimmy's and Janet's eyes—twinkled merrily behind his spectacles. "I started in men's furnishings."

Henry Rand laid down his knife. "They still remember around the store how I used to linger lovingly over the socks and ties and shirts that I sold. They tell me that I almost hated to turn them over to a customer."

"They would call that sales psychology today," cut in Jimmy. "In the automobile game, for instance, that sort of stuff would come under the chapter heading that describes the creating in the mind of the customer of the desire to buy."

"There was no such thing as psychology then," went on Henry Rand. "The word was unknown. But they tell me I was a pretty good salesman. I used to put in as much effort on the sale of a 15-cent handkerchief as I did in selling a suit of clothes."

"That's where you were wrong, dad. That shows you didn't have the proper sense of values. Do you suppose I'd work as hard to sell one of our four-cylinder jobs as I would to put over a Manchester eight-in-line?"

"You should, absolutely."

"Not on your life, dad. When I sell a big one I clean up several hundred dollars. The commission on the other is only about a fourth. Tell me, would you work as hard for three thousand a year as you would for ten?"

"Stop your eternal arguing," cut in Mrs. Rand. She turned to Jimmy. "You and your father are at it from morning till night and neither one ever admits the other is right."

She sighed. "I suppose you inherit your father's obstinacy."

"The discussion has gone far enough anyway," chimed in Janet. "What kind of a party do you intend to celebrate with, Jimmy?"

"Oh, I almost forgot," her brother answered. "I've got tickets for a show. We'll all have dinner here and go down town in a gang."

"You old sport," laughed Janet. "What theater?"

"None of your business. And I've got a ticket for Barry, too. I suppose you'll have no trouble dragging the young man along?"

Janet blushed.

"Barry Colvin," observed the elder Rand with emphasis, "is a mighty fine young man." He lighted a cigar.

"Who said he wasn't?" retorted Jimmy.

"I think he's very ambitious. He will make a name for himself as a lawyer. You mark my words." Mrs. Rand's mouth set in a firm straight line as she spoke.

"If I were as sure Jimmy would pick as nice a girl to marry as Janet has a man, I'd be satisfied." Henry Rand spoke with the heavy air of a judge.

"You let James be," snapped his wife. She lowered her head to stare down at her napkin. "James will be getting married soon enough without any encouragement from you." There were tears in her eyes. They came so easily to her.

Jimmy rose. He walked over to his mother and patted her shoulder. "Not a chance, mother. Not a chance. I'm sticking by you till we're on easy street."

"Get here quick," said the voice in Jimmy's ear. Your father has just been found dead in a room!"

Olga Maynard

He lit a cigaret and strolled into the living room. "A little music, Sis," he commanded. "Let's see what we've been spending good money on lessons for."

"When I've finished helping mother with the dishes," Janet agreed.

Henry Rand and his son found comfortable chairs in the living room. The elder Rand was enjoying the third of his three cigars a day, lingering over it like an epicure.

"How's business, Jimmy?"

Jimmy extinguished his cigaret. "I sold a car today. I'm flush."

"Good. Did you bank the money?"

"Absolutely. Kept out enough for board and spending change. The rest is salted in the old sock."

"Thrift," observed his father, "is a great virtue."

"Like punctuality, eh?" laughed Jimmy. "Quit talking platitudes, dad. Do you know what I wish you'd let me do with some of my heavy roll?"

"No. What?"

"I wish you'd let me rip out that old board walk in front and put in a cement walk. I caught my shoe in it this evening coming in. Some day I'll break a leg. Besides, it looks like the devil."

"If you can make him do that, James," called Martha Rand from the dining room, "you'll be doing more than I've been able to do."

"The board walk stays." Henry Rand spoke positively. "It may not be scrumptious to look at but it suits my old-fashioned notions. I like it."

The doorbell rang. Jimmy walked to the hall and flung open the door.

"Attorney Colvin himself," laughed Jimmy as he ushered in the visitor.

"Good evenin', Jimes," retorted Barry Colvin. He entered the living room. "Good evening, Mr. Rand."

He stood erect without his overcoat, a stocky, well-knit figure with curly black hair parted in the middle. His nose was of the pug variety. His lips were parted in a broad grin that showed flashing white teeth.

He stood framed in the doorway between living and dining room to greet Mrs. Rand and Janet. "We'll be finished in just a minute, Barry," called Janet.

Barry Colvin accepted the chair offered by Jimmy. "How's the law business, Barry?" asked Henry Rand.

"Fair, thanks, Mr. Rand. It's quite a pull getting started but I suppose I oughtn't to complain."

"It takes a lot of work to get started right in anything, Barry," observed Jimmy.

"Hard work never hurt anyone," put in his father. "I've certainly had plenty of it."

It was exactly five o'clock on his twenty-seventh birthday when Jimmy Rand looked at his watch, walked into the manager's office of the Manchester Auto Sales Company and decided to call it a day.

"See you in the morning, Mr. Train. I'm celebrating my birthday by being punctual for dinner tonight."

The manager turned his head away from his work. "Admirable of you, Rand. I hope the folks won't get heart failure."

"They're apt to, at that," laughed Jimmy. "There's no telling how some people will react to violent shocks. It's nice of you to let me use the demonstrator tonight, too, Mr. Train."

"Not at all, Rand. It would be pretty hard to squeeze five into your roadster."

Jimmy climbed into the "demonstrator," a handsome sedan. The starter whirred. He shifted gears expertly and was off.

It was precisely five-forty when he entered the Rand home to find his mother and Janet busy in the kitchen.

Lieut. O'Day

"For once," he announced triumphantly after greeting his mother and pinching Janet's cheek, "I've beaten dad home for dinner."

"I suppose that's what brought this miserable rain," observed Janet sarcastically.

Jimmy strode to the front windows. Outside it was almost completely dark. A cold November rain was falling, whipped by a strong wind that stung to the very bones.

"Not exactly cheerful weather to celebrate the twenty-seventh anniversary of the advent of the well-known Mr. James Rand," he remarked. He went back to the kitchen. "Quarter to six and after, mother. Where's the punctual Mr. Rand this evening? You remember he said those who were late should go hungry."

Footsteps were heard outside the front door. "That's your father now, maybe," hazarded Mrs. Rand. The doorbell rang. "No, it must be Barry."

It was Barry Colvin. Jimmy took his hat and coat. "Just in time for dinner, Barry, but dad's late. Can you beat it?"

"There must have been at least four street cars derailed, then," laughed Barry. "Either that or an earthquake."

Mrs. Rand called from the kitchen. "James, will you come here a moment."

"Sure, what is it?" He was there on the run.

"Do you suppose anything could have happened to your father? Traffic is real heavy now and he might have been knocked down by an automobile."

"Not a chance, mother. He most likely is caught in a street car tieup. This weather is enough to cause a lot of them."

Mrs. Rand went to the kitchen window and peered out. It was quite dark. From the living room came the strains of Rachmaninoff's Prelude, Jimmy's and Barry's favorite. Barry and Janet were there together. The window panes rattled with the sudden gust of wind.

"What time is it, James?" Mrs. Rand's manner was agitated as she kept opening the oven door to look at the roast chicken which was long since cooked and which she was keeping warm.

Jimmy glanced at his watch. "Six-thirty. Gosh, that's not late, mother. He'll be here any minute now."

"I wish you'd call the store, James."

"All right, I will, but I hardly think he's there." He went to the hall. Before he could pick up the receiver the phone bell rang.

"Hello," he said, sharply.

"Hello," came the voice over the phone, a man's brusque voice, "is this the home of Henry Rand?"

"Yes."

"Who is this speaking?"

"James Rand, his son."

"Well, this is a police officer speaking from the Canfield Hotel. Get here quick. Your father has just been found dead in a room."

"Yes, Mr. Rand."

Miss Fry seated beside him, Henry Rand leaned back in his swivel chair, took off his spectacles and polished them carefully with his handkerchief. Then he as carefully replaced them, clasped his hands with the tips of his thumbs and forefingers together and reflectively studied the ceiling.

"Take a letter, Miss Fry, to Mrs. Philip A. Ward—the address is on this report. Dear Madam:"

Henry Rand paused and cleared his throat. "Ahem." Like the cough, it was delivered quietly and without ostentation. Miss Fry, recognizing it as part of the ritual of dictation to which she was a party a dozen or more times a day, smothered a yawn and poised her pencil over her notebook.

"Dear Madam: We are pleased to inform you that we are extending you the convenience of a charge account."

"Fotm A," murmured Miss Fry, almost inaudibly.

"Did you say something, Miss Fry?"

Miss Fry blushed. "I was just repeating, Mr. Rand."

"Oh. All right. Ahem. Please be assured that Royal Brothers consider it a privilege to receive the favor of your patronage. We hope you will find the occasion to make frequent use of your account."

Henry Rand cleared his throat again. "Ahem. Let me see, Miss Fry. Read that last sentence again."

Miss Fry, without glancing at her notes, smilingly recited: "We hope you will find the occasion to make frequent use of your account."

"That's right, Miss Fry. Just close it respectfully yours. That's all! By the way, does something amuse you?"

"Oh no, sir. I was just wondering," she paused in the act of gathering up her notebook, "I was just wondering whether—do you mind if I make a suggestion?"

"Certainly not. Glad to have you. What is it?"

Miss Fry's smile had vanished. She blushed and studied the floor.

"Well, it's in regard to dictation. I believe there's a way for you to save a lot of your time—and mine, too."

"Ah, indeed. And what is this plan?" Henry Rand smiled benignly on his stenographer and again clasped his hands with the thumb and forefinger tips together.

"Well, a good bit of your dictation could be done away with if you'd adopt form letters. For instance, I regard the letter you just dictated as Form A. You use Form A whenever you tell somebody their application or credit has been O.K'd. When you turn them down, it's Form B. When somebody is overdue you send them Form C, and so on."

"I see." Henry Rand unclasped his fingers and picked up a pencil with which he drummed on his chair arm. "And when Form C fails of results the follow-up letter is Form D. And when we notify them of our intention to turn the matter over to our attorneys unless we receive payment within ten days—that, I take it, is Form E. Is that right?"

"Yes, sir."

"And you would have these letters mimeographed, with spaces left for names?"

"Oh no, sir. I would type each one, but instead of dictating, you could just tell me you wanted me to write Form A or Form B."

With his left hand Henry Rand smoothed the gray hair around the little bald spot on his crown. The pencil stopped drumming.

"How long have you been here, Miss Fry?"

"About two years, Mr. Rand."

"Two years. Well, Miss Fry, I have been with this department store for thirty years and ten of them I have spent as manager of the credit department. I have been dictating letters just like that for ten years and I see no good reason for stopping now."

Mary Lowell

"I'm sorry, Mr. Rand."

"No need to be." He waved his hand magnanimously. "Your plan is perhaps more efficient, but I prefer to keep the personal touch in my correspondence."

Miss Fry departed. After finishing the letter already in her typewriter she inserted fresh paper and, without glancing at her notes other than to verify name and address, she very swiftly and accurately finished Henry Rand's most recent letter.

This done, she laid her letters in a neat little pile on Rand's desk for his signature. The office clock told her it was ten minutes to five. She opened a drawer in her desk, drew a vanity case out of her bag and left the room.

. . . In the washroom, between dabs with the lipstick, she addressed her neighbor:

"Gee, Edna, I think Mr. Rand is awfully old-fashioned. But just the same, I think he's an old peach."

Emerging from the Royal Brothers' store, Henry Rand paused long enough to buy a newspaper and then walked over to the street car stop. There he waited.

He was hardly a figure to command attention in a crowd. A little under medium height; bulkily built; round, ruddy face. An overcoat of a neutral brown shade protected him from the brisk wind; a black derby hat sat evenly on his small head.

A street car groaned to a stop. Henry Rand hustled over to it, limping noticeably with his left leg. Inside, he glanced at the front page headlines, skipping over a sensationally played divorce, and turned promptly to the editorial page.

When he got off, half an hour later, he thrust the folded paper in his overcoat pocket and set off briskly down the street. He threw his chest out, tilted his head back and inhaled deeply. Then he exhaled very slowly. Henry Rand was indulging in his daily bid for health.

Three blocks from the car line he turned off the sidewalk in front of a little white house of "Dutch Colonial" design. A walk made of planks some two feet in width marred the appearance of an otherwise perfect lawn and contrasted sharply with the neat cement walks of his next door neighbors. As he opened the front door he pulled out his watch.

"Right on time, Martha," he announced as he hung hat and coat in the closet off the vestibule. He limped into the kitchen. "Quarter to six," he proclaimed. "Old Reliable himself."

"Just chase yourself out of the kitchen, Henry Rand. You're in the way." Martha Rand was stooping before the gas oven, basting a roast. She kept right on, without once turning her head.

Henry Rand bent over and kissed her on the ear. It disarranged her neatly arranged hair, sandy colored but streaked here and there with gray.

"Where's Janet?" heasked.

"She's in the dining-room setting the table, or was a few minutes ago. Don't bother me."

The sound of a piano, well played, came from the living-room.

"She's probably forgotten to set the table," grumbled Henry Rand's wife. "I suppose I'll have to do it myself."

Henry Rand had walked into the dining-room. "No such thing," he called back. "The table's all set. My dear, you'd do well to have a little more confidence in the members of your family."

He walked through the wide doorway between dining and living rooms. The girl at the piano looked up to receive his paternal kiss. "Hello, Dad."

"Evenin', Janet, what's this you're playing? MacDowell's Woodland Sketches? Something new? Sounds like good stuff."

His daughter rose from the piano bench to take off the apron that covered her dress. When she stood, her gray eyes, set wide apart, were quite on a level with her father's. Her dark brown hair was bobbed and curly, her face quite devoid of color except for the redness of her lips. Her straight nose enhanced the seriousness of her face.

She smiled. "Yes, it is well thought of, and quite difficult to play, if you ask me."

Henry Rand patted her shoulder. "Nothing's too difficult for you, honey. Schubert, Lizst, Rachmaninoff—even this guy, what's his name?"

"I hope you're not referring to Brahms, Dad."

"That's the bird."

She made a mock curtsy. "Thank you, kind sir. Suppose you study MacDowell while I help mother."

"Jimmy home yet?" he called after her.

"Nope."

The front door banged shut. "I am, too," came a loud voice from the hall. "Dinner ready?"

"You'll wash your face and hands before you sit down to the table, James Rand." It was Martha calling from the kitchen.

"How old do you think I am, Mother, seven?" A tall, broad-shouldered young man, gray-eyed and straight-nosed as his sister, leaped into the kitchen, seized his mother in his arms and kissed her. He ducked to avoid her slap, and plumped into Janet, who seized him by the hair.

"Cut it out, Sis, or I'll muss your permanent wave." He ran past her, shouted a greeting at his father and dashed up the stairs.

In the bath room he divested himself of his shirt and diligently scrubbed his face and hands. The athletic-cut underwear revealed slim but powerfully muscled arms. His face dried, he rubbed his fingers experimentally over his lean jaw, and fingered a close-cropped brown mustache.

"Good enough," he remarked. Retreating to his bed room he carefully combed and brushed his hair, parting it on the side. Like his sister's, his hair was brown, but it was quite straight and came down on the forehead in a "widow's peak."

By the time he had put on a clean shirt dinner was on the table and the rest of the Rand family waiting.

Henry Rand, with a preliminary "ahem," said grace. He said it rather pompously, in a slow, measured voice, hanging on each syllable as if he were reluctant to finish.

"Well, I see the sheik is all slicked up." Janet, turning toward her brother, made a gesture as if she were smoothing down her hair.

"Don't be young, Miss Rand," retorted Jimmy.

"If the young man would time his arrival a few minutes earlier," remarked Henry Rand, "he wouldn't have to break his neck to clean up in time for dinner."

"Oh you and your punctuality," retorted Jimmy, his mouth filled with baked potato.

"Punctuality," answered the elder Rand, "is a virtue. I have never been late for work in my life, except on the few occasions when the street cars were tied up. Eighty-thirty finds me at my desk. And quarter to six finds me home. I like dinner served at six, and whoever is late should go hungry."

"Twenty-nine years of it," observed Mrs. Rand. A fleeting smile lighted up her sharp features. She turned her pale blue eyes toward Jimmy. "I sometimes wonder what form of murder your father would commit on me if I happened to be late with his dinner."

"Twenty-nine years, eh," mused Jimmy. "And I hope you haven't forgotten that memorable day 27 years ago tomorrow."

The elder Rand paused in the act of buttering a piece of bread. "Your birthday, to be sure. My, how time does fly! Twenty-seven years ago tomorrow, my son, you came into the world a squalling, red-faced——"

Jimmy threw up his hands in mock horror. "Spare the horrible details, dad. I've heard all this for the last 15 years that I know of."

"And 30 years ago tomorrow," resumed Henry Rand, "I first went to work for Royal Brothers. I'm getting old." He smoothed his bald spot. His gray eyes—they were Jimmy's and Janet's eyes—twinkled merrily behind his spectacles. "I started in men's furnishings."

Henry Rand laid down his knife. "They still remember around the store how I used to linger lovingly over the socks and ties and shirts that I sold. They tell me that I almost hated to turn them over to a customer."

"They would call that sales psychology today," cut in Jimmy. "In the automobile game, for instance, that sort of stuff would come under the chapter heading that describes the creating in the mind of the customer of the desire to buy."

"There was no such thing as psychology then," went on Henry Rand. "The word was unknown. But they tell me I was a pretty good salesman. I used to put in as much effort on the sale of a 15-cent handkerchief as I did in selling a suit of clothes."

"That's where you were wrong, dad. That shows you didn't have the proper sense of values. Do you suppose I'd work as hard to sell one of our four-cylinder jobs as I would to put over a Manchester eight-in-line?"

"You should, absolutely."

"Not on your life, dad. When I sell a big one I clean up several hundred dollars. The commission on the other is only about a fourth. Tell me, would you work as hard for three thousand a year as you would for ten?"

"Stop your eternal arguing," cut in Mrs. Rand. She turned to Jimmy. "You and your father are at it from morning till night and neither one ever admits the other is right."

She sighed. "I suppose you inherit your father's obstinacy."

"The discussion has gone far enough anyway," chimed in Janet. "What kind of a party do you intend to celebrate with, Jimmy?"

"Oh, I almost forgot," her brother answered. "I've got tickets for a show. We'll all have dinner here and go down town in a gang."

"You old sport," laughed Janet. "What theater?"

"None of your business. And I've got a ticket for Barry, too. I suppose you'll have no trouble dragging the young man along?"

Janet blushed.

"Barry Colvin," observed the elder Rand with emphasis, "is a mighty fine young man." He lighted a cigar.

"Who said he wasn't?" retorted Jimmy.

"I think he's very ambitious. He will make a name for himself as a lawyer. You mark my words." Mrs. Rand's mouth set in a firm straight line as she spoke.

"If I were as sure Jimmy would pick as nice a girl to marry as Janet has a man, I'd be satisfied." Henry Rand spoke with the heavy air of a judge.

"You let James be," snapped his wife. She lowered her head to stare down at her napkin. "James will be getting married soon enough without any encouragement from you." There were tears in her eyes. They came so easily to her.

Jimmy rose. He walked over to his mother and patted her shoulder. "Not a chance, mother. Not a chance. I'm sticking by you till we're on easy street."

Olga Maynard

He lit a cigaret and strolled into the living room. "A little music, Sis," he commanded. "Let's see what we've been spending good money on lessons for."

"When I've finished helping mother with the dishes," Janet agreed.

Henry Rand and his son found comfortable chairs in the living room. The elder Rand was enjoying the third of his three cigars a day, lingering over it like an epicure.

"How's business, Jimmy?"

Jimmy extinguished his cigaret. "I sold a car today. I'm flush."

"Good. Did you bank the money?"

"Absolutely. Kept out enough for board and spending change. The rest is salted in the old sock."

"Thrift," observed his father, "is a great virtue."

"Like punctuality, eh?" laughed Jimmy. "Quit talking platitudes, dad. Do you know what I wish you'd let me do with some of my heavy roll?"

"No. What?"

"I wish you'd let me rip out that old board walk in front and put in a cement walk. I caught my shoe in it this evening coming in. Some day I'll break a leg. Besides, it looks like the devil."

"If you can make him do that, James," called Martha Rand from the dining room, "you'll be doing more than I've been able to do."

"The board walk stays." Henry Rand spoke positively. "It may not be scrumptious to look at but it suits my old-fashioned notions. I like it."

The doorbell rang. Jimmy walked to the hall and flung open the door.

"Attorney Colvin himself," laughed Jimmy as he ushered in the visitor.

"Good evenin', Jimes," retorted Barry Colvin. He entered the living room. "Good evening, Mr. Rand."

He stood erect without his overcoat, a stocky, well-knit figure with curly black hair parted in the middle. His nose was of the pug variety. His lips were parted in a broad grin that showed flashing white teeth.

He stood framed in the doorway between living and dining room to greet Mrs. Rand and Janet. "We'll be finished in just a minute, Barry," called Janet.

Barry Colvin accepted the chair offered by Jimmy. "How's the law business, Barry?" asked Henry Rand.

"Fair, thanks, Mr. Rand. It's quite a pull getting started but I suppose I oughtn't to complain."

"It takes a lot of work to get started right in anything, Barry," observed Jimmy.

"Hard work never hurt anyone," put in his father. "I've certainly had plenty of it."

It was exactly five o'clock on his twenty-seventh birthday when Jimmy Rand looked at his watch, walked into the manager's office of the Manchester Auto Sales Company and decided to call it a day.

"See you in the morning, Mr. Train. I'm celebrating my birthday by being punctual for dinner tonight."

The manager turned his head away from his work. "Admirable of you, Rand. I hope the folks won't get heart failure."

"They're apt to, at that," laughed Jimmy. "There's no telling how some people will react to violent shocks. It's nice of you to let me use the demonstrator tonight, too, Mr. Train."

"Not at all, Rand. It would be pretty hard to squeeze five into your roadster."

Jimmy climbed into the "demonstrator," a handsome sedan. The starter whirred. He shifted gears expertly and was off.

It was precisely five-forty when he entered the Rand home to find his mother and Janet busy in the kitchen.

Lieut. O'Day

"For once," he announced triumphantly after greeting his mother and pinching Janet's cheek, "I've beaten dad home for dinner."

"I suppose that's what brought this miserable rain," observed Janet sarcastically.

Jimmy strode to the front windows. Outside it was almost completely dark. A cold November rain was falling, whipped by a strong wind that stung to the very bones.

"Not exactly cheerful weather to celebrate the twenty-seventh anniversary of the advent of the well-known Mr. James Rand," he remarked. He went back to the kitchen. "Quarter to six and after, mother. Where's the punctual Mr. Rand this evening? You remember he said those who were late should go hungry."

Footsteps were heard outside the front door. "That's your father now, maybe," hazarded Mrs. Rand. The doorbell rang. "No, it must be Barry."

It was Barry Colvin. Jimmy took his hat and coat. "Just in time for dinner, Barry, but dad's late. Can you beat it?"

"There must have been at least four street cars derailed, then," laughed Barry. "Either that or an earthquake."

Mrs. Rand called from the kitchen. "James, will you come here a moment."

"Sure, what is it?" He was there on the run.

"Do you suppose anything could have happened to your father? Traffic is real heavy now and he might have been knocked down by an automobile."

"Not a chance, mother. He most likely is caught in a street car tieup. This weather is enough to cause a lot of them."

Mrs. Rand went to the kitchen window and peered out. It was quite dark. From the living room came the strains of Rachmaninoff's Prelude, Jimmy's and Barry's favorite. Barry and Janet were there together. The window panes rattled with the sudden gust of wind.

"What time is it, James?" Mrs. Rand's manner was agitated as she kept opening the oven door to look at the roast chicken which was long since cooked and which she was keeping warm.

Jimmy glanced at his watch. "Six-thirty. Gosh, that's not late, mother. He'll be here any minute now."

"I wish you'd call the store, James."

"All right, I will, but I hardly think he's there." He went to the hall. Before he could pick up the receiver the phone bell rang.

"Hello," he said, sharply.

"Hello," came the voice over the phone, a man's brusque voice, "is this the home of Henry Rand?"

"Yes."

"Who is this speaking?"

"James Rand, his son."

"Well, this is a police officer speaking from the Canfield Hotel. Get here quick. Your father has just been found dead in a room."

(To Be Continued.)

"Get here quick," said the voice in Jimmy's ear. Your father has just been found dead in a room!"

THE MAN WITHOUT A PAL

By FRANCIS A. ROSE, Peterborough

A Story Of Clear Lake And Burleigh Falls

THE sun had hung, a ball of blazing fire, over the lake all day. Reluctantly now it sank to rest into its bed of downy clouds, desperately sending its last rays to burnish the tips of the pines and cedars. A cool wind, born of the sunset, came into being and blew freshly inshore. The trees nodded grate'ully, their branches rustled and sighed, and from their shade and from the more dense portions of the bush where they had spent the heat of the day the cattle began to emerge. By numerous small paths they gradually converged to one center, and, falling into line, plodded patiently towards home and milking.

The eastern sky changed from blue to gray—a grayness which spread and lengthened rapidly—and the breeze blew stronger and stronger, whipping the smou dering ashes of the campfire about 'n flakes of white. The small tent pitched in the shade of the huge solitary pine, bellied and tugged at its pegs.

George parted the tent flaps and stood just without, drawing 'n deep breaths of the cool invigorating air. From the distance came the dull murmur of Burleigh Falls mingled with the cries of the night birds which swooped and flitted over the lake surface. He strode swiftly to where his canoe lay, bottom up, covered with a tarpaulin. A heave and a shove and he was afloat, paddling strongly against the incoming swells.

Unreeling a trolling line as he went, he headed up the lake humming in unison with the swing of his paddle and the regular slap-slap of the waves against the bows. On and on he paddled—a quarter mile—past groves of evergreens and sandy points, past marshy shores lined with rushes where frogs croaked their evening chorus, past rolling pastures where huge red granite and limestone boulders, half embedded in the sod, showed dimly in the gathering dusk. A half mile—his line taughtened with a jerk. The battle was on.

If one has the good fortune to hook a 'lunge, it makes its presence felt. It invariably swallows hook, bait, line and sinker and then tries to pull you out of the boat. George, when he felt the lightning tug on his line, swung about and headed shorewards. That he had hooked a big one, he well knew, and to play a 'lunge successfully a more stable foundation than a canoe is necessary. The line slacked, then swung away in a wide arc as the fish, terrified at the sudden weight attached to him, tried desperately to escape. George unreeled enough to give sufficient headway and prevent any sudden strain on the line. He ran the canoe half aground and leaped ashore. Patiently and carefully he manoeuvered the fish into shallow water and with victory 'time and again almost within his grasp, he was compelled to unreel and play it until most of its fierce strength was gone. Here and there it dashed, breaking the surface into flying spray one moment and the next heading for the depths of the lake. Less and less fierce became its struggles and, fighting grimly to the last for the life that was its own, it was landed gasping at his feet, gaping its huge mouth and exposing a row of serrated, saw-like teeth. A blow on the head terminated its existence and George drew his first long breath since the commencement of the struggle. The feeling which comes only to the man who catches a fifteen pound 'lunge thrilled him. For the moment he forgot all the depression of the past few days. He was living again, the life he loved.

He was forced to cut his bait from the gullet of the fish, then, wrapping it in a strip of canvas, stowed it in the canoe. That was finished and there was one less 'lunge in Clear Lake.

With his hands on the bow of the canoe, he hesitated. The last rays of the sun had faded. Full darkness had descended. A moon, full and glorious, was swinging up over the distant, timbered horizon, flooding the woods and rolling lake surface with glittering, silver light.

The sheer beauty of the scene held him fascinated. These were his beloved lakes; the only thing he had in the world to love. A choking sensation filled his throat and loneliness, utter and undescribable, overwhelmed him. The thought came—if he only had a pal to share these scenes with him. A sweetheart was what he wanted. There was no use trying to deceive himself. Often and often he had felt this way. He tossed the hair back from his forehead and raised his face to the moon, smiling pleasurably as he pictured the girl of his dreams, the one in search of whom he told himself he had circled the globe in vain. Her hair was dark brown and curly and shimmered in waves of gold. His imagination pictured that glorious moon reflected from her eyes, blue as the lake waters under the midday sun. He laughed aloud.

"I must be moonstruck," he told the rustling trees about him. "There's certainly something wrong."

The idea persisted however and he listened with interest to the creaking of the pines. They were old and wise, those pines, and could tell him of many scenes of happiness under the ageless moon. They seemed to be trying to tell him something now and he listened attentively as they bowed and scraped their branches together. Finally, it come to him, the barest whisper borne on the wings of the wind.

"There is happiness for others," they confided. "There is happiness for you."

Again he ruminated. A pal was what he wanted. His self-thought solitude was becoming irksome. A fellow ould share an evening like this with the girl of his heart but none other. If he only knew of some one whom he could be sure cared a little for him. Someone who could make him realize he was not entirely alone in the world. He sighed deeply. On this moon-bather shore, the never-ceasing swells, rolling and breaking, receding, rolling and breaking again, mingling their soft music with the whispering of the pines, brought to him strongly the realization of his loneliness. Hungrily, he stretched out his arm and the deep longing of his heart almost burst from his lips. A dimpled, smiling face, flooded with moonlight, seemed close to his own. Half unconsciously his arms closed. Sweet lips were coming close to his.

"Snap out of it," he growled, for the moment ashamed of his weakness. "Then comes a proposal, and I get cooped up in a city. Not for——"

A SCREAM, wild and piercing and filled with mortal terror, crashed in upon his thoughts. He swung about. His hand instinctively went to his hip. It came away empty; there was no revolver holstered there now. Had he imagined that scream? He was upon the peaceful shores of Clear Lake and had let his imagination carry him too far. On such a night as this, upon the Congo's shore, he had heard a scream which took him, revolver in hand, towards the impenetrable jungle. It had taken all the persuasion of his head man and other trusted servants, before he was convinced that no human throat had uttered it. "It was a devil," they told him, "which lured men to their doom." However this was Clear Lake; there were no devils——

Again came the scream, no imagination this time, and the appeal in it sent him slipping, swiftly and silently between the towering trees. He paused to listen.

Unafraid though he was himself, he could realize the things a girl could conjure up out of the blackness of night and the actual terror she would feel. Doubtless, she had been startled by some wandering coon or fox which would be as frightened as she.

Again came the cry from dead ahead, accompanied by a crashing of undergrowth. In a moment he broke through a fringe of slender saplings into a small, moon-bathed clearing, and at the same time she burst from the woods upon the farther side and, seeing him, rushed towards him with outstretched arms. He got a flashing glimpse of a white sweater, then two soft arms were about him and her face was buried on his shoulder. For a moment, she clung to him and he held her close, whispering words of comfort and courage. She raised her head. She had dark brown, curly hair and it shimmered in waves of gold. Her eyes were deepest blue and reflected the glory of the moon; they also mirrored terror, and the sweet face, so close to his own, was ghastly pale. Suddenly she slipped from his arms and sized his hand.

"Run! Oh, run!" she cried, almost hysterically.

"There is nothing to be afraid of," he soothed. She was little more than a child; but a badly scared one, undoubtedly.

"Run!" she commanded and tugged at his hand, casting apprehensive glances into the woods behind.

To please her and nullify her terror, he ran with her, guiding her in the direction of the canoe. A fallen branch treacherously entangled her feet and he swung her into his arms. She seemed utterly spent as he carried her to the shore and she nestled in his arms like a tired child. Gently he deposited her upon the thick carpet of discarded needles at the foot of a huge pine and, bringing water, bathed her forehead. A breaking twig somewhere in the blackness behind brought her upright in a tense attitude of listening.

"There is absolutely nothing in these woods would harm you," he again assured her, as he knelt at her side.

Her eyes lifted questioningly to his face. He felt the half fearful scrutiny of her glance and his smile was reassuring. The fear died from her eyes and her head dropped; a warm glow tinged her cheeks.

"You will think me very silly," she said, trying bravely to keep the tremor from her voice, "but I was so very much afraid."

"I have the canoe," he answered. "It is bright moonlight on the water. Perhaps I could take you to your cottage."

"If you only would," she replied and her eyes shone with gratitude.

If he only would, he repeated to himself. He would cheerfully paddle a hundred miles with her. He gave her his hand to rise and could not analyze the thrill which swept through him at the contact of her fingers. He steadied the canoe as she took her place, then a soft carefully cultivated, voice spoke from the shadows and a figure advanced into the moon's rays. George felt an instant dislike for the speaker. The glistening oiled and waved hair, the soft white sport shirt, the exact, knife edge crease of the immaculate duck trousers, what place had they in the depths of the woods? Here he sensed was the cause of the girl's terror. He boiled inwardly. He knew this type. His travels had shown him many such. The masher who must be put off with main strength; words were not sufficient. He had a longing to crush the offender in his bare hands as he had done to others of this class; but this was a mere boy. His hard, blue eyes clashed with the shifty ones of the stranger, for a moment only, they held. The younger man shifted his gaze to the girl.

"Billy," he began, in a far from steady voice, "I admit I was a bit impulsive. I apologize."

She sat silent in the canoe and George wondered at her calm. Her eyes were upon the speaker; but she made no reply. Inwardly she compared the two men before her. How could ever like Jimmy Warrick. The slim, strong figure in khaki, the man who had proved himself how safe she felt with him. Why had her terror left her when she looked into his steady eyes? She could not explain, only that she no longer felt afraid. Certain she was she would not have agreed to trust herself alone in a canoe with Jimmy.

Her silence was embarrassing. Jimmy tried again. "I am very sorry." His voice wavered. "—Er—need I say more?"

Still no answer. He could see a light of deviltry dancing in the eyes of the man before him. This fellow was clearly laughing at his discomfiture. He stepped forward. He would reason with Billy; this was not the first of their disputes. He felt a strong, firm hand upon his shoulder, a hand which rested hevily and fingers of steel that bit into his very bones. A soft, yet stern voice spoke and he felt a deep fury. What was the fellow saying?

"Billy," he began again; but the hand thrust him backwards.

"I am under the impression that apologies are out of order this evening," George said dryly and turned to the canoe. He stooped, the bottom grated on the stones and Jimmy, realizing that to let Billy go now, without an explanation, might be for the last time, spoke again, his voice thick with hardly suppressed passion.

"Won't you let me explain?" he burst out. "This is no place for you to be with a stranger."

"Jimmy Warrick," she answered, for the first time seeming to notice his presence, "if you ever speak to me again, I'll tell dad about to-night."

"Shall we go?" George asked smiling.

"If you please," she answered. "The breeze is becoming slightly chilly."

"I'll have something to tell your dad, myself," Jimmy said savagely, "when he hears about you and this fellow——"

"Push off, please," she said simply. George stooped again to obey; from the corner of his eye he saw Jimmy leap forward and he whirled to face him. Billy could only catch the murmur of his voice. Jimmy backed a step and his left flashed out. Billy gasped. George sidestepped, an arm jarred upon his, his right came up in a swift uppercut and Jimmy sprawled inelegantly upon the grass.

George felt a pang as he pushed off the canoe. How much safer would she feel, with him now, than with Jimmy? He had acted like a roughneck. He dared not look at her. Was she angry? Why should he care? He could not tell, only that he wished very much to be friends with her.

"Up the lake, please," she said softly. "It is not far. Dad will be waiting for me."

He dug in his paddle to swing the canoe half about and stole a glance at her. All his doubts were dispelled. She was smiling.

Even as he smiled in return, he heard Jimmy's furious shout on the bank, a dozen feet behind them. Her sweet smile was replaced by a look of horror. Even as she cried out in warning, he realized that, should he dodge a missile from Jimmy, she would undoubtedly be struck. Came a stunning crash upon his senses. The bright stars overhead raced about in flashes of light. Billy's figure in the bow seemed far away. A great weakness assailed his brain. Faintly, as though from a great distance, he heard her cry out bitterly, "Jimmy Warrick, you miserable coward." The paddle slipped from his numb fingers and slowly he slumped forward.

He did not know that Jimmy, terrified by what he had done and reading his doom in that one grief stricken cry, had taken to the woods.

Shocked for just an instant, Billy saw the paddle carried shorewards on the swells. There was another under the thwarts, and with swift, dexterous strokes, she sent the canoe on its course.

In a canoe, among choppy waves, is a precarious position at any time; but when there is a dead weight hanging partly over one side, the retaining of balance is problematical. He was so still and quiet; perhaps he was dead. She shuddered at the thought. She must get him to shore as quickly as possible. She felt weak and dizzy as the reaction set in. Desperately she fought off the weakness and plied her paddle. She peered at him again. His face was hidden and he swayed sickeningly at each rise and fall of the canoe. She raised her face to the moon which had seemed so glorious such a short time before and she felt suddenly very small and helpless upon a waste of heaving, black water. She prayed for strength to reach her father's cottage.

"You dear, big, handsome boy," she cried suddenly, "do not die."

Did a slight quiver run through him, or was it the vibration of the canoe? Was he alive? All kinds of horrible possibilities ran through her mind.

WHAT was really only a few minutes seemed an interminable space of time before the familiar outlines of the landing of her father's cottage showed clearly in the brilliant moonlight. As she nosed the canoe into a strip of sandy beach beside it, she saw the dull glow of a cigar upon the verandah and cried out in her relief.

"Daddy, daddy! Come quick."

The man had not noticed the approach of the canoe. He scraped back his chair and with surprising speed, taking his two hundred odd pounds into consideration, hurried towards the landing. That was Billy's voice; she had left some time earlier with Warrick in his car, to visit friends in the village. What was she doing in the canoe? Fervently he hoped something had happened to Warrick.

He heard her swift, tearful explanation as he carried George's limp form to the cottage and made him comfortable in his own bed.

George was conscious of a deep, throbbing pain in the back of his head. He wondered what had happened. He did not seem to care much, even his ambition to move was gone. He raised a questioning hand to his head in an effort to find the cause of that persistent pain. His head was stiff with bandages.

"Lie still," a sweet, soft voice commanded.

Where had he heard that voice? Slowly the happenings of the evening came back. That was Billy speaking; only blackness, dense and impenetrable. His eyelids seemed weighted with lead. With a great effort, he opened them. Through a window at the foot of the bed, the moonlight streamed, with undiminished splendour. In the center of its rays, Billy sat. How like an angel she appeared, with the moon full upon her; its rays filtering through her hair formed a realistic halo about her face. Her smile was full of sweet concern.

Far, far away he heard his own voice asking, "Did he throw a stone?" and faintly came the answer.

"I saw him stoop and called to you. Why didn't you duck your head?"

"I didn't have time," he heard himself saying, and wondered that he could lie so easily.

He could not see the tears which glistened in her eyes. Well, she knew why he had kept his body between her and Jimmy.

She stooped over him and tenderly smoothed the bandages. She was very close and very sweet and, insistently, the thought kept drumming through his numbed senses. Curly, brown hair that shimmered in waves of gold. Eyes of deepest blue, reflecting the glory of the moon. Her face was exquisitely lovely and so close to his own. The sweet lips were coming closer. Something was certainly wrong with him, he thought, when things like this would dominate his thoughts. He game an impatient exclamation.

She raised her hand from the bandage. With an anxious face, she crossed to the doorway.

"Don't leave me, Billy," George said softly, and she returned to his side.

"Dad has gone for the doctor," she explained. "You were so long regaining consciousness, we were afraid."

She seated herself in the moonlight again and he watched her. She was worried about something. Surely not about him. He was alright. It was a new sensation to have some one worried about him. If that wild throbbing would only ease up in his head, he would get up. Thump-thump-thump, every blow of the hammer, fell in the same place. His head whirled. He felt undescribably weak and foolish. He could not think clearly. He lost track of time and presently found himself sliding—sliding, down a steep, black wave. Her face swam about in a sea of mist. The lapping of waters came distinctly to his ears. The black, troubled waves were closing in on all sides. He was sinking down—down—down, into abysimal depths. A great, black, rushing wall of water bore down upon him, blotting her from sight and he cried out in his agony of terror and loneliness.

"Billy, Billy! Don't leave me, Billy!"

"I won't leave you," she promised soothingly, "I will stay."

Desperately he clung to her hands. "I am slipping down," he cried faintly, and she bent low to hear. "The water is so black and cold. You won't leave me, Billy?"

Again and again, she repeated her promise and the hot tears flowed in swift succession down her cheeks. How long would her father be, she wondered.

"Billy," he called again, "I cannot see."

"I am here," she answered, and knelt beside him. His groping hand found her face and he half rose. Tenderly she held his bandaged head to her breast and soothed and quieted him. Gradually his vision cleared. He became rational, only to drift again.

If her father would only hurry, she thought. She could hold him back from the black waters, which threatened to engulf him, for a time; but they must hurry.

And so her father and the doctor found them, and all through that night and many others, she sat by the bed heeding his earnest entreaties, that she should not leave him.

For two weeks he lay alternating between spells of unconsciousness and moments when he babbled of many things. From his ravings, she was able to gather something of the lonely life he had led. He spoke of great, drifting icebergs and snow-capped mountains and lived over again scenes from his past. Then he was traversing deep dark jungle trails and words and phrases of unknown languages fell from his lips.

Finally, the worst of his delirium was over. The fear of the black waters left him and she was able to resume her broken rest. The nurse, whom her father had procured from the city, was elderly and wise and allowed Billy free entry to the sick room. The crisis passed. George's enormous vitality began to assert itself and the gloom lifted from the cottage.

IT WAS a clear, bracing morning in early August when George opened his eyes and realized that he was in a bed, and between white sheets. Through the window he could see a broad expanse of glistening water, gently heaving beneath the bright morning sun. Things began to come back to him now. He heaved himself upright with a great effort and, by degrees, succeeded in propping himself there, with pillows.

A light step sounded without and Billy entered, a trim, little figure in riding breeches and white sweater.

She stopped at the sight of him sitting up, and her face flushed with pleasure. "Oh! I'm so glad," she cried. Then in the next breath, "You mustn't. You are not strong enough."

Passively, he allowed her to rearrange the pillows and he was glad to lie down. He felt a trifle unsteady.

"I am pretty shaky," he admitted, "but there is so much I wruld like to know."

"You must keep still and obey orders," she replied. "I will tell you everything of interest."

So he lay and listened while she told him how her father had inquired and found his camp and had removed all his effects to the cottage; it was two weeks since he was hurt and it was such a lovely morning; she was sorry he could not come outside to enjoy it.

"Is there anything else?" she asked brightly.

"Nothing, except to thank you for your kindness to a stranger," he answered.

"We would have been sadly lacking in gratitude if we had not done all we could," she answered with her swift, flashing smile, which did more to cheer him than anything else could have. "And, besides, we are not strangers now," she continued. "It seems ages since that awful night. I shudder every time I think of it. he couldn't get it started; then he proposed that we take a short cut to the cottage; then," she blushed deeply and her gaze fell, "in the woods, he proposed and when I refused him, he got so angry and rough that I screamed and you came. I was a big coward, don't you think so?" she asked earnestly.

"I don't," George answered, "and when I see Jimmy, someone is bound to treat him far from gently."

"The doctor said that the rounded side of the stone must have struck you," she said. "We found the stone in the canoe. He said if the sharp edge had struck, it would have fractured your skull. I am glad it wasn't that."

"So am I, Billy," he answered. that."

"You see," he went on, "I don't know you by any other name and, besides, I'm a sick man and must be humoured."

She blushed deeply and smiled, but would not meet his eyes.

"My name is Wilhemena Sommers," she said softly. "I like Billy best though. You may call me Billy if you would rather."

She gave him a fleeting glance into her eyes before her lashes veiled them again.

"I like Billy best of all," he answered daringly. "My name is George Winchester. My friends call me George."

Again the hot blood mounted to her cheeks; still she smiled. Her hands clasped and unclasped on her knees. He felt a great desire to hold them in his own. It was his recent illness which made him that way, he thought. He could not remember, ever raving about a girl's hands before. Her's were no different from others he had seen. But, yes they were. They were Billy's. What more was necessary?

A heavy tread sounded and her father entered noisily. "What's the matter with you, Billy?" he asked plaintively, "since that Winchester came——" George's wide open eyes cut him short and an expression, of genuine pleasure, lighted his face.

"Why, hello! old man," he cried heartily. "Are you back among us mortals?" He shook George's hand as though he had known him for years. "We thought you were gone for sure. You must have come close to the pearly gates. You talked of angels continually. Did you see any in the land you visited?"

"There was one," George answered. "She was with me always." He glanced sideways at Billy. She dropped her eyes and blushed in confusion.

Her father's hearty laugh resounded through the room and he gave her an affectionate squeeze. "Damn it! sir, I have a long score to settle with you, when you're up and about again," he burst out, in a sudden change of subject. "Billy has me worn to a frazzle, running for doctors, at all hours of the night and day, driving, Lord knows, how many miles, sometimes through mud and rain and more times under a sun hotter than h——"

"Dad!" Billy burst out, reprovingly.

"I'm sorry, sir," George answered, letting his gaze travel over Mr. Sommers' bulky figure. "You do look kind of worn and delicate."

"Delicate——" Sommers exploded, quickly rallying to his own support. "I can eat four meals a day, and lick any man in the country."

He changed the subject with his usual suddenness. "That was a fine fish you brought us that night. "If I caught a fish that size, I wouldn't have to be carried home." His laugh was big and joily. "Are there any more, in the lake, like that?" he asked.

"Some," George answered. "I'll show you where as soon as Billy lets me up."

"It's a bargain," he agreed; then with another thought, "I've been worrying about you, boy, and, while I think of it, give me your folks' address so I can let them know where you are." He produced a note-book as he continued, "I asked every one about and, beyond showing me where your camp was, they were as wise as I."

"Thank you for your thoughtfulness, Mr. Sommers," George replied. "There is no one that would be interested in my whereabouts."

Sommers looked questioningly over his note-book. "Come now, son," he said. "What is the trouble? Disowned by the old man? Well he may pretend, he doesn't care, but he'll want to know where you are, just the same."

"You don't understand," George answered. "I have not a living relative that I am aware of."

HE DID not realize the depth of the loneliness his words proclaimed. Sommers felt it, however, and through him flashed the resolution that, if this young fellow who had come unhesitatingly and unquestioningly to Billy's aid, had no relatives, he would not lack for one firm friend. Every time he thought of the incident and the peril his little girl had been in, he felt a deep desire to hunt Jimmy Warrick with a gun. But no, George had the first right and he would wait.

Billy's thoughts were, in the main, identical with her father's. What a lot she owed George and, how terrified she had been until she had sighted him across the moonlit clearing. Why had she run to him, fearlessly for protection? She did not know except that the moment she saw him she felt he would save her.

As for George, he was satisfied, for the present, to lie still and watch the play of emotions on Billy's face.

Sommers broke the silence. "We thought it best to tell only the doctor that Warrick threw the rock," he said. "I thought you would like to settle personally with him."

George answered nothing in words but, his jaw set hard and, in his heart, Sommers pitied Jimmy Warrick.

Suddenly he burst out again. "I like you, son, only you must remember, my name's Bill Sommers to my friends. To hell with the others." He stamped out of the room.

"You must's mind dad, George," Billy said and blushed at her use of the unfamiliar name. Time and again she had called him that while he was raving and feverish, but now that he was in his right senses, confusion she leaned over him to rearrange his pillows. Her curls brushed his cheek. She was so tantalizingly near, he could scarcely resist the impulse, to take her in his arms.

She laid a cool hand upon his forehead. "You are getting feverish," she said anxiously. "You have been talking too much."

He did feel flushed and a trifle dizzy. Her voice came as thought from a distance. He thought he would drift again, into that waste of heaving, black waters and he clasped the hand that lay upon his brow.

"You won't leave me, Billy?" he asked earnestly and, once again, she promised and, satisfied, he slept.

Sommers took one peep into the room and then returned to the verandah. With his chin on his chest, he pondered deeply. Why had he taken such a fancy to George on such short acquaintance? The service rendered Billy had a lot to do with it; but that was not all. It was sufficient that he liked him. He rarely, if ever, was mistaken in a man. There was room for young blood in his business and George would certainly get a chance, if he so desired. And, there was Billy. Some day she would be married. He hoped not for some time. She was all he had and he had never tried to imagine being without her; that was out of the question. Now, with George for Billy and the business for George. He shook himself. What was he thinking of? He was an old fool, he thought; but perhaps, a wise one.

THE days passed and George progressed from the point where he could sit for a few minutes on the verandah, until, once again, he joyed in the feel of his paddle and the slapping of the waves against the bows. His strength returned by leaps and bounds and soon he felt that he was almost the man he was before his accident. Not the same entirely, however; before he was silent and moody and, very, very lonely. Now, he loved Billy, with all his heart and, although he had not spoken to her on the subject, he felt that he had something of interest in life, that, once gain, life was worth living.

Many times, he paddled over the moon-bathed surface of Clear Lake, with Billy, rapt and silent, in the bow, while he spoke of other lands beneath the self-same moon. She often wondered that, in these stories, there was never mention of a girl. She did not ask him. A careless question might easily open an old wound. She felt that she would always remember these evenings. In such a perfect setting his stories made a lasting impression. He would speak of the jungles of darkest Africa under the tropic moon until the familiar shore line of the lake faded from her vision and, in its stead, appeared a dense mass of tangled vegetation. The towering pines seemed festooned with hanging vines and through the little open spaces in the patches of brighter moonlight, flitted small child-like creatures, in their bonds swift, poisoned death. The brush crackled under padded paws, and eyes, reflecting the moon's glow in points of flame, glared at her from the bank as huge man-eaters sought their prey. She would shudder at the reality of the scene and then look at him, so strong and handsome, plying his paddle easily and effortlessly, leaving behind them scarcely a rippie.

Other times, he drove her father's car in long rides through the country, sometimes to the red granite-bound shores of Lovesick Lake. He repeated to her the legend of its name, as told him by an old-timer of the vicinity. A lover had been drowned in the waters of the lake and his sweetheart, refusing to leave, had pined away and died upon its shores. He showed her the barren splendour of the Burleigh rocks and they argued whether it was a young mountain range in its infancy or an old mountain range which time and glaciers had worn down to its present state.

Always, he told her more of his wanderings until she wondered if there was any place of interest upon the globe which he had not visited. He had a knowledge of the main languages, could speak a dozen African dialects and had enough Chinese and Japanese to get by, he said.

As they whirled over the dusty roads, with her father occupying the rear seat in solitary glory, unless he clamoured to drive, she heard still more of his travels. Wild and dreary wastes of ice, huge mountainous ice bergs, leagues of heaving, frigid water, crossed her mind's eye. In imagination, she accompanied him through a whirling blizzard, for miles and miles, behind a dog team, and again she crossed that same ice pack on a clear, frosty day, the temperature seventy to seventy-five below zero, until she would actually feel the cold and beg him to stop.

So the days flew by and August, which almost marks the closing of vacation time among the Kawartha Lakes, was swiftly drawing to an end.

George sat upon his favourite seat, a fallen tree trunk, beneath the wide-flung branches of a stately pine, gazing moodily across the placid surface of the lake. Another month or so and Clera Lake would be a mass of ice and snow. The Sommers would returned to their Rochester home, and what of himself? Would he drift south, or would some whim take him into the frozen north? With the Sommers gone, he had a score to settle with Warrick ,then he, too, would go. Would he ever see them again? It was queer, but he had never thought till now that he must leave Billy soon. He would be lonely; but had he not been lonely before now? He loved her; but he was nothing more than a tramp. The only thing which distinguished him from the genuine hobo was that, having the means, he could choose his direction. Did he really love Billy enough to give up his rambling? He thought he did. The thought tormented him; would she take him seriously, if he asked her? Would she take a chance and marry a wanderer?

"I'm afraid she wouldn't," he said aloud.

"Who is she, George?" Billy asked unexpectedly from behind and, stepping over the log, she faced him.

He looked calmly up into her eyes. "Come, now, confess," she continued, trying to appear stern. "Was it that Nellie Bowen you danced with so much at the pavilion last night?"

"Which one was that?" he asked.

"You know," she replied, with a touch of impatience. "The one that rolled her eyes and hugged you so."

"I don't remember any especially," young ladies, thanks to you, who cannot make their eyes behave."

She looked away across the lake to where a white speck of sail flickered and flashed in the sun's rays. Suddenly she turned and, placing a hand beneath his chin, tilted his head back and looked earnestly, deep into his eyes. His gaze never faltered. Her own fell. Her hand dropped to his shoulder and he covered it with his strong fingers.

"What is the matter with you, Billy?" he asked.

"I thought you were lying to me," she answered. There was the least bit of tremor in her voice. His heart leaped. She was jealous; she surely must think something of him.

"What did you think I would lie to you about?" he inquired.

"About that girl," she answered. She would not meet his eyes. "I think she's spiteful."

"So do I," he returned. "Who is she?"

She looked surprised for a moment, then laughed merrily.

"Now you're more like yourself," he said approvingly. "But tell me, really, what is troubling you?"

She evaded his question, and withdrew her hand from his.

"Will you promise me something, George?" she asked softly.

"Certainly," he replied, without hesitation. "What is it?"

"I want you to forget what Jimmy Warrick did to you," she answered.

His face paled instantly and he rose. "I want you not to be angry with him," she continued. "Will you do this for me, George, please?"

SHE was very close and very sweet. Her hands were on his shoulders and through his brain ran his vision of her before they had ever met. Brown, curly hair, that shimmered in waves of gold. That the sun was shining made not the slightest difference. Always, he would see her in the moonlight. Her eyes were deepest blue. Her face, dimpled and smiling, was close to his and the sweet lips were coming closer. Both eyes and lips were pleading that he should forget what Warrick had done. How could he refuse her request? What did Warrick matter? What did anything matter now?

"I promise," he whispered. To himself his voice sounded strained and husky. She seemed to sway a little closer; his arms enfolded her and her own slipped upwards. For a moment she remained, quiet and passive with her face buried on his shoulder, then she raised her head. Deep down in her eyes he saw a light, sweet and mysterious and her arms tightened about his neck.

"Will you tell me what is worrying you, George?" she asked softly.

"To-night," he answered, "when the moon shines over the treetops, I will tell you everything. The moonlight is best for story telling."

Her lips were temptingly close. He bent his head and her eyes closed; but she did not draw away.

A sudden hail came from the lake, and swiftly they drew apart. The canoe came swirling in, it's bow standing high out of the water, its stern sunk, almost to the gunwale, with Sommers' weight. If he had noticed them he made no comment, except a searching look as the canoe grounded upon the strip of sand.

"Eleven black bass," he cried triumphantly, holding up the string for inspection as he scrambled ashore. "Right where you said they would be, George. I had to hold my hook in the boat to bait it. They came right to the top of the water looking for worms." He headed for the cottage with his catch, declaring his intention of returning for more in the morning and the young people followed more slowly behind.

Stepping from the surface of a boulder to the slippery sod, Billy stumbled and George threw an arm about her. She smiled her gratitude and allowed him to retain her hand. Sommers, looking back, chuckled to himself.

There was no doubt about it, George thought. He loved Billy and to-night would decide his future course. If she refused him, that was an unpleasant thought; but it was certainly possible. There were the Himilaya Mountains of Northern India, called by some 'The Roof of the World.' What was on their summits, no man knew. Explorers who had dared their frigid cliffs and passes had, in most cases, perished in the attempt. He had long been intending to make his way there and should she refuse him, 'The Roof of the World' would not be too far from the Kawartha Lakes.

Billy, glancing up, caught his expression of deep gloom. Her forehead wrinkled with concern. He was not looking well to-day. Perhaps he was not as completely recovered as they had thought. Her fingers tightened on his; he laughed and she looked up again.

"You were so serious-looking; forgive me, Billy," he said. "Something is troubling you now. You must tell me."

"Perhaps I will to-night," she answered. "Moonlight is best for story telling. You said so yourself."

The afternoon dragged for Sommers. He wished only for another sunrise, and a chance at the voracious black bass again. He suggested a canoe ride, a motor-boat ride, a spin in the car anything to pass away the time: George did not desire any of these things. He only waited to sit in the shade of the verandah and talk with Billy.

Finally the old man unearthed a checker-board and insisted that he play. Billy brought out a book and, from the shelter of its pages, studied them both.

What good friends they were, she thought. She knew how carefully her father chose his friends and here he was, exchanging banter and quarreling with George as though their spao of acquaintance was years instead of days.

"Damn——," Sommers exploded suddenly, throwing a cigar, George had given him, across the porch. "Why don't you buy some good cigars? These are half hemp."

George crowned a king and looked up with a grin. "They're the best I could get around here," he answered, "and they're better than the ones you brought from Rochester."

Sommers grunted and, fumbling in a pocket, produced and lighted a particularly evil-smelling pipe.

"Whew!" George whistled from the depths of a dense, blue cloud which enveloped them both. "Speaking of hemp."

"Don't you make fun of my pipe, boy," Sommers warned. "We're old friends."

"Ancient is a better word," George replied. "You must have grown up with that one."

"I went to school with it," old Bill chuckled. "I played hooky with it."

Billy smiled as they argued on. Soon they would be returning to Rochester, she thought. How dad would like to have George, to spend the winter evenings with. Dear old dad, a bit blasphemous at times; but he had been father and mother to her from her earliest recollections. He would miss George awfully. It was plainly evidently how attached he had become to him. Perhaps he would ask him to accompany them home and be their guest for some time. A warm glow of pleasure filled her at the thought. If he left them, she knew she was going to miss him terribly. Where would he go? Back to his aimless wandering. He had said he had no relatives. He had no one to welcome him to their home. He must not go. It looked perfectly natural to see him there with dad. He was like a member of the family. Suddenly, full comprehension dawned and left her a little afraid but very happy. She loved him. She must have loved him from the time she had run into his arms from the impulsive Jimmy. She knew he loved her. It showed plainly in his every glance. She knew she had but to say the word that would mean happiness for him. She felt that now the world was changed for her. She had both dad and George to look after. George need not remain a wanderer on the earth. She would have the privilege of doing her utmost to make up to him for his years of battling alone with the world. Her heart sang with love and pride.

He looked up from his game drawn by an impulse he could not fathom and, the depth of feeling, the strange, unexplainable meaning, a mixture of joy and pain, sweetness and sadness that shome from her eyes and features, startled him for the moment. He lost the formation of a wonderful blockade he was building about old Bill's men and Bill, with a few moves, a dexterous placing of men in points of advantage, triumphantly cleared the board.

HE LOOKED up. George was gazing, with vacant eyes, far out over the lake and beyond the distant hills. He turned to Billy. Her face was hidden by her book. He grunted, scraped back his chair, seated himself on the steps and thoughtfully filled and lighted his pipe. He stole sly glances at one, then the other. He wondered had George proposed to Billy. He had seen them draw apart at his approach that morning. If he could read the signs right, there was something in the air. He was perfectly satisfied and would keep a sharp eye on both. Any way he could smooth the course for either, he would not let a chance escape. He knew the vagaries of lovers, and the very little things which would sometimes ruin a life's happiness. If Jimmy Warrick butted in, well, that would be Jimmy's own fault.

Billy stole another glance at George. As he held her in his arms, that morning, he had wordlessly expressed his love for her. In another moment, but for her father's appearance, h: would have kissed her. She knew it and knew also, that she would not have resisted.

Her father, gazing upon her transformed face, felt a tinge of sadness and loneliness. Little Billy's love must be shared with another. His gloom lasted but a moment. It quickly turned to joy. It was her happiness that counted and his one, great fear, that she should one day leave him, would not be realized. George had no relatives, there would be no reason for him to be left alone in his old age.

The sun sank slowly into the western sky. Longingly, as ever, it sent its last rays to burnish the tips of the trees already nodding in the cooling breeze. The placid lake surface became overrun with ripples which gradually grew until the swells were formed and came rolling in, breaking with a long, swish-splash upon the shore.

The shadows deepened. Billy rose and left the porch. George seated himself beside Sommers on the steps and, for a time, neither spoke. Each was busy with his own thoughts.

"Have you decided what you will do this winter?" Sommers asked suddenly.

George slowly shook his head.

"Well, think it over," old Bill continued. "The job I offered you the other day holds good any time you want to come after it, and, in the meantime, while you're thinking it over, why not spend a couple of months with us in Rochester? You know, Billy and I would be glad to have you."

"I'll give you my answer to both questions in the morning," George replied, and rose to his feet. The moon, clear and full, was swinging high over the lake, flooding the landscape with silver.

With a swift, impulsive movement, old Bill grasped his hand. "Good luck, my boy, and God bless you both," he whispered huskily and hurriedly entered the cottage.

George looked after him in wonderment. That eloquent grasp of the hand, expressing the hearty friendship and co-operation of her father, gave him confidence. And the voice, there had been tears in old Bill's voice. He strode briskly towards the lake shore. He would take his favourite seat, beneath the pine, and try to think.

He crossed the strip of sandy beach, where his canoe lay, bottom up and swathed in its tarpaulin. He paused to fasten a corner, blown loose by the wind. As he finished the last knot, he raised his head and gazed full in the face of the moon. How peaceful and quiet, everything was to-night. The never-ceasing swells came rolling in, breaking and splashing at his feet. What was it that they were saying, that night he had first met Billy? He listened carefully and then he heard it. Soft and sweet, the words were repeated, over and over: "There is happiness for others. There is happiness for you."

A SCREAM sounded from the dense blackness at the foot of the great pine and he started forward on the run. Unmistakably, it was Billy's voice. She came into the bright moonlight before him, running swiftly. He got a flashing glimpse of a white sweater, then two soft arms were round his neck and her face was buried on his shoulder. She raised her head. Her hair was soft and curly and it shimmered in waves of gold. Her eyes were deepest blue

"The Wife Who Wasn't Wanted"

BY S. GERTRUDE DE WENTWORTH-JAMES

SYNOPSIS

John and Eileen Mannering are more than commonly happy when they waken this morning, for it is the twenty-first birthday of their son, Bob. Before leaving their bedroom they spend some time in reviewing the happy events of their life together, and John showers compliments on his wife as he did when she was a bride. They hear a call, "Maw," and Eileen admits Bob. He has come to ask his mother to arrange his necktie. Both parents congratulate him on his anniversary.

CHAPTER I—Continued from last Saturday.

She embraced him and with practiced fingers set to work on the tie.

"Congratulations on your twenty-first birthday, dear," she said, gazing into his eyes from her vantage point. Then, the tie adjusted to her satisfaction she kissed him.

He returned her embrace, mumbled his thanks awkwardly and would have turned to leave the room had she not detained him.

"You are a man now,—my baby's gone," she whispered with a catch in her voice. And as if overcome by her feelings she sank into a chair clinging to his hand.

Bob waited uneasily. Love of her and sympathy he had. But in his boyish shyness could only express them by leaning over her and patting her on the back.

"My baby's gone," she repeated and the memory of chubby hands and tiny feet made her cling desperately to him, drawing him lower and lower, as if so she could once agam cradle that tiny tot in her arms.

'Mother, don't," he protested, blushmg furiously as if in fear that despite his age and size she would nsist upon her purpose.

At the entrance of his father, he gently but firmly drew away from her and advanced to meet him.

"Good morning, Dad."

John regarded h s son seriously.

"The law, my boy, says that you are a man today. How about t?"

For an instant the two gazed deep into each other's eyes. John, too, had ambitions for his son. In his dreams he pictured for the youth a life of rectitude and high purpose, of honor and success merited and fairly won.

Something of this the youth seemed to understand for he faced his father squarely.

"I'll try to be under any circumstances," he said firmly.

"Good," and in an instant John's seriousness departed and a mischievous twinkle danced in his eye. "And you'll learn to tie your own neckties, too, my son?"

With a sheepish grin Bob glanced at his mother and seemed to gather strength from her presence.

"I don't need to while I have you to do it for me, do I, mother?"

Her answer was to arise and under the very eyes of her husband readjust her son's tie. Then, she turned to draw them to her on either hand. There was pride and joy and great contentment in her heart as she viewed them in turn. Her boys! That was what they were, she told herself. A united family bound by faith and love, what evil could prevail against them?

Even as they waited there, a sound from without echoed through the room. It was a long drawn "coo-hee" in a silvery voice of great carrying power.

Bob started and cast a nervous glance towards the window. As he turned back, his father caught his eye and arching his eyebrows in a most knowing and disturbing manner. Under this searching glance, the youth colored, wiggled uneasily and finally beat an abrupt retreat from the room.

John burst into laughter but Eileen turned upon him with a reproving glance.

"Why do you insist upon teasing Bob about Marjorie, John?"

"Tease him," protested John, the picture of innocence. "I never said a word."

"But your looks,—your eyes,—they spoke volumes!"

"Among other things, did you interpret them to say anything resembling you, you poor fish," he chuckled.

"From you, it means even worse than that to him. You were every bit as bad at his age."

"Never," objected John firmly. "I couldn't have been because I had no silly child running after me."

"But Marjorie is not silly, John. She is just outspoken and honest without an ounce of insincerity in her nature. She fairly worships Bob and is not ashamed for the whole world to know it."

"Not ashamed!—She's brazenly open and indecent about it, to my mind."

"Look at it sensibly, John. If it is only one of these childish affairs, it will soon be forgotten. If it grows into something serious, surely you can find no fault with the Pattersons?"

"The Pattersons are all right. But I hate to see him hunted down before my very eyes. She tagging after him morning, noon and night. There's a closed season even on rabbits. And I have plans for Bob. I want to see that boy go far. You've proved to me, dear, that there is nothing better to help a man along than a good woman at his side."

Eileen smiled.

"You can find no fault with Marjorie on that score. She's merely young,—very young. All women run after men, John. Only when they are older, they are clever enough not to let the men know it."

"So that's it, is it?" he chuckled as he turned away to dress. "This Marjorie may be a perfect infant so far as the wiles of women are concerned, but mark my word, she's got the system of a bull dog. When she takes hold of anything, she is going to hang on like grim death."

CHAPTER II

A simply clad maid of demure appearance stood upon the rungs of a ladder that rested against the brick wall which separated her father's estate from that of the Mannerings and gazed solemnly down at Bob. There was nothing of the modern flapper about Marjorie Patterson. So serious minded did she seem that she might have been meditating over a convent wall upon the evils of the world without.

But watch her. As Bob climbed the trellis on his side of the wall and perched himself upon its top, there was eagerness in her manner. As he turned towards her, she smiled full upon him, and such a smile. Well might it have caused Bob's father some apprehension. There was no concealment in it. There lay exposed the soul of a young Diana, huntress of men. A persistent huntress who having marked her game clung unwearyingly on its trail.

Heedless of the peril which beset him, Bob met the warmth of her gaze carelessly, even heedlessly.

"'Lo,—Marjorie."

The wife who Gal 2 Jan 30

"Bob,—It's your birthday, isn't it?" she demanded eagerly.

He conceded the fact but guardily, as if suspicious of the use to which she would put the information.

"I've a birthday present for you."

Curiosity seemed at last to have awakened a real interest within him. Yet, he looked into those beautiful eyes and regarded the palpitating eagerness with which she concealed her hands behind her and indicated that he must choose, with calmness, yes, with disapproval.

"Oh, what's the good of that,—you are going to give it to me anyway, aren't you?"

"But it's more fun guessing," she pleaded with a look which might have bewitched a saint.

"Oh, well," he condescended, but when he had chosen both hands in succession and evoked nothing better than a tantalizing giggle, he grew suspicious. "You're switching,—that's what you're doing."

Caught red handed in her villainy, she finally produced a package and hand[illegible], he inspected the dainty [illegible] with the tormenting slowness of one who delights in prolonging anticipation.

"Hurry," she urged. And when he failed to act, in her eagerness reached forth and snapped the string, to draw forth a long, crocheted bag which she dangled before his eyes with pride.

"What is it?" he demanded wonderingly.

"That's for your golf clubs,—I crocheted it myself.

"Golf clubs?" Surely Bob's heart was of adamant for he burst into laughter.

"You don't like it?"

Ah, there was a tender spot in Bob's breast. Touched by her hurt tones and the disappointment in her eyes, his mirth died.

"It's all right."

"You are sure you really like it?" she persisted, half convinced.

"Certainly, it's splendid."

"Well then," said Marjorie boldly but stricken with something like a blush. "Seeing it's your birthday, I suppose you can kiss me."

"Kiss you?" Here was surprise when there should have been eagerness. Furthermore the alacrity with which a fond lover should have grasped the opportunity to taste the savor of so sweet a maiden's lips was strangely absent. As she closed her eyes and waited on the ladder with puckered lips, he sat motionless gazing at them as if held in the clutches of a spell.

"Yes,—come on," and to give even greater expression to her desires, she leaned towards him until the ladder shifted ominously.

For an instant longer he hesitated, still staring as if spellbound at those rosy lips so temptingly presented for his enjoyment, then, as if drawn by their witchery, he, too, leaned slowly forward. So slowly indeed, that Marjorie felt it incumbent upon her to expedite matters by advancing even further.

Alas, ladders are very tricky contraptions and this one was no better than its kindred. It shifted, slid and finally just as Bob was upon the point of sampling the rich fruit before him, it toppled and fell, carrying Marjorie down with it.

From his safe vantage point on the wall, Bob looked down at the shaken figure below.

"Are you hurt, Marjorie?"

She gazed up and in her eyes were surprise and ruffled dignity, yes, and perhaps disappointment.

"Don't you laugh,—don't you dare laugh, Bob Mannering!"

"I'm not laughing," he protested promptly, and then his eyes strayed homewards. "But I'd better be thinking about getting back—back to breakfast if you are all right. It must be breakfast time." And Bob disapperedh behind the wall.

It was breakfast time. Eileen, having instructed the maid to serve the meal, had paused to give a deft touch to the flowers on the table and to glance about the breakfast room to see that all was in order.

It was a beautiful room with a lovely view of rolling country where the great windows gave upon the terrace and formed a setting in perfect keeping with Eileen's mood this morning. In her happiness lurked no cloud or shadow as her husband, carrying a newspaper, entered.

"Good news—the best of news," he cried with an air of great satisfaction.

She glanced quickly at him.

"About the election?"

John nodded.

"A careful poll of ten districts indicates an overwhelming sentiment in favor of my re-election. Of course, the Star has supported me from the first, but it is a conservative sheet. What's more, its estimate of the situation supports my own. It seems to me that I am to have little real opposition. But," his face sobered, "you never can count on anything in such matters until the actual returns are in. Now that I'm in the race, I want to win not so much for the office as to get a confirmation of my policies from the people."

She regarded him with undisguised pride. Perfectly groomed, he was now the picture of a successful man. A strong, forceful man, with character written in every line of his face.

"Of course, you will win, John," she told him confidently.

"Where's Bob," he demanded, becoming aware of his son's vacant chair, "has that infant vampire still got him in her clutches?"

"Clutches," retorted Eileen serenely. "I suspect she is not detaining him from his breakfast against his will. She must appeal to him as quite agreeable to make him miss an opportunity to eat."

"Well, he told me last night that he wanted to go into town with me this morning. Regardless of the allurement of his charmer, he had better hurry. I am due in court at nine o'clock."

"Mr. Bledsoe, to see you, sir," interrupted the maid.

Surprised, a shadow clouded John's face as he glanced at the proffered card.

"Isn't his son's trial this morning?" asked Eileen, quickly.

He nodded and turned to the girl with decision.

"Tell Mr. Bledsoe, I am very sorry but I cannot see him."

Eileen viewed him with surprise and stopped the maid with a gesture before she reached the door.

"Oh John, you can't mean that—hadn't you better see him?" she pleaded.

He shook his head, firm in his course.

"There is not the slightest reason why I should see him, Eileen, and many why I should not. The interview would not only be unpleasant but a waste of his time as well as mine."

Filled with sympathy, Eileen rested her hand upon his sleeve.

"Poor man—please see him, John, there might be something—er—at least it would be more courteous than to refuse him out right."

"Courteous," a smile softened the determination in his face. "I'm afraid the law is not always courteous, dear." Then, as he looked down at her, "However, if you wish it—"

THE GHOST—"WHAT A PIKER I WAS."

LIFE OF NOAH T. LAPLANTE IS ONE BUILT ON MOTTO 'WORK AND SAVE'

Came To City at Age of Nine—Started Work For 12 1 2 Cents a Day. . .

NOW 86 YEARS OLD.

Has Lived Careful, Abstemious Life, an Example To All.

Tomorrow, January 31st, one of the oldest and best-known residents of the city, Noah T. LaPlante, better known perhaps as Louis LaPlante, celebrates his eighty-sixth birthday anniversary. Possibly the two oldest brothers in Peterborough at the present time are Mr. LaPlante and his brother, Noel H. ("Uncle John" LaPlante) who was eighty-two years of age last Christmas Day.

In the life of Louis LaPlante the present excitement-seeking, spendthrift generation has much to learn. His has been an existence in which the mottoes always were "work and save" and he is reaping the fruits of an abstemious, careful life in the condition in which the advancing years of life now find him, a man of eighty-six years of age, who can still read without the aid of glasses, has excellent hearing, walks erect and drives his horse uptown every day. Little eating and very little smoking has been Mr. LaPlante's rule also, and he has been through his life a strong advocate of temperance.

In 1849, Noah LaPlante, then a boy of nine years of age, came to Peterboro with his father and mother and their six other children, all younger than himself. From Lapraire, a village of Quebec, across the river from Montreal, they came. In Laprairie, the family and their forbears had lived since 1664, when they came out from France, but they had not prospered there and when Mr. LaPlante's parents came to Peterboro, they had only one dollar and ten cents with them and very little food for their children. The father, however, had been promised work by a man named Charlie Perry, a lumbering and sawmill proprietor, who had taken some timber down to Quebec, and had found the elder LaPlante the only man prepared to run the rapids at Lachine with it. So they came to Peterboro, by train to Kingston, thence to Cobourg by boat. Driving across to Gore's Landing, they made the two-day journey from the Landing to Peterboro by way of May's horseboat. When they arrived, they found no one who could speak French and they could speak no English.

The first house provided for them was a small place opposite Mr. Ozias LaPlante's present office on Water street and this proved unsuitable. Peterboro' was then a place of some three thousand souls, many of whom were inclined to be unfriendly to the "foreigners" from Quebec, and those who came after them later on.

Being unable to afford constant schooling for the children, the charge at that time being fifty cents a month per child, young Noah LaPlante went to school every second day for two years' time, to the schoolhouse situated in an old building near the Montreal House on Aylmer street.

Then he started to work, at the age of twelve years, first with Richard Winch and then with Daniel Hopkins, both butchers of the city. For sixteen hours he worked out of the twenty-four, receiving his meals and twelve and one half cents a day, which was increased later to twenty-five cents a day. At the age of twenty years, he had saved one hundred dollars. Borrowing another hundred, he bought out the butchering business of Dan Hopkins and started in for himself. The meat markets of the town were then conducted in stalls on the present market square, and a rhyme of the day connected the owners' names in this way: "Heather and Howden; Winch and Co.; the two LaPlantes and George LeBeau." Mr. LaPlante's brother, John, was associated with him in business almost from the beginning, and it was as to this brother and L. D. Letellier that he sold out when he retired in 1887, having in the meantime bought and sold much city property, some of which he still retains.

In 1870, Mr. LaPlante removed from George street, south of the Peter Hamilton factory, to his present house on Lock street, which he built on a portion of the ten acres he purchased in what was then "in the woods," with an old charcoal kiln on the present Lock street grounds. Here, after his retirement from active business life, he has spent much time in gardening, doing a certain amount of digging in his garden in the summer as a necessary exercise, and spending a good portion of his life on the river, fishing and boating. In 1888 he built the first cottage erected on an island near Lovesick Lake, which he still retains, and invested in a steam launch.

In 1864, Mr. LaPlante visited Laprairie, his native village, and met there Marie Desautel, one of a family who lived across the street from his own old home. In a fortnight's time, he returned and married her, their married life of some fifty-nine years terminating in the death of his wife in 1923. Of the sixteen children born to Mr. and Mrs. LaPlante, seven still survive; Mrs. C. A. J. Duranceau, Mrs. C. Masson, Mrs. R. L. Legendre and Mrs. V. R. Heftler of Detroit, Mrs. A. Girard, Ozias and Cezare, at home.

Mr. LaPlante, who is active in body and mind, and who, a year ago, shingled the roof of his own house, was a great step dancer in his youth, excelling at the "pigeon wing" with which he often entertained his family after a hard day's work. He also conducted the first dancing school in the city. He has always been a man of regular habits and an early riser, thinking nothing of getting up at four o'clock in the morning to commence his long day. In politics, he was a Conservative until 1885, when he changed over to the Liberal ranks, and was a personal friend of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who was entertained at his home on three occasions when the Prime Minister visited the city. Mr. LaPlante was at one time a member of the City Council and also for some years on the Separate School Trustee Board.

The only extensive travelling done by Mr. LaPlante was in 1884, when, with a party composed of the late Harry LeBrun, Jim Dolan, Robert Davidson and John James Lundy, he made a tour of the British Isles, which ended up, oddly enough, with a trip to Niagara Falls when the travellers returned to Canada.

Mr. LaPlante's parents lived to a good old age, his father dying at the age of seventy-eight, his mother at eighty-two years. His parents also had sixteen children, Noah (Louis) and Noel (John) alone surviving.

Nine of the family died while quite young, the five remaining living to later years. They were four sisters; Mrs. C. Gordon, Mrs. L. D. Letellier, Mrs. Archie Letellier and Mrs. D. Guerin, and one brother, Thomas LaPlante, formerly bailiff in Peterboro' and reflected the glory of the moon. The dimpled, smiling face was close to his and the sweet lips were coming closer. He hesitated a moment, then he crushed her close and kissed her almost savagely. Tightly she clung to him and, from a distance, he heard his voice saying: "I love you, Billy; there is nothing more to tell."

"Hold me tight, George," she pleaded. "Don't ever let me go again."

His arms tightened even more. She felt as though she would suffocate. She gave a little satisfied sigh and then her head lay still upon his breast and she felt the strong, steady beat of the heart that was hers at last.

hills. Far beyond them he could see, in his mind's eye, a range of rugged, unscalable mountains, their steep cliffs and passes drifted high with snow. The Roof of the World. He would never see it. He sighed resignedly. They receded, faded and were gone.

The immaculate figure of Jimmy Warrick appeared from the shadows and at the sound of his soft voice Billy felt the hardening of the muscles in the arms about her.

"It's Jimmy," she said swiftly, fearing what she saw in George's eyes. "He was watching the cottage and followed me here. He startled me in the darkness and I screamed. You won't hurt him, George. You promised me."

The stern eyes above her softened and the grim lines faded from his face. He smiled.

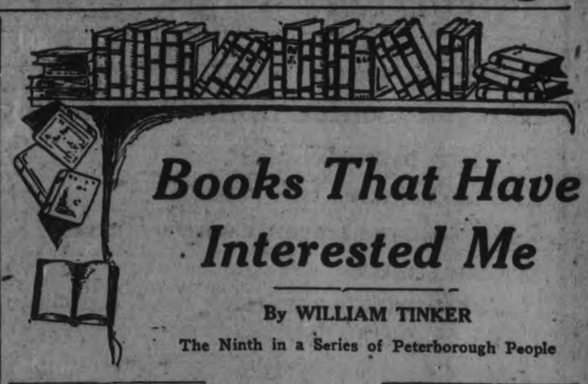
Jimmy, seeing that everything remained peaceable, advanced another step. "It was my fault," he began. "I'm sorry——"

"The less apologies you make, the better," George cut in. "I feel too happy to spoil this evening, much as I would like to."

He raised his hand as Jimmy made another attempt to be heard and Billy, fearing even yet he might use violence, laid her hand upon his arm. He drew her close to his side. "I'll not forget my promise, little girl," he said softly. Then to the attentive Jimmy:

"You have to thank Billy for the fact that I thank God for the fit of temper that made you throw that stone." He raised his head and spoke to the illimitable vastness of the star-studded sky. "There's a Divinity that shapes our ends, rough hew them as we may."

Hand in hand they crossed the strip of moon-bathed beach; the swells crooning their endless refrain; the pines whispering and sighing happily, and so, along a moon-blazed path to the porch where Sommers, who had seen the whole incident from his seat upon the steps, the morrow and black bass forgotten, was sending out across the silvered surface of Clear Lake his own idea of the latest popular song, in a badly cracked baritone.



Books That Have Interested Me

By WILLIAM TINKER

The Ninth in a Series of Peterborough People

To name ten books which have pleased one most is not as easy a task as it appears, for time, with its soothing influence gradually lays a veneer of forgetfulness over everything, and books, which pleased one strongly at the time they were read, gradually lose their influence, and their characters are forgotten as we read others day by day.

Here and there, however, like milestones along a journey, certain books stand out which even the influence of time has not entirely erased from our minds.

You will note that I have used the word "pleased" rather than "impressed" or "interested." By doing so I at once debar from this list all books of religious, educational, or technical nature.

These, I feel, really belong to another class, and should not be confused with books which we read for recreation and pleasure.

In my own case the first book I can recall is "Robinson Crusoe," which recollection I still hold dear. What a wonderful vista it opened out to me. How I travelled in my mind with Crusoe, attending his herds of goats and gathering grapes, and how I would have been delighted beyond measure to exchange the humdrum life I was leading at that time, for a life on a desert island. I must admit that I read it several times and each time enjoyed it immensely.

For some time after "Robinson Crusoe" I read many "School Stories," as they were termed, tales of boys in public schools indulging in all kinds of pranks and adventures, yet, with it all, doing some kind actions and playing the parts of men, showing that esprit de corps which I adored at that time, and have still a great reverence for. "Tom Brown's School Days" is one of the best of this line and is a splendid book for all young people.

As I grew older, my ideas of books like my ideas of the majority of things changed immensely, and I was fortunate enough to obtain a copy of "David Copperfield," by Dickens. This was the beginning of the wonderful experience of reading the works of Charles Dickens, and I enjoyed every word of "David Copperfield," even though I shed a few secret tears over the joys and troubles of my hero. For some years, I have promised myself the pleasure of reading this wonderful work again and I am sure I shall enjoy it very much.

"John Halifax, Gentleman," by Mulock, is also a splendid book. John has a very poor start in life, but by application, and hard work, he obtains a high position in the community in which he lives, and one of the most wonderful things about the book is, that in spite of his prosperity, he still remains John Halifax, Gentleman, exactly as he commenced. It is not everyone who can make his way in the community, and still retain that honoured title.

William Makepeace Thackeray, is the next author on my list. If Thackeray wrote nothing but "Vanity Fair" his name would be kept bright forever. To attempt to give a resume of its contents is almost impossible in the space at my disposal, but each time I have read it I have felt a certain amount of sympathy with Becky Sharpe, who had to make her own way in the world, and who did it very well too, up to a certain point, when she fell headlong to destruction. Although the book so supposed to have no hero, I believe there is one in William Dobbin, who does his duty, and more, throughout the book. As a sidelight upon life in Europe over one hundred years ago, "Vanity Fair" is without parallel. When readers of this paper have gone to ir reward, William akepeac Thackeray will still be remembered, and his "Vanity Fair" will live as long as there is a British Empire.

Before I go further, I must mention Robert Louis Stevenson, whose works, both prose and poetry have given pleasure to millions. I will not particularly point out any of his books of prose which are all splendid stories, but will mention some of his poems. His Children's Verses are excellent, and turn back the pages of yesterday for many readers. Which of us sick in bed as a child but can recall the scene with these words:—

'When I was sick and lay abed,
I had two pillows at my head,
And all my toys beside me lay,
To keep me happy all the day.

"And sometimes for an hour or so,
I watched my leaden soldiers go,
With different uniforms and drills,
Among the bed-clothes, through the hills."

or who cannot recall the long days, and the longer nights of childhood with these words:—

"In winter I get up at night,
And dress by yellow candle light,
In summer quite the other way,
I have to go to bed by day.

"I have to go to bed and see,
The birds still hopping on the tree,
And hear the grown-up people's feet,
Still going past me on the street."

If the author of these lines wrote nothing but his Children's Verses, his name would live for ever, and as long as there is a child who understands English, there will be a person who is delighted by his "Child's Garden of Verses."

A list of books of this nature, is, in my own opinion, hardly complete unless the name of Thomas Hardy is included. He is, I think, the most famous living author, and has undoubtedly carved for himself a niche in the hall of fame. His poems are excellent, and his prose is far beyond the praise of my poor pen.

"Far from the Madding Crowd" is one of the best of his books, and his description of country life is worthy of a wider range of readers. His pen pictures of the Plains and Heaths of South ern England are wonderful, and he carries his readers with him to see the sun rise on Egdon Heath, to feel the heat of the bright noonday, or to watch the Golden Orb sink into the West. The reader can feel the breeze blowing on the Heath or hear the patter of the rain on the roof of some lowly cottage. His characters are all alive, and his books hold the reader in a close embrace until his tale is told.

The works of the Bronte girls have always appealed to me, and "Jane Eyre" by Charlotte Bronte is perhaps the best. It has always been a mystery to me, and no doubt to many other people, how those girls, living in an obscure Yorkshire parish, could write the splendid books they did. Genius certainly flourished in Haworth about one hundred years ago.

My list is almost finished, but I would like to mention "The Little Minister," by J. M. Barrie, a splendid Scotch story which will do one's heart good to read. Barrie has written many books, all are good, but while Rowan Berries grow, "The Little Minister" will be enjoyed by the English-speaking race, and the love affairs of Cavin and the gipsy girl will be followed with intense interest.

My list of books would be incomplete without the works of Alfred Tennyson. His poems are beyond description and opened new realms for me when I read them. I much prefer his shorter poems, although his longer poems are excellent. What a rural scene of beauty his "Brook" brings to one's mind.

"I come from haunts of coot and hern,
I make a sudden sally,
I sparkle out among the fern,
To bicker down a valley.

"I steal by lawns and grassy plots,
I slide by hazel covers,
I move the sweet forget-me-nots,
That grow for happy lovers."

but his poem which is by far the best to my mind is "Crossing the Bar." It is well worth quoting in full, as it comprises only four short stanzas, but each stanza is a jewel of literature.

Sunset and evening star,
And one clear call for me.
And may there be no moaning of the bar,
When I put out to sea.

But such a tide as moving seems asleep,
Too full for sound or foam,
When that which drew from out the boundless deep,
Turns again home.

Twilight and evening bell,
And after that the dark,
And may there be no sadness of farewell,
When I embark;

For tho' from out our bourne of Time and Place,
The flood may bear me far,
I hope to meet my pilot face to face,
When I have crossed the bar.

That every reader of "The Examiner" may meet their pilot when they have "Crossed the Bar" is the earnest wish of

WILLIAM TINKER.

COUNTIES ACCOUNTS NOT AUDITED FOR OVER 15 YEARS, CHARGE MADE DEPUTY-REEVE MAHER, COBOURG

Says System, Not Counties Officials, Is At Fault.

GETS ACCOUNTANT.

Chartered Firm Engaged Instead of Two Local Men.

(By a Staff Reporter)

COBOURG, Jan. 29 — Deputy Reeve Maher of Cobourg, who has been exploding fireworks since the opening session of the Counties Council sprung his master sensation Wednesday afternoon, when he declared that the municipal accounts of the united counties had not been properly audited for over 15 years. He took pains to explain that he did not mean to cast any reflection upon the county officials, but declared that the system was at fault.

"You have not had an audit for 15 years," he declared. "I am saying that and I am proving it."

Deputy-Reeve Maher made these statements on the second reading of the by-law to appoint municipal auditors to pass on the financial transactions of 1925. With his colleague, Reeve McGuire of Cobourg, he was in favor of engaging a chartered accountant, instead of selecting two men, one from each of the counties. The accountant would cost $300 and the local men $200, $75 each for salaries and $50 for the services of a typist to draw up their reports. Mr. Maher said that in some cases these reports were drawn up by the county officials interested and that even if the auditors found anything wrong in the accounts of these officials they would be unable to get any reference to these errors into their reports.

Reeve Baker of Darlington was in favor of a chartered accountant. "The latter has to pass an examination before he is licensed, while the local man is not necessarily qualified," said Reeve Baker.

When a vote was taken on the motion of Reeve McGuire and Deputy-Reeve Maher to engage Oscar Hudson and Company of Toronto chartered accountants, as auditors, the result was a tie, 19 voting in the affirmative and 19 to continue the old system. Warden McCubbin's casting vote gave the appointment to the Toronto firm.

The Criminal Justice accounts will be audited by Col. F. D. Boggs and Reeve W. T. Wood of Millbrook.

Other Appointments

The major portion of the afternoon was devoted to making other appointments. Reeve Snelsinger of Colborne is commissioner of the registry office in that village and Deputy Reeve Maher of the office in Cobourg; Deputy Reeve Thickson of the office in West Durham and Deputy-Reeve Giddy of the one in Port Hope. Reeve McGuire of Cobourg was appointed Commissioner of the County Jail.

Reeve Davidson is commissioner of the Campbellford bridge, Reeve Hess of the one at Hastings, Reeve Grills of the Healey Falls bridge, Deputy Reeve Peake of Allan's bridge and the Sedgwick bridge and Deputy Reeve Palliser of the bridge at Wilson Island. The commissioners for the other bridges in the counties were chosen from the reeves and deputies nearest them.

School Trustees

On motion of Reeve Davidson, J. C. Birmingham was appointed trustee of the Campbellford High School for two years, succeeding Charles Benor who wished to retire. Mr. Birmingham was formerly an elected member of the Campbellford Board of Education and took an active part in the building of the new High School.

Fred Vanstone was appointed trustee of Bowmanville, H. Fullerton at Cobourg, John H. Stephens at Port Hope and Rev. J. E. Cook at Newcastle.

Board of Management

The board of management for the House of Refuge this year will consist of Warden McCubbin, Deputy Reeve Peake of Seymour and Reeve Fallis of Cavan.

Deputy-Reeve Sarcastic.

When Reeve Hess of Hastings secured a grant of $30 for lighting the county bridge in that village, Deputy-Reeve Maher sarcastically gave notice of a motion to apply for a grant of $30 to help pay for lighting the streets of Cobourg. He actually did write out such a notice and pass it up to the clerk's desk.

Reeves Jibb and Mouncey got a $20 grant for each of their respective constituencies, Hamilton and Alnwick Townships, for brushing ice roads across Rice Lake, and Reeve Bedal and Deputy-Reeve Ross of Brighton Township were allowed $20 for brushing an ice road on Lake Ontario from Presqu'ile Park to Stony Point.

Delegates Heard.

A representative of the Globe Indemnity Company again addressed the Council in the interests of county highway insurance. At the conclusion of his address, on motion of Deputy-Reeve Nelson of Percy and Reeve Baker of Darlington, it was decided that no insurance policy be taken out, but that the counties assume their own risks.

Highway Engineer.

Engineer Jardine of the Department of Highways addressed the Council, advocating the adoption of a uniform system of book-keeping by which the roads accounts would be kept separately. This plan, which has been under discussion for some years, would give the Department more credit for the grants made to municipalities. It would also tend to reduce the allowances made to towns and villages for helping up the connecting links within their borders.

On the suggestion of Reeve Wood, it was decided to postpone the consideration of this question until the June session, when it will be decided how much the counties will expend on the roads this year.

The Hastings Bridge.

The work of completing the Hastings bridge will be undertaken as soon as warm weather sets in, and will be under the direction of the same committee as had charge of it last summer, Reeve Hess, Deputy-Reeve Nelson and Road Superintendent Greer.

Other Business.

Mr. Scollard of Oshawa was heard in the interests of the Burnell heating system, on which the County Property Committee has already prepared an adverse report.

The reports of the Agricultural Committee and the Committee on Roads and Bridges, as given in another column, were adopted without debate or amendment by the Council sitting as a committee of the whole.

The Council adjourned until 10 a.m. Friday, when the reports of the committees on schools, county property and finance will be considered.

policy in this respect, when its bill had been brought down.

Opposed to Amendment.

Mr. Bourassa thought that the Meighen amendment was somewhat restrained." It was also, in his opinion, insufficient and unsatisfactory. He announced his intention of voting against the amendment and for the Government programme. At the same time, he reserved his right to vote as he felt on any piece of legislation which did not respond to his conception of a true and national spirit or was otherwise effective.

In respect to Protection for fruit and vegetables, he did not think anything should be done which would cause the poor man to pay higher for such commodities than he should, at a time of the year when they could not be produced on Canadian soil.

On the question of coal development, the consumer should not be forgotten. He was not in support of any policy which would make coal any higher to the people of Canada than it was at present. Mr. Bourassa also made the suggestion that ships carrying our grain to the Old Country might well return with Scotch and Welsh coal as a good part of their cargo.

J. S. Woodsworth.

J. S. Woodsworth (Labor, Winnipeg South) said that the vote on the non-confidence motion earlier in the session had been a decided victory for minorities in this country. The Speech from the Throne gave little promise of consideration of the needs of the industrial workers, but an announcement of the Government during the past few days had caused us to "decidedly modify our views," Two very urgent measures had been advocated by Labor members in Parliament for some years—Old Age Pensions and Unemployment Relief.

"We have been called by some newspapers Labor Communists. Well, if that means to take care of old people, and give assistance to unemployed, then we are willing to accept the name," said Mr. Woodsworth. Mr. Woodsworth then read a letter which he and Mr. Heaps had received from Premier King replying to questions addressed to the Premier. Mr. King's letter outlined the Government's legislative programme as it affected Labor. Mr. Woodsworth also read a letter from Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen expressing his views on legislation affecting Labor. Mr. Woodsworth declared that the Government's programme not only merited, but commanded, Labor support.

Mr. Woodsworth said that in view of the division of the House into groups, Parliament ought to do what the board of directors of any firm would do in such circumstances—elect an executive. An executive of the membership of the House could prepare details of the legislation to be submitted. Perhaps that was an impossible ideal at present, and so the only thing the House might do was unite on some common ground of legislative principle. The Labor members in the House were trying to do this and he thought the Progressives were making a similar attempt.

Party Appointments.

Mr. Woodsworth took exception to the present methods of making appointments under the crown. He had been approached recently by an aspirant for a judgeship, who asked for his influence in Government circles. It was a pity that there should be even a suggestion that a man who must be as impartial as a judge could be appointed for party considerations. Another place where Mr. Woodsworth thought party counted too much was in the realm of Senate appointments. Senators should be chosen for their ability or achievements in some walk of life, but party loyalty and party service should not be the greatest qualifications for an appointment to the Upper House.

Mr. Woodsworth discussed unemployment at some length. Unemployment seemed to be almost inherent in the progress of modern life. With every new development in mechanical invention, a number of people automatically lost their jobs.

Unemployment in West

He felt qualified to speak at least for Winnipeg, his own city, which was a sort of dumping ground for the people who came to Western Canada. Either they came there to find out where they could look for a job, or they migrated to some point further West and returned to Winnipeg after a while if they didn't like it. Mr. Woodsworth could not understand, why, with so many people in Winnipeg and other Western cities looking for work, the Government should be seeking fresh immigrants for that country. While the Government spent money on immigration propaganda, Western Canadian cities like Winnipeg and Vancouver paid money to insert advertisements in newspapers up and down the Continent warning people to keep away. The Labor member said that the Government should give at least the same encouragement and the same financial assistance to people already in Western Canada who might want to go on the land as it now offered to intending immigrants from other countries. Asked if unemployment was not as serious in 1912 to 1914, Mr. Woodsworth replied that no doubt it was. The war in fact had come as a God-send to many unemployed people.

Hon. Robert Rogers at this point asked on what authority Mr. Woodsworth asserted that there was unemployment in the West in those years.

Mr. Woodsworth retorted that he lived there then and knew whereof he spoke, but, he added, perhaps Mr. Rogers who also lived there then, resided in a section of the city from which he could see no unemployed. Mr. Woodsworth said that he and his fellow Labor member (A. A. Heaps) had lived in a part of the city where unemployment was perfectly obvious.

Distress in Cities

"We should," declared Mr. Woodsworth, "direct our attention at this time, not so much towards inducing immigrants to come here, but rather to those already here." If this practice were followed, the immigrants would "find" their way to Canada.

Should any member of the House, he continued, doubt the prevalency of distress in the big cities, his skepticism would be removed on communicating with any of the social workers.

"Is this no concern of Parliament as the representatives of the people?" he queried, in discussing the question of the high cost of living. The price of bread, for instance, was very high in Western Canada. There was a Registrar of Combines. Why could some results not be secured?

ANAEMIA SHOWS IN VARYING SYMPTOMS

Pains and Aches Disappear When the Blood is Built Up.

When the blood is thin every organ of the body suffers. So anemia shows in indigestion, nervousness and headaches as well as in loss of color and strength. Many symptoms develop which to the patient suggest widely different diseases and so cause much needless apprehension. The quickness with which a supply of rich blood will drive away all these pains and aches is shown by the result of treatment with such a reliable blood-building tonic as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The value of this medicine is fully proved by the experience of Miss Alice Sandberg, Ogema, Sask., who says:—"I can speak with the highest praise of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, for to this medicine I owe my present good health. Last winter I became run-down, was pale and sickly looking. My back ached and I had severe pains in the stomach. At times my head ached and I would feel dizzy. I tried various medicines but they did not help me. A friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I can scarcely say how glad I am that I acted on this advice. I had not been taking the pills very long when I felt a change for the better. Day by day I became stronger. The headaches, backaches, stomach troubles and dizziness disappeared and I was again enjoying good health. You may be sure I shall ever have a good word to say to Dr. Williams Pink Pills.

If you need a blood-building tonic begin taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills today. Sold by all medicine dealers or sent by mail at 50 cents a box by writing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 29 (Canadian Press)—There was no improvement in the export business in grain here today owing to the fact that foreign buyers were not disposed to pay the prices asked by exporters. The demand from domestic buyers for cash grain in the Montreal market was again limited and business was dull.

Business in winter wheat flour was also very disappointing, the movement being confined to odd small lots to meet actual wants.

The butter market was very firm and prices were fully maintained with townships and New Zealand No. 1 Pasteurized Creamery selling at 44c per lb., and No. 2 Pasteurized at 43c per lb., while some small lots of Canadian fresh made No. 1 Pasteurized sold at 43 1-2c per lb. There was no further change in the wholesale jobbing price yesterday, but the feeling was strong and the impression of some in the trade was that they would be marked up another 1c per lb. next week.

The cheese market was unchanged owing to the fact that there was little demand from any source for supplies and prices on spot were steady with early makes quoted at 21c to 21 1-2c per lb., and current receipts at 17 1-4c to 17 3-4c per lb.

There was no improvement in the demand for potatoes, but as receipts continue small and holders of stock on spot were not pressing sales the undertone to the market remains about steady and prices were unchanged with car lots of New Brunswick Green Mountains selling at $3 to $3.25 per bag, and Quebec varieties at $2.75 to $3 per bag of 90 lbs., ex-track.

She Could Hardly Do Her Housework Nerves Were So Bad

Mrs. I. M. Parks, Consecon, Ont., writes:—"I had heart and nerve trouble, and became so short of breath I could hardly do my daily housework, and was so nervous I could not think of staying alone, as every little sound I heard felt like a shock to me.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Jan. 29 (Canadian Press)—Active selling, largely of a profit-taking character proved to be a stumbling block today upsetting efforts towards higher prices for wheat. One of the reasons cited for the selling was an official order requiring that all grain traders, whether members orbob-members of exchanges, shall report to the Government any account involving 500,000 bushels, or more. The wheat market closed unsettled, 1-8 to 1 1-8 lower, May $1.74 5-8 to $1.75 and July $1.52 1-4 to $1.52 3-8, with corn 1-4c to 1-2c down, oats unchanged to 1-2c lower, and provisions varying from 5c decline to a rise of 10 cents.

EGG MARKETS

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 29 (Canadian Press) — Egg markets are steady to higher today with the cold weather having a beneficial effect.

Toronto fresh prices higher, wholesale specials 48, extras 46 to 47, firsts 41 to 42; storage stocks selling better but no stability to quotations yet.

Montreal market unchanged in tone and price with the cold weather helping to stimulate the fresh market. Storage stocks are draggy.

MINNEAPOLIS GRAIN AND FLOUR

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 29 (Canadian Press)—Flour 10 to 20 cents higher at $9.70 to $9.75 a barrel. Shipments 43,531 barrels.

NEW YORK BUTTER

NEW YORK, Jan. 29 (Canadian Press) — Butter firm; creamery, higher than extras, 47 to 47 1-2c; do. extras, (92 score) 46 1-2c; do. firsts (88 to 91 score) 44 to 46c.

BIG PAPER MILL.

Will Be Constructed at or Near Smoky Falls, Ont.

TORONTO, Jan. 30 —(Canadian Press).—A pulp and paper mill employing 3,000 men and having a daily output of 500 tons of newsprint will be constructed at or near Smoky Falls, in New Ontario.

This announcement was made here yesterday by J. H. Black, general manager of the Spruce Falls Pulp and Paper Co. Construction of the mill is associated with the building of a fifty mile logging railroad from Kapuskasing, on the transcontinental line, to Smoky Falls, which was announced a short while ago.

OBITUARY.

MRS. WILLIAM MOORE.

NORHAM, Jan. 30.—A large concourse of relatives, friends and neighbors attended the funeral services held on Wednesday at 2 p.m. for the late Mrs. William Moore, who passed away early Monday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John Diamond.

Mrs. Moore was born in Devonshire, England, 89 years ago last April. Her first acquaintances in Canada were at Plainville, Hamilton township, where she made many fast friends, a number of whom were present at the service on Wednesday. Later the deceased with her husband moved to Cramahe Township and while here endeared herself to all who knew her. Since the death of her husband about twenty-five years ago she resided with her daughter, Mrs. John Diamond. The service was conducted by her pastor, Rev. J. F. Everson.

The pall bearers were Robert J. Mitchell, Lewis Denike, Robert Inglis, James Arkels, Fred H. Huycke and Alfred O. Clifie. Her remains were placed in the family plot in Stone's cemetery beside those of her late husband and son, George Henry.

MILLBROOK C.G.I.T. ELECTED OFFICERS

Miss Jean Burnham is President—Good Balance on Hand.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 30.—The Wide Awakes group Canadian Girls in Training, held its annual meeting on Wednesday evening, with twelve members in attendance.

The secretary's report, read by Margaret Howard, showed an average attendance of thirteen during the past year, the membership roll varying from twelve to sixteen throughout the twelve months. A standard group is not supposed to have more than from eight to ten members, according to the constitution, but local circumstances are allowed to govern the mentor in arrangements along this line. Where it is not possible to have two groups, girls from 12 to 17 may be combined in one organization.

The treasurer's report gave a balance of $55.81 in the bank.

The election of officers for 1926 resulted as follows:

President—Jean Burnham.
Vice-President—Hazel McMahon.
Secretary—Elsie Spence.
Treasurer—Elvira Davis.
Herald—Flossie McMahon.
Organist—Annie McMahon.
Assistant Organist—Etta Peel.

During the devotional period a talk on "Prodigal Daring with God in Prayer," was given by the leader, the lesson being based on Elijah's contest with the prophets of Baal on Mount Carmel in I Kings, 18th chapter.

The usual recreational period was enjoyed at the close.

A map talk on Korea was the chief feature of the program at the Young People's League this week, the second vice-president, Mrs. G. W. Sayes, taking this means of impressing some facts about the mission stations on this field which is a new one to the United Church.

The enlarged missionary interests of the church since union became an established fact has led to the adoption of a tour of the world during 1926, in young people's societies, one country being visited each month. January was given to a study of Japan. February took the students in mind to Korea where fifty missionaries are at work. Japan having a total of eighty. Honan, North China, where missionairies of the former Presbyterian church labor for the Kingdom, will be visited via the study route in March. The tour will conclude with a trip across Canada, reaching home by Christmas, 1926. Special maps are secured each month, and photographs and lantern slides are also available.

The Continuation School girls have organized two hockey teams and are enjoying practice on the Cosmos rink under the training of Mr. H. Jordan. The members included: Miss S. Muir, Miss K. Sutton, Elizabeth Russell, Irene and Thelma Armstrong, Phyliss Brown, captain.

Margaret Howard, Hazel McMahon, Margaret McCarthy, Bell Wood, Pearl Davis, Elsie Spence, captain.

Owing to the unfavorable weather the hockey match between the Peterborough Collegiate team and the local Cosmos club, which was to have taken place on Thursday evening, was postponed until a later date. The second carnival of the season, under the auspices of the Cosmos club, will be held on Thursday, February 4.

Councillor G. W. and Mrs. Sayles generously gave the use of their home for the entertainment of the Port Hope hockey club at tea on Tuesday evening, the local club also enjoying a hot supper after the game.

Mrs. E. Whyte is visiting her sister, Mrs. J. Fitzgerald, in Toronto.

Miss Mamie Collins is visiting friends in Toronto, Fergus and Kitchener expecting to be absent about one month.

A special meeting of the Ladies' Aid of the United Church is called to meet at the home of Mr. G. E. Burnham on Saturday, January 30, at 3 p.m. to consider an item of important business which requires immediate action.

THE BEST DANCE

By Juanita Hamel

Not the first dance, perhaps, but the one when he whispers, "Let's sit this out!" Then her heart beats faster and her cheeks glow like roses, her eyes shine like twin stars, for she feels Love is close. For she knows that now is the time when he will ask her the question that has trembled so long on his lips., and which, in fancy, she has answered a thousand times. Of course it will be "Yes!" And this dance will remain forever in her memory as the very best dance of her whole life, for it is bringing her the Love and Happiness for which she has so long yearned.

NEW HIGH CROWN

Here is an example of the new high crown creased to slope slightly forward over a rippling brim. It is shown in the new muscated brown of softest felt.

Menus for the Family

Breakfast—Grape fruit sections, cereal, thin cream, omelet with cream sauce, graham muffins, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Baked spaghetti with cheese, stewed tomatoes, toasted muffins, spice cake, milk, tea.

Dinner—Casserole of chicken and rice, baked squash, cabbage and pineapple salad, whole wheat rolls, lemon meringue pie, milk, coffee.

Split left-over muffins and toast in a very hot oven. Butter and serve hot. These toasted muffins are as delicious with afternoon tea as any "crumpet" or "scone" served in a fashionable tea room. The muffins must be toasted evenly brown and quite crisp and must be generously buttered.

Spice cakes are particularly appealing in cold weather. The following cake is an adequate dessert in itself.

Spice Cake.

Yolks of 3 eggs, 1 whole egg, 1 1-2 cups brown sugar, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 2 1-2 cups flour, 1-2 cup butter, 1 cup sweet milk, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-4 teaspoon salt.

Cream butter and beat in sugar. Add eggs well beaten. Mix and sift flour, baking powder, salt and cinnamon. Add about 1-3 of the dry ingredients to first mixture. Mix thoroughly and add 1-3 milk. Continue adding dry ingredients and milk alternately until all is used. Turn into an oiled and floured dripping pan and bake 30 minutes in a moderate oven. Let cool slightly after removing from the oven and cover with the following frosting.

Frosting.

Whites 3 eggs, 1 1-2 cups brown sugar. The frosting uses the whites of the eggs left from the cake.

Roll sugar on molding board to remove lumps. Beat whites of eggs on a large platter with a wire whisk until stiff and dry. Beat sugar into whites gradually. Pile on cake and put into a hot oven for eight minutes to puff and brown the meringue.

A pan of cold water placed under the cake will prevent too hard baking on bottom while the meringue is browning.

PAPA'S CLOTHES' COST EXCEEDS THAT OF WIFE

Men Haven't Acquired Economy Instinct Says Cynthia Grey.

WOMEN HAVE IT.

Also Have Greater Spirit of Unselfish Devotion, She Says.

(By Cynthia Grey.)

Who spends the most for clothes in your family—papa or mama?

The average husband spends more for clothes than the average wife, says the Department of Labor, which has made an annual budget for the average wife.

This budget totals $149.65. That's for a year, not a month!

The budget allows only one hat a year. The hat costs $4.42, according to this governmental budget. The wool coat costs $23.61.

But, in fine deference to the modern woman's demand for silken lingerie, the budget permits one silk vest, one silk chemise, one silk nightgown, and one silk kimona.

One pair of silk stockings at $1.22!

One union suit and one woolen undershirt (shades of our foremothers!) are enumerated in this illuminating budget!

But I did not especially set forth to quibble about either the amount of the budget or the various items permitted.

The thing which really intrigued me was this belated governmental recognition that a husband spends more money for his clothes than a woman!

This is only what every wife, every woman, has known for lo these long and weary years!

Yes, yes, we know all the old arguments! Papa must dress well in his work. It's a matter of business. A man out in the world must look successful in order to be successful.

Some truth in this theory, of course. But also there's a lot of bunk in it.

The truth of the matter is that men do not have, never have had, and never will have the economy instinct.

If women aren't born with it, and I think they are, they are forced to acquire it. A wife and mother is in closer contact with the needs of her home and family than is the husband. She knows the million demands upon the family wallet.

Besides, she cares more. No one will deny that the spirit of unselfish love and devotion to those about her is much stronger in women than men.

Few fathers would sacrifice and economize as do mothers even if the acute need for such sacrifice and economy were brought home to them.

ECLIPSE FASHIONS

Exclusive Patterns by Hazel Bazo

A Perfect Sports Frock

Such a two-piece frock is noted at every smart sports event. The blouse carries the smartest of details, from its perfect fitting collar to inverted plaits either side of the front and back, and pockets for golf balls. The sleeves show an interesting treatment, and run into the neck. The inverted plaits extend into the skirt and provide extra fulness, an essential feature of this sports frock. The diagram pictures the simple design of blouse No. 1231, which is in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. Size 36 bust requires 2⅝ yards of 36-inch, or 2⅝ yards of 40-inch material. The skirt, No. 1165, may be made with or without the camisole top, and is in sizes 28, 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38 inches waist. Size 30 waist requires 2¼ yards of 36 or 40-inch material for the skirt without camisole top; or 1¾ yards of 36 or 40-inch for the skirt with camisole top, with 1¼ yards of lining for the camisole. Price 20 cents each pattern.

Many styles of smart apparel may be found in our Fashion Book. Our designers originate their patterns in the heart of the style centers, and their creations are those of tested popularity, brought within the means of the average woman. Price of the book 10 cents the copy.

MRS. MARRINIER

Weeping Eczema relieved by "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

MRS. JOS. P. MARRINIER

"For three years I suffered with weeping Eczema on the back of my hands. I consulted our family doctor and other physicians, but all the treatments and salves prescribed gave me no permanent relief. When baby came, I was afraid that he too would be affected. I had practically considered my case hopeless when I started to use "Fruit-a-tives" and "Sootha-Salva." In a short time the eczema completely disappeared, baby has always been wonderfully well, and I have not had a trace of it for four years." —Mrs. Jos. P. Marrinier, 452 Arlington Ave., Ottawa, Ont.

This marvelous fruit medicine helps the bowels and kidneys to rid the system of waste, and cleanses the blood stream so that the pure, rich blood soon heals the itching, inflamed skin. "Fruit-a-tives" are obtainable in all drug stores, at 25c. and 50c. a box. If "Sootha-Salva," (50c. a box), is not obtainable at your dealer's, order it direct from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

A Fashion Model's Diary

By Grace Thorncliffe

SHE DESCRIBES A TAFFETA EVENING CAPE.

Yesterday afternoon Madame let Gaby and me leave the shop early, as we had been invited to an advance showing of early Spring fashions, and we were awfully anxious to go.

I say invited because we had been invited to model the gowns, at twenty-five dollars for about two hours' work, and it seemed too good to let go by.

Indeed, manikins' salaries are not the fabulous sums that some people say they are, and when Madame knew so well how much of the week's work twenty-five dollars represented, she didn't have the heart to refuse to let us go.

So Gaby and I hurried down. The people running the fashion show had already provided several types of slippers to fit us, and we were to be prepared to show both afternoon and evening things.

Many of the things were of the type Madame had shown for Palm Beach earlier in the season, so we felt quite at home in them.

The thing I liked most from the whole collection was a very youthful little taffeta evening cape, which I am showing here in my diary, just because it is so attractive.

I modeled it, and the woman who assisted me into it assured me that it is the newest thing from Paris.

The taffeta is lovely, a lovely buttercup yellow, and the cape is generously gathered at the neck and again where it joins the top flounce of the three that finish its length.

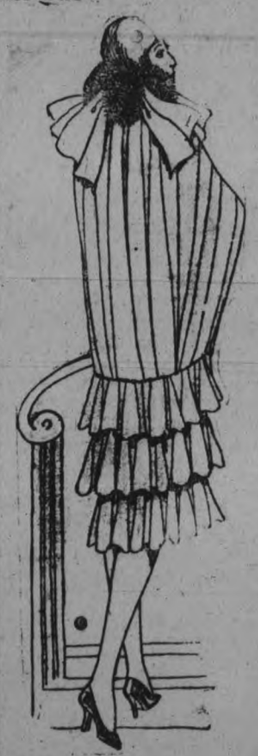
What I liked most of all was the unusual collar, made of puffs of the material, with an occasional "powder puff" of black fox fur to add variety.

When I came back to Madame's shop today I asked her what she thought of taffeta as a fashion item, and she assured me that there would be a good bit of it this Spring.

"There is a lot of new taffeta that is quite effective," she informed me. "The pin checked pattern is quite lovely, and I have already designed a little two-piece frock of it."

I asked her what it was like, and she says there is a pleated skirt, and a short bolero jacket worn over a finely tucked net blouse, with a narrow red suede tie and a red suede belt.

All these things sound so Spring-like that I can hardly wait for the lovely new clothes to begin coming out.



This Yellow Taffeta Cape Has Touches of Black Fox on the Collar.

Keep the Skin Clear

By the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment

Dr. Chase's Ointment is so delightfully soothing and healing and so certainly effective in keeping the skin soft, smooth and clear that it only has to be tried to be appreciated.

You may know of its value as a relief from eczema, salt rheum and other serious skin diseases. But have you realized that as a means of clearing and beautifying the skin it has no equal and no rival.

Pimples, blackheads, roughness and redness of the skin, irritations and eruptions yield readily when this soothing, healing ointment is applied frequently.

Men use Dr. Chase's Ointment after shaving to relieve the irritation of the tender skin. In scores of ways it is useful in every home and soon becomes a household necessity.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

(1) Is it proper to invite young men to take dinner at my home? (2) When Miss E. introduces Mr. H. to me should I shake hands with him? (3) Should I say I am delighted to meet him or should he? PET.

PET: (1) An invitation to dinner at your home should come from our mother, as she is the hostess.

(2) I you have heard of this young man through Miss C. and are especially glad to meet him you may extend your hand as a gesture of cordiality. However, under ordinary circumstances this is not necessary.

(3) Simply say "How do you do," or, better still, add his name to this phrase if you are sure you have heard it correctly.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper, and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her in care of this office.

HOW BROOM CORN CAME

Benjamin Franklin is the father of the broom industry in America. A lady came to Philadelphia from Europe and brought a whisk broom. Franklin happened to see it one day, and noticed the unusual stiffness of the fibers. Attached to one straw he saw a seed pod which he requested of the lady. Franklin is said to have planted the seed and thus he grew the first broom corn in the United States.

DELICIOUS OYSTER RECIPES.

For cooked oysters, the following recipes will be found unusually good. Remember that the oysters themselves need very little cooking, too long cooking renders them hard and flavorless.

Cheese Scallop.

Butter a rather shallow pudding dish. Drain and put into the dish, a pint of oysters. Sprinkle with a tablespoonful of finely minced onion, dust with pepper and salt, lay over six slices of bacon, sprinkle with a few fine crumbs, dot with little lumps of butter, dust with pepper and salt, then sprinkle with two heaping tablespoonfuls of grated American cheese. Place in the oven and bake a delicate brown. Garnish with parsley and lemon quarters.

Oyster Shortcake.

Drain a quart of fresh oysters from their liquor and set aside. Make a cream sauce using a cupful of the oyster liquor and a cupful of cream, and a half cupful of milk. Heat, season with pepper and salt, and thicken with white roux. Turn in the oysters and let cook two minutes. Have ready an old-fashioned shortcake, made the same as for a strawberry filling, split hot and well buttered. Lift oysters with a skimmer and fill the bottom layer, put on the top one and pour over the oysters and cream sauce. Serve hot.

Oyster Biscuit.

Make quick biscuit in the usual way and roll out the dough in two pieces an eighth of an inch thick. Cut the biscuits in good sized rounds. Take a pint of oysters drain and dry them off on a towel, dip in melted butter and dust with a little pepper and salt, lay two on each one of half the rounds, lay the other rounds over them, pinching them together a bit on the edges. Prick the tops with a fork and bake as usual.

HEDDA HOYT TALKS ABOUT THINGS THAT INTEREST THE BUSY WOMAN OF 1925

BARGAIN DAYS.

By Hedda Hoyt.

(Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, Jan. 29 (United Press).—If you were offered a $100 frock for $20 would you take it? Or are you one of those supercilious persons who feel it beneath your dignity to visit the bargain sales and the basements of department stores.

This is the season of real bargains. Gowns and hats are selling at tremendous reductions and almost every Winter model is on sale. A visit to the basement departments of the stores offers one an opportunity to pick up even better bargains than the regular departments can offer. But—one must have sufficient knowledge of styles to select the few real values. Almost every rack has at least one real bargain, if one can find it. It is put on the rack to act as a "come on" for the other misfits and to draw attention to the bargains.

In searching for a bargain always remember that nothing is tremendously reduced without a reason. Some frocks are too tight in the hips for the average woman, some are soiled or damaged, some are out of style and some are reduced because they were not worth much in the beginning. The gown that looks as though it has nothing wrong with it is a good one to beware of since it usually falls under the last category.

Small-hipped models may be remodeled by using godets at the sides of matching material, soiled garments may be cleaned and even out-of-style models may sometimes be altered. If the garment has actually been a high-priced model and if it can be remodeled it is well worth purchasing providing it is becoming and not of some blatant style that one has seen much of.

Just now we find lovely felt and velour hats in soft pastel shades, slightly soiled, reduced to half price. They can be cleaned for fifty cents, and used throughout the Spring. Reliable shoe shops are selling $12 shoes for $7 and these are vastly better bargains than one gets at shops where shoes are originally sold for $6 or $7 since their lasting qualities are better. One should always purchase a high-priced shoe that is reduced in preference to the shoe that is of cehaper type if one wishes to keep the feet in good condition.

Hosiery sales are often sales we should beware of since it stands to reason that stockings are in constant demand and there is no reason to reduce them. Most reductions are "seconds" or they are old goods that have laid on the shelf until they are rotted. It is almost better to buy a cheap stocking than an expensive one that is reduced.

The other day I saw elbow-length gloves of fine glazed kid selling for $1.10 in a New York store. Doubtless these originally sold for around $4. One woman purchased several pairs and cut them off to short, wristlet length.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

There are many strange names in medicine. Every day you meet a new one. I have no desire to make a doctor of you, but I do want every reader to have an intelligent appreciation of diseases. This desire is founded on the hope that by giving you this information, you will, when you are sick, be a better patient because you will be one who understands.

It may not make you happy to be reminded that some day you will need a doctor. But you will. The need comes to everybody at least once in a lifetime.

You can be so helpful if you care to be. You can make it easier for the doctor and the nurse. I want to help you to be helpful.

Nobody can be happy over a mystery. We all hate or fear everything mysterious. That is one reason we dread some diseases more than others.

Of course, we have learned to fear some diseases because we know how fatal they are. But by understanding more about some others we now dread, we may take a more sensible view of them.

Today I want to tell you about "ileus," a word derived from the Greek and meaning "a severe kind of colic." It is given another name, too. This is "volvulus," from a Latin word meaning "to roll."

You will see at once how appropriate both these names are. They are given to an unfortunate condition where the intestine rolls upon itself, causing a twist or kink. This produces a partial or complete stoppage of the bowel, with terrible colic as the natural result.

Not all cases of ileus are due to rolling of the intestine. On this account not every ileus is really a volvulus. There are other causes for obstruction of the intestine and severe colic.

After an abdominal operation or inflammation of the abdominal lining there will be more or less scar tissue, producing adhesions in some cases. These sometimes surround the bowel and in their contraction may constrict the intestine, cutting off free passage through it.

A growth in the abdominal cavity may become so large as to press upon the intestine and interfere with its function. Such a growth may be a harmless one until its size produces uncomfortable symptoms. Or the growth may be cancerous in its type. Then there is added to the painful pressure symptoms, the malignant results of its cancerous nature.

In ileus there will be pain, constipation, retching and vomiting. Unless there is speedy relief the pulse becomes feeble, the face pinched and the body cold. Serious collapse threatens.

The family doctor will take charge of the treatment. Food should be cut off at once, while the doctor is on the way.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

SUNDAY, JANUARY 31 AND MONDAY, FEBRUARY 1.

Sunday's horoscope holds auguries of unusual activities in the normal affairs of the day, with the mind well stimulated and leaning toward investigation of the mystical and the occult as well as literature or poetry.

Those whose birthday it is may have an active year in relation to new projects or in connection with trusts, secret societies or in diplomacy. A child born on this day may be poetic and imaginative yet will not be wanting in practical affairs.

Monday's astrological forecast shows considerable stirring about with travel and change which should bring substantial benefit, provided that the tendency toward impulsive deeds and quarrels be suppressed. Finances should be conservatively managed and care should be taken in affixing the signature to any documents.

Those whose birthday it is may have an eventful year with important change or travel, which should be of substantial benefit if they are guarded in speech and do not indulge in impetuous or tumultuous acts. Sign papers carefully and guard against loss. A child born on this day will probably be aggressive and thoughtless.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

THE BIG UMBRELLA..

Then Mister Snoopsy Rushed Out of the House With the Umbrella.

"Where are your pennies?" roared Mister Snoopsy in thundering tones that shook the house.

Everybody wondered where all the voice came from, for Mister Snoopsy was only a shadow. But anyway, he had the voice tucked away somewhere, for he kept on roaring until the very lights rattled on the wall.

"Where are all your pennies, Mister Havalook? You've saved all the pennies that rolled down the cracks to Hidy Go Land and I want them! At once!" he roared.

"Well," sighed Mister Havalook, who seemed suddenly to have lost all his spunk. "I was saving them to build a new laundry so I could have my washing done right. My old one is about worn out, and every time I send by clothes to a public laundry, they get lost."

"It's a fine ambition," said Mister Snoopsy, "but mine is still finer. I want those pennies to buy me a body. I'm tired of being just a shadow and I saw a fine body in a window with a smart suit and hat and overcoat on it marked, 'All for $59.00.' That's fifty nine hundred pennies. Move quickly, sir, before I lose my temper."

Mister Havalook went to the wall and pressed another button. This wall did exactly as the first wall had done— folded itself up like a jack-knife.

And there, what should they all behold but barrels and barrels of pennies.

Mister Snoopsy jumped in and bent over one barrel after the other.

"Aha!" he said. "Aha! I shall have, not one body, but six, and I shall be called Mister Snoopsies, and I can eat six dinners at once and visit six countries all at once and fight six enemies all at once. Hurray!"

"I think it would be a good thing to let the revolution start, don't you?" whispered the Tin Soldier to Mister Havalook.

"Yes, yes! I do!" said that gentleman.

"So do I," said Nick. "He has no right to your money, sir!"

"I have by gun," said the Tin Soldier bravely.

"And I have my drumstick backbone if ever I can get it untied," said Limber Long Legs. "It would make a fine club."

"What's that?" said Mister Snoopsie suspiciously. "What's that about guns and backbones? And did I hear the word revolution? I'll show you."

So saying he gave one leap into the chest where the lost umbrellas were kept and came out with a perfectly enormous black cotton umbrella that must have belonged to Horace Greeley or Robinson Crusoe or Mister Sparks, the lawyer.

And before anyone had time to so much as faint or shriek or wink even, he scooped up everyone of the dolls into the umbrella and closed it again with a bang.

Then he took a piece of stout string and tied the top shut.

All but Mister Havalook. He had not scooped him. But he had thrown the Twins into the big umbrella along with the others.

Then Mister Snoopsy rushed out of the house with the umbrella. He whirled it six times around his head like a baseball pitcher whirls a ball before he throws it. "May you land on a corner of the new moon and hang there forever!" he cried, as he gave it a fling high up into the air.

"We'll never, never get back to the earth now," said Nancy in a smothered voice as the umbrella sped on to the moon.

"It's better than climbing stairs," said Nick. "Hidy Go Land is five miles down, you know."

"That's a comfort," said Limber Long Legs.

EXPORT DUTY ON PULPWOOD AND LOGS AGAIN URGED BY PULP AND PAPER ASSOCIATION CONVENTION

Not Actuated By Motives Detrimental To United States' Consumers.

MAINTAIN SUPPLY.

Pulp Used in Making Artificial Silks and Woolens.

MONTREAL, Jan. 30 (Canadian Press).—Action taken by the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association at last year's annual meeting, calling upon Government authorities to impose an export duty on all logs and pulpwood exported from Canada, was re-affirmed by the association yesterday. Another resolution was submitted asking the association to declare "its approval of legislation making it compulsory to manufacture in Canada all wood cut off Federal and Provincial lands, which may hereafter be sold, granted or otherwise disposed of by the Crown, as a step in the direction of forest conservation; and, in the event of the adoption of such legislation, pledges its best endeavors to provide an adequate market for all wood harvested from allotments made to bona fide farmers and settlers."

Discussion followed, and it was felt that the resolution interfered with the one calling for the export duty. Eventually, it was dropped.

Among the resolutions adopted was one expressing regret at the recent death of John R. Booth, pioneer lumber king. The association also placed on the records its formal recognition of the grant made toward the industrial research chair at McGill University by the late Mrs. E. B. Eddy.

Ex-President's Warning.

Frank W. Clarke, the retiring president, in an address, sounded a note of alarm on the pulpwood situation in Canada. He said much had been done during the last year to emphasize the importance of the situation and to attract to it the serious consideration of the Canadian people, but the question of the particular policy to be adopted was still a matter of diversified opinion. He believed that a way should and would be found to harmonize the views of the association members so that a united stand could be taken.

Conserve Supply.

"It is to be hoped," he said, "that this may be achieved without entailing a misunderstanding with our fellow industrialists outside of Canada. Perhaps it would not be out of place for me to suggest that so far from being actuated by selfish motives, with the purpose of monopolizing the newsprint industry to the detriment of the United States consumer and the embarrassment of our foreign competitors, as has been alleged, we are merely seeking a means of assuring a continuance of supply of our raw materials at a reasonable price. Unless this can be accomplished it is quite certain that before many years the cost of pulpwood will be very much enhanced and the price of newsprint with it.

"Quite frankly," he continued, "I am at a loss to understand the attitude of our friends across the border toward this very important question. It is difficult to realize what would have happened had the United States not been able to draw on Canada's pulpwood resources when their own had reached the point of exhaustion."

Silk Made From Wood.

The consumption of wood had been further increased because of its growing use in the manufacture of artificial silks and woollens, the speaker said. He concluded his remarks on the situation by asserting that the Government should tax lumber going abroad and use the money obtained to further forest protection and for fresh propagation for the ultimate benefit of the consumer.

MACKEREL.

Always soak salt mackerel in cold water overnight before using.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

HOW RED-BREASTED GROSBEAK HELPS HIS FRIENDS.

Old Hooty Owl blinked his great, big, yellow eyes, stretched and poked his head out of the hollow tree where he made his home.

The soft mellow glow of the moon made the meadows so bright, Hooty Owl could hardly keep his eyes open. He blinked and winked several times before he could make up his mind whether it was night or daytime.

"Of course, it's night," he finally concluded. "I've been asleep a long time.

"I'm mighty hungry."

Hooty Owl flew out of the oak tree towards the woods.

He had to go a long way before he saw the grasses moving under him, then he knew some little creature was stirring around.

"A mouse, as sure as I'm alive!" He started down towards the grasses, when out upon the stillness of the moonlight night, burst the soft, sweet, rolling song of a wakeful bird.

It was such a strange thing at the midnight hour that Hooty Owl stopped to listen, and when he turned back, Mr. Field Mousie was nowhere in sight.

"Pshaw! If I ever get hold of that Mockingbird, I'll give him a piece of my mind!" and Hooty Owl flew into the tree where the singing came from. Instead of Billy Mockingbird, as he expected, there on the limb beside a dear little nest, sat a bird, a wee bit smaller than Robin Redbreast. His head and back were black. On his breast he wore a lovely, rose-colored shield-shaped patch. From between his yellow beak came the loveliest of songs.

"Well," grunted Hooty Owl when

"May I Ask Who You Are."

the song was finished, "may I ask who you are?"

"Surely, you may," piped the little rose-breasted bird. "I'm Mr. Red-breasted Grosbeak and this is my wife. What can I do for you?"

"Stop singing long enough for me to catch something for my dinner.

"I was just ready to pounce down upon Daddy Field Mousie when your song startled me and Daddy Field Mousie got away," grunted Hooty Owl. "Birds like you should be in bed sound asleep at this hour of the night. That's the moon shining, not the sun," and with a disgusted air Hooty Owl sailed away.

"I'm so glad you sang that song," laughed Mamma Red-breasted Grosbeak. "You saved Daddy Field Mousie's life."

"I'm glad I sang then," chuckled Daddy Red-breasted Grosbeak. "If singing helps my meadow friends, then I'll awaken and sing every moonlight night at midnight," and opening his pretty yellow beak Daddy Red-breasted Grosbeak flooded the meadows with his beautiful song.

And so you can hear him any bright moonlight night, singing his merry song of warning to the wee little woodfolk that scamper and play among the weeds around his home.

QUIET ZONE.

Sh-h! Ya gotta be quiet an' walk on your toes; the baby's asleepin' jes' now. We've worried a heap 'bout the tot, goodness knows. There's fever been burnin' her brow.

The window's been up and the shades have been down. We're keepin' the room kinda cool. She's bundled up tight in a warm sleepin' gown, but she breathes the fresh air as a rule.

Why, sure, ya kin peek in the room, if ya like. A mighty sweet picture you'll see. But, be a bit careful; don't wake the wee tike. She's sleepy as sleepy kin be.

The doctor jes' called and he cheered us a lot. "There's no need to worry," he said. "It's only a fever that's ailin' the tot. Jes' keep her real quiet in bed."

Of course we've been tendin' the best we know how, and we'll jes' keep on tendin,' and then, she'll lose all the fever that's burnin' her brow—and soon be out playin' again.

SINGING FOR FAN DIFFERENT FROM THEATRE RECITAL

Soloists Need Training Before They Can Win Fame "on the Air."

FERTE TELLS HOW.

Enunciator Mus t Be Clear and Voice Must Have Bell-Like Quality.

It's a long jump from the concert stage to radio broadcast soloist, and it requires special training for even the greatest singers to give a perfect recital before the microphone!

Veteran theatrical stars get stage fright in a broadcast studio and renowned artists give recitals which often sound discordant to radio listeners.

Special preparation and training is essential if songs are to make the same impression by radio reception as they do in a concert hall.

Joseph Ferte, well-known soloist, has made a study of the conditions encountered before the "mike" and has discovered the salient facts on broadcasting vocal selections.

Popular Soloist.

Ferte had a wide experience as soloist before he began to broadcast by radio. He was a member of the original Century Opera Co., and when it discontinued he entered upon light opera work. This was followed by three years of traveling from coast to coast as featured soloist, appearing on the stages of America's largest theaters.

While Ferte was appearing on the stage as soloist, he studied radio broadcasting and discovered that poor enunciation, poor selection on numbers and the lack of knowledge on how to sing before a microphone was causing singers to register poor reception for radio listeners.

A survey of radio conditions showed Ferte the proper way to broadcast, and by using the method which he discovered he has been able to win fame as a national favorite.

Broadcast Rules.

"In the first place," says Ferte, "the singer must have a voice that is clear as a bell, for the most minute imperfections are picked up and exaggerated by the sensitive microphone.

"Songs to be sung by radio must be melodious and have a definite appeal. The rhythm of the harmony must be carried throughout the entire song.

"The position which the singer takes before the microphone is of utmost importance."

Ferte never sings directly into the microphone. Neither does he stand off a few feet and keep that position throughout the entire selection.

The position which Ferte takes depends upon ghe peculiar parts of the song. As a rule he stands close to microphone, not in front but at one side, and croons softly directly across the face of the "mike."

When he sings loud climax notes he turns his head away from the "mike" and faces the opposite direction. During the entire selection, Ferte sways to and away from the microphone stand, depending upon the notes of the song.

Breathing Important.

"Almost everything over the microphone," Ferte continues, "depends upon proper breathing and clear enunciation. The singer must learn how to breathe noiseless and evenly. A quick intake of breath, which is seldom noticed on the concert stage, gives a harsh rasp when heard over the radio.

"One of the most difficult obstacles which the radio singer must overcome is to sing an entire selection without clearing his throat. The noise made by clearing the throat, when magnified by the sensitive microphone, sounds like an upheaval in the atmosphere to the radio listeners."

Ferte has received hundreds of letters from fans all over the country which testify to the clearness of his enunciation and the even harmony of his singing.

During the past year Ferte has been a featured soloist on WTAM, Cleveland, programs and has broadcast more than 300 songs.

Ferte is now singing at the WEAR studio, another Cleveland station. Ferte appears on the WEAR program every Thursday night from 8:30 to 9 o'clock with his own assisting artists.

RADIO WIDOWS DON'T DESPAIR

Every Cloud Has Its Silver Lining—Bide Your Time!

(By Cynthia Grey.)

If you find yourself a radio widow, bridey, ere yet the honeymoon has ended, despair not too tragically, nor weep too bitterly!

Every cloud has its silver lining!

God moves in a mysterious way his wonders to perform.

The devil can quote scripture to suit his purpose.

Likewise, the radio may serve your ends as well as his. To wit, the picture!

It may mean that with his flapping aural appendages glued to the headphones, you can say as loudly as you darn please, "Oh, by the way, love, I bought the dearest hat to-day at Madam X's. And so reasonable! Only forty dollars! I started a charge account. You won't get the bill for almost a whole month!"

And there'll be nary a come-back because he never heard you!

You can take time by the forelock upon this auspicious occasion and say, too, "Really, dear, aren't you spending too much for tobacco. Just try putting the old pipe away for a time, sweet."

And there'll be nary a come-back.

With his manly chest heaving with emotion from the tragic radio bedtime story about little Johnny Skunk who got caught in the brier patch and had to have his leg amputated, he'll forget to tell you that the grocery bill was too high last month, and ask you what in the world you're paying for cheese, anyway!

They talk styles over the radio, remember, bridey, dear.

Can you imagine any young husband hearing to a ravishing description of what the well-dressed woman will wear this year, refusing to buy his wife this little nothing or that little something when The Radio Voice has told him that it simply must be done?

Radios keep 'em home nights, too!

Of course perhaps that's not the Balm in Gilead it's meant to be! I know wives who serve as chair-women of the Committee on Ways and Means to keep Husbands Out of the Home Nights, Especially Nights When I Want to have Club.

But then, being still in the bride age, you, perhaps, can stand him around better than wives of longer standing.

And—here's another glorious tip! He buys the radio. It probably cost a hundred or so. Whenever he reproaches you for buying hand painted soap or Books of Knowledge or hand painted postcards of Plymouth Rock from the nice young man working his way through college who came to the door, you can always say—sweetly—

"Yes, John, dear, remember the radio!"

An' that's that, as the quaint old saying goes!

Principle of Furniture Arrangement

Many a tired business man, wending his homeward way from conference in the "wee sma' hours" of the morning has blessed the care lavished on the arrangement of his house furniture. More important than this consideration is the aesthetic satisfaction, the sense of balance, which is enjoyed by all the inmates of the home when thoughtful allocation of each piece of furniture and other furnishings is made.

In the correct placing of furniture a small room appears spacious, a large compartment compact and cosy, and that touch is given to the ensemble which makes it as "the melody that's sweetly played in tune." The underlying idea in all such arrangement is that of use or suitability, the placing of each unit or group of units to secure the greatest degree of comfort and convenience.

First—A Centre Of Interest.

There is the living room, for example, and this probably presents the biggest problem. The first consideration is to secure a centre of interest from which to work. A fireplace naturally provides such a centre around which the major part of the furniture can be grouped. Failing that, a window or windows will serve the purpose, and it will be found generally that a wall provides the logical starting place. Little efect or order or arrangement can be seen when rugs are at all angles, and couch, piano, and tables placed diagonally across the corner or askew with each other and the side walls of the room. For this reason the large pieces of furniture, such as the davenport, long table, desk, secretarie ,piano, should stand parallel to the walls, and this applies also to rugs and carpets. With the larger pieces in alignment with the wall, the smaller pieces such as chairs, stools and small tables, may be placed to prevent a too-frigid orderliness.

In small rooms, the larger pieces should stand flat against the wall, leaving room in the centre for more than one person to turn around at the same time. Very large rooms should have groups of furniture set out in the middle of the floor.

Dining and Bed Rooms.

Arranging the contents of the dining room or bedroom is comparatively simple. In the former neither the aprentice nor the professional hand has unlimited scope for originality. The table simply must go "up-stage"—in centre. A buffet goes to the wall, not because it is the weakest member of the group, but because it is the largest and does not contribute to the aristic scheme if it turns even a portion of its back on the room.

Similarly, in the bedroom, the bed is the commanding member of the suite. Its one inevitable place generally determines where the dresser, chest of drawers, and so on, are to be situated, the smaller pieces being placed to balance the whole. Naturally, the position of the bedroom window has a lot to do with the placing of the dresser, and this factor may assume such importance as to supplant the bed from its logical to a less favorable stance.

Secure Homelike Effects.

The supreme aim of furniture arrangeemnt is to make a home look "homey"—to suggest its use as a human shelter and centre. This can be done by grouping furniture to suggest that it is being of service. The reverse of this was admirably accomplished by the good lady who made a velvet cover for her piano to protect its French polish, and over that placed a cotton cover to protect the velvet.

"Homey" grouping may be undertaken with a davenport (or chair) beside a table and lamp. Small tables are sometimes priceless in the humanizing influence they exert, particularly if placed between two chairs. Unsupported in this way, small tables have a naked and forlorn look, particularly when they are of the spindly and fragile kind that sway violently every time the cat brushes them with her tail.

Use substantial walnut or mahogany round or octagonal tables, not more than forty inches in diameter for the main table and not less than twenty inches for the others. Give these tables something to do—carry a lamp (not too large), books, bric-a-brac, and so on; and place them so that they do not necessitate the use of a traffic cop as a family retainer.

Filling in the Corners.

Few things are more effective for filling in corners than small tables, particularly when there is room for two chairs. This arrangement at once suggests human use and creates that "homey efect." Jacobean and William and Mary tables are admirable for the purpose, being at once decorative and staunch. The gateleg table, with its characteristic turnings and stretchers has long been popular and large living rooms may be made altogether charming and homelike by their use. They possess a delightful decorative quality and their surfaces may be covered with a variety of objects without giving the room a messy or untidy look.

Some corners look best unadorned, and to fill them for the mere sake of occupying a vacant space generally means destroying the general balance. Certain corners look empty unless occupied by a tall floor lamp with its attendant chair, a six foot iron stand trailing vines from the bowl at the top, a hanging corner cupboard, a tall decorative screen with a chair and small table in front of it, or grandfather's clock.

When height is not a consideration ,a thirty-six inch pedestal or stand with a bowl of flowers, vase, or piece of statuary may be used. An upright phonograph not only looks better set diagonally in a corner, but that is the accoustically correct position for it. Another corner-filling expedient is a chair with a tea-table standing before it.

The Importance of Balance.

Balance in the arrangement of a room is as desirable as poise in a hostess—a heavy mass of furniture at one end of the room needs its counterbalance at the other end. Similarly, a high article against one wall calls for a similarly lofty piece of furniture, or a built-up effect, against it.

This balance need not be mathematically accurate, but it should be there. Its absence creates a disharmony which has it seffect on the comfort of the occupants fully as much as uneasy chairs, springless couches and lame tables with legs of unequal length. Balance is the soul of orderliness. From the pictures on the walls, to the objects on the mantlepiece, no less than in the general arrangement of the furniture and furnishings, lack of balance can create a sense of unrest that makes an architecturally cost room as cheerless as a barn.

ABOUT YOUR CAR

By W. Z.

CARBURETION.

Gasoline vapor and air mixed is commonly termed "carburetion," and the mechanical device that keeps the two in proportion is called a "carburetor," because of the fact that gasoline largely consists of carbon. It is essential to convert gasoline into a vapor and mix it with a volume of air before it will explode in the cylinder.

Two ways to produce this vapor is to expose a considerable surface of this liquid to air, causing it to bubbie through, thus becoming impregnated with gasoline vapor. This old method was called the surface type of carburetion. The other method is to spray the liquid gasoline through a fine spray nozzle, or jet, into a mixing or vaporizing tube, into which air is drawn to intermingle with the vapor.

Approximate figures show that for maximum power the best explosive mixture with gasoline used in the present day is a proportion of 14 parts af air to one part gasoline and 17 to one for maximum economy. The former rich mixture is sometimes best for quick acceleration, and a leaner mixture of 15 to one is considered better for pulling with the throttle wide open. Seventeen to one, a much leaner mixture, is used for high-speed work.

Pure gasoline will not burn. It must be mixed with air before it can be used in an engine, and to burn with the greatest rapidity and heat, the air must be in correct proportion to the vapor.

The exact amount of air to be mixed with a certain amount of vapor depends on the quality of the gasoline and other conditions. The carburetor, by which the quantities of the mixture are maintained, is so made that when the piston makes a suction stroke, a current of air passes through it.

Too rich a mixture of gasoline is detected by a black smoke from the exhaust, with an offensive odor, smelling greatly of raw gasoline. Do not confuse this color of exhaust smoke from that of excessive blue smoke, which is indicative of too much lubrication.

If gasoline catches fire, smother it with a wet blanket or damp sand. Trying to extinguish the flame with water only tends to spread the fire, because gasoline floats on water.

Heated petroleum gives off gases, and when cooled it becomes a liquid. It is then called benzine, gasoline, kerosene, naptha, &c.

After your car has been standing idle for a long while in the garage, you may find your engine very hard to start. This trouble is overcome by draining the gasoline in the float chamber in your carburetor, which has become depleted in strength and will not ignite.

A broken gasoline pipe may be temporarily repaired by wrapping it with tape.

Turning corners slowly prevents excessive wear on tires.

BLOOD-RED TAGS FOR DEATH CARS.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 30. — Blood-red license tags should be substituted for plates of the usual color on every automobile that has been involved in a fatal accident, claims a Cleveland traffic official.

The red tag would serve to warn pedestrians and auto drivers, and it may also be a good deterring influence.

PATRIOTIC FERVOR WITH BELIEF IN CANADA'S DESTINY IN EMPIRE MARK COUNTY ORANGE BANQUET

Note of Optimism Prevalent in All Speeches of Evening.

OFFICERS PRESENT.

Presentation of Past Masters Jewel to Bro. Sproats Was Made.

Marked by a strong feeling of patriotic fervor and a belief in the certain destiny of Canada as a member of the great British family the banquet of the county Orange lodge held last night in Victoria hall reflected the note of optimism which has been noticeably growing in all quarters during the past year.

The presence of many of the brethren who stood high in the ranks of the order added greatly to the value of the assembly although regret was expressed that several including the Hon. Dr. Edwards Most Worshipful Grand Master E. A. Peck M.P. and W. H. Bradburn M.P.P. were unable to attend.

A feature of the evening was the presentation of the past master's jewel to Worshipful Brother T. Sproats in which Wor. Bro. C. H. McGee and Rt. Wor. Bro. H. A. Graham grand master of Ontario East participated, the former reading an address while the latter conferred the decoration. Wor. Bro. Sproats, in reply, stated that while now acting in the capacity of past master, he did not intend that his zeal in the work should be diminished but that as he had been granted assistance by the lodge members so he would help in any capacity which lay in his power.

During the course of the evening, frequent reference was made to the splendid work being carried out by the various ladies' organizations in connection with the Orange Order, while special commendation was accorded them for the efficient manner in which they had arranged the banquet.

The Rt. Wor. Bro. Graham conveyed a special message of hope and detailed the advance which had been made in the past quarter century in the routine of business and in the matter of increased membership.

The presence of Mayor W. T. Holloway and ex-Mayor Bro. J. J. Turner, who appeared to advance the interests of the city, added much to the spirit of hospitality and good fellowship which prevailed.

Much credit for the success of the entertainment would fall to the lot of the Scottish team, Bro. Robert Hendry and John Smith, who, in conjunction with Fred Chenhall in the capacity of pianist, presented a number of excellent vocal numbers, interjected with dialogue of a sparkling variety. Mr. Chenhall, in addition, supplied the music for the community singing.

E. F. Reid, Past District Master, as toastmaster, performed his duties in a highly creditable manner. He proposed the first toast, that of The King, which was responded to by the singing of the National Anthem.

Bro. C. H. Ackerman.

Bro. C. H. Ackerman, alderman, in suggesting the toast, Canada, declared that it was the duty of every free-born citizen of this country to take pride in the fact that Canada was a part of the highest ranking empire in the world. Canadians should strive to hold a place in their country equal to that which the Dominion holds in the British Empire. They should study the country and should deal kindly with British settlers who come to this land. Bro. Ackerman referred to an address which had been delivered at the Toronto Exhibition by Adam Brown, the late "grand old man" of Hamilton, and of which the text was given in the Canadian Magazine. In that speech were embodied the duties of Canadians as citizens and referred to the debt of gratitude which all Canadians owed for the priceless heritage of Canada.

R. W. Bro. Wm. Boulton.

Responding, Rt. Wor. Bro. William Boulton declared that he was always ready to speak on the subject of Canada because he was aware that no country equalled it. He had no doubt that it is the finest gem in the Crown of the British E pire. The same potential national spirit may be found in any part of Canada, although it was sorely divided politically. Mr. Boulton said that a unifying of national spirit was essential and that sooner or later the dickering and bartering between parties must cease. Canada need never blush or apologize for the part which she played in the war, declared the speaker, adding that everyone could boast of it irrespective of the fact (whimsically) that the nation to the south won the war.

Comparing conditions which prevail now with those which characterized 1900, Mr. Boulton indicated the definite trend of progress along the line of invention and medical research.

Bro. J. J. Turner.

Bro. J. J. Turner, ex-Mayor, proposed the toast to the City of Peterborough. Delving farther into the pigeon-holes of past years, Mr. Turner presented for inspection a glimpse of the scene when the Robinson settlers cruised up the Otonabee 100 years ago and erected the log palisades, from which have grown the brick and concrete walls of a fair city. He compared the development with that a child who gathers strength with the passing days and reaches a robust young manhood, full of vigor, and promise of mighty things. He declared that the growth had been substantial with nothing spasmodic or abnormal about it. One must not forget, he warned, that a city was nothing more than sewers and sidewalks, public buildings and monuments, it was a home, a home of many people and the city could be no better than those people. Mr. Turner referred to the valor of the sailors who ripened in the tradition of the sea, stood by a crippled ship until every possible chance for saving more lives was exhausted. He said people should strive to emulate them to a less heroic degree in the common tasks of a work-a-day life, doing each day the duties which were assigned.

Mayor Holloway.

Mayor Holloway, in his response, struck a cheerful note when he indicated that in a list of 30 cities of the size of Peterborough, this municipality occupied a position seventh from the bottom as regards taxation. He declared that, although there were no immediate prospects of securing new industries, some of those already in the city were being placed upon a firmer basis financially, and may aid materially in relieving the tension which acknowledged did exist to a certain degree. While many of the manufacturing plants had cut their staffs down considerably, some to the extent of 50 per cent, nevertheless, within the past ten years he declared that the population had increased by more than 1,000.

His Worship, the Mayor, stated that he was highly pleased with the councillors and felt assured that they would consider every dollar which they have to spend. He declared that he would like to see Peterborough have something in the nature of an old home week to celebrate the passing of the century mark.

Alderman Hancock.

Alderman Hancock was proud of the city and proud of being what he termed "its baby councillor." He said that there were many institutions in Peterborough which were unique and a credit to the city. While the aldermen were often criticized, the public should realize that a difficult task confronted them, that of striking appropriations for the year. It was difficult to economize in one way without jeopardising some other interests of the city.

Rev. R. C. Blagrave, D.D.

A toast to the county lodge was proposed by Rev. Dr. Blagrave who attributed the fact that he was not more closely linked with the Orange Order, to the changes of location which his calling demanded. He expressed a sympathy with the work of the Order and declared that he always felt proud when he heard the declaration of Orangemen to adhere to the British connection and Protestant principles. There was no need for active aggression but they should still act defensively.

Bro. J. J. Cunningham.

Bro. J. J. Cunningham, County Master, pointed out that a number of lodges made up the county lodge and that the individual lodges were made up of the membership. The spirit of that membership constituted the strength of the lodge.

Many of the old members, Mr. Cunningham said, have passed away. They were stalwarts who seldom missed meetings and the annual celebrations. It was necessary for the younger members to catch their zeal and enthusiasm. All members should stand together in defence of the British flag which represented the highest ideals of a nation.

R. W. Bro. J. H. Spence.

Rt. Wor. Bro. J. H. Spence submitted a toast to the Grand Orange Lodge of Ontario East, comparing the Order to the growth of a tree of which the leaves represented individual members clinging tenaciously to the twigs, their parent lodges. He declared that the Order was second only to the Holy Church.

R. W. Bro. H. A. Graham.

Rt. Wor. Bro. H. A. Graham, Grand Master of Ontario East, said that the first honor which he had ever attained in the work of the Orange lodge was in the city of Peterborough. Declaring that at one time he had thought to have obtained the greatest possible benefit from Orangism he found that he now had higher ideals and a greater conception of the work than ever before. Excepting for the flag incident, Bro. Graham said that the year had been a quiet one, although the past election favored them to a great extent. He said that the Orange order had now more representative members in the House of Commons than it had had in the past 50 years.

True Orangemen expect the members of Parliament to deal fairly with all creeds and would not expect special advantages to result from that situation, he declared. Speaking of the work of the L. O. B. A., Bro. Graham said that 80 per cent of the credit was due to the ladies for the great advance which Orangism had effected in the past few years. He said that last year Peterborough county had made the largest gain of any in the Ontario East district.

Wor. Bro. W. G. Lockie.

Wor. Bro. W. G. Lockie proposed a toast to the Sentinel, the official organ of the Orange Order, telling of the influence which that journal had in increasing the interest of lodge members.

Wor. Bro. W. W. MacPhee.

Wor. Bro. W. W. MacPhee, assistant editor of the publication, told of the advance which the order had made in the past decade and ascribing much of the credit to the Sentinel, which, he declared, was the largest distinctly Protestant newspaper in the world.

In a subscription drive, Peterborough L. O. L. No. 50 had won a set of officers' collars. These he presented.

Wor. Bro. T. Sproats received the regalia and, in reply, paid tributes to workers who had assisted in the campaign. Wor. Bro. C. H. McGee also responded.

At this juncture Wor. Bro. Sproats was also presented with the past master's jewel.

The concluding toast of the evening, that to the ladies, was proposed by Wor. Bro. Frank Millard, who detailed the valuable work which was being carried out under their auspices.

The following ladies replied: Mrs. Charles Wright, Mistress of the Vimy Ridge L. O. B. A.; Miss Brown, Mistress of the Eastern Star; Past-Mistress Staples, of Vimy Ridge, Deputy Mistress of the Star of Bethlehem L. O. B. A., and George McCullough.

RADIO LETTERS PROMISED SOON

Delivery of Photographed Reproduction Made Five Minutes After Sending.

JUST PREDICTION.

In a short time, practically all correspondence carried on by business men will be handled by radio instead of by our postoffice system, says George S. Davis, known as the big boss of the Tropical Radio Company, and vice-president of the United Fruit Company.

"The letter won't be mailed," says Davis. "It won't be telegraphed. It won't even be sent by radio as we send written messages to-day.

"It will be placed on a screen in a reproducing and sending apparatus and five minutes later that letter, complete with every dot of 'i' and crossing of 't' and signature, will be delivered thousands of miles away.

"Drawings, documents and photographs will be sent this way around the world in an international system of communication swifter and more complete than the general public dreams possible.

"Radio transmission of X-ray photographs," Davis predicts, "will be a matter of daily routine within the next two years. Simplified X-Ray outfits that can be used almost as easily as one uses a camera will be a part of the equipment of hundreds of steamships.

"Injured mariners, hurt in accidents aboard ship, can have their injuries X-Rayed on board, and the X-Ray picture sent by wireless instantly to any Tropical Radio wireless station, where it will be placed before consulting specialists."

Davis' life has been devoted to wire and wireless communication, and it is upon the basis of his extensive knowledge of radio and visions of future development that he makes these predictions.

YELLOW STUB CHASE ENDS IN WILD SCRAMBLE TO-DAY

Half Dozen Prizes Not Claimed at Press Time—Listed Missing.

SMITH MAN LUCKY.

Balloon Race Signals Release of Splendid New Serial Story.

J. F. McAuley, of Smith, claims his lucky number is 13, and we guess he is right.

The Yellow Stub chase was at least thrilling. It was put on by The Examiner to mark the start of the new serial "The Yellow Stub," in today's issue. There were 20 balloons and 20 prizes for the captors. Old and young joined in the chase, capturing the balloons and bringing the stubs toThe Examiner Office, where they were exchanged for prizes. Grant Breckenridge captured number 7, with its prize of 50 cents. Half a dozen balloons are still missing, including number 1, with its prize of 25 cents.

Some of the balloons were released from the front, and some from the rear of The Examiner building at 2 o'clock, and most fluttered down to the street without any dilly-dallying. They were purposely blown up with air, so that they should not fly into the unknown, as would have been the case had gas been used.

The Yellow Stub is the greatest serial of the decade. It is worth all the advertising it has been given, and more. It has never appeared in book form; it is not a movie serialized. It is written solely for newspaper serialization, and The Examiner, at considerable expense, has secured the serial rights in this district. It starts with a full page installment on Page 6 today.

There will be another competition of another kind next week, but to take part you must read the daily installments of "The Yellow Stub."

Tell your friends about this serial, and send copies of the paper to those you would like to have read it.

The Examiner wishes to thank Chief Constable S. Newhall for his assistance in having the street patrolled by a constable to maintain order during the exciting chase of the Yellow Stub.

MAJOR M'ELHINEY ACTED ONLY AS SALVATION ARMY OFFICER

Inspector Boyd of Provincial Police Reports to Government.

RETURNED GIFT.

TORONTO, Jan. 29. — In the course of investigation into irregularities which have grown up in recent years in the department of the Provincial Secretary, because of there having been no audit of receipts, Inspector Boyd, of the Provincial Police, has included the Ontario Board of Parole ,and has reported the facts, as given to him, to the Government .

As a result of this report, a conference has been held at the Parliament Buildings, at which there were in attendance, in addition to representatives as the department, Major J. A. McElhiney, of the Salvation Army, a member of the Parol Board; Commissioner Sowton, of the S.A.; Dr. A. E. Lavell, chairman of the Parole Board, and Inspector Boyd.

A complaint against Major McElhiney had been made by the mother of a convicted man named McIlroy, now incarcerated at Burwash Prison Farm. It was alleged, in an affidavit, that McElhiney had been given $30 on three occasions to go to Ottawa to effect the release of young McIlroy through the Minister of Justice, the Ontario Parole Board having refused to recommend parole for the reason that McIlroy was said to be of subnormal mentality.

In his alleged trips to Ottawa Major McElhiney had acted only in his capacity as a Salvation Army officer. It was also alleged that the officer had told Mrs. McIlroy that it would cost $200 to get her son out.

Satisfactory Explanation.

At the conference, Major McElhinew was able to prove from his correspondence files and other documents that he had gone to Ottawa only once, and that the $30 advanced to him as an Army official had merely paid his expenses. He also proved that the only mention made to the woman of a $200 fee was that he had asked a solicitor what he would charge to undertake to plead the boy's case before the Minister of Justice. Mrs. McIlroy had asked for this information.

As a result of the hearing, an arrangement has been made that, in future, Mapor McElhiney will act only as an officer of the Parole Board, and that when the Salvation Army undertakes to intervene at Ottawa on behalf of prisoners the matter will be handled directly from Salvation Army headquarters, under Commissioner Sowton.

At the conference, Commissioner Sowton put it up to Inspector Boyd to reveal why a certain emissary had been sent to the head of the Salvation Army in Peterboro, where Major McElhiney was formerly stationed, and had tried to induce the present incumbent to tell "what he knew about McElhiney."

Inspector Boyd denied all knowledge of the alleged affair.

Want Representation?

The statement is now made that Chief Dickson, of the Toronto Police Department, and Inspectors Guthrie and Wallace, along with Deputy Commissioner of Provincial Police Cuddy and Inspector Boyd, and also Supt. Fairfull, of the Burwash Farm, are all opposed to the continued operation of the present Board of Parole, and would like to recast it with police representation upon it. Inspector Boyd and Jas. Norris, an official of the Provincial Secretary's Department, have both been mentioned to fill vacancies on the board. There is no salary in connection with the position.

In 1924, at the Police Chief's Convention in Windsor, an attack was made upon the board by a Toronto police inspector and Dr. Lavell, who was present, took issue with the paper read. The next year at Winnipeg, the attack was renewed, reference being made in a paper read by Inspector Wallace to Major McElhiney. Major McElhiney at once took issue, and a somewhat violent discussion ensued. The circumstances of the attack were later reported to Judge Emerson Coatsworth as chairman of the Toronto Police Commission. He asked for and received a copy of the report, and as a result the paper was not printed in the Police Chiefs' publication.

To Come Out Later.

"It is likely that the whole matter of the drive that has been made against the board and against the chairman and myself will ultimately come out. I am not bringing it out, but when the time comes we will be ready and it will not be us who will get the worst of it," said Major McElhiney.

In the case of young McIlroy, Major McElhiney said that a year ago last Christmas, the prisoner's mother was on such friendly terms with him that she sent him a Bible as a present. He returned the gift with a polite note telling her that, as an official of the board, he could not accept presents of any kind. Later she made the affidavit involving him in an alleged improper money transaction with herself.

Probe is Finished.

Other aspects of the report made to the Ontario Government by Inspector Boyd following his lengthy investigation into the workings of the department presided over by Hon. Lincoln Goldie, are also causing some comment now. In the meantime, Inspector Boyd has finished his work in the department, and has returned to his office in the provincial police headquarters on Grosvenor Street., although he is still in frequent communication with the department.

It is said that the report revealed certain transactions involving several—said to be seven—employes of the department, against whom no action has been taken by the Government. A member of the Liberal Opposition is said to have been told that "If the Opposition called for the production in the House, and the tabling of Boyd's report, the revelations in it, and the Government's subsequent inactivity would blow the Ferguson Opposition out of office."

Mr. Goldie's Explanation.

Questioned about the report that adverse reports had been made to the Government involving several employes against whom no action had been taken, Hon. Mr. Goldie, Provincial Secretary, admitted that in some cases nothing has been done as yet.

"I do not thing there are seven," he said, "but there are some. The Prime Minister, Mr. Ferguson, and myself have been going into the matter. The Premier has been busy, and some of the matters have not yet been dealt with. We have not got into all the cases yet. There has been no design, however, in omitting to deal with anything reported on to us."

"Is there anything suggested in the report that would be dangerous if revealed in the Legislature?" was asked.

"No, there is nothing to that," said Mr. Goldie. "It is a report made by an officer selected to conduct the investigation. The abuses dealt with grew up before we came in and we are dealing with them as we come to them. Dunlop and Donnelly have been prosecuted and others have been discharged. We have not come to the other cases yet."

All's Well Again.

"Has there been trouble on the Board of Parole?"

"Some questions were raised, but everything is smooth. There is no present difficulty."

"Are the services of Dr. Lavell or Major McElhiney to be dispensed with?"

"Not that I know of. They are both still members of the board."

Firmness Continued On Toronto Market

TORONTO, Jan. 30 (Canadian Press) — Firmness continued the chief characteristic of the market on the Toronto Stock Exchange today, and the week's closing session well maintained the records for heavy trading and a turnover of more than 1,700 shares was registered in this stock. It advanced to a high of 89 3-4, point higher, easing to 89 1-2 at the close. Consolidater Smelters climbed 1 1-2 at 106 1-2. C.P.R. was another strong spot closing 2 1-4 higher at 151 1-4. F. N. Burt gained one and Abitibi 3-4 at 81 3-4. Heavy trading in Canada Steamships preferred closed that stock at 62 1-2, a point higher Twin City closed 1-2 higher at 75 3-4, and Winnipeg a fraction up at 53 3-4.

Stock Prices Point Up Some Heavy Spots Seen

NEW YORK, Jan. 30 (Canadian Press).—Stock prices continued to point upward in today's brief session of the stock market. Oils and rails showed intervals of heaviness as the result of the usual week-end profit taking by professional traders, but new buying power developed in public utility and copper shares, several of which recorded substantial gain. Easy money rates continued to provide the ground-work for an advance. Bullish demonstrations were successfully staged in a number of specialties.

Upturn At Liverpool Influenced Chicago Price

CHICAGO, Jan. 30 — (Canadian Press).—Owing largely to an expected upturn in Liverpool quotations, wheat here averaged higher in the early dealings to-day, although commission houses were aggressive on both sides of the market.

Chicago opening prices, unchanged to 3-4c higher, May 1.75 to 1.75½, and July 1.52 3-4 to 1.53, were followed by moderate general gains and then by a number of fluctuations with a range of about 1¼c. Corn and oats were easy, influenced by predictions of larger receipts of corn. After opening unchanged to 1-8c higher, May 84 3-4 to 85, the corn market underwent an all around sag.

Oats started unchanged, May 44 3-4, and then receded somewhat. Higher quotations on hogs helped to steady the provision market.

FARMER FIGHTS CHICKEN THIEVES

Is Shot Seriously Wounded While One Robber is Killed.

PAL IS SOUGHT.

WAINFLEET STATION, Ont., Jan. 30. Canadian Press. — One man (whose name at present is being concealed) is dead, and Joseph Palmer, a prominent farmer of Wainfleet township, is hovering between life and death as the result of being shot through the neck in the early hours of this morning. This tells the story of the battle between two alleged chicken thieves and Mr. Palmer. The second man is being sought by the police.

It was between three and four o'clock this morning when Mr. Palmer was aroused by the ringing of his burglar alarm, which is attached to the chicken coup. On going out he found two men, one of whom was lying on the ground pretending that he had heart weakness. Mr. Palmer, who was armed with a double barrelled shot gun, ordered the men to put up their hands. One of them did, while the one who was lying on the ground did not.

Harry Laity, who lives with Mr. Palmer, was aroused and Mr. Palmer sent him after his brother, Fred, another resident of the farm, who lives in a separate house.

All this time Mr. Palmer had the men covered with his gun. As Laity was going to get the brother he heard two shots ring out. Rushing back he found Mr. Palmer lying just inside the kitchen door.

Blood was gushing from wounds in his neck. Laity notified the Provincial police at Welland, who found the dead man in a field, where he had been dragged by his pal, who escaped.

It is believed that Palmer was shot by the man who was lying on the ground.

The name of the dead man is known to the police. It is understood that his home is in Dunnville.

SO SAYS MRS. A. DEMERS OF DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

She Had Suffered from Lumbago and Indigestion and Found Relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Ottawa, Ont., Jan. 29 (Special)— "Twenty years ago I was very sick with Indigestion and Lumbago," states Mrs. A. Demers, who lives at 520 Clarence St. "I had seen many doctors and nothing seemed to relieve me. I started taking Dodd's Kidney Pills. After three months I noticed a great change and at the end of the year had no pains at all. Since that time, if I feel a pain or even a tiredness in my back I take Dodd's Kidney Pills and get better. I highly recommend your pills which should be taken continually until relieved."

Dodd's Kidney Pills make healthy kidneys. Healthy kidneys strain all the impurities, all the poison, out of the blood. They are the greatest of all tonics. Give them a trial at once. They can be obtained from all druggists.

Duplicating Defeat of Last Season

ROUND ONE—AND OUT!

By FRISE in February "Rod and Gun"

(All rights reserved)

Inside Sporting Dope

By A Wise Cracker

Seeing as how the management paid me a great compliment this week by telling me, "If you don't get your junk ready by Fri. afternoon it won't go in," I'm not going to disappoint the customers which read this column, and so I'm getting this ready for Fri. so any bright remarks, if any, which I might of made about the Parkdale-Peterboro mixup will hafta wait until next week. Anyhow, most of the readers by the time they read this will have saw the game themselves—and they'll know more about it than me.

I just wanta say that next week they is going to be a real jam at the Brock st. ice plant when them young lawyers from Osgoode Hall is to be here. The legal sharks tossed a large sized jolt into the Petes in Toronto, but the change of avenue may make a big difference in the next clash. Anyway, both teams is got their eyes set on a win in this battle, and they should be a lotta of hockey and a big bundle of excitement crowded into 60 minutes next Fri. night. The wise guys is them that book their seats early.

Last Sat. I promised I'd say something about the Hamilton-Peterboro set-too, but they ain't nothing much to be said about that bout except that the Petes made the discovery that they could play hockey on their home ice. If them rowing clubbers don't show more speed on the water than they done on the ice here last Sat., the Diamond skulls is safe so as they is concerned. They didn't never even throw a scare into the most rabbit-hearted fan what watched them, and they weren't close enough to the Petes' nets more than 2 or 3 times to make the girls scream. Our Mister Joe Dwyer had the easiest night of the winter, and the only thing he used much was his vocal chords. He even took 2 minutes off at the kind invitation of Mister Harry Batstone, and while he was caged in the hoosegow, Mister McLeod stuck various portions of his anatomy in front of 3 shots amid generous applause.

THE CURLING BONSPIEL.

Well, Mister Sporting Editor, the curling bonspiel kinda crossed us all up this week. Instead of a thaw she wound up with a blizzard that even the old-timers couldn't think of a worse one. Anyhow, the boys for once had lotta ice to curl on, and so far as I hear a good time was enjoyed by all and sundry.

In ain't what you would call a curling fan, but I can see a lotta good points about the game, tho I never could see how it was that a guy what would apply for a decree nisi if his wife even suggested shouldn't he sweep the snow off of the veranda can grab a broom at a bonspiel and dust up and down in front of a curling stone and sweep miles of ice without turning a hair. They seems to be plenty of exercise to the thing, and the bird what says they ain't no thrill in curling ain't seen much of it.

For instans, the other day I was going into the curling rink when I was nearly swept out into the middle of the st. by a bunch of fellows on the dead run. They was evidently hitting for cover. "What's the matter?" sez I, kinda startled. "Is the rink on fire?" "Worse," sezs one of them over his shoulder. "Alex Kay is just going to play a running shot." I find that Mister Kay is one of them kind of curlers which when they hit them they stay hit, and every time he shoots down a runner nervous spectators hit for outside, expecting 1 day a chunk or 2 of granite to come flying through the end of the rink. So you can see they is plenty of thrill to curling after all.

The game is kinda catching, too. The youngsters ain't immune, and some of them Millbrook curlers says the older you gets the worse it hits you.

The feature of this spiel, of course, was the feet performed by an Orillia skip in winning 2 trophies. Needless to say, any guy which could execute a major operation like separating the Peterboro curlers from two cups in 1 day would need to be a doctor, and such he was in this case. So I say three cheers for Dr. Harvie of Orillia. He is a good scout, which has been coming here 9, 10 years without grabbing any prizes, and anyway living in Ont., as I do, I always, the last 3, 4 years, have cheered for a doctor every chance I got. You can't never tell, and anyway it don't cost nothing to cheer.

THE BALL OUTLOOK.

The Central Ball League right now, Mister Sporting Editor, looks like a milking stool with only 3 legs. Since I last wrote you the Oshawa club has notified the Central League that they don't intend to operate no team in this loop next summer, and by the tone of their letter they don't mean mebbe neither. At the same time, the Oshawas has got from the O.b.A.A. a promise that the Ontario body won't object to them going moguls don't throw a crowbar into the machinery, they will be in a new loop. There is still 2 big IFS in the way, but anyhow the motorists seems to be set in their stand that they don't intend to play in our yard any more. It is still a long time till May 24th, but right now they has been a rosier outlook ahead of the Central loop.

The City Hockey League is giving a lotta action every week. I never seen guys which hated to beat each other so much as the birds on these teams. They is so many tie games that when a team forgets itself some night and beats the other fellows the wisenheimers'll be sure they is something been cooked up. But, anyway, them which is passing up these games is robbing themselves of plenty of fun and entertainment.

They ain't nothing more this week I can think of, so will close now.

Sportfully yours,

A. WISE CRACKER.

FAST GAMES IN HASTINGS GROUP

Marmora Beat Madoc 4-2 at Marmora—Stirling Beat Tweed 3-2.

PLAYED AT TWEED.

MARMORA, Jan. 30.—Marmora took sweet revenge for their defeat at the hands of Madoc in romping home on their own rink last night to the tune of 4 to 2.

Play in the first period was remarkably slow for such keen ice. Berry had several good attempts at goal to be out-lucked by Lenahan. Two minutes after the opening of the second period, Bond scored on a pass from Berry. Play then became faster and better. Bond added a second goal on a pass from Jack. Moon replied for Madoc with a shot from centre. Both goalies displayed good form, and Berry again was unable to get the goal his hard work deserved.

In the third period this player won fame in scoring by the best piece of stick-handling of the evening. Hard checking was then indulged in by both teams. Madoc endeavored hard to score. Play then was carried to the Madoc goal with success. McWilliams to Bond to Berry result in a goal. Pretty work by Madoc ensuing, Moon scored for Madoc, the puck rolling over Neal's stick. A few seconds later time was called. All Marmora players played good hockey, though Neal in goal has shown better form. In the third period, the homesters played the best combination of the season, and but for good woork by Lenahan in the nets would have had more goals to their credit. The referee handled the game very capably, having it well under his control.

The teams lined up as follows:

Madoc — Lenahan, goal; Rupert and Blue, defence; Moon, centre; Watson and Smith, wings; Tufts and Ranson, subs.

Marmora—C. Neal, goal; Jack and Auger, defence; Bond, centre; Berry and McWilliams, wings; R. Neal and Brady, subs.

Goal umpires—A. Smith, Madoc, C. Jones, Marmora.

Referee—H. L. Hudson, Toronto.

Owing to the heavy condition of roads in the district, there was not the usual attendance from the outlying parts. The residents of the town, however, turned out in good force to cheer the Green and White on to victory.

STRLING 3, TWEED 2.

TWEED, Jan. 30.— Stirling defeated Tweed here last night by 3 to 2. The homesters led by 1 to 0 in the first period. Tweed equalized in the second period. Stirling came ahead in the final period to win out.

Line-up was as follows

Stirling— Hulin, goal; W. Whitty and Tullock, defence; J. Ackers, centre; Wallace and H. Ackers, wings; McGee and Ingram, subs.

Tweed—H. Wagar, goal R. Quinn and A. Geraldi, defence R. Houston, centre; Dr. Dales and M. Geraldi, wings; G. Geraldi and F. Geraldi, subs.

OLD TIME HOCKEY.

Lakefield Youngsters Played Seven Men Style.

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 30.—The Wild Cats and Rink Rats put on an old-time hockey match on Thursday night in the Rink. The old-time features were seven men to a side, and no subs and two twenty-five-minute periods. As the captain of the Cat team said, "The referee drops the puck and then beats it to the penalty box till a goal is scored and then he comes out." This feature, however, was missing, as A. Graham, who handled the bell, was on the job every minute, and was kept busy. The two extra players on the ice caused slight confusion, but this was remedied by the referee who dealt out penalties with such a liberal hand that often ten players kept the game going. In the first period Stabler scored twice, and B. Wannamaker once for the Rats, and H. Hamblin put one in for the Cats. At the end of the first period the players repaired to their waiting rooms for a brief respite, which was cut down to a bare five minutes.

The second period, owing to the icy blast which swept round the penalty box and chilled the timekeeper, was less than twenty minutes long. Stabler scored two more for the Rats, and "Mike" Wannamaker scored the second goal for the Cats. The Rats drew nine penalties and the Cats eight, and all had a pleasant evening. Morin, the trusty left defence of the Rats, had the misfortune to injure his knee in the second period. This was the only casualty.

The line-up of the teams was as follows:

Rink Rats—Goal, K. Junkin; right defence, G. Sherin; left defence, E. Morin; centre, B Wannamaker; right wing, H. Stabler; left wing, E. Northey; rover, G. Wannamaker.

DESERONTO WON IN CAMPBELLFORD

Trent High School Boys Were Outlucked By Visitors.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 30. — Deseronto High School team maintained its record of unbroken victories in the Interscholastic Hockey League by defeating the local High School here last night by a score of three to one. The biggest crowd of the season packed Covert's Arena and witnessed a great struggle between two fast clever teams, with the visitors having a slight edge all the way. They displayed more combination than any team to show here this season, and checked back so effectively and persistently, that Coach Stephen's boys seldom got very far before losing possession of the puck. And Deseronto deserved their victory on the night's play.

The orange and black jerseys failed to play the game of which they are capable. Perhaps in their desire to win they were over anxious, and gummed up plays they usually carry through.

The first period was scoreless, with Campbellford having more of the play than the visitors, and it looked as if Coach Stephen's boys would come on and win, but Deseronto improved as the game progressed, and when Ibey was benched, Buryea picked up a loose puck inside the defence and put the visitors in the lead half-way through the second period. It was for a very short time, for when Ibey's time was up, "Teddy" Blute came on for him and grabbed the puck at the gate to the penalty box and raced right in on McViker for Campbellford's only score of the night.

Deseronto took the lead again just before the period ended, and maintained it to the end. It was an unlucky break for the Orange and Black. Whitton shot from well out, and Irwin stopped the shot, but it oozed in between his skate and boot, and "Hoots" didn't realize the fact till he saw the puck in the net.

Whitton got the only goal of the last period, and it was rather flukey also. Deseronto was being hard pressed, and Whitton, to relieve the situation, lifted a high one from centre. The puck went up over the lights, and Irwin didn't see it till it landed in the net. It was two tough breaks for the goaler, for he had played a fine game between the sticks, and showed better in every game.

Ingram and Baker played good defensively, but Ingram was not as successful on his rushes as usual.

Ibey worked like a beaver, and was very effective till the middle of the last period, when Perry, the big defence man, gave him a terrific body check and the butt end of his stick at the same time, and it took a lot out of the flashy right winger. Blute, Haig and Reynolds gave all they had, but couldn't get going in their usual style. Whitton, the chunky midget centre of the visitors, caught the fancy of the crowd by his clever checking and flashy offensive play. He was the most effective of the visitors. Perry and Cole were also exceptionally good, and McVicker and Bruyea played their wings to perfection.

The local students are through with the Interscholastic schedule for this winter, and start after the Town League championship next week, and they look like the team to beat for the honors.

The line-up:

Referee — C. Holmes, Campbellford.

BASKETBALL

By THE CAPTAIN

NO. 16—FORWARD TO FORWARD

Naturally the more players brought into combination play on the tap-off the more difficult it becomes to get the ball successfully to the goal. But likewise there is less possibility of the play being stopped because one man fails to do his work properly.

The forward to forward combination is nothing more difficult than an extension of the single forward. It is more apt to confuse the opposing team because the play centers on two positions instead of one.

Both forwards handle the ball. The play is another simple test at formation.

The left forward, misleading his opponent by feinting towards the basket and then reversing, goes in to take the tap-off. The right forward, cluding his guard, circles to the basket. There he takes a pass and tries for a goal.

The left forward, having tossed the ball to his teammate, continues towards the basket and takes a follow-up shot if necessary. The center, unless the play has miscarried, likewise follows.

The guards fulfill their first duty by preventing the opposing forwards from breaking up the play. Then it's their duty to go up the floor sufficiently to either act on the offense or defense.

BOWLING with the CHAMPION

Jimmy Smith

MAKING SPLITS.

Great batters often find their jinx in certain pitchers. In bowling the split is the nemesis of every pastimer. More harsh utterings are voiced when a split "turns up" than at any other time during a match.

The split is something that a bowler simply "runs" into every now and then. In a way it's hard to guard against. It just pops up, that's all. Hitting the head pin full often results in a mean split. Not necessarily, though. For I've seen many strikes made in the same manner.

The breaks of the game, and bowling certainly has its breaks, invariably bring about a bad split. Sometimes a pin will "refuse" to fall after having "staggered" considerably. The result is, instead of getting nine pins on your initial attempt with a spare almost a certainty, you only get eight and have a mean split to "run down."

In trying for splits, I shoot a "thin" ball for the pin nearest to the centre and farthest from the pit. I aim to hit or "shave" it on the outside (the gutter side) and thus send it toppling in the direction of the other pin. If the execution is perfect, a spare results.

Don't play it like you would a carom shot in billiards. For you aren't apt to meet with much success. The other way is by far the more practical.

Of course, in case of a three-pin split, it's always advisable to try for two if the lineup is so you are pretty certain of cutting a pair down. It's well to be satisfied with two out of three.

Next: Control.

RESIN PERMITTED.

Sealed Bag Near Pitcher's Box.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30 (Canadian Press)—The joint rules committee of organized baseball, by a 5 to 3 ballot yesterday voted to permit modified use of resin by pitchers.

The new rule provides that the resin must be obtained from a sealed bag, placed near the pitcher's box under the supervision of the umpire. Dust of the resin may be used only on the hands.

MOVIGRAPHS

HOLLYWOOD'S CUPID HAS WEIRD TALES TO TELL.

(By Dan Thomas)

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 30.—"You can't rehearse a marriage ceremony before a camera."

That's the opinion of Robert S. "Cupid" Sparks, whose small five-room house has been the scene of more real movie marriages than any other building in the world. Sparks was marriage license clerk of Los Angeles for 12 years.

"It doesn't make any difference how often they go through the marriage ceremony on the screen, when it comes to tying the knot movie people are just as nervous and embarrassed as anyone else," declares Sparks.

"We have had as many as three weddings going on in the house at the same time. I'll never forget the night Charley Chaplin and Mildred Harris were married. It was about 11 o'clock. They came sneaking up the walk to the house like a pair of panthers, just scared to death that someone would see them. Charley particularly was as nervous as a child.

"And then the night Doug Fairbanks and Mary Pickford came over, Doug wasn't the dashing Romeo of the screen then. When the minister asked him for the ring, he started fishing through his pockets and when he finally did find it, he dropped it on the floor. After the ceremony they walked down the hill with their arms around each other. Oh, they were madly in love all right."

During the war, Sparks used to have "open house" over the weekends. Soldiers and sailors could not get leave until noon Saturdays and the marriage license bureau closed then. So "Cupid" just packed his books home and did business there.

NEW SONG SUBJECT.

Latest Idea For Popular Song Heard Everywhere Over Radio.

A song has been written about almost every conceivable idea. The song-smiths are ever on the alert to grasp at every straw in the hope that their latest will produce the coveted "hit" that will bring fame and fortune.

The reigning hit of the moment is entitled "I'm Sitting On Top Of the World." The hero of this ditty pictures himself and his lady love perched somewhere in the vicinity of the North Pole, riding "on high" through a universe of bliss.

Whether the idea of the title or the snappy fox-trot rythm of the music is responsible for its popularity, who cansay? At any rate, one can scarcely twirl the dials without hearing "I'm Sitting on Top of the World" lilting out of the loudspeaker.

The music of "I'm Sitting On Top Of the World" was composed by Ray Henderson, while Lewis and Young were responsible for the lyrics.

Stainless steel is the invention of a Sheffield worker who happened upon it while studying the effect of explosions on gun barrels.

Canada now uses annually an average of 80,000,000 to 100,000,000 pounds of twine to bind her grain.

ST. PATS WON GAME AT HOME

Beat Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2 in Fast N. H. L. Game.

DESERVED VICTORY.

TORONTO, Jan. 30. — Canadian Press. — St. Patricks continued their series of successes on the home ice by defeating the third place Pittsburg Pirates by three goals to two, but the one goal margin hardly does the Irish credit as Worters in the visitors' goal pulled off a number of saves that bordered on the miraculous, and while Roach in the Irish nets also made some brilliant stops he was not kept as busy or did not have quite as many shots to handle as did the little Pirate goalie.

TENNIS ROMANCE OF KITTY M'KANE

Married L. A. Godfree On South African Tour.

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, Jan. 30 (Canadian Press). — Miss Kathleen McKane, England's best woman tennis player, and L. A. Godfree, British Davis Cup star, were secretly married at Kimberley last week, it was learned Friday. Both are members of a British tennis team which has just concluded a tour of South Africa, Mr. Godfree being captain of the team.

Miss McKane defeated Miss Helen Wills, the United States champion, in the finals of the Wimbledon tournament in 1924, but lost to the California star when they met in the finals of the United States national championships at Forest Hills last year. In 1923 and 1925 Miss McKane won her way to the finals at Wimbledon, only to lose to Suzanne Lenglen. Mr. Godfree has been a member of the British Davis Cup team for the past three years.

DOUBLE WIN FOR OSHAWA TEAMS

Beat Bowmanville 3-1 in Intermediate Series—Cobourg Lost Junior.

SCORE WAS 7-5.

OSHAWA, Ont., Jan 30. (Special)—Oshawa Intermediates defeated Bowmanville in a Section C game of Group No. 1 by a score of 3-1 after ten minutes of overtime in a game which was the cleanest of the season, only two penalties being handed out, one to each team. Oshawa iced a crippled team with Carter and Lowe, their two regular defence men, off owing to injuries.

In the first ten minutes of overtime, Oshawa was allowed a disputed goal and added one more before the bell rang for time, and the game was over with Oshawa on the long end of a 3-1 score.

Oshawa 7, Cobourg 5.

Oshawa Shamrocks put the skids under Bill Rooney's Cobourg husky Crescents by a score of 7-5 down in the Horse Show town last night in a Junior group No. 4 fixture, leading at the end of the first period by 3-1, end of second period 6-2, and 7-5 when the bell rang for full time.

This gives Oshawa a stranglehold on group honors, as with six wins and one loss, they have only one more game to play, that at home with Ginger Edger's Bowmanville crew on Friday evening, Feb. ruary 5th.

NEW YORK WANTS MEETING OF LEAGUE

To Consider Case of Eddie Rodden—Charges Discrimination.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29 (Canadian Press).—Efforts are to be made to have a special meeting of the National Hockey League summoned to review the impending rift in professional hockey circles over the refusal of the Western Canada League to waive on Eddie Rodden, Eveleth, Minn., amateur star, after he had agreed upon terms with the New York club of the N.H.L. An official of the Madison club said: "It looks as if an effort were being made to discriminate aganst the United States teams."

HELPFUL HINTS by GOLFING STARS

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH GOLFERS MAGAZINE)

WM. MEHLORN—VALUE OF OVERSPIN PUTT.

The long, straight drive is of great importance and the shot to the green is still more important, but remember about 50 per cent of your shots are with the putter, so the putt is the most important shot in the bag. A good putter is a hard man to beat, as he is always trying.

A putt missed is a shot lost—you cannot redeem it. How many times have you seen a player flub his drive on a par four hole and then mess up his second shot and play chip shot to about eight feet from the flag and still make his four by holing the putt? Again the same player plays two perfect shots to the green and never takes over two putts. You can't beat him—that is all there is to it. All championships are won and lost around the hole.

To stab putts is bad practice on any kind of a green, especially on with an overspin is always easier toslow or rough greens. A putt hit control. On a rough green the putt with an overspin will keep its line better.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM EXPLOSION

Fire in Paint Shops Drove Out Three Men Who Owned Shop.

DAMAGE $22,500.

TORONTO, Jan. 30 (Canadian Press).—An explosion that followed a fire yesterday afternoon in a store in Danforth Avenue did damage of $22,500 to the stock and building.

Three brothers: Roland, Gordon and Richard Bell, who conduct a wholesale paint and wall-paper business at the place, had a narrow escape in getting out of the building.

A cigarette dropped in a paint pail is thought to have started the fire.

MEIGHEN'S VIEWS ON UNEMPLOYMENT

Letter to Woodsworth Read By Labor Member in House.

OTTAWA, Jan. 30. — (Canadian Press). — The views of the Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, Opposition leader, on unemployment relief and old-age pensions, were outlined in a letter to J. S. Woodsworth, Labor member for Winnipeg North Centre, read during his speech on the address in the House of Commons yesterday.

"The thing to do for the unemployed is to get them work. Certainly, if after all efforts are made, there should occur, owing to special circumstances, such a volume of unemployment at a particular place as could not be taken care of locally, then the Federal Government should help," the letter continues. "We did so in the past and would be prepared, in similar circumstances, to do so again."

Mr. Meighen states in the letter that before taking action on old-age pensions, he would "consult most carefully and in the spirit of utmost sympathy with Labor representatives and those most interested in Labor questions."

PETER KYNE STORY NOW IN FILM FORM

"Never the Twain Shall Meet" Promises Fine Picture Fare.

"Never the Twain Shall Meet," Peter B. Kyne's enchanting story of the South Sea Islands, will be shown at the Regent Theatre for 3 days, beginning Monday, according to an announcement made by the management yesterday.

Perhaps never in the history of moving pictures has three been a story filmed against such gorgeously beautiful backgrounds as those which appear in "Never the Twain Shall Meet." Filled with all the magic and romance associated with life in the South Seas, this photoplay sounds an entirely new note in the literature and drama of motion pictures.

In the role of Tamea, the half-caste Island princess, Anita Stewart appears in a characterization thoroughly suited to her enchanting personality—a portrayal which calls for many phases of dramatic intensity, varied with comedy situations. Bert Lytell plays opposite Miss Stewart in the role of Dan Pritchard.

AT THE GRAND

Ralph Spence, who wrote the burlesque on mystery plays called "The Gorilla" is not unknown to the theatre. He has written for many years scenarios and titles for pictures and in odd times figured out comedy scenes for various revues including four or five of the Zeigfeld Follies series. Thus when he sat down to write his first long play, Mr. Spence had the mechanics of the craftsman at hand. But he had a new slant on the theatre, and thus was enabled, in "The Gorilla," to provide that always needful element of surprise in his play. The surprise was not in the mystery which was the usual chilling, thrilling brand, but it was in the fact that he gave the mystery made it seem real, then turned the laugh on it. While it may seem drawing the long bow to call "The Gorilla" the funiest show on earth, as the producers do, at the same time those who have seen the play were never able to count the laughs as they did not have time to get their breath. Donald Gallaher and James W. Elliott will present "The Gorilla" at the Grand Opera House, Saturday, February 6.

MONSTER SETTINGS IN 'THE WANDERER'

Paramount Super-special Also Boasts Thousands of Actors In Big Scenes.

The largest motion picture set ever constructed and the greatest number of persons ever used for one scene in an American made motion picture are two of the outstanding features of "The Wanderer," famous Biblical spectacle, which Raoul Walsh directed for Paramount, and which opens a three days' run at the Capitol on Monday.

The scene, which is that of an un-named Biblical city, was built in the foot-hills of Santa Monica, California, and covers many hundred acres of grounds. More than two hundred carpenters and scores of technical assistants were at work for more than three weeks constructing the hundred massive buildings and walls for the set.

For the scene depicting the destruction of the city by earthquake and fire, thousands of actors were used as well as hundreds of lions, tigers, elephants and camels.

"The Wanderer," according to critics, is the most titanic film effort of the season. More than two years were spent preparing for the production, and four months were required for the actual filming. Many thousands of costumes were prepared, occupying the time of one hundred seamstresses for almost a month. Two crews of men, laboring day and night, worked for weeks constructing the huge interior sets within the studio. A score of jewelry craftsmen were engaged to construct three thousand rings, bracelets and arm bands as were used in the days before Christ.

The cast of "The Wanderer" includes the most distinguished acting talent in the motion picture industry. Among the featured players are listed such names as Ernest Torrence, William Collier, Jr., Wallace Beery, Tyrone Power, Greta Nissen and Kathlyn Williams. Other players in the spectacle include Kathryn Hill, George Rigas, Holmes Herbert, Snitz Edwards, Lionel Brahm, Sojin and Duke Kahanamoku.

A hand-operated tool has been invented for cutting glass tubes without breaking.

COUNTY COUNCIL CONCLUDES WORK

By-laws Passed in Closing Hours of January Session To-day.

County Council adjourned this morning, the final meeting of the session being devoted almost entirely to the reading of reports of Standing Committees and the passing of by-laws to confirm them. By-laws were also passed to sanction the borrowing of $80,000 for current expenditure, to provide for the borrowing of $90,000 for highway improvement, $10,000 for bridge construction and also one apportioning the expenditures in the various departments.

A communication from the Inspector of Legal Offices, I. A. Humphries, was read, in which reference was made to a letter which had been received from Crown Attorney Hatton, K.C., who had written to discover whether or not provision had been made to allot him office space in the proposed addition to the county buildings. No action was taken in regard to the matter, E. A. Peck, M.P., stating that space had been available for him for some time, but the Crown Attorney had not been satisfied with the quarters which had been assigned him.

A motion was proposed to increase the salary of the caretaker, F. Mahood, by $50; an amendment to allow a guaranteed bonus of $100 carried.

On motion a committee, composed of the Warden, the chairman of the Roads and Bridges Committee, J. Hawthorne, M. P. Coughlin, W. H. Montgomery, J. Scott and M. E. Smithson was appointed to look after the Belmont Street bridge of Norwood and the Carveth Bridge, Douro.

C. W. LEAGUE.

Annual Reports Presented By Officers at Lyceum. Meeting.

A meeting of the Catholic Women's League, with a good attendance, was held in the assembly hall of St. Alphonsus' Lyceum last evening. Annual reports were given by the president, Mrs. C. J. Snider; the secretary, Mrs. F. A. Hodgson, who also gave the financial report of Mrs. E. H. Hickey, the treasurer; Mrs. Jno. Coughlin, for relief work; Mrs. Jno. Lynch, for the sewing committee; Mrs. E. G. Hiland, who read the report of Mrs. A. MacPherson, convenor of the Hospital sewing committee; Miss Agnes Grant, giving Mrs. Grant's report of extension work, and Mrs. B. Law, who reported for the Christian Mothers' Confraternity.

An excellent year's work was reported on by the various ladies, with over one thousand dollars collected in various ways by the league.

His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, was present, and addressed the ladies briefly.

A nominating committee was appointed to draw up a slate of officers and present same at the next meeting. The ladies on this committee are Mrs. J. P. Finn, Mrs. G. H. Giroux, and Mrs. M. Henry.

14 HOUSES BURNED.

Ten Families Forced to the Street in Montreal To-day.

MONTREAL, Jan. 30 (Canadian Press).—Ten families were forced to the streets and lost most of their personal property when fire swept through and practically destroyed fourteen dwellings, second - hand stores and restaurants at the corner of Craig and Cadieux Streets this morning. In their wake the flames left an approximate damage of $16,000 after raging for six hours, and demanding the concentrated efforts of District Chief Drolan and his men to prevent surrounding dwellings from the same fate.

COUNTIES SPEND MUCH ON ROADS

Budget For Highways This Year Amounts to $90,000.

HALF FROM PROVINCE.

(By a Staff Reporter).

COBOURG, Jan. 30.—The united counties will spend $90,000 on county highways this year, the recommendation of the finance committee to that effect having been adopted at the closing session of the Counties Council on Friday morning, the report being presented by the chairman, Reeve Wood of Millbrook. Last year the expenditure for this purpose was $100,000. Of the $90,000, the counties will receive back from the Department $45,000.

Last year the counties' share of the amount expended on Provincial highways was something over $97,000, and this year it will be nearly $110,000, according to the estimates received from the Government. The total road expenditure, county and Provincial, will this year be practically the same as that paid out in 1925.

Annual Grants.

The finance committee recommended the payment of the following grants: $750 to each of the three hospitals in the counties; $350 a month to the Children's Shelter at Port Hope; $200 to the Institute for the Blind; $50 to the Sick Children's Hospital at Toronto. No grant was made to the hospital at Muskoka.

Reeves Baker of Darlington and Grills of Seymour moved that the $47,000 rebate which the counties will receive for county road expenditure last year be placed in a separate highway account instead of being credited to the general fund. Reeve Holdaway of Port Hope and Deputy-Reeve Palliser of Campbellford offered an amendment that the matter be deferred until the June session, as recommended by the committee, and this was carried.

On this question there is a wide difference of opinion between the rural and urban representatives, the former favoring the change in the system of bookkeeping as recommended by the Department of Highways, and the latter just as firmly supporting the system of accounting now in use.

Other Reports Adopted.

The reports of the school and county property committees were adopted without amendment, and the council adjourned, subject to the call of the Warden, after the by-laws, introduced at the Thursday session, had been given their third reading.

A Point of Law.

Clerk MacLachlan made a statement after adjournment, which should interest municipal councils everywhere. The Colonel says that it has been settled in court that no by-law is legal unless sealed at the time it is signed, and that no other business must intervene.

Notifying Members.

Reeve Holdaway of Port Hope brought up the point that the Clerk should notify all members as to the date of even the statutory meetings of the Council, as some of the Reeves and Deputies in the rural districts had no means of keeping track of these dates. This brought from Reeve Baker of Darlington a hot rejoinder, that the residents in the country went to church, read the newspapers, had telephones in their homes, and were in every way as intelligent as the town people.

Warden McCubbin said there was no excuse for any member not knowing the dates which were set by statute, as each Reeve and Deputy first attended the statutory meeting of his own township council.

Some of the members declared that the candidates for the wardenship would not fail to keep the Reeves and Deputies posted as to the date when their public services would be required at Cobourg.

Clerk MacNachtan said he was perfectly willing to notify the members of the date of the opening session, but that some of the township clerks did not send him certificates of the election of their Reeves and Deputies until a day or two before the January gathering at Cobourg, when it was too late for the Clerk to send out notices.

Banquet For Warden.

Residents of Percy Township, the constituency of the new Warden, will entertain Mr. McCubbin at a banquet to be held in the Leonard House, Warkworth, on Tuesday evening.

Chinese Troops Refuse To Allow Vessels Into Port in Dark.

TIENTSIN, China, January 30. — Canadian Press. — Chinese troops, defying the Boxer protocol, have mounted guns on the Taku forts and threaten to fire on any steamers entering the river after dark.

As a result pilots are not proceeding outside the bar to meet steamers arriving by night tide. Tientsin is now cut off by rail from Pukow and Shanhaikwan, and Peking is cut off from Hankow. If river communication remains interrupted during the night, communication with the south will become precarious.

ANNUAL MEETING HORTICULTURISTS

Peterborough Society Will Hold Regular Meeting on Monday.

The annual meeting of the Peterboro Horticultural Society will be held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms on Monday, February 1st, 1926, at 8 p.m.

The report of the activities of the society for the year will be presented and also the election of the directors to fill the vacancies of those retiring will take place.

A general invitation is extended to all citizens to be present and also an opportunity to bring in for inspection that evening all sick house plants as competent men will be present to prescribe the necessary treatment.

Jos. Grierson will read a paper on Perennials and Perennial Borders and will lead a discussion on the same.

This promises to be one of the most interesting meetings the society has had and a large attendance is looked for.

ITALIAN STUDENTS PROTEST AGITATION

Burn Foreign Papers Because of German Propaganda in Adige.

ROME, January 30. Canadian Press. — Rome was the scene yesterday of anti-foreign demonstrations by several hundred university students, who made bonfires of German, English, Hungarian and other foreign newspapers, in front of the German embassy, and Premier Mussolin's office in the Chigi Palace yesterday morning and were prevented from further disorders only by vigorous government intervention.

The protests were aimed against alleged anti-talian agitation by the Germans in the Upper Adige territory, ceded to Italy after the world war.

COBALT STORES GUTTED BY FIRE EARLY SUNDAY

Hunter Block Burned to the Ground in Disastrous Blaze.

DAMAGE $125,000.

Origin of Fire is Unknown—Some People Slightly Hurt.

COBALT, Feb. 1. — (Canadian Press).—The most disastrous fire in Cobalt in the past fifteen years swept the Hunter block level with the ground at an early hour Sunday morning and completely destroyed a number of stores extending northward as far as the former store of Pipe and Presley.

The origin of the fire is unknown. The structure contained a number of stores on the ground floor, a number of offices on the second floor, and a large number of roomers and tenants on the floors above. The loss is estimated at $125,000. J. J. Anderson received minor bruises when he made his escape down a canvas fire escape on which he forgot to apply the brakes. Tom Peters, caretaker of the Hunter block, received severe burns about the face.

ENDS MYSTERY OF DUKE'S DEATH

Ural Soviet President Writes of End of Grand Duke Michael.

KILLED BY WORKMEN.

MOSCOW, Feb. 1.— (Canadian Press.)— What purports to be the first actual authentic account of the fate of Grand Duke Michael Alexandrovich, who was Emperor of Russia for a few hours after his brother Nicholas abdicated, in March, 1917, and whose disappearance five weeks before the execution of the Romanoffs, in July, 1918, has always remained a profound mystery, appeared yesterday in a book entitled "Last Days of the Romanoffs."

The book was written by P. M. Bikov, who was president of the Ural Soviet in Ekatrinburg at the time the Romanoffs were killed. The author relates how a group of five men, whom he describes as "workers in a Ural iron foundry," arming themselves with false Cheka credentials, forcibly seized Michael at a hotel in Perm, where he had been detained by the Bolsheviks, with his English secretary, N. Johnson. Taking the Grand Duke to a lonely part of the adjacent woods on the night of July 12, 1918, they killed him.

LESS EMPLOYMENT

Considerable Seasonable Curtailment—Not as Much as Usual.

OTTAWA, Feb. 1.—(Canadian Press).—Employment at the beginning of January, 1926, showed considerable seasonal curtailment. Losses, however, were the smallest registered at that time in any year since the record was begun early in 1920. The index number, according to the report just issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, stood at 89.6 on January 1st last, as compared with 95.3 on December 1st, 1925, and with 83.9 on January 1st, 1925. The 5,708 firms whose returns were tabulated reported 733,175 employees, or practically six per cent. less than in the preceding month. All industries, with exception of coal mining, showed contraction. Manufacturing Provinces of Quebec and Ontario reported largest contractions.

NOW, HONESTLY—

Maybe you really believe that revenge is sweet.

And that's an admission that you haven't taken a second thought.

For, after all, no one gets a kick out of "getting even" with someone else. Chances are, you worry more about it than the person you "get even" with.

If someone does you a bit of wrong—make the best of it. Most humans feel worse about it, afterwards, if you just let it slide.

At least, you don't lower yourself to whatever level the wrong-doer is on.

DETROIT POLICE FIND VICTIMS OF DOUBLE MURDER

Private Detective and Girl Found Shot to Death.

SUSPECT HELD.

Victims Were in Field Some Distance From the Main Road.

DETROIT, Feb. 1.— (Canadian Press.)— Police found the bullet riddled body of Jay Daubenspeck, 30 year old lieutenant of priyate detectives, in a field three blocks south of the seven mile road yesterday and searching further came upon the slain body of a girl apparently not more than 19 years old. Samuel Pace, 21, is held for questioning. Police say they found a muddy pair of shoes in his house. It is believed the double murder occurred shortly after midnight. The slain girl may be Helen Malak, address unknown.

Cruising in a scout car with a patrolman, Sergeant John E. Bissop saw Daubenspeck's automobile standing in a field near Meyers road and on investigation discovered a bullet hole through the windshield and a woman's handkerchief on the ground. On the road running west, officers next found Daubenspeck's overcoat, and, still further on, his coat. The trail led them through a lonely section to a spot blocked from an automobile, where Daubenspeck's body lay. He had been shot eight times.

A short time later members of the homicide squad found the girl's body in a shallow ditch 300 feet from the car. She had been wounded four times, twice in the back. The other two bullets had been fired into her breast at such close range that there were powder marks on the clothing.

MARY GARDEN TO GO ON AIR

Radio Fascinates Her, She Admits—Makes Debut To-night.

SINGING AT WJZ.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1. Canadian Press. — Mary Garden, the Chicago opera prima donna, who admits that the radio fascinates her, will make her debut on the air to-night.

"The radio gives me more emotion than any man I ever met in my life," she has said. She will go on at 9 p.m. Eastern time, on WJZ.

WILHELM VISITS FORMER KAISER

Ex-Crown Princes's Expected Arrival Was Kept. Secret.

ARRIVED TO-DAY.

DOORN, Holland, Feb. 1 (United Press).—Ex-Crown Prince Wilhelm arrived here today to visit his father, the former gaiser, at Haus oDorn.

His coming was kept secret and he was fetched from Amersfoort station by Prince Henrich, brother of the ex-kaiser.

The former crown prince strangely failed to attend the recent birthday celebration of his father and at that time it was said that the Dutch Government had hinted a delay would be preferred.

SUSPECT ABLE TO PROVE ALIBI IN MURDER CASE

John Parks Was at Grandmother's Home in Whitney on Jan. 9.

AWAITING INQUEST.

Quandary Over Double Murder is as Great as Ever.

MADAWASKA, Feb. 1 (Canadian Press).—With the virtual establishment of an alibi by John Parks, arrested on a charge of murdering Sergeant John Billings, Ontario game and fisheries inspector, and his guide, Joe Stringer, on January 9, at a camp on Birch Creek, 13 miles south of Whitney, Ont., the quandary of the north country over how Billings and his guide met death is as great as ever.

Parks returned to Whitney last Thursday and peacefully gave himself up after having re-visited his shack on Hay Lake and finding there a note from his father informing him that he was being sought. Inhabitants of Whitney state that Parks will be able at the inquest to prove definitely that on the day of the deaths and in the evening when the deaths took place he was at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Bowers, at Whitney.

MANY MINERS GOING TO CAMP

Twenty Dog Teams Daily Arrive at Red Lake, Near Cobalt.

SEEKING GOLD.

Ottawa Feb. 1 (Canadian Press) —A special from Cobalt says: "Twenty dog teams daily are travelling into Red Lake gold camp, according to Joe Sweet, well-known local prospector, who returned from that field last night after a trip extending over four weeks. He speaks well of the new camp, and anticipates a still greater boom in spring. According to the prospector the trail in from Hudson to Red Lake, 135 miles long, is in good condition, but he says that the shorter route from McIntosh, about 50 miles farther west, presents difficulties that induce most of the prospectors to choose the longer trip. Sweet tells of one Winnipeg man who disposed of his team of eight huskies for $400. There are no buildings yet at Red Lake, and the miners on the ground accomodate themselves in tents under the shelter of a poplar bluff."

Dogs Of Ferguson's Town Shot If Found On Streets

TORONTO, Feb. 1 (Canadian Press)—Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey, Minister of Health, has issued instructions that every dog found on the streets of Kemptville, Premier Ferguson's home town, is to be shot on sight. This drastic order is necessary, according to Dr. R. Godfrey, as the result of a spread of rabies through that section of the province.

KING TODAY AT PRINCE ALBERT

No Hint of Opposition to Liberal Leader at Nomination.

VISITS WINNIPEG

WINNIPEG, Feb. 1 (Canadian Press).—Questioned regarding the Hudson Bay Railway and other affairs of vital importance to Western Canada, Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Prime Minister of Canada, declared that all promises made in the Speech from the Throne would be thoroughly carried out.

Premier King, accompanied by Charles McDonald, former member of Parliament for Prince Albert constituency, passed through here Saturday night, en route to Prince Albert, where he is expected to be accorded an acclamation today.

The Premier refused to discuss political subjects extensively, and when asked how long he considered the present government would remain in power said: "That is up to the House of Commons to decide."

During the hour spent in Winnipeg, the Premier was welcomed by a delegation of local supporters, and Provincial Liberal leaders.

En route to Prince Albert, Premier King will confer with Hon. Charles Dunning, Premier of Saskatchewan, at Regina.

CHICKEN THIEF STILL MISSING; PALMER BETTER

Welland Farmer Shot Saturday Morning Has Chance of Recovery.

WOUND IN NECK

Dead Thief Recognized as Charles Gilson of Wainfleet Township.

WELLAND, Feb. 1 (Canadian Press).—Weak from heavy loss of blood and with a bullet hole through his neck, Joseph Palmer, prominent Wainfleet Township farmer and apiarist, was holding his own last evening, and unless complications set in, is considered to have a good chance for recovery from the effects of a battle at 3.30 Saturday morning with two alleged checken thieves, one of whom was killed. The dead man, who has been identified as Charles Gilson, was a resident of Wainfleet Township, near the Haldimand boundary. A widow and one child survive.

There was no eye-witness to the gun battle outside of the participants. A veritable reign of terror has existed in the peninsular for some weeks, because of the depredations of chicken thieves. The county councils of Lincoln and Welland and numerous townships of the district have standing rewards, for in addition to heavy inroads on chicken coops in the district, the thieves have burned coops, and in one case in Wainfleet Township, a house, garage and barn were destroyed by fire with their entire contents. As a result, farmers had armed themselves and some like Palmer had installed burglar alarms.

It was his recently installed alarm that wakened Palmer. He came upon Gilson and another man in the rear of his new chicken coop. Covering them with his shotgun, Palmer detailed his hired man, Frank Laity, who had just come upon the scene to go to the house of his brother, Fred Palmer, on the same farm for help.

When Laity left for assistance, one of the intruders had his hands up in response to Palmer's command, the other lying prostrate on the ground with one hand on his heart feigning a heart attack. Two minutes after Laity left, he heard a revolver shot closely followed by the discharge of Palmer's shotgun. Rushing back, he found Palmer crumpled up on the kitchen floor in a pool of blood. After Laity had summoned medical attention and the Provincial police from Welland, the body of Gilson was found 60 feet from the chicken coop alongside a fence with a trail of blood, indicating that the dead man's pal had tried to drag him from the scene, but had eventually given up and taken to his heels across a ploughed field. The tracks led to the main road leading to Dunnville where they were lost. A 32 calibre revolver was found near the chicken house, nearby were a number of bags, while in the yard of the United Church was an abandoned touring car.

Mr. Palmer has not been pressed for a statement, but it is believed that he was shot by the man who was feigning illness. A coroner's jury viewed the body of Gilson as it lay on the ground. Next Friday was set as a tentative date for the inquest, which will be held in the township hall at Wainfleet village, formerly known as Marshville.

The Provincial Police have since been carrying on a search for Gilson's companion, but up to last evening without success.

BUS SERVICE IS BEING IMPROVED BY COMMISSION

New Bus Is To Be Added Within Few Weeks.

BETTER SERVICE.

Men Are Becoming Accustomed To New Equipment, Which is Tuning Up.

Realizing that additional buses would be necessary to provide adequate accommodation for the street traffic here, W. R. Robertson, General Superintendent of the H. E. P. C., in a communication to J. O. Clifford, district manager, stated that another bus would be placed at the disposal of the Peterboro Radial Railway within a month. Provision will be made to further augment the service at a later date.

Mr. Clifford, when acquainted with the fact that several complaints were being made by individuals, said that some people were not making proper allowances for conditions prevailing in the initial stage of the experiment. "One should consider," he stated, that the change was effected at the worst possible time of the year, that the equipment was new, the men were new to the job, the routes were new, in fact the entire organization was re-shuffled and a new deal made. One person advocated that we route the East City bus down Burnham street two blocks, then back up Mark and from there to the Nicholls Oval. I pointed out that routes were laid out on straight lines, being the shortest distances between the terminals, and any deviation from the direct line means lost time and delayed service."

When told that some ladies were suggesting that the doors were too narrow to permit of parcels being carried aboard, Mr. Clifford said that that fact had been brought to his attention, and that any new buses that came would be equipped with wider door spaces, "although," he said, smiling, "any parcel which is too big to pass through the door should be taken care of by the delivery service of the store where the purchase was made."

Routes are best.

"Regarding the routes," Mr. Clifford remarked, "they are laid out in such a way as to touch the most thickly populated parts of the city, with an eye also to the quality of the street and the absence of grades. There are possibly twenty-five houses in Crawford's grove but there is a blank space between that group of residents and the main part of the city. It would not pay to send a bus there every 20 minutes during the day. There is one thing certain and that is that a bus can't operate on every street. In any large city there are people who must walk a few blocks to a car line, so that this city is not exceptionally benighted so far as that is concerned."

Mr. Clifford is certain of the ultimate success of the service. He declares that every day shows a noticeable improvement, and that yesterday there was not a hitch in the whole day's operation. During the first few days he admitted employees of many factories were late for work, but that was remedied by starting the cars from Charlotte and George streets at 6.45 instead of 6.50 as formerly.

As proof that the new service is catching the popular fancy, an increase of 12 per cent. was registered for the past week, a fact which considering the weather conditions which prevailed then, may be taken as a favorable omen.

Wm. Hamilton Company Now Backed By Strong Interests

At the Annual Shareholders' Meeting of the William Hamilton Company Limited, at the Company's Office on Thursday last, arrangements were completed whereby the Company have now secured backing of financially strong and influential interests.

It is proposed to enlarge the operations of the Company, and sales offices are being opened in Montreal, Winnipeg and Vancouver. The prospects for new business for the Company are also encouraging and they expect to have their plant operating to capacity in the very near future.

The Company will continue to manufacture the well-known saw mill pulp mill, mining and hydraulic turbine machinery for which they have established a high reputation and have also secured Canadian manufacturing rights for several other lines of equipment which they propose to make here.

Further information will be available later.

We are able to state, however, that when the Directorate is given to the public, it will be found to be composed of men high in Canadian financial circles, and very influential.

Soviet Russia To Trade Jewels For Farm Implements

MOSCOW, Feb. 1 (Canadian Press)—Soviet Russia is ready to turn her crown jewels into plows, tractors and machinery. Negotiations are in progress for the sale of a vast collection of gems to foreign jewellers, but it is realized that private buyers can take only a negligible portion of the treasure because of their enoromus value. The government, therefore, is prepared to exchange the remainder for agriculture machinery, locomotives and other products Russia urgently needs.

SPANISH FLIERS AT PERNAMBUCO, SOUTH AMERICA

Reached Main Land Sunday Afternoon After Crossing Equator.

NEAR DESTINATION

Rest of Journey Down the Coast to Rio and Buenos Aires.

PERNAMBUCO, Brazil, Feb. 1 Canadian Press. Commander Franco piloting the Spanish seaplane Ne Plus Ultra, in its trans-Atlantic flight from Spain to Southern America, reached here at 4.45 o'clock Sunday afternoon from the Island of Fernando Do Noronha, off the Brazilian coast.

15-Hour Flight

FERNANDO DO NORONHA Island, Brazil, Feb. 1.—After a continuous flight of about 15 hours, the Spanish seaplane Ne Plus Ultra, in command of the noted air pilot Franco, completed the longest and most perilous stage of its flight from Spain to Argentina, coming down in the sea off this island at 8 o'clock Saturday evening.

Commander Franco at first girdled the island in search of a good landing spot, but found none because of the heavy surf. He again flew out to sea and alighted there, later to be towed into a safe harbor in Conception Bay.

The distance traversed was about 1,432 miles, and the Spanish aviators are now only about 279 miles from Pernambuco, the Brazilian mainland.

Beat Estimated Time by an Hour.

The intrepid birdmen took off from Ribeiro de Infierno Bay, Porto Praya, Cape Verde Islands, at 6.10 o'clock Saturday morning, and alighted on Conception Bay.

The fight was made under favorable weather conditions and seemingly without any untoward instances. Frequent radio messages from the Plus Ultra reported the progress of the voyage. It was originally estimated the flight would take 16 hours.

Only three men of the original five took part in the adventure. Alfonso, the official photographer, was left behind at Las Palmas, Canary Islands, and Ensign Duran, representing the Spanish Military Air Service, was dropped off at Porto Praya. This enabled the seaplane to take on more fuel.

The flight was not only the longest thus far undertaken and the most hazardous, but it called for great endurance because of the crossing of the Equator, with broiling sun and depressing humidity.

Enthusiasm in Spain.

MADRID, Feb. 1.—The greatest enthusiasm prevailed in Madrid Sunday. All Spain anxiously awaited the news. The King, in Bonanza, frequently inquired about the flight as "the bridge Spain has with her South American brothers."

LOWER PASSENGER FARES DEMANDED

British Columbia Appeal To Railway Board.

VICTORIA, B.C., Feb. 1 (Canadian Press)—Reductions in the present passenger fares on Canadian railways over lines in British Columbia probably will form one of the province's chief demands when it applies to the Railway Board shortly for a general cut in transportation costs.

This was indicated yesterday by G. G. McGeer, K.C., government rate counsel, when he arrived here for a conference with members of the government in preparation for Railway Board hearings expected to take place in March or April.

"Our case will cover every phase of the freight rate situation as well as express rates," Mr. McGeer declared. "We have under consideration now an application for lower passenger rates."

The Government counsel declared that all transportation rates in British Columbia were excessive as compared with rates on similar commodities in other parts of Canada.

SIX WEEKS' ADJOURNMENT OF COMMONS EXPECTED TUESDAY

Debate on the Address in Reply to Speech From the Throne May Terminate This Evening—Reorganize Cabinet in Recess.

ACCLAMATION FOR PREMIER KING

OTTAWA, Feb. 1. — (Canadian Press).—Parliament opens its third week of the new session to-day with the almost certain prospect of adjourning before the week-end until March 15.

With every likelihood of carrying its motion, the Government has moved for an adjournment from the end of the debate on the address until that date. There will be a reorganization of the Cabinet in the recess, and probably at least one more by-election in Ontario following the appointment to the Cabinet of an Ontario man. Whether the Government will give portfolios to men already elected for Ontario seats, or whether one or more of the defeated Ontario Cabinet Ministers will be provided with a seat has not been disclosed. At present Ontario has no elected member of Parliament in the Cabinet, and it is well-known that the Government is anxious to return Right Hon. Geo. P. Graham, present Minister of Railways, to the House. The by-election in Prince Albert is now almost certain to result in an acclamation for Premier Mackenzie King who has gone West to address his constituents, and may be resuming his place on the Treasury benches by next Friday.

Debate Nears End.

The end of the debate on the address in reply, which has run exactly ten days, is expected to end to-day. Since Thursday afternoon no Conservative member has participated in the debate, the official Opposition taking the stand that it is ready for a vote at once on the Meighen amendment to the address. The list of Liberal and Progressive members still waiting to speak is expected to be exhausted by to-night and a tentative arrangement has been made between the whips of these parties for a vote before adjournment of Monday's sitting. It has not been announced yet whether or not the Conservatives will submit another amendment to the address if the present one is defeated, as it is expected it will be, but it is not likely that an amendment calling for prolonged discussion will be put up. The likeliest move by the Opposition will be the submission of a straight motion of want of confidence in the Government which may be voted on immediately after the present amendment has been disposed of. The probable extent of the Government's majority on the address in reply is variously estimated from six to nine, including Independents and nearly all the Progressives.

Since there has been no Conservative participant in the debate since Thursday, it is not likely that the vote on the Meighen amendment will be delayed beyond to-night, and Tuesday might find the Commons already in recess and the members scattering again to discuss the political situation with their constituents. Many of the Western members, it is expected, will remain in Ottawa during the recess.

Quebec Local Option Vote Against License Increase

HULL, Quebec, Feb. 1. Canadian Press. — Cheneau Point, Quebec, residents, on Saturday turned down the proposed increase of hotel licenses by the vote of 146 to 112, thereby defeating the bylaw, asking for an increase in the number of hotel licenses from 3 to 5, and the opening of a beer shop.

FOREIGN TRADE CANADA'S ASSET

Forging Ahead Steadily in Spite of Keen Competition.

QUALITY GOODS.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 1. Canadian Press. — "If we are to maintain and eventually increase our foreign export trade it will not be necessary to curtail our trade with the countries of the Empire, but we shall have to have greater production..... Canada must continue to manufacture high grade articles and cater to the high grade markets of the world, rather than seek by shoddy manufacture to sell to a cheaper, but perhaps wider market amongst the rural populations of foreign countries, and so compete with Germany and Austria," so declared Wendell MacLeod Clare, former Canadian Trade Commissioner at Milan, Italy, and now Director of Commercial Intelligence Trades and Commerce Department, in an address here on Saturday.

Mr. Clarke declared that the foreign trade of Canada to-day had a most important economic aspect, for it was one of the most important assets in the possession of the Dominion. If the Canadian dollar had been brought to par or even better on the American exchange, this had been due to the reflection of the rapidly expanding foreign export trade of Canada.

Mr. Clarke pointed out that the interesting feature of Canada's foreign export trade was its ever increasing ramifications, for the Dominion was going farther afield in its search for new markets and the trade was becoming more international—although not at the expense of trade with the Empire.

"If we are to maintain and increase our foreign export trade it will not be necessary to curtail our trade with Great Britain, but we shall have to have greater production," said Mr. Clarke.

"I believe that as time goes on, our overseas enterprise will become more and more the bread of our national life. Canada's foreign export trade, despite the keenest competition, is forging ahead, and its expansion will mean that we have learned the story that it is impossible for us as a nation to live unto ourselves."

GAS KILLS FIVE IN LIVING ROOM

Believed Overcome By the Fumes From Leaky Gas Log.

CHILDREN ALIVE.

BELMONT, Mass., Feb. 1 (Canadian Press)—Five persons were found dead of gas asphyxiation in the living room of their home in the Waverley district here late Sunday. The police believed that they were overcome by fumes from a leaky gas log.

Two children were taken to the Cambridge hospital, overcome, but alive.

NO FIRE LOSS IN LAST MONTH

Fire Department Succeeds in Laying Hoodoo of January.

NEW RECORD.

The month of January, 1926, will go down in history as far as the Peterborough Fire Department is concerned. For the first time the records of the department show "no loss" from fires that occurred during the month. In previous years, January has been the hoodoo month for the firemen, and this year, although the calls were as numerous as ever, thanks to the efficiency of the department, they were all extinguished before any loss had occurred.

MOURNERS FILLED CATHEDRAL TO-DAY

Solemn Requiem Pontificial High Mass For Late Michael O'Brien.

St. Peter's Cathedral was filled this morning with the relatives and friends of the late Michael O'Brien of Toronto, who gathered to attend the last services of the Church prior to his interment in St. Peter's Cemetery. A solemn requiem pontifical high mass was celebrated by His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, with Rev. Austin O'Brien, of the Basilian Order, Toronto, a son of the deceased man, acting as deacon and Rev. K. Corkery of Cobourg as subdeacon. Deacons of honor were Rev. J. McAuley of Ennismore and Rev. Father McCorkle, president of St. Michael's College, Toronto. Rev. J. J. O'Brien, pastor of the Church of the Sacred Heart, acted as assistant priest. Mr. Gregory Castricum was master of ceremonies. The requiem mass was beautifully sung by a choir, numbering nearly two hundred children of St. Peter's and St. Mary's Schools, under direction of Rev. J. Finn.

Other clergymen present in the sanctuary were Rt. Rev. Monsignor McDonald, of Glen Nevis, Glengarry; Rt. Rev. Monsignor W. J. McColl; Rev. Dr. Foley, editor of the Catholic Record, London, Ontario; Rev. Father Cline of Holy Name Church, Toronto; Rev. Peter McGuire; Rev. J. McCarthy of Norwood; Rev. Father Garvey of Lakefield; Rev. F. O'Sullivan of Port Hope; Rev. C. S. Bretherton of Hastings; Rev. Jas. Guiry, Rev. J. Moloney, Rev. P. Costello, Rev. G. Maher, Rev. P. Butler, also Rev. Brother Bernard, provincial of the Christian Brothers, Toronto; Rev. Quentin Killen, Rev. H. Black and Rev. C. McCarney.

Services at the cemetery were conducted by Rev. Austin O'Brien, Rev. K. Corkery, Rev. J. McAuley and Rev. P. Butler.

Pall-bearers were five sons of the deceased: John, William, Richard, James and Gerald O'Brien, and one brother, Mr. James O'Brien of this city.

Ushers at the Cathedral were Messrs. J. J. Duffus, Wm. Hickey and A. Costello.

The sermon was preached by His Grace, Archbishop McNeil of Toronto, speaking on the text from the first Epistle of St. John: "He that doeth the will of God abideth forever."

His Grace in, a beautifully worded thoughtful discourse, pointed out the good qualities of the deceased, as an example to his hearers. "He was a man who never betrayed a trust, whose judgment was prompt, clear, decided and disinterested. In his own sphere of activity, he was a leader—always alert and always kind in appreciation of public men and their motives."

The speaker alluded to the services rendered the church by the late Michael O'Brien, in the argument contained in the petition of rights with regard to separate school matters. "In this work, he had the knowledge of an expert and the zeal of an apostle. Whether we win or lose, we are bound to him by every tie of gratitude for the years of hard and efficient work he put in its preparation.

"As a Christian, a citizen, a father of a family, a teacher, a separate school inspector, and an educational secretary, he always measured up to the highest standard."

His Grace spoke of the mental film which obscured Mr. O'Brien's last days, owing to the peculiar nature of the illness from which he suffered, a spinal affection, and to the clarity of his mind during one hour of the day alone, the hour when he partook of Holy Communion.

"He was a man of clean life, scrupulously honest in word and deed, who rejoiced in the success of others, and was ever ready and eager to lend a helping hand to a neighbor in time of need. His was a prayerful life and he could be be called a saintly man. He has been a witness to the world of what the life of a good Catholic layman may be made. Such a man is necessarily a good citizen and an asset to any community. Loyalty to his church and state were a portion of his character and his patriotism was proved by the fact that four of his sons enlisted voluntarily in the Great War. His record as a Christian father has its outcome in the fact that two of his sons are priests and his only daughter is a nun."

Speaking of the example as a parent afforded by the deceased man, His Grace spoke of the serious social problem of today in the decadence of family life. The attributes of loving kindness and strict discipline in the home which should be exercised by parents have given way to a species of moral indolence in which parents seem to act on the assumption that original sin and an evil inclination in the heart have no place in life, and forget that environment, example and mis-direction cause evil.

"Loving kindness in the home and respect and reverence on the part of the children were practised in the household of the late Michael O'Brien and his worthy spouse. 'He that serveth God, abideth forever.' We are not bidding him an eternal farewell today. He has gone to join the souls of the faithful departed, who, through the mercy of God, rest in peace forever."

Among the out-of-town mourners at the funeral were his widow, six sons, Rev. Austin O'Brien, of the Basilian Order, Toronto; John, William, James and Gerald of Toronto, and Richard of Detroit; the seventh son, Rev. Michael O'Brien, of Huntsville, being prevented from attendance by illness; two brothers, P. W. O'Brien and D. J. O'Brien, of Chicago, Illinois; Mrs. P. W. O'Brien of Chicago; Mrs. Gerald O'Brien of Toronto; V. K. Greer of Toronto, chief inspector of public and separate schools in Ontario, and representing the department of education; and the following from Lindsay: Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Gough, Senator McHugh, Messrs. Killen, J. O'Halleran and J. A. Cain, the latter chairman of the separate school board, and representing the district deputy of the Knights of Columbus of Lindsay.

LARGER DIVIDENDS FROM INSURANCE CO.

North American Life Announces Increases to Policyholders.

Policyholders of the North American Life Assurance Company will be pleased with the announcement of a higher dividend scale for 1926. This company has been increasing policy dividends steadily, and during 1925 paid out over $676,779 to policyholders in surplus. This latest increase will be extremely gratifying.

In all, policyholders received over $2,910,000 from the North American Life last year. Of this amount matured policies and dividends represent $1,655,000, which proves the life insurance policy of to-day to be a safe and profitable investment as well as sure protection.

The insuring public of to-day is looking for a safe and secure depository for their savings, and the strength and stability of the various companies are becoming more and more a factor in their choice. The financial statement of the North American Life shows its position to be an enviable one among life insurance companies in general.

The company's assets, which are valued on a very conservative basis, have now reached $29,288,000, and exceed the total liabilities by over $5,000,000. A feature of the assets is the company's holdings of government and municipal bonds, stocks and debentures, which amout to $17,340,000. These are carried at their book value, notwithstanding the fact that their present market value exceeds this amount by over $1,110,000.

No better evidence of the solid financial position of the company could be found, and the fact that this is appreciated by the public is evidenced by the volume of new business secured in 1925, which amounted to twenty-nine and a quarter millions. The company has now $138,000,000 in force, and expect that this will be greatly augmented by the business of 1926.

BIRTH CONTROL BENEFIT.

Clergyman Tells New York Congregation That It Is Splendid.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1 — (United Press).—Birth control is a splendid campaign to benefit humanity, the Rev. Dr. S. L. Tyson, Episcopalian, told an audience at St. Mark's in the Bowery when he occupied the pulpit of the church yesterday.

Division Court Clerk Moves Headquarters To County Buildings.

Charles J. Seymour, division court clerk, who for several years has had his headquarters at 408 1-2 George street, moved to-day to his new office in the county buildings.

Various portions of office parapherналia, including a heavy safe, were moved in this morning, and henceforth Mr. Seymour may be found in the corner room at the north-eastern end of the building on the ground floor.

MANY FATALITIES.

Three Tragedies Took Fourteen Lives in Eastern States.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1 (Canadian Press).—Three separate tragedies took a toll of fourteen lives in the eastern states.

While digging coal at Archibald, Pa., four men were killed when a huge boulder overhanging the stripping operation crushed out their lives.

Four persons were killed at Perry man, Md., when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by a train at a level crossing.

Six persons died of gas poisoning at Belmont, Mass. A leaky gas log is believed to have been the cause of the asphyxiations.

HONORED BY CHURCH.

Papal Title For Renfrew Capitalist.

RENFREW, Feb. 1. (Canadian Press).—Announcement was made at the morning services in St. Francis Xavier Church, Renfrew, by Right Rev. Mons. F. L. French that a cable from His Lordship Bishop Ryan, who is in Rome, conveyed the pleasing news that the distinguished Papal honor and title of Knight Commander of the Order of St. Gregory had been conferred by His Holiness Pius XI. on Hon. M. J. O'Brien, the well-known capitalist and contractor, in recognition of his many benefactions to the Church. Mr. O'Brien is at present in California, and it is not known when the ceremony of presentation of the insignia will take place.

FRANCE NO LONGER GUARDS CATHOLICS

Vatican Is Arranging For Diplomatic Relations With Turkey.

PERA, Turkey, Feb. 1. — Canadian Press. — The Vatican is reported to have notified France that she is no longer recognized the protector of the Catholics in Turkey, and to have instructed the Apostolic delegate in Constantinople to establish diplomatic relations beween the Holy See and the Turkish government at Angora.

Since the abolition of capitulations or extra territorial rights for foreigners, France has encountered difficulties in exercising her traditional role of protector of the Catholics in Turkey which she has maintained for the last two centuries.

REPORTS TO COUNTY COUNCIL

HOOL INSPECTOR DOWNEY.
e Municipal Council of the County Peterborough.
NTLEMEN,—I have the honour of nting my third report for West borough for your consideration.
e requirements of the law in makhe requisite number of visits to school in the Inspectorate have fully met. All the schools in Peterborough have been in opera-during the year under fully qualified
ers. You will note later in my t, that I have only three Third teachers.
w that the supply of teachers is ient to meet the demand, no
1 Class teachers should be ap-ed to the schools.
ch September brings too many ges in too many schools. In Peterborough 10 teachers out of ft their schools. Many teachers op the roving spirit, and too many ds of Trustees allow really good conscientious teachers to leave ection for some very trivial griev-on the part of some disgruntled dissatisfied parent. Permanency g teaching profession is very much desired, and Trustees should en-our to retain in their schools ers who have rendered efficient ce.
the whole, the character of the ing is good and merits my warmommendation. In the majority of , the teachers know their meth-and have the necessary skill to use effectively. Unfortunately, there few teachers who do not fully ure up to the standard. Some of are young and inexperienced, they will grow; others, no doubt,
ld seek other employment.

pointed out in previous years, equipment in many schools should nproved. Additional maps, charts other necessary equipment should upplied. Many libraries need aton; they need replenishing; the s should be re-sorted, re-classified, talogued. Excellent material is lable at small cost for interesting developing the minds of the "wee
" of our schools. If a child is look-t a picture book, he is not necessarily ing himself; if he is building his of blocks, he need not be merely
ing. In reference to all this, the enge is primarily to the teacher, should make her wants known to Trustees, and they, in turn, should turn deaf ears to her appeal.
rom the standpoint of health and tation, much still remains to be
. The Medical Officers of Health the schools and make their official rts to the Trustees; but apparently majority of Trustees let the matter there. To my mind the health of pupils is of prime importance, every Board of Trustees should forth every effort to safeguard the iren of the Inspectorate. Very few ions are free from complaint, judged the reports of the Medical Officers Health. Better school buildings, er heating, lighting and ventilation, er outbuildings and a good supply pure water should be supplied by Boards of Trustees. The ratepayers ld see that broad-minded, agressive progressive Trustees are elected.
et me point out that the character lic medical inspection could well be ened and extended in its scope. As tioned above, it is in the interests he children to provide for good water, d school buildings, with proper ting ventilation, etc., but it would be of much value to have a medical pection which would have in mind the sical state of the pupils. The mach-y has been provided for both Medical Dental Inspection in our schools
Councils and Boards of Trustees slow to set this machinery in motion.
o many people to-day think that hat was good enough for me, is d enough for my child" and so it omes difficult to make real progress.
The Attendance Officer has a very portant duty to perform in seeing t the boys and girls of schoolage afforded au opportunity for a really rth-while education.
Manua Training, Domestic Science
Agriculture are proving attractive d beneficial to some of our sections.
uch more could and should be done ng these lines. The pupils are deng real benefit from all of these sub-ts, and in the hands of skilful teach-a real contribution is being made the good of the pupils. The "hot h" is being served in a few of the ools of my Inspectorate.
The Inspectorate is particularly well ovided with opportunities for Second-y Education. Pupils are within easy h of Collegiate, High or Continua-n Schools. A few schools are under ing Fifth Class locally. A reasonably od showing was made on the recent trance Examinations held last June, d a large percentage of those pupils o were successful is not engaged in condary Education.
There are too many small schools
th a small attendance of pupils. Some these schools should be closed, rejustments should be made and arngements formulated for combining ar-by schools.
At the last session of the Provincial gislature, Premier Ferguson, who also Minister of Education, introduced bill to establish Township Boards of ustees. This bill received consider-le discussion a year ago, and was then ith drawn in order that it might be scussed throughout the Province.
oards of Trustees received copies of is bill early in the year. The Minister Education invited a full and free scussion of it in local communities, nd he also requested that the decisions
the Trustees be forwarded to him.
he Inspectors of Schools were also sked to do what they could to set this atter before the people of the Province.
Much has been done; many resolu-
ons have been sent to Premier Ferguson nd, no doubt, much valuable informa-on has been gathered relative to the chools of this Province. It is the inention of the Minister of Education to e-introduce this bill at the approach-g session of Legislature.

SCHOOL INSPECTOR LEES.

I beg, respectfully, to submit my re-ort on educational conditions in the nspectorate of Peterborough East for he year 1925.
All the schools were visited at least wice during the year and the regulaions of the Department of Education n regard to inspection were fully complied with.
There were employed in the schools 97 teachers during the year. Of these 25 changed at midsummer and a few at other times. This is about half as many changes as took place annually a few years ago. Of the 25 referred to, eleven were in Belmont and Methuen, six in Otonabee and the others scattered. Of the 97 teachers employed during the fall term, three held First Class Certificates, 81 Second Class, 12 Limited Third Class and one a Permanent Third Class Certificate. The First Class Certificates were: one in Chandos and two in Otonabee. Of the thirds, five were in Belmont and Methuen, four in Burleigh and Anstruther, three in Chandos and one in Dummer. With the exception of two these have now all been replaced by teachers holding First or Second Class Certificates. There are plenty of fully qualified teachers and trustees who have failed to secure them have been remiss in the performance of their duties.

A comparison of the attendance last year with that of the year before and also with that of 1915, shows a total enrolment in the rural schools: 2391 last year; 2387 in 1924 and 2600, in 1915. The averages are just about in the same proportion for the last two years, but somewhat higher than for 1915. The natural inference being that the appointment of school attendance officers has had some effect in promoting regularity of attendance in the rural schools. It is worthy of note that in the ten years the number of pupils attending the schools decreased by 45 in Belmont and Methuen, by 22 in Burleigh and Anstruther, by 16 in Chandos, by 58 in Douro, and by 36 in Dummer. It increased by 2 in Asphodel, by 23 in N. Monaghan and by 43 in Otonabee. The increase in the last is, however, more than accounted for by the Fifth Form classes at Keene and Lang.

In the villages the figures were 751 last year, 763 in 1924 and 842 in 1915. There was an increase of 9 at Lakefield, a decrease of 23 at Havelock and of 72 at Norwood. An interesting fact is that while the registered attendance at the three village schools was 9 less last year than the year before, the average attendance was 26 less.

There was little done during the year in the way of building. No new schoolhouses were undertaken though some much-needed repairs were made. New sheds and out-buildings were provided in a few cases. Attention to building improvement has not yet recovered from the setback it received when prices advanced so greatly some eight or ten years ago. There are, however, at present prospects that some progress will be made in the near future. The dilapidated, unsanitary and, sometimes filthy condition of many of the outbuildings continues to be a serious problem. It seems almost an impossibility, in many cases, to keep them in a respectable, to say nothing of a sanitary condition. The work of some of the Medical health officers along this line is helping.

Progress continues to be made in the teaching of agriculture. There are now 26 schools in the inspectorate that are following the prescribed course and are taking this work under the special regulations of the Department of Education, while a number of others are partially following the course. This increased interest, may be ascribed to various causes, chief among which are these. More attention is being given the subject at the Normal Schools. In the present course of study this subject and Nature Study are definitely related to each other. The influence of the rural school fairs which have been so efficiently carried on for some years is helping.

Apart altogether from the direct benefit to be derived from this work, it has a decided advantage in making it possible to relate more closely a considerable part of the work in other subjects to the lives and activities of the pupils. The schools in which the Agricultural course is taken are generally the brightest, best and most efficient schools, though this fact may be due quite as much to the greater energy and enterprise of the teachers as to the presence on the time-table of this particular subject.

During the year a consolidation of four school sections was effected an Apsley, thanks to the wisdom and foresight of the citizens of that district. The sections are No. 1 Anstruther, No. 2, Burleigh, Nos. 2 and 7, Chandos, with a school attendance of about 60 children. It is expected that a building will be erected during the coming summer, after which two teachers will be able to overtake readily the work that is now being done by four. Besides, it is hoped that at least two years of high school work will be undertaken for pupils who have passed the Entrance Examination. This will be a great boon to the community where the lack of any facilities for high school work has always been a serious handicap to the brighter and more ambitious boys and girls.

At the last session of the Legislature a bill was introduced by the Premier, Minister of Education, providing for the establishment of township school boards. Everyone who is at all familiar with rural school conditions in Ontario, and who has given some attention to the working of this system where it has been in operation for some time, is of the opinion that its introduction here would be a long step in advance. The bill is to receive further consideration at the coming session and to be again laid over for at least another year in order that it may be carefully studied and more fully discussed.

Some advantages that would follow from its adoption would be:—

1. It would tend to establish a uniform rate of taxation for school purposes.
2. It would tend to equalize the educational advantages and privileges of all.
3. It would eliminate all disputes about school section boundaries.
4. It would do away with the very small and inefficient school and maintain just as many schools as were required.
5. It would make it possible for children to attend the school that best suited their convenience.
6. It would result in better equipment and accommodations and in greater permanency of teachers.
7. In many cases it would decrease the cost of education.
8. It would make it possible for rural communities to provide for high school education.
9. It would give the people more complete control over their expenditures for school purposes.

All of which is respectfully submitted by your obedient servant,

RICHARD LEES,
P.S. Inspector,
Peterborough, Jan. 28th, 1926. Peterboro' East.

C.P.R. EMPLOYEES RECREATION CLUB

H. W. Roche Elected First President of Havelock Club.

HAVELOCK, Feb. 1.—A meeting was held on Tuesday, January 26th for the purpose of forming a Havelock C.P.R. Recreation Club. Those present were: Messrs. C. Dickenson, D. Brennan, G. Rigby, J. H. Moore, H. W. Roche, F. Post, F. Pollock, F. McKay, D. A. Forde, D. Greenley, J. Evans, A. J. Plunkett, J. Harvey, J. Barlow, T. Green, R. Morrison, R. Crawford, P. Pincombe, J. Diaper, A. Spencer, T. C. Jamieson.

Mr. H. W. Roche was appointed chairman of the meeting on motion of Messrs. J. H. Moore and J. Barlow.

Mr. T. C. Jamieson was appointed Secretary on motion of Messrs. J. H. Moore and G. Rigby.

The meeting was then thrown open for discussion, re forming a club and it was moved by J. H. Moore, seconded by R. Crawford that a club be formed to be called the "C.P.R. Havelock Recreation Club."

Chairman Roche then pointed out that it would be necessary to appoint officers for the club and it was moved by J. Barlow and seconded by D. Brennan that the following men be elected Honorary Officers:—Messrs. H. C. Grant, F. Ronaldson, H. J. Main, N. McMillan, C. H. Towle, C. Powers, R. J. O'Hearn, A. Frost and R. H. Milliken. And the following men as vice-Presidents:—P. Pincombe, representing Mechanical Dept.; R. Crawford, Car Dept.; J. Harvey, Stores Dept.; J. Howe, B. & B. Dept.; W. McLaren, Maintainence of Way Dept.; J. G. Hagerman, Conductors and Trainmen; W. Hitchins, Engineers & Firemen; H. Peters, Yardmen; E. H. Cross, Traffic Dept.; J. Evans, Investigation Dept.; A. W. Lane, Stores and Mechanical Accts. Dept.; J. S. Scott, Sleeping and Dining Car Dept.; I. Barlow, Pensioners; Dr. A. S. Thompson, Medical service.

H. W. Roche was elected as President of the Club, representing the Canadian Pacific Railway at Havelock. J. H. Moore was elected Secretary of the Club and T. C. Jamieson as Treasurer.

The question of membership was then taken up and after some discussion, it was decided that the Secretary get in touch with some of the other clubs to get more information regarding the admitting of non-C.P.R. men as members of the Club.

The membership fee was then discussed and on motion of J. H. Moore and C. Dickenson, the sum of $1.00 was set as the membership fee for one year.

It was suggested that the Vice-Presidents be appointed as a committee and, on motion of D. Brennan and J. Barlow, the vice-Presidents were elected to act as a membership committee.

The advisibility of forming the other committees was discussed and it was the general feeling that this be left for another meeting.

On motion of J. Barlow and F. Pollock the Secretary and the Treasurer were authorized to get two hundred tickets printed and to have them ready for the next meeting.

It was moved by D. Brennan and J. Barlow that the Superintendent, Mr. H. J. Main be advised that the Club had been formed on motion of J. H. Moore and F. McKay; the Secretary was instructed to hand a copy of the minutes of the meeting to the press for publication.

On motion of R. Crawford and A. Spencer the next meeting of the Club will be held on February 9th, 1926.

STIRLING CHURCH ANNUAL MEETING

Reports Show Congregation of St. Andrew's Had Successful Year.

STIRLING, Jan. 30.—St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church held its annual congregational meeting last night with a good attendance. The meeting was opened by the singing of "Oh God Our Help In Ages Past," in a hearty manner, followed by prayer and Scripture reading by the Rev. R. Simpson.

The minutes of former meetings were read discussed and passed, then a new departure was enacted by the throwing upon the screen of the Receipts and Expenditures of the various organizations of the church. This proved a very enlightening proposition, when M. W. Sine, one of the auditors was called upon to explain the figures as shown. Rev. Mr. Simpson then gave the usual report of the session which was quite satisfactory considering what had transpired during the past year.

The reports of the various organizations were then presented, beginning with that of Mrs. Chas. Bailey as President of the Ladies' Aid. This organization had excelled itself as compared with former years and if the managers lack funds they always appeal to the Ladies' Aid for assistance, as they know their request will not be in vain. During the past year the Ladies had gathered from all sources over $700, which had been used in wiping out the debt on the church shed and for other purposes.

The Treasurer's report of the Women's Missionary Society was given by Mrs. M. W. Sine and showed that this society was equal to the occasion that had confronted it, the past year, and the receipts were nearly $200. Mrs. Jas. Montgomery gave an account of the expense fund of the W.M.S., showing that it had expended nearly $50 in various ways, as well as preparing a bale valued at over $70, for the North-west. The receipts of the Mission Band were over $70, which was considered good for this band of young workers. Mr. Thos. Matthews, the veteran Treasurer of the schemes fund of the church, had a good account to give of his department of the work, having collected over $200 during the year. This was slightly under that of 1924.

At this point considerable discussion arose concerning the allocated amount for this branch of the work by the Presbytery, to Stirling congregation, viz., $540. The matter was finally settled by a motion presented by R. W. Meiklejohn and W. Anderson that every effort be put forth to collect the amount and there was no doubt but what success would follow.

Mr. T. J. McGee, Treasurer of the Board of Managers in giving his report stated that the contributions for 1925 were better than the year previous and the year closed with a balance of nearly $4.00 in the Treasury.

The choir had worked harmoniously together during the year, and rendered excellent work in the service of song. Its receipts were $75, and, after needful expense, it has a fine balance to its credit.

The Sunday School gathered from all sources over $180, and are going strong with a good balance in the bank to begin the year with.

The Guild, Bible Class, King's Daughters and Sunbeam Class all had good reports and are going forward with greater zeal and enthusiasm to make 1926 better than any previous year. The gross receipts from all sources, for the past year was $4275.

The election of officers followed. Messrs. T. J. McGee, Henry Reid and W. Anderson were elected as managers for the next three years, also the President, Secretary and Treasurer of the Ladies' Aid were appointed to work in conjunction with the managers. These are Mesdames Spry, Bissonnette and Rollins. Messrs. A. Hammond and M. W. Sine were appointed as auditors for 1926.

Business being completed the meeting was closed by the benediction. Lunch was served by the Ladies' Aid, and an hour or more agreeably and sociably spent, closed another successful year's work of this veteran congregation.

The Women's Auxiliary of St. John's Anglican Church held a meeting Wednesday afternoon in connection with the Forward Movement of the Church, which was addressed by Rev. B. Payne.

Miss Elizabeth Green, who resided with her neice, Miss Annie Green, died Wednesday night after a brief illness having suffered from a stroke last Sunday morning.

Mr. Clayton Tucker, President of Stirling Agricultural Society, attended the annual meeting of the Central Fairs Association, held in Belleville, on Wednesday, when the dates of the various fairs in this district, were fixed for 1926. Stirling Fair will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday, September 28th and 29th.

Mrs. McManus, who has been in poor health for some time, accidentally fell recently and is now confined to her bed. At her age of 89 years the condition is serious.

Mrs. Duncan, who was visiting her sister, Mrs. Joe Reid and other relatives here for some time left last week and after visiting her sister, Mrs. Elliott in Toronto, will proceed to her home in Averoid, Sask.

DECISION CONFIRMED.

Permissable Export of Rubber Raised To-day to 100 Per Cent.

LONDON, Feb. 1 (Canadian Press).—The Colonial Office published a confirmed decision announced at the beginning of December, that the permissible export of rubber under the Stevenson scheme would be raised to 100 per cent. on February 1st, thus setting at rest any revision of that decision more favorable to the consumers.

Y.P.L. MEETING.

Good Programme Put On By Citizenship Department.

MARMORA, Jan. 30.—The Citizenship Department of the Young People's League under its new leader, Miss Grace Warren, put on a very entertaining programme last Wednesday evening. Following devotional excercises, Miss Florence Sopha gave a reading on "Character." Miss Gladys Williams followed with the reading of the poem, "The Builders." A musical selection with harp and violin was given by the Misses Bernice Bonter and Marjorie Colster. A report on the activities of the recent winter school in Cobourg was given by Miss Warren, who was the delegate chosen to represent the League at the School. The contest which concluded the programme proved a tax on the power of retentive memory. The attendance was good, considering the coldness of the evening.

In a postponed Inter-departmental hockey game on Deloro rink on Wednesday evening the Engineers vanquished the Metals Dept. by the narrow margin of 4-3.

A delightful house party was given by Mr. and Mrs. Abe Smith at their home on Wednesday evening. Over 60 guests attended to participate in pleasing companionship and dancing, which together with the dainty refreshments served, were greatly appreciated by all present.

WESTERN SETTLER VERY ENTHUSIASTIC

Charles Coben, a Former Reeve of Galway, Says Conditions Favorable.

Charles Coben, formerly reeve of Galway, but now located in Saskatchewan, has been a visitor in the city and district since the end of December.

He was interested this week in the county council proceedings, of which he, in previous years, has taken an important part.

Mr. Coben is very enthusiastic about the west, and states that conditions there are progressing most favourably. He further states that if the west enjoys another good crop, with fair prices, that it will be in a most prosperous condition.

He and his three sons are farming a section of land, and their results this year have met their expectations.

DICTATOR'S LETTER AROUSES CURIOSITY

Says Fascist Revolution Will Reach Its Napoleonic Year in 1926.

LONDON, Feb. 1 (Canadian Press).—A Rome telegram states there is much curiosity concerning the meaning of an enigmatical phrase occurring in a message sent by Premier Mussolini to the editor of The Italian Review Gerarchia, in which the Italian dictator states: "We must have faith in the Fascist revolution which in 1926 will see its Napoleonic year."

TALE OF BATTLE WITH SEAS TOLD

British Freighter Came Into Philadelphia Five Days Late.

COVERED WITH ICE.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 1. —(Canadian Press.)—A tale of fourteen days' continuous battle with wind, wave and bitter cold, was told by those aboard the 11,500 ton British freighter, London Commerce, when she docked late Saturday. The ship was five days overdue. It was covered with a six-inch armour of ice. Piles of snow had been cleared from the forward deck.

When the ship dropped anchor the passengers rushed to the bridge and grasped the hands of Captain H. J. Young, who had been on duty continuously for the last 48 hours.

"We sailed through sleet and storm every hour of the trip," Captain Young said. "Waves 75 feet high hovered over the ship and the wind was a gale."

WELL BABIES' CLINIC.

Address By Dr. G. R. Scott Was Enjoyed By Mothers.

Last Tuesday there was an open meeting of the Well Babies' Clinic, when Dr. G. R. Scott gave a very interesting and instructive address on "Bottle Feeding in Infancy." The room was well filled with an attentive audience, and a social time followed, when tea was served by the King's Daughters.

Mrs. Mowat, the president, presided.

Reginald Frank Stone

St. Catharines, Ont.—"During my first expectant period I was in very poor health, was very nervous, suffered from morning sickness, had backache and abdominal pains. I was as miserable as could be. Thru a friend I learned of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and after I began taking it I got along fine; it relieved me of the morning sickness, pains and distress thru my back and sides and I grew well and strong. Was able to do my own work the remainder of the time. I experienced very little suffering and had a fine healthy baby, who has never had a day's sickness except slight colds. I was very glad to know of a medicine so valuable as the 'Prescription' proved to be."—Mrs. Reginald Stone, 88 Haynes Ave. All dealers.

Every-day magic

Chairs that flop into beds . . . bags that suck up dirt . . . tiny ticking things that count all day long for you. Daylight any night just by pushing a button. A steam that never stops till you turn off a faucet. Any voice you want, talking to you from a cage on your desk or wall. Actions of yesterday, of people miles away, going on on a curtain before you. Stilled throats singing to you from discs; distant throats singing to you from nothing!

Uncanny, daily magic—this, due to national advertising. Advertisements have given you flashlights, telephones, typewriters, automobiles, cold creams, motion pictures. They have given you new eyes, new ears, new hands, new feet, new faces, new emotions. They have urged such wide use, so lowered prices, that almost wishes are autos, almost beggars can ride. Through advertisements you've laid down the shovel and the hoe. You can buy a whole harvest ready-to-eat in cans. You've hung up the fiddle and the bow, for a radio. There's little old-time work left in this age of amazing short-cuts.

Read the advertisements. They keep you to the fore of modern life

MORE SAND WANTED.

There were many complaints heard yesterday about the slippery condition of some of the sidewalks, and in the main these complaints were justified, many of the pavements being a menace to the safety of pedestrians.

Some attempt was made on Saturday night to improve the conditions by strewing sand over the icy walks, but this effort was confined to the business area, and other streets yesterday afternoon were in a dangerous condition.

There does not seem any reason why there should not have been a general destribution of sand yesterday, or why there should not be on any other Sunday when similar conditions are encountered.

It may not generally be known, but accident statistics show that falls are one of the most prolific causes of serious injuries, ranking high in the list.

The conditions existing on some of the streets yesierday were such as to make that showing easy to understand.

CANADA'S ANNIVERSARY.

With the suggestion of the London Advertiser that next year, which is the sixtieth anniversary of Confederation, should be marked by a suitable celebration, the Examiner is in hearty accord.

It will be remembered that a celebration had been planned for the fiftieth anniversary, but the war, of course, prevented the plans being carried out.

"We ought to do in 1927," says the Advertiser, "what we planned to do in 1917," and adds that the celebration might be widened out so as to cover the whole constitutional development and national progress of Canada, a story of which Canadians may well be proud.

The Examiner has frequently urged a more adequate celebration of Dominion Day, pointing out that a mistake is being made in not stressing the historical significance of the anniversary and in not taking advantage of the opportunity to drive home the story of the founding of the Dominion and the progress that has been made.

Even Canadians of long residence need an occasional reminder of these things, and it must not be forgotten that hundreds of thousands of new Canadians have little or no knowledge of the history of their adopted country.

A Dominion-wide celebration of the sixtieth anniversary of Confederation would have an immense educational value, and it is to be hoped that the suggestion will be seized upon and developed.

DIFFICULT TO SAVE.

The difficulty that Governments, whether Federal, Provincial or municipal, experience in trying to institute a policy of economy was illustrated by the speech of a Progressive member in the House last week in which he frankly declared that he intended to press for more expenditure in his constituency.

People call for retrenchment, but the trouble always is that they want the saving to be done at the expense of somebody else.

Thus members, such as the one quoted, keep everlastingly clamouring for money to be spent in their constituencies, sections ask for big public works to be built at the general expense, and those who often are loudest in their demands for economy become members of deputations which wait on the Government to urge expenditure for some purpose or other in which they are interested.

It has been said that once more deputations urged Governments to save money than petitioned for expenditures there would be some hope for an economical administration and a reduction in the burden of taxation.

So long, however, as people want somebody else to do the saving and so long as they fail to realize that only lessened expenditure can bring about lower taxes, Governments, being human, are not likely to make any material progress toward effective economy.

THE COAL PROBLEM.

The coal problem suggests Mark Twain's reference to the weather, i.e., that everybody talked about it but nobody did anything.

Parliament spent a day last week in a discussion of the question, or rather the various parties endeavoured to get what political advantage they could out of the plight of the Nova Scotian miners and the situation generally.

It should not be allowed to rest there.

The time is ripe for the development of a policy that will give employment to the miners of Nova Scotia and Alberta and supply fuel for the people of Ontario and Quebec who have hitherto been dependent upon United States anthracite.

The education of the people of those two Provinces to the use of other fuel than the United States article has progressed considerably during the present winter.

They have had to try coke and found it satisfactory.

They have tested Alberta coal and have pronounced it good.

They are ready, therefore, to welcome Canadian coal, and the problem with which our political parties should be concerned is the transportation of coal from east and west into the market that awaits it here and in Quebec.

The question is too important to be made a political football, for its successful solution means much for the whole country.

ALL NEIGHBORS NOW.

The announcement made last week by Hon. Geo. S. Henry, Minister of Public Works and Highways for Ontario, that by the end of this year this Province will have paved highways stretching from east to west and from north to south, will be welcome news to motorists and a source of satisfaction to citizens generally, says the Brantford Expositor. There is no more certain way to attract thousands of tourists from across the line to Canada than by through highways of modern approved construction, so that Ontario should now become a favorite resort for that legion of motorists who delight in touring for both pleasure and education. A tremendous revenue is brought into this country through motor travel and money expended on highways should be regarded as a profitable investment.

By the completion of this road building program a paved highway will not only run across Ontario from Windsor to Niagara Falls, connecting with American State roads, but also through to the Quebec border, thus connecting that Province with Ontario in such a manner that social and business intercourse will become possible on a scale never hitherto practicable. In the past motorists from Ontario wishing to visit Quebec had to make the trip by the longer route through United States because of abominable road conditions in this Province. As a result motor traffic between Toronto and Montreal has been comparatively small. This has been unfortunate. Now the people of these two cities will be brought more in contact with each other, a most important factor in the further development of that Bonne Entente which has so improved in recent years.

In Brantford the contemplation of a band of cement from Windsor to Buffalo or Montreal through the city quite challenged the most vivid imagination a few years ago, and it is difficult to realize that it is today an actuality. For such a long time motorists had to wallow through almost unnavigable roads in this section that they almost despaired of ever seeing modern paved highways in every direction during this generation. Now Brantford is the centre of a network of excellent roads branching out to every ponit of the compass, and the farmer ten miles away is neighbor to the man living within the city boundaries.

What changes a few short years have wrought!

REGIONAL RAILWAY SYSTEM.

Canada has now no choice but to adopt a regional railway system, according to P. A. O'Farrell, for years a close student of Canadian fiscal and economic affairs and particularly of the Dominion's railway development, in an interview published in the Wall Street Journal. Mr. O'Farrell states that the farmer buys transportation for his wheat for half the sum the coal producer from Nova Scotia or the pulpwood or lumber producer of Ontario or British Columbia has to pay for his transportation. "The lead and zinc industry of the Kootenays earns more net revenue for the Canadian Pacific than all the grain traffic of all the prairies earns for all the Canadian railways."

The regional system suggested by Mr. O'Farrell is along such lines as these:

"An Atlantic regional transportation service embracing all the railroads of the Maritimes under the control and management of a regional manager.

"A Pacific system controlling all the transport of Alberta, British Columbia and the Yukon.

"A prairie regional railroad embracing the transport services of Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

"A central regional railroad covering Ontario and Quebec.

"The Commander-in-Chief and his staff at general headquarters would have the co-ordination, the financing and the piloting of all these regional railroads with the utmost possible responsibility placed on the regional general managers. It should be their business to make transportation pay and to curtail or to expand rail, water, highway and air service."

In support of the idea of railway amalgamation and reorganization, Mr. O'Farrell urges that "a co-ordinated regional railway system, such as Harriman planned for the United States and Shaughnessy dreamed of for Canada, would reduce the cost of transportation to a minimum and greatly improve the worker's lot. A great unified regional transportation system spanning the continent and financially prosperous would be the mightiest factor in the colonization of the Dominion and in the exploitation of its resources.

"To achieve this, the bankers of Montreal, Toronto, London and New York must be induced to co-operate with the Government of the Dominion. The Government may appoint a Royal Commission to find a solution for the reorganization of transportation in connection with a committee of bankers representing the investors in Canadian railroad securities.

"It is well to remember that since 1914 American investors have been absorbing Canadian Pacific, Canadian Northern, Grand Trunk and Canadian Government securities. There is now at least four billions of American capital drawing interest and dividends from investments in Canada. New York and London own control of the Canadian Pacific and hold the greater part of Canadian railroad securities.

"The Dominion and its taxpayers have much to gain and nothing to lose by the reorganization, consolidation and co-ordination of its transport. Railroad workers will ultimately gain through the increased prosperity of the country. The elimination of the drones and misfits will take place by natural selection, and those who are continued in the service will become more efficient than ever."

The article concludes as follows:

"Canada's marvellous hydro-electric resources, her immense coal and her vast ore deposits, her chemical and forest resources, her prolific fisheries, and her potential agricultural wealth must place her in time in the van of the progressive and prosperous nations of the world. But to achieve this sublime position, her man power and her raw materials must be conserved and protected. Her electric energy and her transportation must be the most efficient and must be sold at the lowest possible cost. The fundamental requirements of all nations competing in trade, in manufacture and in commerce, are abundant supplies of food, of power, of transport and of raw materials at minimum costs. Cheap power, cheap transport, cheap food and cheap raw materials are the arches of the bridge over which nations must march to achieve commercial prosperity and conquest."

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

KEEPING FAITH.

Were you ever in doubt as to what course to pursue when it involved giving your best to those who perhaps might not appreciate it? And then, because it was less trouble and you were unsure of results, you compromised in your mind, and gave something which was fairly good but upon which you could have improved.

You were indifferently successful, and "things came out as you expected," you said afterward.

But two things conspired for your failure.

You knew that you were not giving your best, and being conscious of it, you did not put your heart into the contribution.

Conscious that you did not give all, you failed to put the soul of success into your action.

Recently, one of the greatest artists in the country was quoted as saying that he gave just as finished a performance to an audience of disappointing smallness, as to the cheering thousands who attend his performance in the big cities, or words to that effect.

And by so doing this great artist kept faith with himself, which is the greatest element in success.

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

HENRY RAND, middle-aged credit manager of a department store, at dinner with his family, is reminded that the following day is his son, JAMES RAND'S 27th birthday. Jimmy, as he is called, announces he has planned a theater party for the family, which includes his mother and sister, JANET. He intends, also, to include BARRY COLVIN, Janet's fiance.

Henry Rand is a staunch upholder of all the homely virtues, including that of punctuality, which is almost a religion with him. When, on the night of the party, he fails to put in his accustomed appearance at quarter to six, the family becomes alarmed.

While they are wondering, the phone rings. Jimmy answers it. It is the police. Henry Rand's body has been found in a room at the Canfield Hotel.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER II.

The voice at the other end of the phone stopped. There was a metallic click. The other man had hung up.

"Hello! Hello!" Jimmy frantically tried to call him back. He wanted the owner of that voice to tell him it was all a lie. "Hello!"

"Number, please," came the operator's voice. Dazed, Jimmy mechanically replaced the receiver on the hook.

"What is it, James? Something has happened to your father. What is it?" Jimmy's mother was at his side, her blue eyes staring fixedly at his as if trying to read the truth. Janet came running and put her arm around her mother. Breathlessly they waited for Jimmy to speak.

"Something evidently has happened to dad," admitted Jimmy, gazing at Barry, who was standing beside Janet. "Just how bad I don't know," he lied, "and I'm going to find out."

"He's dead, I know it. He's dead," moaned Martha Rand. She slumped into the nearest chair and buried her face in her work-worn hands. She swayed slightly from side to side. Janet ran to her.

"Look here, Jim, what is it?" Barry Colvin's hand was on Jimmy's arm, his voice steady. "Let me help."

"You've GOT to help, Barry," Jimmy was whispering. "That was police calling. They said dad had been found dead in the Canfield Hotel."

"God, Jim! Not in that hole! It must be a mistake."

"I'm praying that it is, Barry, but I'm going down. You stay here with mother and Sis. Please. Tell them anything to keep them going. I'll phone you later." Jimmy had grabbed his hat and coat and was gone.

The cold, wind-driven rain lashed him cruelly as he stumbled out of the front door and made for the automobile. Jimmy, unheeding, was carrying his hat in his hand.

On the way down town, Jimmy, driving by instinct rather than by any conscious direction of his brain, found himself repeating over and over:

"God! It's not true. God! It's not true. It's not true."

The Canfield Hotel, old and run down, reared uglily before Jimmy Rand's eyes as he pulled his car to a stop.

A shabby three-story frame structure, its paint had faded into toneless, weather-beaten color that told of careless neglect. A large frosted electric light globe that hung over the front entrance carried the words "Canfield Hotel" in black letters that had been eroded by weather until their reading had become almost a task.

Jimmy burst into the lobby. The untidy, bald-headed clerk at the desk was talking to a policeman and at Jimmy's question directed him briefly. "Next floor; room 202."

There, in a room filled with policemen and reeking fumes of gas, Jimmy found his father.

He was lying, face up, in the center of the floor. Jimmy took one swift look at the still, familiar face and, with a sob in his throat, kneeled beside him.

"Dad!" he cried. "Dad."

A hand touched his shoulder. "Are you James Rand?" asked the police sergeant.

"Yes, sir. In the name of God can you tell me what has happened?"

"It looks like suicide, Mr. Rand. Somebody was passing in the hall-way and smelled gas coming from beneath the door. He tried the door and found it locked. The clerk unlocked it and found your father dead and the room stinking with gas."

"When was that?"

"About five-thirty. The clerk called police and we came right up. I found business cards in his pocket," indicating Henry Rand's body, "with the name Henry Rand on them. One of my men got your house on the phone right away and talked with you."

"But it couldn't have been suicide," Jimmy protested. "If you had known my father you would have known there couldn't have been one possible motive for him to kill himself. There's always a reason for suicide."

"And for murder, too, for that r ter," supplied the sergeant grimly

Jimmy looked again at the still f of Henry Rand. "I'll never beli my father killed himself." Tears w in his eyes.

The police sergeant was sympathe "I hope you're right, Mr. Rand. might be hard to find a reason for but those things happen. It mi be hard to find a reason for your fat being in this hotel, for that matte

Jimmy looked around the ro Against one wall was a bed with a wi enameled frame. The enamel peeled off here and there in large chur revealing the black iron beneath.

The stark cheapness of the ro with its faded and worn carpet i its two dingy, white-painted cha with their sagging cane bottoms, cau an involuntary shudder to run thro him. Near the window, which had b opened to drive the gas fumes o was a washstand with a bowl a pitcher. Beside the bed was a "di ser" with a dirty, cold slab of mar for a top and a cracked mirror.

"The gas," supplied the sergea "was coming from that jet right by dresser. It was turned on all the w

"Your father's hat was found on th chair, just where you see it now," continued.

Jimmy picked up the hat, his fatlie neat black derby. Inside the initi "H. R." were perforated in the leat band. He set it down again, tender almost reverently.

"You searched him for letter anything that might possibly expl his presence here?" he asked sergeant.

"We didn't find a thing. Here was, with his overcoat on and hat on that chair and the gas turn on. Nothing in his pockets but ke and his wallet with his money a cards in it."

"Why should he keep his overco on?" Jimmy was fighting, seizing every possible flaw in the sergean theory of suicide.

"Don't know."

Another policeman broke in. "Loo as if he wanted to get it over with a came right in and locked the door a turned on the gas. Looks—"

"Wait a minute," the sergeant i terrupted. "Where's the key? T clerk said he unlocked the door fr the outside. There weren't any loc keys on him—only those on his rin Go down and bring him up, Polk

A policeman turned to do his biddin "Of course," the sergeant went on Jimmy, "he may have thrown t key outdoors and then closed t window. We might look out in t street."

He was trying the keys on Hen Rand's key ring in the lock in the doo None of them fitted.

The night clerk arrived. The s geant spoke to him brusquely. "S anything of a key in this room?

"No, sir. I called you up as so as I found him."

"By the way, who registered for th room?" put in Jimmy. "Did you a him that, sergeant?"

"Yes, he says the register is sign by H. A. Jones of New York. course, he wouldn't give his rig name."

"When did he register?" Jimm addressed the clerk and waited a most breathlessly for his reply.

"Last night some time."

"What time?"

"I don't know. I g off duty seven-thirty and the night clerk com on. It must have been some tim after seven-thirty."

"And you don't know what th H. A. Jones looked like?"

"Why, I th ught it was this ma here," indicating the body.

"You mean you never saw the occ pant of this room until you opened th door and found my father dead?"

"Yes, sir."

"Wait a minute." The police se geant broke in to address the clerk "This looks like something to go o When will the night clerk come on?

"Any minute now," replied the shal by little bald-headed man.

"I'm damned," continued the se geant somewhat ruefully, "if I didn take it for granted that the clerk sa your father register."

"He couldn't have registered at all. Jimmy had regained his steadines The excitement was gone from his voic "My father came home last night a quarter to six as he had always don and didn't leave the house. You fin the man who registered as H. A. Jon and you'll find the murderer of m father."

"I'm not sure of that, Mr. Rand. There was a peculiar expression in th sergeant's face as he spoke. "It sti looks like suicide to me. Besides, if was murder, I'm not so sure that it a man we'll have to look for."

"What do you mean?" Jimmy dou bled his fists and took a step toward th sergeant. His gray eyes blazed. "I you're trying to mix my father up wit any—"

"I'm not tryin' anything lad. Bu we found a woman's handkerchief o the bed and Detective Mooney's go it in his pocket now. Show it to him Mooney."

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal Winnipeg

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Jan. 30 (Canadian Press).—There was practically no demand for Manitoba grades of wheat from foreign buyers, on the local grain market Saturday, but the enquiry from the United Kingdom and the continent for Canadian western No. 1 and No. 2 feed oats was fairly good which, however, did not result in any business due to prices being one shilling per quarter below working basis.

The receipts of butter in Montreal for the week ending January 30, 1926, were 623 packages, a decrease of 2,103 packages from the previous week, and of 305 packages from the same week last year.

The feature of the trade during the week was the stronger feeling and prices closed with a net gain of 2 1-2 to 3 cents per lb.

This was attributed principally to stocks of high grade Canadian creamery butter on spot being comparatively light. There was also an increased demand from both local and out-of-town buyers which tended to add strength to the market. A very fair volume of business was done with final sales of Townships No. 1 pasteurized creamery at 44c per lb, No. 2 pasteuized at 43c per lb, and winter made No. 1 pasteurized at 43 1-2c per lb. The demand for New Zealand and Australian No. 1 pasteurized creamery butter also showed some increase, and prices closed strong at 43 1-2c to 44c per lb.

The receipts of cheese in Montreal for the week ending January 30, 1926, were 657 boxes, a decrease of 293 boxes from the previous week and of 868 boxes from the same week last year.

There has been no important change in the condition of the market for the past week.

The receipts of eggs in Montreal on Saturday were 267 cases, as against 1,822 cases for the same day last week, and 299 cases for the corresponding day a year ago, while the arrivals for the week ending January 30, 1926, were 5,035 cases, as compared with 7,038 cases for the previous week, and 2,057 cases for the same week last year. Prices were maintained.

STERLING RATES

MONTREAL, Jan. 31 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here Saturday as follows:

Sterling demand $4.86 3-4.
Sterling cables $4.87 3-8.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Jan. 30 (Canadian Press).—Wheat values swung upward today owing considerably to indications of larger export demand, together with melting away of snow protection throughout domestic winter crop territory. The wheat market closed firm, 3-4 to 1 3-8c net higher, May $1.75 5-8 to $1.76 1-8, and July $1.53 3- to $1.53 5-8. Corn finished 1-4 to 5-8c off; oats at a shade decline to 5-8c advance, and provisions unchanged to 12c lower.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

AN EXPLANATION.

The Editor of The Examiner:

Lest a statement recently made in the public press relative to a family in poor circumstances near Garden Hill, in Durham county, to the effect that "the Mothers' Allowance Board has hesitated to act owing to the fact that Mrs. Sheppard cannot produce her marriage certificate. This she explained was burned in the fire (whih destroyed their home near Haileybury), but her statement has not been received by the board," should create a false impression with the general public, in justice to the local board as well as to the Provincial Commission, some facts must necessarily be pointed out.

Section 3 of the Act reads: "A monthly allowance may be paid toward the support of the dependent children of a mother who is the wife of a man permanently disabled, and incapable of contributing to the support of his family."

When application for the allowance is made the Commission, which is charged with the full administration of the Act, distinctly states: "Certificates of marriage, and birth certificates of the children for whom application is made, are required for examination."

The fact of such certificates being burned would not deter the local board, or any other, from obtaining the allowance when other requirements of the Act were met. If such certificates are not at hand forms are supplied for making application to the Registrar-General's Department, Toronto, from which office necessary information may be obtained with no unreasonable delay, and at a nominal charge of 25 cents for verification of each certificate required.

Questioned by the doctor attending her husband regarding her marriage certificate, the object in view being to fill out an application form and secure help under the Mothers' Allowance Act, Mrs. Sheppard, who is a woman of average intelligence, and asserts she was married 17 years ago in London, Eng., says she cannot recall where she was married, nor the name of the clergyman who performed the ceremony.

Lacking either the necessary certificates, or information where such may be obtained, the application form cannot be filled out, and the county board cannot reasonably be expected to deal with a case for which no application for allowance has been made.

While the matter is under consideration it might be of general interest to point out that the Commission particularly desires that applicants are not to be considered as applying for charity; but rather that the mother be regarded as an employee of the state, receiving remuneration for services rendered in the proper care of her children." Hence it naturally follows that any mother desiring the assistance which the allowance undoubtedly gives will make personal application, if possible, to the nearest member of the board, the latter never being expected, unless in exceptional circumstances, to go and offer this help thus bringing it into the very realm the Commission is expressly anxious to avoid.

In the case under consideration at the request of the township reeve, a member of the local board called upon Dr. Beatty for information, a medical certificate as to the husband's total and permanent incapacitation being absolutely necessary. Owing to the doctor's absence from home an application form was left to be filled out, the lack of information already referred to halting further action.

Help of a most practical nature for this needy family has been generously given from Millbrook, Garden Hill, Perrytown, and the surrounding neighborhood.

Reports quick recovery from bruises and strain

HURTS HIP IN FALL FROM TREE

Bruises and strain quickly helped by simple treatment

A simple home treatment, used at once, will greatly hasten recovery from bruises, strains, and sprains.

Hundreds of people from all over the country have taken the trouble to write of the truly remarkable results they have got from using it.

A young woman writes from Bushnell's Basin, Monroe County, N. Y., that while she was picking cherries, the branch of the tree on which she was standing, broke and gave her a bad fall.

"I suffered agony," she says, "but I used Sloan's Liniment, and it relieved the pain right away. Now I don't feel it at all."

Sloan's gets results because it doesn't just deaden pain; it gets at the cause.

Right to the place that hurts it brings a healing stream of fresh blood. Quickly and surely it breaks up congestion, drives away pain. So clean and easy to use, too. Get a bottle today. All druggists—35 cents.

LEGINSKA MUST REST.

Pianiste Suffers Nervous Breakdown.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Feb. 1.—Physicians who examined Ethel Leginska, world-renowned pianist, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Mathers here, advised that she must abandon her planned concert tour and rest for one year. The artist is suffering from a severe nervous breakdown.

Miss Leginska disappearod a week ago, just prior to her scheduled appearance in a programme at the Coliseum in Evansville, Ind., where 4,200 persons gathered to hear her play. It was the second disappearance and collapse of the pianist within a year. The first was in New York and resulted in a nation-wide search for her.

Mrs. Mathews, who, with her husband, is a friend and a patron of Leginska, learned this week that she was in Chicago. The concert star left that city for the Mathews home in response to a telephone request and arrived here on Friday night.

U. S. RESCUE SHIP HAILED WITH OVATION IN PLYMOUTH HARBOR; KING MAY HONOR AMERICAN CREW

Captain Fried and His Seamen Deliver British Freighter's Men They Saved.

GREAT RECEPTION

Liner's Officers Besieged by Newspaper Men at Queenstown.

PLYMOUTH, England, Feb. 1.—(Canadian Press). — Traditional British reserve went by the board when the storm-battered liner President Roosevelt entered Plymouth Sound at 10 o'clock Sunday morning, carrying 25 members of the crew of the British freighter Antinoe, whose lives the crew of the Roosevelt saved after a four days' battle in mid-ocean. The whistles and sirens of hundreds of ships and factories greeted the men whose valor has focused the eyes of the world on Captain Fried and his crew. Their work of mercy succeeded, though it cost the lives of two rescuers.

"Well done," was the signal hoisted on two tenders which steamed out to meet the Roosevelt, coming in with empty davits, indicating the position of the lifeboats which had been battered to pieces in the cruel sea through which the Roosevelt's men sought to reach the Antinoe crew clinging to the sinking freighter.

Captain Fried responded to the signal with flags which spelled out "Thank you."

All manner of craft in the great naval harbor bore crowds which shouted their welcome. It was an ovation to heroism, pure and unselfish heroism, of the sort that the Allies had displayed shoulder to shoulder in the Great War.

Honors From King?

LONDON, Feb. 1.—The Evening Standard says that Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, President of the Board of Trade, created a new precedent for his department by sending a high official to Plymouth to meet the American liner President Roosevelt.

Sir Philip also will send a full report of the American ship's rescue of the crew of the British steamer Antinoe to King George at Buckingham Palace. On this report, The Evening Standard says, it will be decided in what manner the gallantry of Captain George Fried and his crew can be recognized most suitably.

The paper says that the Roosevelt's skipper and his men may receive exceptional honors, but that a final decision on this point will not be made until the King has considered Sir Philip's report.

Honors for gallantry at sea are awarded both by the Board of Trade and by the Admiralty, and their bestowal on seamen of other nations usually is done through diplomatic channels.

QUEENSTOWN, Feb. 1. — Amid wild cheers from the crowd aboard the tender which steamed out from Queenstown to welcome her, the hero ship President Roosevelt, carrying the rescued crew of the British steamer Antinoe, nosed slowly into Quenstown Harbor and droppd anchor Saturday evening.

A few minutes later a welcoming delegation of Irish officials and scores of newspaper men and photographers and relatives of the Antinoe's crew and shipping officials stumbled up the gangplank.

"Where is Captain Fried?"

"Where is Captain Fried?" was asked right and left.

"Where is Chief Officer Miller? Where is Fourth Officer Upton? Where are the Antinoe's men?"

Finally Chief Officer Miller, who commanded all three of the lifeboats manned to rescue the Antinoe's crew, and Fourth Officer Upton, who went with him on two of his perilous trips in the face of raging mountainous seas, were cornered in one of the President Roosevelt's lounge rooms.

Miller Tells His Story.

There they stood up reluctantly before a bombardment of eager questions from newspaper men. Miller—short, alert and keen-eyed—did most of the talking. Upton, tall, handsome and with boyish brown eyes, now and then threw in short sentences when the other hesitated.

"There were plenty of volunteers," said Miller. "Each time we wanted to launch another boat the men stepped forward.

"The first boat launched, which had the most difficult job, was manned by the deck crew, the second by the engine-room crew, and the last by a mixed crew."

She was not asked to plead. She will be taken to Ponoka to be under observation by physchiatrists as to her mental condition before she is asked to plead to the indictment on Monday, Feb. 8.

TAX BATTLE IN FRANCE ENDING

Government's Financial Programme Likely to be Adopted.

INCREASE TARIFF

PARIS, Feb. 1 (Canadian Press).—After voting the provisional credits Saturday to carry on the Government for February, and eliminating the surtax of 20 per cent in the case of Belgians and Italians on the purchase of buildings in France, which the Senate does not favor, the chamber adjourned discussion of the general finance bill until Tuesday.

Premier Briend has succeeded in so masking his batteries and saving his fire in the battle with the Radicals and Socialists over the financial restoration measures that his adversaries, apparently taking fright at the blows in store for them, show a disposition to abandon the field. Less than half the orators inscribed had spoken, when the Radicals moved the closing of the general discussion.

The Government made no opposition, which seemed to increase the disarray in the ranks of its adversaries. M. Doumer's agreement to substitute a tax on production for his stamp tax on sales, broke the ranks of the opposition and made it appear certain that the Government programme would be adopted with few amendments.

To Increase Tariff

The Minister of Commerce has prepared a bill soon to be introduced in the Chamber as a Government measure raising the French import duties 30 per cent.

This plan is particularly interesting because in the last four months the tide of France's foreign trade has turned so that in December there were 300,000,000 francs more imports than exports. The effect of the tax of course will be to restrict imports and thus it may tend to restore the balance which up to six months ago was heavily in France's favor, there being for last year 1,500,000,000 francs more exports than imports.

The Temps finds fault with the Government project on the ground that while certain French industries should be protected, a general raising of the tariff on imports will add needlessly to the cost of living through raising the price of many domestic products.

SIXTH MONTH OF MINERS' STRIKE

Conference Adjourned Saturday Until Tuesday Without any Progress.

LAST CONCESSIONS.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 1.—Unyielding in their determination to settle the antharcite strike only on the basis of compulsory arbitration, the antharcite operators this afternoon rejected the concession of what was, in effect, voluntary arbitration, offered Saturday by the miners.

On their side, the miners' leaders voted down the plan of the operators for a five-year contract with the compulsory arbitration feature, providing also for a revision every year.

The joint conference adjourned until Tuesday with the agreement that the interval would be used by both sides in attempting to draw up a workable plan which might be acceptable to miners and operators.

An end of the hard coal strike of 158,000 miners, which will enter its sixth month Feb. 1, is apparently not in sight. The operators used every argument in their arsenal Saturday in an attempt to have President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers and his associates capitulate on the question of compulsory arbitration.

"You have our ultimate concession," was the reply, in substance, of the union leaders. They declared they would not budge from the position taken by them in their latest plan, made public Saturday.

Lack Of Confidence.

The miners and operators are kept apart by a lack of confidence in each other. Although it is true that they are far from reaching an agreement, the voluntary arbitration feature of the miners' plan has partly bridged the gulf which has hitherto separated the two sides on the question of arbitration.

A settlement may be possible if the operators can be convinced that the plan of voluntary arbitration means that the miners will abide by the decision of the Fact-Finding Commission proposed by them, which findings, so the operators desire, should be "put into effect" by the Concilation Board.

In their plan the miners agreed that the report of the Fact-Finding Commission, selected by Charles E. Hughes, Governor Pinchot and Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, shall be made to the Conciliation Board of three miners and three operators and the board "shall proceed to dispose of the matter as promptly as possible."

The miners refuse to go any furtehr. For them to concede that the finding of the Fact-Finding Commission shall be "put into effect" by the Conciliation Board, it was said, would mean compulsory arbitration. The operators say that the coal diggers' promise to have the Conciliation Board take the report of the Fact-Finding Commission and "proceed to dispose of the matter as promptly as possible" is too vague.

Don't Cough Your Head Off Don't Cough All Night Long

Mrs. Thos. Gilbert, Welland, Ont., writes:—"Some time ago I took a very severe cold, and it settled on my lungs.

I coughed day and night, and had such severe pains, in my chest I could hardly bear them, but finally I sent and got a bottle of

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup

After I had taken a couple of doses I found that my cough was relieved and the pains were all gone, and by the time I had finished taking the whole bottle I was completely rid of my trouble.

Now, I will never be without a bottle of 'Dr. Wood's' in my home."

LAND POLICY TO SPLIT LIBERALS

Lloyd George's Programme Means "Gradual Liquidation" of Party.

LONDON, Feb. 1.— (Canadian Press Cable.)—Sunday's Observer thinks that Liberalism is in for a gradual liquidation extending over some years. "Of its three elements one must be absorbed in a unionist party, another must coalesce in the end on some terms with labor and the third element may go over to the right or left on some big issue but it now looks as though the two party system would be restored somewhat sooner than has been thought probable," the paper says. "Lloyd George," it continues, "is doing more than anyone else to bring that result whether he intends it or not. He will reamin an animated super power station of political energy. He will goad the ministers most usefully into a larger land policy than they yet contemplate, but many who have been his admiring followers will not stand at any price the anti-ownership part of his programme and if he is not going to allow the fullest facilities for the extension of ownership he will have to move over to labor."

The Observer proceeds to discuss Premier Baldwin's position, declaring that Lord Beaconsfield never had so much separate power in his own party as Baldwin now possesses. "He now numbers among his followers three men who were stars of Liberalism— Churchill, McKenna and Mond. He could frame at any moment a stronger cabinet than his present one. With the opening of the new sessions he has a fairer chance than ever to win the fame of ensuring Britian's recovery from war and to guide that process through more parliaments than one."

RESPECT FOR JEWS.

SHREWSBURY, Eng., Feb. 1.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—In his speech here Saturday David Lloyd George touched upon remarks he made earlier in the week in which he drew a comparison between Sir Alfred Mond, who recently left the Liberal party, and Judas Iscariot. "Nobody respects the Jewish race more than I do," Lloyd George said. "Nothing fills me with greater contempt than to see newspapers filled with anti-Semitism. They are trying to make political capital out of the criticism which I passed upon a certain member of that race. That is all I wish to say about the matter."

OBITUARY.

WILLIAM JONES.

TWEED, Feb. 1.—Mr. William Jones who has been ill for some time, died about noon on Thursday. He leaves to mourn his loss—his wife and one son, William, of the Advocate office. The funeral took place on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, to the United Church, thence to Victoria Cemetery.

CLIMBING.

The evening meal is over and the baby starts to shout. She's yellin' for her dad, and he knows what it's all about. The other night he played with her, an' now she wants some more. So father has to sprawl himself upon the front room floor.

He says, "Come on there, sister, an' we'll have our little fun." He flops upon his back and then the playtime hour's begun. First, knees are raised, so tiny tot can clamber up on top and then they're quickly lowered—and the youngster goes kerflop.

It seems there never was a tot with so much action blest. She runs across the room and jumps, an' lands on daddy's chest. It's heaps of fun for baby, and she keeps her dad on guard. It isn't very long before his breath is comin' hard.

At last it's sister's bedtime and she kisses pop good night. He's really kinda glad to see her toddle out of sight. The evening hour of climbing, dad will very gladly own, is lots of fun, despite the fact he aches in every bone.

SOLDIER GRAVES.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Grave markers for America's soldier dead overseas will be of two designs—one a cross, the other a Star of David mounted on a shaft—the material of both to be white stone or marble. The commission on designs has just reported to the Secretary of War, who concurs. The Star of David design is for the graves of soldiers of the Jewish faith.

Gas, biliousness, heartburn, dyspepsia, and similiar ills will not trouble you if you take Seigel's Syrup. Any drug store.

—"many, many dentists today recommend Life Savers"

They're safe for tiny teeth

"This is the only kind of candy I like my own children to have," the dentist told the mother. "These little Life Saver mints are much better for little folks. Try the new Violet flavor. Children love them."

• • •

Every growing child craves sweets. Active little bodies demand sugar. But children's candy must be pure—and they should not overeat.

Life Savers, the little candy mints with the hole (life saver shape), answer this problem in just the right way. They are china-hard and deliciously flavored.

This means that Life Savers are eaten slowly. Children suck them to make those wonderful flavors last longer. Little tummies are not upset. And Life Savers are kind to tiny teeth.

They're safe and wholesome. You may conscientiously be generous with Life Savers for they are the ideal candy for little folks.

Six flavors are displayed at all good stores so you may help yourself: Pep-o-mint, Wint-o-green, Cinn-o-mon, Lic-o-rice, Cl-o-ve and Vi-o-let. Five cents a package.—Life Savers, Limited, Prescott, Ont.

ASSESSMENT IS DISCUSSED BY MR. W. J. HENRY

City Assessor Gives Much Information To Rotary Club.

HOLDING CARNIVAL.

Big Night's Fun is Promised at Brock Street Rink.

Members of the Peterboro Rotary Club at today's weekly luncheon at the Empress Hotel heard a most interesting paper by City Assessor W. J. Henry, who discussed the duties of his position and the general subject of assessment, giving much valuable information upon points about which the public hears too little.

Mr. Henry's paper was so full of interest that The Examiner secured a copy, and the article will be published in full in the near future.

The speaker was given a very hearty vote of thanks for his fine paper.

At today's meeting the decision of the directors that henceforth the directors of the local club should be nominated by a nominating committee instead of by the club in general was unanimously endorsed on motion of Rotarians W. R. Morris and John Crane.

President Seels named as the nominating committee, the past presidents of the club, with Rotarian Fred L. Roy as chairman, and Rotarians John Crane, J. W. McDermid, and V. J. McElderry as members. This committee was also instructed to prepare a special programme for the Rotary anniversary.

The Rotary Club will hold a big carnival at Brock Street Rink on February 15, and arrangements are being made for a worth-while programme. The committee in charge consists of Rotarian Chris. Graham, chairman; Rotarians Jerry McClelland, Jack Primeau, Robt. Abbott and Gordon Matthews.

TWO STEAMERS ARE IN DISTRESS

Norwegian and Dutch Vessels Sent Out S.O.S. Calls.

SHIPS TO RESCUE.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—(Canadian Press.) — The Norwegian freighter Johanne Dybwaid, bound from Barry, England, for Boston, and the Dutch freighter Alkaid, bound from Rotterdam to Philadelphia, are the latest merchant ships disabled by the seasonal gales sweeping the Atlantic ocean for the past week with heavy loss of life and property.

A wireless despatch to the Department of Marine and Fisheries at Halifax from the steamer Nausica reported a call for assistance from the Johanne Dybwaid. The message said the Dybwaid was "badly smashed" and in need of help. The steamer West Indskip was reported hastening to the aid of the vessel.

The Alkaid's call for assistance was intercepted by the Hamburg American liner Westphalia, which was standing by this morning about 1,000 miles east of Newfoundland.

CREW RESCUED.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.— (Canadian Press.) — The crew of the Dutch freighter Alkaid, disabled by a raging Atlantic storm about 1,000 miles east of Newfoundland, was rescued to-day by the Hamburg-American liner Westphalia. The crew consisted of about 20 men and officers.

FEARS FOR VESSEL.

PHILADELPHIA, February 1.— Canadian Press. — Fears were expressed to-day for the safety of the British steamer Ryburn, which left Rotterdam on Dec. 28, for Philadelphia, with a cargo of Dutch anthracite. The vessel, carrying a crew of 32 men, was due here on Jan. 16, and no word has come from her since she left the Dutch port.

DISPOSABILITY IS CAMPAIGN KEYNOTE

Main Feature of Advertising To Sell Women's Specialty.

The Kotex national advertising campaign for 1926 is the greatest that has ever been attempted for a woman's specialty. More than 3½ billion ads. will be printed in 613 big newspapers, on a regular 12 months' schedule.

The main idea behind the new Kotex advertising is "disposability," for this is an exclusive feature that is most attractive to women buyers. Although Kotex is supreme in several other features, it has been learned by tests that were disposability the only advantage Kotex had over rivals, it would outsell all others many times.

Every Kotex headline, either in the frequent, small copy newspaper ads, or in the full page magazine ads. appearing in a list of 14 magazines with a combined circulation in excess of 20,000,000 a month, harbs on disposability.

In the text this point is emphasizsized by a check mark. Time after time, week after week, this strong point is hammered home. Instructions in each package explain the simplicity of this point.

DR. MAGUIRE WILL LECTURE ON AFRICA

Third of Series To Be Given in St. Paul's on Tuesday.

On Tuesday of this week, at St. Paul's Church, Peterboro is to have the opportunity of hearing Dr. Gabriel Reid Maguire, F.R.G.S., deliver his famous lecture, "Among the Cannibals of the Upper Congo." On his two former visits to the city, Dr. Maguire made a profound impression, and it will be a surprise to his many friends if the seating capacity of St. Paul's Church is not taxed to the utmost.

"He read a book, 'Stanley's Darkest Africa,' and dreamed a dream, and started for Africa. In seven years his dream became a reality. He had mastered a language, founded a mission, and Christianized a community of barbarians. A severe illness necessitated a return to civilization, and gave to this country one of its greatest lecturers. His oration at Carnegie Hall, New York, soon after his return, made him famous throughout the religious and lyceum world.

"Dr. Maguire has the distinction of being the first white man to ascend the Congo in Africa, after Stanley, the explorer, came down. He is the only living white man who has crossed the Mayombi in both directions, and the second white man to visit the Pigmies.

"He is a physical giant, a warm-blood and enthusiastic Irishman, vigorous in thought, spontaneous in humor, strong in his convictions, fearless in presenting his message, and is full of faith, hope and love for man, and wins his way everywhere."

This is one of a series of three lectures on Africa, and will be quite new to Peterboro. It will be illustrated with many interesting curios.

He was 26 years of age. His wife was doubly bereaved, for her father, Ernest Bowkett, died yesterday from blood poisoning at the age of 44 years.

HUMORIST DEAD.

George V. Hobart Was the Author of the Stage Success, "Experience."

CUMBERLAND, Md., Feb. 1. — United Press. — George V. Hobart, humorist, better known for his stage success, "Experience," died here yesterday after an illness of several weeks.

Hobart began his career as a telegraph operator. Coming here from his home in Nova Scotia, he founded the Scimitar, and later moved to Baltimore, where the "Dinkelspiel" was launched.

The author is survived by two children, Vere and Bayard.

Hearing Restored by Radio

Miss Elsie Hayes, 25-year-old girl of Winnipeg, was induced by a friend to listen through a headset to a concert from radio station CNRW of the Canadian National Railways at Winnipeg recently, though she had been totally deaf and dumb since she was three years old. As the broadcast proceeded it became evident she was not only hearing sounds but was able to distinguish between the notes of the different musical instruments.

At the conclusion of the programme she heard her mother ask her if she had heard the music and nodding to her in reply, responded with a sound closely approximating the word "mother". The following morning on her way to work she was able to hear the rumble of street cars and she is now noticing the music of a phonograph when played with a loud needle near her.

Specialists in the treatment of the ear say it is quite possible that radio vibrations may have given her the first sound from the outside world even after 22 years, but that such a condition would only apply where the sense of hearing actually remained without being used during that time.

In Peterborough Churches

ST. PAUL'S PRESBYTERIAN.
(Contributed).

That the public is interested in the Jews as a people, and in their relationship to society, was shown by the congregation which packed St. Paul's Presgyterian Church last evening to hear the second of a series of five addresses by the pastor, Rev. Wm. Allan, relating to the Jews as God's chosen people and their past and future as outlined in the Scriptures and verified by history. Last evening's subject was "The Jew and the Most Daring Thing in History." The Scripture lesson was taken from the Book of Daniel, and related to Nebuchadnezzar's dream and the interpretation of it as given by the Prophet Daniel. The image which the king saw in his vision was interpreted by Daniel to mean that there would be four world kingdoms, the first of which was the Babylonian kingdom of King Nebuchadnezzar. The daring thing was that a Jewish exile in the power of a heathen king should have dared to foretell the overthrow of that kingdom and to have undertaken to give the history of the world for over 2,000 years as Daniel did in his interpretation of the vision. This interpretation was given by God and its correctness has been verified by history.

Rev. Mr. Allan opened by referring to the remarks of a British statesman, who was himself a Jew, that he could not understand the attitude of Christianity towards the Jews in view of the fact that one-half of Christianity worships a Jew while the other half worships a Jewess. There is no intelligent student, said the speaker, who would take such a stand. We may not like the Jews and with reason, but we must recognize that they are here, that they are an important force in national and international relationships, and that God has some definite purpose for them. After mentioning God's call to Abraham, and referring to the starting of the twelve tribes through the twelve sons of jacob, and showing that God's original purpose was that they should be a Theocratic people, that is, a people ruled by God through judges, it was shown that the people rebelled against this purpose and insisted on choosing a king for themselves in order that they might be like the nations round about them instead of a peculiar people as God desired them to be. Shortly after this God entered into a covenant with David, which He confirmed by an oath as set forth in 2nd Samuel, the 7th chapter. In this covenant God promised to establish the seed of David for ever. If the children of Israel sinned God said He would chasten them with a rod of iron and with the stripes of the children of men, but that His mercy should not depart away from them, and that His kingdom should be established for ever. Theologians, said Rev. Mr. Allan, who try to spiritualize the promises by making David's throne a spiritual throne, are guilty of twisting the plain words of Scripture. The covenant was with a definite, chosen people for a specific purpose and related to the Promised Land and to Jerusalem and the peoples' possession of it As long as the Children of Israel obeyed God He blessed them. Efforts by the kings of Syria, Egypt and Babylon to overcome them all failed, but when the people began to sin then the king of Babylon was permitted by God to make them captives. It was during this captivity that Daniel interpreted Nebuchadnezzar's vision.

Rev. Mr. Allan showed that the second world kingdom after Nebuchadnezzar's was that of the Medes and Persians, followed by the Greeks under Alexander, and later by the Roman kingdom which ruled at the time of Christ. Since the overthrow of Imperial Rome no nation has been able to claim world supremacy. Germany's effort to become a dominating world power was overcome because it was not according to the purpose of God. The geneology of Jesus as given in the Gospel of Matthew showed that He was entitled both on His mother's and father's side to claim the throne of David. His people refused to recognize His kingship, and are under judgment because of their failure to do so, but have not been utterly cast off and will ultimately be re-gathered according to the promises of God. The times in which we live are the times of the Gentiles, supremacy having been taken from the Jews and given to the Gentiles. To both Jews and Gentiles to-day God is proclaiming the message of salvation by faith and telling of the Saviour's love. The time is coming, however, when God's promises to the Children of Israel will be fulfilled and His purposes for them revealed. No one has any right to the throne of David but Christ, and this throne He will ultimately assume.

The third in this series of addresses will be given next Sunday evening, when the subject will be "The Jew on the Long, Long Trail."

Elders Elected.

Just before the close of the morning service nine new elders were elected by acclamation. These were Messrs. Richard Lees, John Hill, Walter McKee and J. A. Feir, from St. Andrew's Church; Jonathon Smith and C. Williamson, from Knox Church; Dr. D. W. Clark, from Pontypool; J. C. Best, from Chalmers Church, Toronto, and James W. Anderson, from St. Andrew's Church, Lindsay. Twelve others were nominated to fill seven vacancies. Should more than the required number stand for election, a special meeting of the congregation will be held to vote on the matter.

An Unusual Subject.

The subject of Rev. Mr. Allan's address at the mid-week service on Wednesday evening will be "Where are the dead?" It will be illustrated by special charts. The attendance at these meetings has become so large it is no longer possible to conduct them in the Guild-room. For this reason, this week's service will take place in the Sunday School hall.

ALL SAINTS' ANGLICAN.

The evening service at All Saints' Church yesterday was observed as an A.Y.P.A. service, and the rector, the Rev. J. Douglas Paterson, preached a special sermon for the young people. He chose his text from the first book of Kings, chapter 18, verse 21: "How long halt ye between two opinions? If the Lord be God, follow Him." He also referred to the young people's hymn, "Just as I am, young, strong and free, to be the best that I can be."

Mr. Paterson urged his hearers to stand four square, and to draw a definite line, without encroaching into debatable land, as, he said, the person who is known to have fal'en once is always tempted to fall again, while the person who is known to take a definite stand is left alone.

The lessons were read by J. H. Price, president of the A.Y.P.A., and six members of the association acted as sidesmen. After the service the members and their friends adjourned to the guild-room, where a social hour was spent and refreshments served.

Y.P.L. MEETING WELL ATTENDED

Pontypool Young People Had Enjoyable Meeting—Lodge Socials.

OFFICERS INSTALLED

PONTYPOOL, Feb. 1 — The regular meeting of the Y. P. League was held in the basement of the Church on Tuesday evening. A goodly number were present and the Social Vice President, Miss Lily Bauvell. The new president, Miss Marwin was in the chair and conducted the business in a good business manner. The devotional period consisted of Bible reading by Mrs. Jessop and prayer by the pastor, Rev. H. Wilkinson. The social programme consisted of readings by Mr. Lorne Warnimar, Miss Lily Barwell and Mrs. Jessop, a solo by Mrs. Wilder and also a sing song service. Several contests were given including a peanut contest. The prize winners in it were Mrs. Roy Kellett and Mr. Lorne McGill. Cake and coffee were then served by the League to everyone present. The next meeting will be held under the Christian Endeavour Department in charge of Mrs. Jessop.

Lotus L.O.L. 279 is holding an Oyster Supper and Dance in the hall on Wednesday, February 3rd.

L.O.L. 82 is holding another social at home for members and ladies on Friday, February 5, when another good time is expected.

At the recent installation of officers in I.O.O.F. 295 by the Peterboro degree team the following officers were installed: N.G., G. Wilder; V.G., W. Miller; R.S., E. Youngman; F.S.., R. Gray; Treasurer, R. Halloran; Conductor, J. J. Halloran. The initiatory degree was conferred by the Peterboro team. At the conclusion the ladies served a good supper to all present.

Captain of Bremen Refuses Thanks For Doing Duty.

MEN GRATEFUL.

QUEENSTOWN, Feb. 1. United Press. — A modest German skipper, Captain Wurpts, of the North German Lloyd Liner Bremen, came out of the screeching winds here to-day to put ashore six men he had saved from death from the now sunken British freighter Laristan.

"Don't require any thanks," he told a welcoming delegation. "I only did my duty and carried out the rules of comradeship of the sea."

And the men he put ashore cheered for Wurpts with the kindliest feelings.

"The Germans were good fellows," observed Michael McCann, one of the rescued. "They could not have treated me better if I had been the Kaiser."

TORONTO EDITOR KILLED BY AUTO

Harry Bretz, of Mail and Empire, Struck Down To-day.

DRIVER ARRESTED.

TORONTO, Feb. 1 (Canadian Press).—Struck down by a passing motorist as he alighted from a street car on his way home from work this morning, Harry Bretz, assistant city editor of The Mail and Empire, and one of the best known newspaper men in Ontario, sustained internal injuries from which he died a few hours later in the hospital.

The police arrested Arthur Davidson, driver of the car, which had been rented from the local taxi-cab company.

Mr. Bretz was formerly telegraph editor and financial editor of the Toronto World. He was 44 years of age, was unmarried, and is survived by his father and mother and a brother, W. Percy Bretz, city editor of the Toronto Evening Telegram.

In police court this morning Davidson was arraigned and remanded. The charge has been made one of manslaughter. The magistrate admitted the defendant to bail at $3,000.

OMEMEE NEWS

OMEMEE, Jan. 30.—After a few days illness, there passed to her eternal reward Letitia Jane Rea, wife of Mr. T. J. Parsons, at her home in Omemee, on Saturday, Jan. 23rd.

Mrs. Parsons, was born 77 years ago on the farm now occupied by Mr. Bruce McNevin, about three miles north-west of the village. When a young woman she moved into Omemee and lived with her father. In August, 1876, she was united in marriage to Mr. T. J. Parsons, who, with two daughters, Mrs. Germaine, of Moose Jaw, and Miss Lila at home and two sons, Arthur, of Toronto, and Percy at home, survive her. A sad feature of the event was that plans were already laid for celebrating the 50th anniversary of their wedding day, next August, but God sent his angel and bore her gentle spirit to the house of many mansions.

During her long residence in Omemee Mrs. Parsons, by her kindness and cheerfulness won a host of warm friends. She kept an open house and always had a hearty welcome for anyone who crossed the threshold of her door. She was a consistent and faithful member of the Methodist Church and was particularly active in Ladies' Aid and W.M.S. work. While she loved her church and laboured devotedly for its best interests, yet she was a staunch supporter of the cause of Union and she entered heartily into the new relationship and was anxious for its success.

On Sunday evening, Jan. 17, while getting ready to go to church, Mrs. Parsons had an accident which undoubtedly hastened her death. While going down the basement stairs she fell, striking her head against the stone wall of the cellar. Every effort was made to save her life but gradually her friends came to see that she was beyond all human aid. Calmly and hopefully, she met the end, "There was no moaning of the bar when she put out to sea," —God closed her eyelids and she slept.

Buried on Tuesday.

The funeral service was held in the United Church on Tuesday, Jan. 26, at 2 p.m., and the building was filled with many friends to honour the dead and to sympathize with the family. Rev. E. W. Rowland, who had known the deceased from girlhood, spoke feelingly of her beautiful life, pointing out that quiet courage, hospitality and an honest effort to do good were the three qualities of her character, which most impressed him, as he watched her through the years.

To Mr. Parsons and family, who have lost a good mother and a true wife, the sympathy of the entire community is extended.

Servant of God, well done,
Thy glorious warfares past;
The battls fought, the race is won
And thou art crowned at last.

Interment was made in Emily Cemetery. Messrs. Samuel Stinson, Richard Poast, L. A. Southworth, Samuel Wilson, William Rea and Weldon Rea, acted as pallbearers.

The following floral tributes bore mute testimony of the esteem in which the deceased lady was held: Pillow, Family; Star, Ladies' Aid; and the W.M.S. of the United Church; Women's Institute, Wreath; Spray, The Young People's Society of the United Church; Wreath, Mr. and Mrs. Hill and family, Mitchell; Spray, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Evans; Spray, Mr. and Mrs. R. Crerar and family, Bethany; Spray, Mr. and Mrs. A. Erwin, Sharbot Lake; Spray, grandchildren; Mrs. F. Hart, Floyd, Gordon and Jean Parsons; Spray, Mr. and Mrs. P. Nugent, Lindsay; Spray, Grandchildren, Lillian and Cecil Parsons, Toronto; Spray, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Bryson and Mrs. Elsie Boyd, Toronto; Spray, Miss Blanche Elliott, Toronto; Wreath, Mrs. T. Rehill and family, Peterborough, Wreath, the Mansfield family, Toronto.

Among those from a distance who attended the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Parsons, Mr. Cecil Parsons, Miss Lillian Parsons, Mrs. Wellwood, Mrs. Magill, Dr. and Mrs. Fenheller, Miss Flo. Parsons and Mr. Arthur Parsons, Sr., all of Toronto. Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Laidley, Mr. and Mrs. P. Courtney, Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Rea, Mrs. George Rea, and Rev. Francis Johnston, of Lindsay; Mr. and Mrs. R. Crerar, of Bethany, Mrs. Hillt of Mitchell, Mrs. Hugh Murray and Mrs. T. Rehill, of Peterborough.

Foy Hit By Stick

Howard Wilson, son of Mrs. Robert Wilson is suffering from a painful accident which befell him at the skating rink on Wednesday evening, while practising hockey with a number of boys he was accidently struck in the eye with a stick. He was rushed to the doctor's office and although he is still suffering, it is thought that his sigh will not be impaired.

Mrs. J. J. Magee is the guest of relatives at Bobcaygeon.

Mrs. Hill left on Friday after a brief visit at the home of Mr. T. J. Parsons, to visit her sister, Mrs. Thomas Rehill, of Peterborough.

Mr. Harry Tinney, of Cavanville was in town Tuesday on business.

Mr. R. Tate spent a couple of days in Peterborough this week.

ANTI-PROFANITY PLAN FOR HUSBANDS

"Free Service" Campaign in Connection with Home Furnishings Proves Popular with Peterboro Store —Draperies Hung, Rugs, Carpets and Linoleums Laid Free of Charge.

The following is what the "Dry Goods Review" trade journal said of Cressman's last "Free Service" Sale:

"'Children Cry For It.' So runs an often repeated headline of an advertisement of a well-known panacea for all the ills of infants.

"'Husbands Fight For It' may become just as well a known slogan if an idea worked recently by the Cressman Co. of Peterboro, Ont., becomes at all familiar. Lest the masculine reader be kept long in suspense, reference is made to a 'Free Service' campaign the Cressman Co. put on in connection with the installation of home furnishings.

"This 'Free Service' consisted of the hanging of draperies, measuring and hanging of window shades and laying of rugs and carpets, linoleums and oilcloth.

"So there is to be no more hitting the wrong nail. No more profanity from the man of the house when putting down a carpet or an oilcloth. No more falling off chairs and stools when hanging curtains and draperies; and no more will the good wife complain about friend husband leaving the hammer and tacks, screw-driver, hatchet and axe on the chesterfield in the front room—that is, of course, if the 'Free Service' idea is taken advantage of."

THE ABOVE IS IN PART OF WHAT THE "DRY GOODS REVIEW," A LEADING TRADE JOURNAL, SAID OF OUR LAST FREE SERVICE SALE.

MENIE BREEDERS ELECT OFFICERS

R. H. Little Succeeds John Locke as President of Club..

REPORTS READ

The annual meeting of the Menie District Ayrshire Breeders' Club was held in the Harold block, Campbellford on Wednesday. President John Locke occupied the chair.

After the minutes of the last annual meeting had been read and adopted the president, Mr. Locke, gave a very instructive and interesting address to the members present thanking them for their past co-operation and courtesies shown him during his term as president of the Club and stating that as dairymen they had had a real successful year, prices being at the top in most cases. He also mentioned that the dairy standards act having been in force for some time past, the people were getting well acquainted with the result and that the act had much to do with the good quality of dairy products. He also thought that if the act was to be rescinded now that there would be even more dissatisfaction experienced among the dairy farmers than there was when the act was first enforced. Mr. Locke also thought the good quality of milk demanded now not only for cheese making but also by towns and cities, had much to do with the excellent demand for Ayrshires. They are high in butter fat and very economical to feed and are good money makers and many Ayrshire breeders are experiencing extra premiums on their milk owing to the good quality.

Creameries are also going to grade their cream in these different grades. This, he thought, was another good step toward advancing the good qualities of Canadian butter.

Mr. Locke thought that the accredited herd system was a fine thing, not only for the purpose of eradicating tuberculosis but for the fact that one took more interest in his herd and also had to keep his stables clean and sanitary, also disinfected, to pass the government inspection. This also helped in producing clean, sanitary milk or cream. He stated that nearly all the Ayrshire herds in this district were tested now. In concluding he wished every breeder success for 1926 and hoped it would be a good year for the Club and Ayrshire breeders in general.

Reports of committees then took up considerable time along with several items under new business.

William Stewart Sr., the oldest breeder of Ayrshires in the district and still going strong despite his advanced age, displayed the fact that his enthusiasm to keep things moving for the club has not weakened in the least, when he promptly offered a calf to be raised and fed by him until fall and then sold at Campbellford Fair, the proceeds to go to the club. It will be remembered that Mr. Stewart won first in Campbellford this past fall on Junior bull calf and three calves any breed both classes being exceptionally strong. An offer such as the above should inspire all breeders to promptly pay their membership fee and make an effort to duplicate Mr. Stewart's offer.

Mr. Alex Hume reported on the financial condition of the Ayrshire Association of Canada and said it was never in better financial condition, having $6,000 in bonds and $5,000 on hand in cash. He also reported that the constitution and by-laws of the Association would be revised at the annual meeting, to be held in Toronto on February 12 next. He thought all members should attend if possible. The secretary, W. F. Stephen, received a salary of $4,400, and the field man $3,000 and expenses. He said he thought the field man had done excellent work especially in getting out the excellent showing of Ontario Ayrshires that went to Milwaukee last year, where Ontario Ayrshires won 1st as state herd. Also at the last two Royal shows the success of the spendid Ayrshire exhibits was largely due to Mr. Hunter's efforts; this past year being unsurpassed, the Scotch judge stating that he never judged such uniform and well filled classes. Mr. Hume thought Mr. Hunter's services invaluable to the breeders.

Two new members were present in the persons of J. Gordon Mann and Son of Peterboro, purchasers of F. M. Rutherford' herd, also that of Jos. A. Barnard, Peterboro. the latter purchase being made through F. M. Rutherford.

Mr. Mann expressed his confidence in the breed, and wished all the members every success for 1926. The club will not hold a sale this year, as the demand for good Ayrshires has drained every breeder's herd almost to the limit.

The club will hold a judging class at Alex. Hume's farm on Feb. 2 at 1 o'clock. Mr. Hunter, the fieldman, will be present and take charge and all who are interested in dairy cattle are invited to attend.

Officers elected for 1926 are as follows: Hon. president, Wm. Stewart; president, R. H. Little; vice-president, Chas. McCoun; sec.-treas., F. M. Rutherford; directors, John Locke, Gordon Mann, F. G. Howes, Hector Wood, Geo. H. Stokes, John Thompson, John Rannie, E. A. McCook, W. A. Hume; auditor, E. A. McCook; executive: hon. president, vice-president, secretary - treasurer, F. G. Howes, E. A. McCook, John Locke.

U. S. RESCUE SHIP

a lifeboat?" asked some one of Upton.

"The second and third trips—the easy trips," he replied.

He answered modestly. Whereupon Mr. Miller interposed warmly: "No, they were not. The second and third trips were full of danger. Mr. Upton was a great help."

At this Upton grinned and blushed sheepishly and twiddled his braided cap in his fingers like an embarrassed schoolboy.

Both Miller and Upton emphasized the extreme difficulty of the rescue work.

As the Roosevelt's lifeboats got close to the doomed Antinoe and the latter's men jumped into the rough seas, there was constant danger of their being ground to death between the lifeboats and the side of the ship. Nevertheless, all were picked out of the water and taken to the Roosevelt. Moreover, the latter's boats were badly damaged by the seas, which smashed them against the Antinoe's side.

Chief Officer Miller paid high tribute to the quality of the lifeboats, which are of the Lundin make.

"I'll swear by that kind of lifeboat from now on," he said.

He and Upton paid a glowing tribute to Master at Arms Wurtanen, a Finnish seaman, who was the hero of the first boatload of the Roosevelt's volunteers. Swept from the boat, he seized the side of it and tried by main strength to guide it through the raging seas to the Antinoe, but in vain. Huge waves engulfed him and he was seen no more.

"And I want to tell you," said Chief Officer Miller, "that the Antinoe's crew deserve the highest commendation for the way they tried to save Wurtanen. He came within forty feet of their ship and they threw him lines, but it was no use."

U. S. Vote of Thanks.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1. — A resolution extending the thanks of Congress to Captain George Fried and members of the crew of the United States liner President Roosevelt, which rescued officers and men of the British freighter Antinoe in midocean, was introduced in the House Saturday by Representative Hamilton Fish, Jr., of New York.

The crew also were praised in a ten-minute speech, which aroused the House to a high pitch of enthusiasm, by Representative John Q. Tilson of Connecticut, the Republican leader.

A German?

NEW YORK, Feb. 1. — That Ernest Heitman, bosun's mate on the President Roosevelt, who was drowned in the rescue of the crew of the British freighter Antinoe, was living under an assumed name was asserted by Harry Smith, former storekeeper on the President Roosevelt.

Heitman, he said, came to the President Roosevelt three years ago, a slender young man, with light hair, a jovial disposition and a German accent. He had spent thirteen years at sea and was a good sailor.

Shipmates noticed that Heitman's mail came addressed to "Fritz Stege in care of Ernest Heitman" and that a satchel he carried bore the letter S. So the report arose that Heitman was a German and that he had concealed his real name to obtain employment on the American ship, on which no foreigners were given employment.

It was generally supposed too, Smith said, that Heitman had a mother and sweetheart in the south of Germany, since he received much mail from Wiesbaken. When the President Roosevelt docked in Germany, Heitman would go off by himself.

"He'd never join in with the rest of the gang," Smith explained, "a kind of lovesick, mooney fellow. He never drank as far as I know. What he liked best was music. He'd sit for hours by the phonograph, kind of dreamy-like, playing highbrow stuff.

"I was room-mate with him on the Roosevelt for over a year. He often told me that he had a sister married to a city fireman in New York. He didn't get along with the husband so he never went to see her."

WOMEN'S PAGE

SOCIETY

On Friday evening last many friends of Mr. and Mrs. P. Smith, Kent Street, gathered at their home and spent a jolly time. Several tables of euchre were played, after which refreshments were served and dancing resumed. Prizes were won by Mrs. J. Pirie and Mr. J. Worrall.

The friends and relatives of Mr. N. T. LaPlante, who yesterday celebrated his eighty-sixth birthday, called at his home yesterday to congratulate him on his accession to such an age in good health and spirits. Several gifts of flowers were received by Mr. LaPlante. Mrs. Legendre of Detroit, a daughter, was home for the occasion to join with the family in extending good wishes to the octogenarian.

Prizes will be paid at Examiner office Tuesday afternoon.

SURPRISE PARTY.

Friends of Harry Mann Make Presentation on Birthday.

A surprise party was given in honor of Mr. Harry Mann at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Gilbert on Wednesday and a most enjoyable evening was spent by all present. An address was read by Mr. G. Blowers.

Dear Harry,—It gives us great pleasure tonight, to be here assembled, to do honor to one, who not only has been a true friend, but a good pal too, and although this signifies, that you have passed onto another chapter in your life and you have added another year to your respectable age, we feel that it would be fitting here to state, that our friendship is all the more sincere, and we trust it will be lasting.

We wish you many happy returns of such days as this, and as a small token of our friendship, we would ask you to accept this gift, knowing that you will think of us each time you use it. Signed on behalf of those who wish you well.

Mr. Mann kindly accepted the gift of a book, presented to him by Mrs. H. Gilbert, and he replied in a few words thanking everyone for kindnesses shown to him. The evening was spent in dancing, singing and many interesting games which were enjoyed by all. A game of checkers by some gentlemen, caused some excitement in the kitchen. After the refreshments were served the friends left well satisfied.

Women's Danger

Of offending under the oldest hygienic handicap now ended. New way provides true protection—discards like tissue

WITH the old-time "sanitary pad" women realize their constant danger of offense, plus the embarrassment of disposal. And thus spend unhappy days.

"KOTEX," a new and remarkable way, is now used by 8 in 10 better class women.

It's five times as absorbent as ordinary cotton pads!

You dine, dance, motor for hours in sheerest frocks without a second's doubt or fear.

It deodorizes, too. And thus stops ALL danger of offending.

✓ Discards as easily as a piece of tissue. No laundry. No embarrassment.

You ask for it at any drug or department store, without hesitancy, simply by saying "KOTEX."

Do as millions are doing. End old, insecure ways. Enjoy life every day. Package of twelve costs only a few cents.

ECLIPSE FASHIONS

Exclusive Patterns by Hazel Bayne

1279

Slender Lines With a Subtle Flare

The flare as designed by Paris appears with new grace and motion in this lovely daytime dress, which emphasizes simplicity by its long full sleeves and deep V-shaped front. A large bow of the shimmering satin is placed at the joining of bodice and skirt, and a plain back adds to the slenderness of line. The diagram shows just how the pattern is put together, and No. 1279 is in sizes 16, 18 and 20 years (or 34, 36 and 38 inches bust only). Size 18 years (36 bust) requires 3⅝ yards 39-inch, or 2⅝ yards 54-inch material. Price 20 cents.

Every woman's desire is to achieve that smart, different appearance which draws favorable comment from the observing public. The designs illustrated in our new Fashion Book are originated in the heart of the style centers and will help you to acquire that much desired air of individuality. Price of the book 10 cents the copy.

Menus for the Family

Breakfast—Stewed prunes, cereal, thin cream, codfish and potato puff, cornbread, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Tomato soup, croutons, peanut butter sandwiches, pineapple charlotte, milk, tea.

Dinner—Hungarian goulash, baked corn, stuffed beet salad, peach snow, plain cake, milk, coffee, rye bread.

Hungarian goulash is a savoury winter dish that is economical and easy to make. It's also a "dish saver" since it combines meat and vegetables in one dish, making a one-dish meal. The dish of baked corn suggested in the dinner menu is not necessary if the entire family enjoy the goulash. If some members eat the mixture under protest a dish they do like should be added to the menu such as the one mentioned. Being made with milk and eggs it's nourishing and hearty.

Pineapple Charlotte.

One tablespoon granulated gelatine, 1-4 cup cold water, 1-2 cup boiling water, 1 cup sugar, 2 cups grated pineapple, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 cup heavy cream, 2 tablespoons powdered sugar, few grains salt.

Soften gelatine in cold water for five minutes. Add boiling water and stir over hot water until dissolved. Combine pineapple and sugar and bring to the boiling point. Remove from the fire and add lemon juice. Stir in dissolved gelatine. Let stand until cool and fold in cream whipped until stiff and sweetened with powdered sugar and a few grains of salt. Pour into a mold lined with split lady fingers or thin pieces of stale sponge cake. Let stand three or four hours to chill and combine with cake.

HEDDA HOYT TALKS ABOUT THINGS THAT INTEREST THE BUSY WOMAN OF 1925

EVENING FROCKS.

By Hedda Hoyt.
(Written for the United Press.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 1 (United Press).—Most of us meet the same people time and again during a social season. Therefore we require several changes of costume and since the evening gown is usually an expensive one we are forever searching for bargains that we can sandwich in with our more costly frocks.

As a "filler-in" for evening occasions nothing is better than a beaded robe—those beautifully beaded chiffon slipons which are sold at the blouse counters. Most of them, as you know, are split up the sides and must be worn over a matching costume slip or over silver or gold cloth. There are actually beautiful models selling in New York around $15. The same material and beadwork on a ready-to-wear-gown would cost triple that amount at least. Since beads are forever coming off beaded models, it doesn't really pay to be extravagant in purchasing a beaded gown. These little slips look just as well if made properly.

As to the making of the underslip, the best idea I have seen recently was where the matching slip was trimmed with rows of beaded fringe at the sides where the over-dress was open. The beaded fringe can usually be purchased to match the beads used on the gown. One could also use circular godets of matching material as a joining of the side-seams. Of course, when one is slender enough, the side-seams can be sewed together forming a straight-line frock idea. Needless to say, the underslip should not extend beneath the over-dress unless one wishes a long tunic effect and these are growing a bit passe. Often a narrow girdle of rhinestones or a beaded band adds a pretty touch where one needs a suggestion of waistline.

As to colors, soft greens, white rose, yellow, orchid and bright geranium are among the loveliest this season. V-shaped necklines are a bit newer than rounded ones if one can find them in robe sections. At the Metropolitan Opera this week four women out of every five wore V-shaped fronts with deep, rounding or strapped backs.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my teens and have been going with a young man three years my senior, for whom I care a great deal.

For the last month he has appeared to be losing interest in me. I try to be just as attractive as possible but he goes out with another girl just the same.

Please tell me how I may win the love of this man. PEGGY.

PEGGY: I think your attitude toward this young man is unfair, my dear. Even though he invites other young ladies, out he may be interested in you, Peggy. It is his privilege to meet other friends, just as it is yours, and he is wise to avail himself of this liberty. As long as he seems to enjoy your company you can be assured of his friendship, regardless of how large his circle of acquaintances is.

CALOMEL TO-NIGHT

Cleans and Tones Up the Whole System.

You need not fear any bad aftereffects; no salts or Seidlitz are needed when you take the new tanol calomel. It is the best medicine in the world for headaches, indigestion, gas on the stomach, constipation, high blood pressure, bad taste in mouth, rheumatism, poisoned system, etc. One tanol calomel tablet before meals or two at bedtime and a cup or two of hot water first thing in the morning will wash all the previous day's wastes, gases and toxins from the system making you feel better, and better, work better, digest better, and be 100 per cent better in every way. Get a few of these simple tablets from Webber's Drug Store, and you will be surprised how effective they are.

PASTEL OUT.

Pastel shades for evening wear are out, but sometimes one sees them in flannels and jersey, for southern sport wear.

THE ONLY TEACHER

By Juanita Hamel

The only teacher to whom we all at some time or other willingly listen! And the only teacher whom we seek that we may learn the wisdom of Love and the teachings of life. For Love is Life and without Love, Life would be an empty dream. So listen well to the teachings of Cupid, for he is Love and he never, never teaches that to which you should not listen, nor does he teach empty nothings which will profit you naught. So listen and learn and bide by his lessons, for they teach you of the sweetness and goodness of Life and Love, and prepare you for the post-graduate course of Happiness and Fulfillment of Dreams.

The Secrets Of Charm

By Lucrezia Bori

Slim hips are a necessary beauty requirement in this day of slim frocks.

If our hips are not slim there is no way we can create the impression that they are so, the only thing for us to do is to go to work and slenderize them.

Have you ever had the disturbing realization suddenly come to you that your hips are not as slim as they should be if you are to look the best in your power?

I recently conversed with a friend who had this sudden realization come to her. She said that for years she had gone along, looking well, she thought, in the frocks that she chose with care. Then suddenly one or two people remarked to her that she seemed to be gaining weight, and that she looked bigger through the hips.

But the friend in question determined not to be outdone by a few superfluous pounds, so she set about to lose them, and incidentally to lose a few more "for safety's sake," as she put it.

She came to me for advice on the simplest and most effective exercise for hip-reducing, and among others which I have given here from time to time, I gave the following, which I have not advised to my readers before:

Lean against the wall, resting only your palms against it, with your arms outstretched in front of you, so that your body is arm's length from the wall. It should be on a slant, with your feet farther back from the wall than your shoulders.

Now kick back with first one foot and then the other, keeping your knees absolutely straight and unbent as you kick. As you throw your feet back, throw your head back, as if you were trying to make the two meet.

Do Not Bend the Knees.

Keep this up for as many counts as you can without becoming unduly tired. As you continue the exercise from day to day, you will find that you can continue for a longer number of counts without becoming too weary.

Persistence in this exercise is sure to bring results, and I advise the seeker after slim hips to repeat it at least three times during the day.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

THE RETURN OF THE DECORATIVE DOORSTEP.

In the olden days, doorstops were of primitive make, such as a sharply pointed bit of wood, a heavy stone, an iron weight, and later on a brick. Down the passage of time doors have continued to blow open or shut and stops have improved in appearance until today they are things of unique beauty as well as usefulness.

For the nursery doors there are figures of Mother Goose and her friends, their weight disguised by the charming way in which they are painted. "Mother" is sitting in her famous basket, broom in hand, ready for her flight to remove the cobwebs from the sky. Old Mother Hubbard is talking over the empty cupboard with her dog. Simple Simon is busy fishing in his mother's pail. Then there are other well-known characters such as Puss in Boots. Jack and the Beanstalk, cats, dogs, rabbits, cows, birds, and many things dear to the children's hearts.

For the bathroom door there is a trim little Red Cross nurse, her red lined cape thrown back to give a dash of gay coloring to the figure, a charming bathing girl, a bath attendant holding towels and a bottle of bath salts for the bather.

For bedroom doors there are baskets of flowers, pots of roses, a dainty French maid, a chambermaid putting a pillow into its case, and a housekeeper with her carpet sweeper.

For the dining room there are stops of large peacocks with tails spread, quail, pheasants, waiters holding menu cards, butlers with serving tray and other appropriate symbols. Most of the stops are in painted iron, though there are a number of brass, wrought iron or nickel.

Not only is there a wide choice in the stops but one may have them made in designs of his own fancy at a fair price. Lots of people are doing it and using the stops for ornamental effect where there is no draught allowed to blow the door open or shut. In some instances knockers are fashioned to match the stops.

ATTENDED CONFERENCE

ABOUT OURSELVES

So love lasts just five years after marriage, Mr. Professor?

Five years and not a day longer

Dear, me, how very definite! I wonder how you got you statistics? Did you go to the divorce courts, or was it the domestic relations judge who told you all about it? Or perhaps the family doctor, or the village parson?

Five years—and it all over! What do they mean by saying "as long as ye both shall live" in the wedding ceremony, do you suppose? They knew something about life when they wrote that ceremony, didn't they? Or has human nature changed so much in this last generation?

And just exactly what do you mean by love, Professor? Do you mean infatuation? If you do, I think you're giving it a good long endurance when you say five years. Infatuations usually last about five months, it seems to me, and after that, it's indifference or actual dislike.

I've seen a man who couldn't eat or sleep till he was married to the girl he "loved" and in six months after the wedding, he was just as crazy about another girl and didn't care who knew it.

I've seen a little goose of a girl sighing her heart out over some nobody from nowhere and leaving him without a tear when she'd been married to him half a year and found out how he looked before he was shaved, and how he acted when he had a cold in the head or a cough or something.

Do you think either of these people were truly "in love?" I don't.

I think they were just infatuated—and there's a difference. A big difference.

There's a bit of madness in all love, or else it isn't love at all.

No perfectly sane, well balanced girl would leave a beautiful home and a devoted father and mother and step out into nowhere with a perfect stranger—No she wouldn't! But very sensible, fine women have done this very thing, and they did it because they were a little bit crazy at the time. And a good thing they were, too. If they hadn't gone crazy, they'd have stayed old maids and that's always a mistake—to my mind.

But, when the madness has passed, if the love is founded on something real it doesn't decrease; it grows.

The love of a man of sixty for his wife of fifty-five isn't so violent, or so romantic as the love he had for her when she was twenty. But it's deeper and truer and more reliable, be sure of that. And don't laugh too much when you hear a nice little old lady fretting because the letter from her husband is an hour or so late.

Love—why, there's nothing in the world worth having really—but love. It's sunshine and dew, it's rain and the rush of water in the river; it's the snapping of the fire on the hearth; it's the gleam of the silver moon in the sky; it's the perfume of the roses in the garden; it's the one gleam of inspiration that comes some time to almost the humblest life.

And besides that, it's meat and drink and bread and butter and rest and comfort—and no human heart was ever really happy without it.

And the right kind last a good deal longer than five years—just as the right kind of friendship does.

PRESBYTERIAL HELD EXECUTIVE MEETING

Reports of W.M.S. Activity For Six Months Show Progress.

The executive of the Peterborough W.M.S. met on Friday afternoon in St. Andrew's Church, Peterborough, to receive the reports of the W.M.S. work for the six months following the consummation of Union on June 10, 1925.

The president, Mrs. Bremmer of Cobourg, presided, and reports were received from the following officers:

Miss M. Dickson, corresponding secretary.

Mrs. D. Drummond, treasurer.

Miss M. C. Mackinnon, Y. W. Auxiliaries and C.G.I.T. Groups.

Mrs. Yale, finance secretary.

Mrs. McKone, Mission Band secretary (given by Mrs. Gordon).

Mrs. Long, "Messenger" society.

Mrs. Jull of Lakefield, Home Helpers' secretary.

Mrs. J. MacKinnon of Cobourg, library secretary, (given by Mrs. Bremmer).

Mrs. Robb, Norwood, supply secretary.

Mrs. C. McKinnon, press secretary.

Mrs. A. McKenzie and Mrs. J. W. Gordon, vice-presidents, were also present.

The reports show 23 auxiliaries in the Presbyterial (7 of these minority groups) with a membership of 416 and a contribution for the six months of $4,084.12;

Five Y. W. Auxiliaries, membership 93 and a contribution of $597.11;

Seven Mission Bands, membership 126, contribution $90.70;

Two hundred and fifty-five subscribers to The Messenger;

Seventy-five books sent to the work among foreigners;

Home Helpers' contribution, $71;

Bale, valued at $749.50, and much valuable second hand clothing sent to Round Lake School.

Perhaps the most promising report of all was that of Mrs. Mackinnon re the C.G.I.T. work: 12 groups as compared with 6 in the last report; 155 members, as compared with 60 in the last report; and $128.14 contributed as compared with $30.75 in the last report.

In reporting this work Mrs. Mackinnon said:

"The department of affiliated groups of Canadian Girls in Training is a most encouraging one. Though still young its development and growth is rapid giving promise of a new day in the Christian outlook of teen-age girls. There is still a great deal of the mist that one so often sees at the dawning of a new day—due chiefly to three things: First, by the inevitable temporary confusion caused by the necessary readjustments of organization and work in connection with mission bands; secondly, by a lack of sufficient missionary interest in some of the C.G.I.T. group leaders themselves; and thirdly, a by a lack of knowledge of the aims and ideals of the C.G.I.T. programme on the part of the women in our senior auxiliaries.

"In each case the mist is being dispelled. First, the graded idea is much more firmly established: Mission bands for children up to 12, C.G.I.T. groups for girls from 12 to 17 years, Y.W.A. and mission circles for those 18 to 23, and Senior auxiliaries for all over 24.

"Secondly, the United Church W.M.S. is now paying half the salary of Miss Bona Mills as our National Girls' Work Secretary. As she travels all over Canada she will encourage our leaders of girls to greater efforts for missionary education. Thirdly, our women are becoming better acquainted with the ideals of the C.G.I.T. movement and are therefore more sympathetic, realizing that what the girls and leaders need from them is helpfulness and co-operation."

Miss Dickson gave a resume of the work of the last six months from and including the last annual presbyterial meeting in Cobourg in May—in which she remarked that the Peterborough Presbyterial W.M.S. was organized about 1877 and should soon have celebrated its jubilee.

Miss Dickson called attention to the fact that while some of the reports for the six month showed a decrease in membership and funds, such decrease was largely overbalanced by the loyalty and devotion of the members, and the reports were most optimistic. She said: "We do rejoice in the larger vision which has come to us and that we stood loyally behind our beloved church as she entered the great Union consummated on June 10, 1925, and which was and continues to be of world-wide interest.

"Coming into this Union is a very great privilege—increased privileges bring increased responsibility and we must measure up to our responsibility." She urged more Bible study and more earnest prayer.

Mrs. Bremmer also stressed prayer. She also asked that all the auxiliaries stress finance for the remainder of the term—that it be made a matter of earnest prayer; that those auxiliaries not already using the envelope system should introduce it; that an effort be made by the mission bands for an increase in junior memberships and seals and that all the auxiliaries prepare for a very special thankoffering in March, and if possible to have the thankoffering over and above the allocation. Mrs. Bremner also mentioned that the interim board had arranged for one uniform annual fee in the W.M.S. of the United Church. Fifty cents is to be paid by all, beginning April, 1926.

Mrs. Jull of Lakefield assisted in the opening exercises, while Mrs. A. McKenzie of Peterborough closed the meeting with prayer.

DURKIN PLEADS NOT GUILTY.

CHICAGO, January 30. — Martin J. Durkin, 24, handsome, notorious killer, yesterday pleaded not guilty to the charge that he murdered Patrolman Harry A. Gray and Edward Shanahan, federal agent, here several months ago, when he shot his way to freedom from two police traps.

LLOYD GEORGE TO VISIT RUSSIA

Will Accept Invitation of Soviet To See Things For Himself.

BUSY ON LAND PLAN.

LONDON, February 1. Canadian Press. — Former Premier Lloyd George, who has expressed his intention sooner or later of accepting an unofficial invitation to visit Russia to see for himself the conditions of things under the Soviet regime, is pushing his land campaign. He announced in the course of a speech at Shrewsbury on Saturday: "We are going to force some party to deal with this problem before we are done."

Lloyd George, who is already accusing the Baldwin government of having stolen his thunder in its big electrical power scheme, apparently foresees a similar happening with regard to the land. Up to the present, however, the aspirations of the Baldwin administration are bounded by a scheme to assist agriculture.

PILES DISAPPEAR

No Cutting or Salves Needed

External treatments seldom cure Piles.

Nor do surgical operations.

The cause is inside—bad circulation.

The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method. Ointments and cutting won't do it.

J. S. Leonhardt, M.D., a specialist set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in 1000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at McDermid and Jury, who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.

ABSORBED IN MELODRAMA OF REAL LIFE ALL DAY,

"A Well-Written Thriller Lifts Me Completely Out of Myself," Says Investigation Bureau Chief

FINDS DIVERSION IN MYSTERY FICTION AT NIGHT

By George Britt.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—eal life thrillers, mystery tales th the climax written in the d blood of battling comrades—ese things are office routine for hn Edgar Hoover, 31-year-old ief of the bureau of investigaon of the federal Department of stice.

After a long working day in hich his thoughts and his nerves ve been tangled into strained ots by the task of trailing down ooks, he simply has to find rexation.

So he goes home and reads a tective story....

"Mystery stories beyond a ubt are the best sort of refreshent for a hard-working mind," over says.

"If one is going to come down work tomorrow with his head ear and keen for the job, he ust give himself a rest tonight. must forget all about the stubrn realities that perplexed him day.

"There are plenty of ways to that. I find the necessary ange mostly in reading. But avy reading which takes an effort will not serve in large doses. Your mind will wander back to your work. And, for me, love stories haven't sustaining interest. A well-written mystery story, however, will lift me completely out of myself and give me three or four hours in another world.

"If I try relaxation in cards, it can't be leisurely solitaire. It must be bridge, which demands all the attention I can give it. If I am playing an outdoor sport, I take tennis because of its activity In golf, my thoughts keep wrestling with the business I ought for the time to forget. So it is with reading. A mystery story grips my interest and transplants me completely out of the matter-of-fact world which has oppressed me. The fact that my work is concerned with the solution of crime mysteries does not at all take the edge off my interest in the fiction.

"I do not go to fiction for tips on how a bureau of investigation should be conducted. It is not necessary in fact, for a mystery story to stick entirely within the realities of everyday experience in order for it to be entertaining. A good one must satisfy one's sense of reasonableness and probability, of course, just as a well-constructed mystery story in the end should lead to an unexpected solution. After all it is amusement and not reporting which one seeks in mystery fiction.

"Some of the applications for positions as Department of Justice agents undoubtedly are prompted by the reading of detective stories. People are thrilled by the smooth solution of some fiction tangle and imagine all they have to do is to paste on false whiskers and pick up a hot clew. Mystery thrillers, of course, are not text books for detectives. But they are prime entertainment after a hard day's work."

Hoover's own life story would furnish good material for a romancer, but it would fit better into a Horatio Alger plot than into Sherlock Holmes' adventures. In 1919 he was a young lawyer assigned to prosecute some government cases.

From his work as a prosecutor, the bureau of investigation decided he was the sort of man it needed and induced him to join the organization. When William J. Burns resigned as director, young Hoover was put in his place. During his first year, he tells you with rather a boyish air of pride, the bureau brought in more money in fines and recoveries than in any previous year in its history. That is one indication of the efficiency produced by a chief who keeps his mind clear by reading mystery stories.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

PEGGY DISCOVERS A HOUSE UNDER WATER.

Peggy leaned over the bank and watched the wee little fish swimming around on the very bottom of the pond.

"Wonder why it's dragging that long piece of grass around after it," she mused. The little fish fastened one end of the grass to a pile of grasses, then swam around to the other side of the pile and fastened the other end of the grass. "Well, of all things!" Peggy exclaimed out loud.

"Hello, there, Peggy," cried a merry voice, and Peggy turned around to find Squeedee, the little elfin from Joyland standing at her side.

"Oh, Squeedee! You dear!" exclaimed Peggy. "What kind of fish is that? What is he doing? Looks as if he were building a nest of those grasses."

"That's just what Mrs. Stickleback is doing," agreed Squeedee. "Building a nest for her little ones." He rapped on the surface of the water and before Peggy could ask any questions, she found herself sitting on a stone at the bottom of the pond, beside the funny little nest. "Mrs. Stickleback, this is Peggy Brown. She's been watching you for a long time."

"I'm glad to know you, Peggy," said Mrs. Stickleback, flipping her pretty tail. "I was so busy building my nest I didn't notice you."

"Is that your nest?" Peggy asked

"What Kind of Fish is That?"

pointing to the pile of grass on the bottom of the pond. "Why, it isn't any larger than a silver quarter. Did you make it?"

"Indeed, she did," said Squeedee. "She laid the pretty little yellow eggs you see in there, too."

Peggy peeked into the tiny opening in the bundle of grass and gave a cry of delight.

"My goodness! They're no larger than a poppy seed. I should think you'd be afraid of some one stealing them."

"Just why I was dragging more dead grass over the nest," chuckled Mrs. Stickleback. "When I'm through, you won't be able to find itjt all."

The clever little fish poked a blade of grass first one place then another, and when she had finished, Peggy could never have found the nest if she hadn't known just where it was.

"Mighty clever, I'll say," laughed Peggy. "Now how long will it be before they are hatched and ready to swim out for themselves?"

"In about thirty days," replied the happy little mother fish. "Before they hatch, the eggs will turn almost black. Then my troubles begin. It takes both Daddy Stickleback and myself to watch them. Here comes Daddy Stickleback now. It's dinner time, and if you'll excuse me, I'll go and get my dinner." Then Mrs. Stickleback swam away in search of food.

I guess Peggy would have been there yet watching Mr. Stickleback if her mamma hadn't called her in to dinner.

A PET PEEVE.

I'll sing you a song of my radio set, if you'll pardon my flats and my sharps. I've picked up most everything everyone gets, so I'll harp like most everyone harps.

I sit me at night and I turn on the juice and I tip back and smoke a cigar. Right shortly a whole flock of music's turned loose and it comes from anear and afar.

A baritone singer sings down in the deep. A soprano floats up to the skies. A lullaby lulls till I near fall asleep—but a jazz band soon opens my eyes.

And now that due credit is off of my mind, there's a peeve that I'm anxious to shout. When I know that I'm treating my radio fine, what the deuce is it squawking about?

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 2.

Contradictory forces seem to hold sway on this day, according to the sidereal operations in lunar and solar angles. Those in employment are urged to be careful not to give cause for complaint, although in the long run there may be benefits. With Jupiter and Mercury under trine aspect with Luna, the presage is for financial and lively conditions in commercial as well as professional affiliations. Saturn brings benefits of stability.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of financial and business advantage, with real reward from labor, but it is suggested that those in employment of others exercise care to please employers. A child born on this day will be versatile, studious, ambitious and popular. It will probably do better financially on its own account. In any case it should be lucky and rise to good position.

SPEAKER APPRECIATED.

Lindsay Rotarians Enjoyed Address By Joseph Wearing.

The bulletin of the Lindsay Rotary Club refers to Joseph Wearing, who spoke there recently, as follows:

"Last Monday Mr. Joseph Wearing, of Peterboro, was Larry's (L. V. O'Connor) choice as the speaker. His topic 'National Outlook for Canadians,' was a big task but he 'came through' in great style. His personal experiences in Quebec and the Prairie Provinces made his talk one of tolerance and love for these peoples. Is the chasm between different parts of Canada ever widening? If so, the remedy can be found in three magic words—Education, Fraternalism, and Co-operation and Imagination. We appreciate the effort of Mr. Wearing."

When You Catch Cold Rub on Musterole

Musterole is easy to apply with the fingers and works right away. Often it prevents a cold from turning into "flu" or pneumonia. It does all the good work of grandmother's mustard plaster without the blister.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment, made of oil of mustard and other home simples. It is recommended by many doctors and nurses Try Musterole for sore throat, cold on the chest, rheumatism, lumbago, pleurisy, stiff neck, bronchitis, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back and joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet — colds of all sorts.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

THE DOLLS GO HOME.

When Mister Snoopsy, the Shadow Man, rushed out of Hidy Go and, the sun was shining brightly.

But when Mister Sprinkle Blow, he weather man, looked down and aw what was going on, he rolled a loud over the sun and put Mister noopsy out for good and all!

Yes, sir! That was the end of him, o Mister Havalook saved his penies after all, and I hope he built is nice new laundry and is living eacefully with Sniff Whisker, the ayor of Ash Can Town.

As for the umbrella that Mister noopsy threw up at the moon with ll the dolls and other Hidy Go peole tied up in it, including the Twins —well!

Instead of going to the moon, the mbrella was heading straight for he sun, because the moon was in hina at that minute.

But the big umbrella never got to e sun because Mister Sprinkle low's cloud was in the way. That olly fairyman was just about to fill p his barrel marked "Regular 'ourdowns" when pop! The big mbrella came bursting through the loud and landed right at Mister rinkle Blow's feet.

"By all the little rain-toads and rec-toads and hop-toads!" he cried. Such a big fat umbrella! Really never saw such a fat umbrella in y life! It's even fatter than the ig umbrella I ride down to the arth on when I go on my travels."

Just then he heard voices crying aintly, "Help! Help!"

"Why it's a talking umbrella!" said Mister Sprinkle Blow. "It must have a radio in it."

So he untied the string at the top —and out rolled Nancy and Nick and all the dolls. The gingerbread man was nothing but crumbs, alas!

"What's all this?" cried the jolly old weatherman fairy. "Where have you been and where are you going, my dears?"

"Don't you know us?" cried the Twins. "We're Nancy and Nick and we've been down to the Land of Hidy Go helping poor Mister Havalook. These are his subjects, the Rag Doll, the Crinoline Doll, Black Dinah, Calamity Jane, Miss Tootsie Bobb, Belinda, Mrs. Jiggs and Miss Pithers. Also Sailor Sam, the Tin Soldier, Teddy Bear, Limber Long Legs, Jack-in-the-Box and what is left of the Gingerbread Man."

"How do you do," said Mister Sprinkle Blow.

"How do you do," said all the dolls solemnly.

"Won't you sit down?" said Mister Sprinkle Blow.

"No, thank you. We must be going," said Miss Crinoline.

"Back to Hidy Go Land?" said Mister Sprinkle Blow in surprise.

"No," said Miss Crinoline. "Back to our mistresses. We shouldn't have left home in the first place. Say," she said turning to the Rag Doll. "How did it come that I found my skirt on the wash-line after I distinctly saw you walking off with it?"

"I was only trying it on for fun to see how I looked in hoops," said the Rag Doll. "I took it back and hung it up again."

"Then you're forgiven," said Miss Crinoline kindly. "I forgive everybody," and with that she jumped off the edge of the cloud, her hoopskirt spreading out like a parachute.

That gave the dolls an idea, and holding tight to the big umbrella, they had arrived in, they sailed gently down to the earth. And they all went straight back to their homes and have been living happily ever since.

"Tingalingaling!" went Mister Sprinkle Blow's telephone.

It was the Fairy Queen calling the Twins.

SLEDDIN'

Hey, Jimmy! Hey, Tommy! Hey, Dicky! Hey, Fred! Come on to the corner, a totin' yer sled. The gang is all down here, an' raisin' some ned. Aw, shucks! Fergit studies—go coastin' instead.

I'm tellin' ya kids, there's some fun on tanight. The hill that we slide on is frozen up tight. We'll skim right along till we skid out of sight, but the snow is real soft at the place where we'll light.

I'll bet I slide further than any of youse. Come on, bet fer fun—then you've utthin' to lose. I'll let ya all borrow my sled, if ya choose, 'cause, anyway nobody knows whose is whose.

Yer mother won't letcha? Aw, heck pull a sneak. Why that's how I go out tanight, so ta speak. It's likely I'll get a good spankin' but gee, the sleddin' I'll do makes it worth it ta me.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D., Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

A few weeks ago I attended a very interesting function at the Union League Club in New York. During its long and notable history there have been many gatherings in this historical place. I am sure, however, no more significant gathering ever assembled within its walls.

The occasion was a luncheon given to Sir Arbuthnot Lane, surgeon to King George and consulting surgeon to Guy's Hospital. In spite of his more than seventy years, Sir Arbuthnot continues to be one of the greatest teachers of surgery in all the world.

But it was not of surgery that this great man talked the other day. He preached the gospel of the prevention of disease and the prolongation of life.

The speaker has a quiet humor and an impressive way of driving home what he is attempting to teach. Let me quote:

"Any religion that does not have a hell is a failure. Just as soon as one brand drops its hell, its adherents leave it for another that possesses one. Our hell—that is, the hell of the medical profession—is cancer. This is the thing that terrorizes the public.

"Most of the diseases that afflict us are preventable. The most common one, the cause of a host of others, is chronic intestinal stasis—in other words, constipation.

"I find it most difficult to get that word into the newspapers so that the public will know what I am talking about. I was asked recently to give a ten-minute talk on this subject over the radio. I did. The radio people wouldn't allow me to say "constipation."

"This condition—the most menacing—is at the same time one of the most preventable. But the world has got to be educated in the means of prevention. It is responsible for ulcers and finally cancer. Civilization itself is menaced by it. Of the whole population of Great Britain, at least five millions will die of cancer unless they are educated about health."

Everybody who is informed on such matters agrees that constipation is responsible for a large share of our physical ailments. It is a shame that we cannot make the public understand that its neglect may mean the most serious of all the diseases.

The contaminated blood, the result of chronic constipation, loses its cleansing properties. In consequence all the organs and tissues of the body are in danger.

Good health and long life demand that the constipation be overcome.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES.

A READER. Q.—What will cure eczema in the palm of the hand and fingers?

2.—What would you advise for very oily hair? Two days after washing it will be as oily as if it had not been touched.

A.—Some infection in the blood is responsible for this trouble. Be sure that the intestinal tract is kept clear and eat only simple food, avoiding starches, sugar and stimulants. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

2.—The general condition of the health has a great bearing on the condition of the scalp and hair.

With better general health you will probably notice improvement throughout your entire system. For further particulars send self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

G. W. Q.—What would you advise me to do for enlarged pores?

A.—Apply hot and cold compresses to the face for five minutes, night and morning. This should help the condition.

Three-Minute Journeys

WHERE EVERY CLOCK IS SET AT THE SAME MOMENT.

Uruguay is the smallest of all the small South American countries and for some reason we rarely hear of it. Perhaps one of the reasons for that is the fact that it is an agricultural country, quietly and contentedly raising its cattle and sheep and exporting them to the rest of the world.

It is one of the wealthiest of the small republics of South America. Throughout the length and breadth of its 72,000 miles, there is scarcely any barren land. The deserts, mountainous regions and unfertile stretches of its neighbors are unknown in this little land. Everywhere you go, you find the cattle and sheep grazing on fertile land. There is no country that is more favored by Providence for the raising of live stock.

The capital of this country is Montevideo, which is a city of perhaps two hundred thousand inhabitants. It is laid out in a regular careful fashion that suggests Washington to our Northern eyes. And it is so excellently organized and regulated that it is one of the healthiest communities in the world.

This healthy, happy little land does a large amount of business with the outside world although it does little importing from the United States. In this, it is unlike the other republics fo South America. Venezuela, for example, does almost all of its outside business with its Northern sister republic.

Montevideo was the originating point of one of the strangest customs ever originated by man in his efforts to attain punctuality. They have their own methods for seeing that everybody in the city knows the correct time. Every evening at eight o'clock, the lights of the entire city are dimmed and that is a signal that all clocks are to be set for the day. On the street, in the homes and in restaurants, one may see a unanimous reaching for watches and clocks as the hour for maintaining punctuality arrives.

It may or may not be kind to note, however, that in spite of this precaution, the people of Uruguay share with their Southern neighbors, reputation hf never being on time for anything. But that is not the fault of the careful Government which even arranges for its people an opportunity for keeping their clocks set correctly.

SOLUTION OF SATURDAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE.

A three month's Trip Abroad

Suppose you sail a week from to-day. The first thing you think about—the first thing you discuss with your wife—the first thing you do—is to provide ample funds from which wife and family can meet household expenses while you are away. Other matters might claim your attention, but family affairs would receive special attention.

Sooner or later—maybe suddenly—you will sail out into the unknown—start on that journey from which no traveller returns. Now, man to man, are you satisfied with the provision you have made for the support of your wife and kiddies after you're gone?

Let us explain how an Imperial Monthly Income policy will meet your family's expenses in case anything should happen to you; and how it will provide an income to support yourself in comfort should you live to old age.

MAROONS SAW BRUINS' SHADOW BUT COULDN'T REACH THE BOSTON TEAM ON SATURDAY NIGHT'S PLAY

Montreal Team Suffered Worst Defeat of Season—Swept Off Feet.

INSPIRED HOCKEY

Boston Team Play Kept Up Incessant Attacks—Maroons Weak.

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 1 (Canadian Press)—Boston Bruins provided the surprise of the National Hockey League season to date when they simply swept the Montreal Maroons off the ice at the Forum Saturday night and took a 5 to 4 victory from the locals. It was the worst defeat suffered by Montreal this season. Apparently out of the slough into which they were dropped through illfortune at the beginning of the season, the Bruins gave a display of speedy, aggressive team play against Montreal which has seldom been equalled on local ice in recent years. They fairly dazzled the Montreal defence players in pressing with an attack that was sufficient to win games from the best teams in the circuit.

While Herberts and Carson Cooper went winging in on the Maroon net in one rush after another always aided by the rangy Lionel Hitchman, the Boston defence was playing an inspired game and the Maroon attacks were consistently rolling up harmlessly against Hitchman's sweeping stick or, when they did get through the outer guard, broke against ubiquitous form of Dr. Stewart, the smart Boston net guardian. Nelson Stewart, the Maroon sharpshooter who has been notching a goal or so in all recent games, was held a prisoner. His every move was followed by at least two Boston players. The Maroon star attempted every trick in his bag to get through for a count, but after two periods had to give it up.

He retired with the remainder of the Montreal regulars at the start of the third period when the game was gone beyond reclamation and left the Bostonians to the care of the Maroon substitutes, who made a successful job of stemming the tide throughout the last 15 minutes of the final period.

Maroons Wobbled

Montreal unquestionably was below form. The defence in particular was wobbly. Time and again Munro and Noble were spread apart like a barn door and left the way open for sizzling shots on Benedict by such driving snipers as Cooper and Herberts. The Montreal goalie was subjected to a terrific bombardment and under the barrage he, too, started to weaken and become a bit less calm. It got to such a stage that in the second period Benedict blocked a shot from Hitchman with his chest and, when shaking the puck down to clear it, dropped it from the crook of his arm behind the net. The reverse flustered him and a moment later he was unsettled when Cooper drove a screaming puck from the side and the beautifully-directed shot found the corner of the net.

But Montreal's poor showing does not detract from Boston's victory. The visitors played inspired hockey. In the past the Boston team has been noted for its rather guerilla type of game, in which the players flounder all over the ice, effectively blocking their opponents, but themselves getting nowhere. It was not so Saturday night. The Bruins showed as a perfectly drilled team. Cooper, Harrington and Herberts were continually rushing three abreast and rifling terrific shots by the Maroon goal. In the second session it was Cooper, Hitchman and in the final session Red Stuart jumped into the picture, this time as a link in a forward machine and not as a defence player as in past games here for Boston and St. Pats.

The Bruins' speed and combination was too much for Munro and Noble almost from the start.

The line-up:

Montreal		Boston
Benedict	goal	Stewart
Munro	defence	Hitchman
Noble		Cleghorn
Stewart	centre	Herberts
Broadwent	wing	Cooper
Siebert		Harrington
Carson	sub	Jackson

PLAYERS PLAN HOCKEY UNION

Bigger Salaries Said To Be Root of Rumored Trouble.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1. — Trouble is brewing in the ranks of the National Hockey League and before another season starts next winter there may be a hockey players' union if the plans now under way materialize. The unlooked for growth of the professional game in this city and the big salaries which are reputed to be paid to the members of the New York Americans have inspired the players on the Canadian clubs to look for higher salaries.

Officials of the New York club said Saturday that they had been advised of the movement among the players to demand more money for next season but they stated that it was doubtful if the New York players would be members of the organization, because it is understood, they are already tied up to three year contracts.

Already many of the best players in Canada are casting longing looks toward the New York Americans. There are several who would jump at the chance to play here, but it is also a certainty that none of the Canadian clubs will relinquish any of their players or will even be tempted by the large prices the New York club would be able to offer.

Success here is Surprising.

The immediate success of the professional game here has been something of a surprise to the Canadians. They figured that it would require at least a season before the game became established here. The crowds have already exceeded anything that the promoters anticipated. A capacity crowd at a professional game at the Garden means a gate of close to $30,000, and this amount for one game is far beyond anything which the game draws in the Dominion.

There are several questions which the professional hockey promoters will have to struggle with before another season drifts around. They will not only have to smooth out the salary question but the backers of the United States teams on the circuit will strive for some sort of equitable arrangement in the signing of new players.

See Effort to Block U. S.

As practically all the players are developed in Canada, the Canadian clubs have what amounts to a monopoly on their services. The refusal of the Western Canada League to permit Eddie Rodden to join the New York club after he had signed a contract has convinced the promoters here that the Canadians have taken a stand to block any attempts to strengthen New York, Pittsburgh and Boston.

Such an arbitrary attitude would be detrimental to the young Canadian amateurs who are anxious to get into the professional ranks. All that the American promoters can hope for is a change of attitude on the part of the Canadian members of the league before next year. The game has become so popular here, the American promoters are hopeful that a policy of cooperation can be adopted such as that which has made professional baseball such a successful organization.

BOWLING with the CHAMPION

Jimmy Smith

FOOTWEAR.

If anything, too little attention is paid to the legs and feet in the bowling game. Both are big items, however, just as they are in all branches of sport. Keep your legs and feet in shape. Take care of them.

For one thing, don't wear rubber shoes. Nothing will tire you or injure your feet quicker. I've found where some bowlers wearing the "rubbers" started to tire, to feel fatigued after rolling four games.

Furthermore, rubber shoes are apt to "check" your slide as you deliver the ball. Obviously, an "abrupt" slide will throw your body out of position and your ball will lose direction.

I wear elk-sled shoes. I recommend them above any other kind. I've never experienced any trouble with my feet. They never feel sore and my legs never tired. With elk-soles you can turn in 10 straight games without getting that "worn out" feeling. I can bowl almost indefinitely at one stretch and not notice any ill effects.

HELEN WILLS IN TENNIS FINALS

Defeated Peggy Saunders in Semi-Final Round at Cannes.

UPSET BY CABLE.

CANNES, Feb. 1.— (Canadian Press.)—Helen Wills reached the finals of the Gallia tennis tournament Sunday by defeating Peggy Saunders, British player, 6-0, 6-0, The American champion will meet Mlle. Contoslavos, of France, in the finals to-day.

In the semi-finals of the mixed doubles, Miss Wills suffered her first defeat on the Riviera courts. Miss Petchell, of England, and Allister McCormick, of Chicago, defeated the California girl and Jack Hillyard, of England, 1-6, 6-4, 7-5.

Miss Wills won three matches in the Gallia tennis tournament Saturday but her play plainly showed the effects of her perturbation over messages from New York intimating that her amateur standing might be jeopardized by her writing for newspapers.

In the morning she had considerable difficulty in defeating Miss R. R. Haylock, of Norfolk, England, in the women's singles at 9-7, 6-2, but her afternoon play showed improvement and she joined her partner in the mixed doubles, Jack Hilliard, of England, in disposing of Miss Evelyn Jones and Felix Poulin, 6-1, 6-3, and Mlle. Rosine Vlasto and the Hon. F. M. B. Fischer, 6-1, 6-1.

When the United States' champion was shown telegrams from New York quoting Jones W. Mersereau, president of the U. S. Lawn Association, as saying that her amateur standing might be endangered under the assocaition's "player-writer" rule, she said:

"I am perfectly satisfied that I am living up to the spirit and letter of the player-writer rules. The articles I have been writing do not contain a single reference to the present tournament. My stories are intended to assist young players to learn the technical points of the game. I am not reporting matches in which I am engaged over here. I only ask you to let the public judge for themselves when my first article is published, in about a week."

Lenglen's Plans.

NICE, France, Feb. 1.—(Canadian Press.)—Suzanne Lenglen, the French champion, will play in the singles, the women's doubles and the mixed doubles in the Nice tournament which opens to-day. This was declared to be Suzanne's final and definite decisions after she changed her mind three times in 48 hours.

Helen Wills is entered in the women's doubles with Eileen Bennett, of England, and the mixed doubles with Charles E. Schliemann, of Switzerland, in this tournament.

The long awaited singles match between the French and American champions will not take place before the Carlton tournament, beginning February 8, if then, as neither has announced definitely whether she will play in the singles in that tournament or not.

 Joyce Wethered and Cecil Leitch have won the British women's golf title six out of the last seven times.

 Miss Leitch topped the field in 1914, 1920 and 1921, and Miss Wethered in 1922, 1924 and 1925. Their regime was broken, temporarily, in 1923, when Miss Doris Chambers won out.

 No championships were held from 1915 to 1919, inclusive, due to the war. So the Wethered-Leitch combination has ranked pretty much supreme for the last dozen years.

SENATORS' GOAL AT START BEAT THE AMERICANS

Pass From Behind the Goal Caught New York Defense Napping.

CROWD OF 17,000

Ottawa Tightened Hold on Top Position—Yanks Couldn't Score.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Feb. 1.—(Canadian Press).— The Ottawa Senators bolstered their already strong top rung perch of the National Hockey League ladder when they shut out the New York Americans 1 to 0 here Saturday night. A crow of 17,000 jammed the Madison Square Garden for the match.

"Hooley" Smith netted the lone tally three minutes after the face-off when the American defense fell away for a moment. King Clancy had squirmed his way down to the New York backs but there the puck was deflected behind the cage. Clancy followed through, however, batted the rubber out to Smith as he waited in front of "Jakie" Forbes and "Hooley's" shot bulged the hemp.

From then on the New York six drove with a combination play that held the Senators for the most part on the defense but when close in on the Ottawa citadel, the Americans seemed weak in the pinches and they could not score.

Mayor Duquette, of Montreal, faced off the puck. New York rushed from the start but their rushes ended for the most part at the Senator defense line. Smiths opener for Ottawa came in three minutes. The Americans tried with a combination attack but it was sent back before the poking stick of Nighbor. Finally Simpson tore through on a lone rush and Connell was forced away out to save. A combined effort by "Red" Green and Simpson suffered the same fate before the invincible Ottawa guardian. The Senator forwards drove a three man thrust to the New York citadel but Forbes took Denneny's booming drive.

Boucher Spoiled Shot.

In the second period, Clancy tried Forbes out with a hard shot at the opening. Nighbor went off for tripping and the American forwards sent drive after drive at Connell but their shooting was high and wide. Then Burch took the disc the entire arena length to pass to "Shorty" Green in front of the Ottawa net. Boucher foiled what looked like a certain goal when he chopped Green's stick as he was about to shoot. Simpson then went through at such a pace that he could not stop himself and he piled into Connell with such force the goalie's stick was splintered. Near the end of the frame the Ottawans, who had been forced back on the defensive, brought their combination tactics into play and shots rained on Forbes from the sticks of the "four horsemen." The American guardian, however, pulled down a bevy of dangerous looking drives and the period ended scoreless.

Third Also A Blank.

In the third period Nighbor and his wings drove from the face-off but the New York six held well. After five minutes of strenuous checking, the Americans came to the fore, pressed the play to within striking distance of the Ottawa net and then set up a hard shooting barrage. In that territory, however, their play became ragged and their efforts went for nought. Once a burning drive by Burch appeared to have nestled in the cage but when the excitement and scurrying ceased, Connel was found to be sitting on the disc far out of danger's way. Nighbor and Finnegan tried with lone rushes but Forbes handled their shots with ease. Clancy was knocked out and had to take the bench when he crashed to the ice after a stiff bodycheck from Burch. A shot from Burch that came from out of a maze of players in front of the Ottawa cage brought the packed house to its feet but Connell had the disc in his mitt. The Ottawa front line got under way again near the close but the Langlois-Simpson-Burch wall broke up their charges and there was no further scoring.

The line up:

Ottawa—Goal, Connell; defense, Clancy, Boucher; center, Nighbor; right wing, R. Smith; left wing, Denneny; subs, Finnegan, Kilrea, Gorman, Smith, Duggan.

New York——Goal, Forbes; defense, Simpson, Langlois; center, Burch; right wing, McKinnon; left wing, Bouchard; subs, Randall, S. Green, Roach, R. Green, Campbell, Cameron.

BASKETBALL By THE CAPTAIN

NO. 17—FORWARD TO GUARD TO FORWARD

When a team is consistently getting the jump, the easiest way to take advantage of it is to work the guards into formations. That gives the opposing team four routes of attack to stop and opens up four avenues of attack for your team.

The forward to guard to forward is one of the most effective plays in which a guard has a prominent part. It is as safe as a straight forward play because of the position of the guard, who does not handle the ball first.

The left forward cuts in to take the tap. The left guard goes up the floor to receive a pass from the forward and in turn loops the ball to the right forward, who has made a delayed break away from his opponent and has cut for the basket.

Should the opposing guard and forward be pressing your left guard and forward too closely the plan should be varied a trifle.

It remains only for the left guard to keep his opponent out of the play until the left forward has taken the tap. Then the guard drops back, takes a pass and tosses to the right forward. The play is much safer this way, for it leaves the left guard in the backfield to stop any opposing player who might prove dangerous should the play miscarry and your team lose possession of the ball.

In either variation of the play the right guard keeps his opponent out of the play at all times. Success depends mostly on your right forward's ability to elude his opponent.

BLADES' DEFEAT BY SUNDERLAND WELL DESERVED

English Cup Holders Played Great Game—Cardiff Also Eliminated.

MANY SURPRISES

Manchester City Trounced Huddersfield Town—4th Round Review.

LONDON, Feb. 1 (Canadian Press).—Both the cup-holders, Sheffield United, and the cup-finalists of last year, Cardiff City, were eliminated from the competition Saturday when the fourth round of the English Football Association Cup was played. In both cases the visiting team won. Newcastle travelled to Cardiff and whitewashed the Welshmen by a couple of goals, while Sunderland, who had been defeated at Bramhall Lane by Sheffield United a week ago, completely turned the tables and emerged from the contest victorious by the odd goal in three.

Thirteen clubs were eliminated from the contest, while with six teams the play was indecisive. Manchester United held the strong Tottenham Hotspurs team to a two-goal tie, while Bournemouth did similarly with the First Division Bolton Wanderers. Millwall also piled up goal for goal against Bury.

Huddersfield Swamped.

The customary crop of sensations was produced. Huddersfield, the league leaders, were swamped by Manchester City; Chelsea, one of the starred teams of the second division, went down before the lowly Crystal Palace; Middlesborough were crushed by Clapton Orient; Southend United of the third string handed a bad beating to Derby County, a team that looks for promotion into the First Division this season; Fulham, who are precariously situation in their own department of league play, downed Liverpool of the senior division, while South Shields, defeated Birmingham Shields, however, are one of the brightest teams in the whole league.

The honors at present are fairly well distributed over the whole of the southern half of the island. Wales still has a team in the running with Swansea Town, who defeated Stoke before over 20,000 fans. The London districts are represented generously by Fulham, Arsenal, Southend, Clapton Orient and Crystal Palace, while both the Spurs and Millwall continue to have a chance. The Midlands look to Aston Villa, Notts County and Nottingham Forest; Lancashire has Manchester City, with probables in Manchester United, Bury and Bolton, and the North of England is still hopeful in Newcastle United, South Shields and Sunderland. Yorkshire has no further interest in the Cup. Only two teams, Huddersfield and Sheffield United, had survived as far as the fourth round, and both were crowded out. The South of England has seen all teams knocked out with the exception of Bournemouth, who will have one more try.

The game productive of the most scoring was that at Swansea, where nine goals in all were registered. Of this total, six went to the home clubs, while three represented the losers' share.

50,000 at Villas' Victory

Fifty thousand spectators saw a strenuous Midlands battle, when Aston Villa secured the victory from West Bromwich Albion. The Villa's win was decidedly lucky, for the Albion were unfortunate in losing Glidden for the entire game, after he had been injured shortly after the commencement. Baugh was also hurt, but was able to resume. Ashmore, in the Villa's goal, was given considerable work, but was at all times equal to the occasion. No score was recorded up to the interval, but in the second period Villa outplayed the home team. Walker obtained the first goal of the game, but Carter shot in the equalizer shortly afterwards. With the teams deadlocked, both played hard, although the fast, gruelling pace told on the Albion. The game was clinched when Kirton went off on a solo run and, beating the entire West Bromwich eleven, counted the winning goal.

Blades Downfall

Sheffield United's downfall was seen by 62,000 fans. The Blades put up a magnificent struggle, but Sunderland were also at the top of their form, and well merited their victory. The first half went scoreless, but in the second session Sunderland unleashed a vigorous attack that took them twice through Sheffield's defence with 14 minutes from the resumption, Prior and Kelly starred. Sheffield tried hard to reduce the lead and succeeded when Johnson secured a counter three minutes from the whistle.

The high spot of the day was the severe defeat inflicted on Huddersfield Town by Manchester City in a second instalment of the Wars of the Roses. The City played the same line-up that that utterly crushed Manchester United at Old Trafford in a league game the week before. Right from the start they went after the Yorkshiremen and their play was dazzling. Hicks scored twice within a couple of minutes in the first half, and with this advantage the City went into the final frame. The second period saw Manchester still overwhelming the league leaders, and Roberts shot in a beauty five minutes after the opening. Browell made in four up for the City, and with this lead the Lancastrians sat back and played a defensive game. Huddersfield could not penetrate.

SACRIFICE FLY IF RUNNERS ARE ADVANCED BASE

Baseball Rules Revised by Committee of Major and Minor Leagues.

USE OF RESIN

Intentional Pass Clause Tightened Up—Rain Rule Clarified.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—(Canadian Press).—Revision and clarification of the playing regulations, including extension of home run park limits and a more liberal application of the sacrifice fly rule, were approved Saturday by the joint rules committee of the major and minor baseball leagues.

Most of the amendments necessitated only a slight modification to meet possible contingencies, the outstanding change making sacrifice flies effective in all cases where runners are advanced a base. Hitherto, a sacrifice has been allowed on a fly ball hit when a runner scored after the catch.

Revision of the pitching regulations to permit the use of resin, was written into the rules, requiring that "under the supervision and control of the umpire, the pitcher may use, to dry his hands, a small finely meshed bag containing powdered resin, furnished by the league." No application of the resin to the ball will be permitted, the committee announced.

Balls hit into grandstands, to count as home runs in the future, must travel 250 feet, an increase of fifteen feet over the former limit. Major league parks, however, will not be affected by the change.

Must Run Out Homers.

Coaching boxes at first and third bases, were reduced to fifteen foot rectangles, the rest speel between double headers was increased from 10 to 15 minutes, while winning home runs in the last half of the ninth, to be scored as four base hits, will hereafter require the batsman to complete the circuit. It was explained by the committee that in some games last year, where mere singles were require to win, batters who had driven the ball into the stands touched only first base and then ran to the club house.

The committee hit at violation of the intentional pass rule from an unusual angle, taking steps to prevent the issuing of bases on balls through throwing the ball to a baseman, rather than to the catcher. The amended rule now reads that with the batsman in his proper position "The ball shall not be thrown by the pitcher to any player other than the catcher....except in an attempt to retire a base runner." If repeated after warnings by the umpire, the rule adds, the pitcher shall be removed from the game.

Another change provides that no substitutions shall be made while the ball is in play, complaint having been made by a minor league club that a player substituted for a catcher just as the ball was thrown to the plate by the pitcher, made a foul fly catch near the dugout.

When It Rains.

Delay of an hour and a half in a game last year resulted in a rule amendment deleting the clause giving the umpire permission to prolong contests after a 30 minute intermission on account of rain. The rule now reads that at the end of a half hour, "The umpire shall have authority to end the game."

Hurlers who make wild pitches on third strikes will no longer be credited with strikeouts. Furthermore, under a change made Saturday, they will be credited with errors on such misplays, where the batter reaches first base.

STENOGRAPHERS' WEEK

Every Stenographer Knows

that a smooth gliding pen point that responds to differences in pressure at various angles is essential to good shorthand. The problem is to find such a pen.

Waterman's Stenographer's Special fills the bill. The long, iridium-tipped point is rolled and hammered until as resilient as a watch spring. It slides over paper as an expert skater glides over glassy ice.

There is no limit to the hand speed of this pen point. Shaded lines can be made accurately at any angle without slowing up. A good pen like this is preferred by expert court stenographers. It writes a blacker line that is more easily read, and absolutely permanent.

BOBBY CRUICKSHANK—PLAYING THE SHORT ONES

If the ball is sunk in the sand, use a niblick because it has a sharp blade and cuts through the sand easily. Tighten the grip as the club head approaches the ball on the down swing.

If the ball lies clean on the sand, an iron or jigger should be used, or even a spoon, if the lie and distance warrant. The sand may be slightly scraped by the sole of the clubs or the ball may be hit cleanly. When playing in sand always make sure that the feet are firmly planted.. Otherwise, the power of the blow will be lessened. I always dig my heels into the sand until they are firmly set.

A firm stance, steady body, steady head, and elbows held well into the body, will always aid greatly in the short game. A player should make up his mind as to the distance of the shot and decide definitely which club is best to use. If it is a mashie-iron, mashie-niblick, or mashie shot to the green, he should select a point on, or near, the green to play for.

BILLY EVANS Says:

GRIFFITH JOKES.

It looks as if the Washington players, American League chaps, are concentrating on Owner Clarke Griffith.

By his own admission, 23 of his athletes are still unsigned and spring training only a little more than a month away.

There is something almost prophetic in that number 23, same being the total unsigned athletes. In baseball, Griffith has always been known as the "Old Fox." His cunning is in for a severe test.

"I will start the season with a managerless team of bush leaguers unless Manager Harris and the rest of the holdouts agree to terms," says Griffith from the shade of the sheltering palms in Florida.

Of course he is only kidding, slipping the boys the oil, hoping some of them will fall for it, and get under cover.

Incidentally it is hardly possible that Roger Peckinpaugh will be replaced by Buddy Myers or Muddy Ruel by Tate, as rumored.

However, holdouts thrive when the snow is on the ground. Spring with its baseball weather often causes them to forget their winter threats.

WINTER HOLDOUTS.

Better pitching is the crying need of every major league ball club. Every big league manager would welcome the addition of one or more capable pitchers.

In their hunt for likely talent many of the major league managers have passed up the thought of recruiting such men from the leagues of higher classification.

With certain exceptions, most of the leading pitchers in the bigger minor leagues are discards from the majors, hurlers just shy of being regarded as regulars.

Last spring when I sized up the Indianapolis club at Plant City, Fla., Manager Donie Bush of that club told me he regarded Pitcher Bill Burwell as one of the most valuable pitchers in the league.

"Burwell is smart, has the courage and mixes them up," said Bush. "His fast ball may not be good enough for the majors, but he is a big winner in the American Association."

The averages of the American Association recently published certainly made good Bush's predictions.

PITCHERS SCARCE

Bill Burwell, considere not good enough for the St. Louis Browns, won 24 and lost only 9 games, ranking first in the matter of earned runs.

Also three other pitchers in the association who won 20 or more games, Ray Kolp, Nick Cullop and Joe DeBerry at various times were members of the St. Louis Browns. All were waived out of the league.

In 1923 Dean of Louisville was the pitching sensation of the association. McGraw recently sent him to Philadelphia in a trade for the veteran Jimmy Ring.

In 1924, Jesse Petty won 29 and lost only 8 games with Indianapolis. He looked great in spring training Brooklyn gave $25,000 for him and three players, yet the best he could do in the National last season was break even, winning and losing 9 games.

* * *

These concrete examples make it apparent what a tough time major league clubs have in attempting to strengthen their pitching staff.

IT'S "PROF." SCHALK NOW

RAY SCHALK

Famous White Sox Catcher Coaching Baseball Candidate at University of Wisconsin.

It's "Professor" Schalk now; For the famous catcher of the Chicago White Sox is tutoring diamond candidates at the University of Wisconsin.

"Cracker", as he is known around the major league circuits, should bring out the best there is in the Badger aspirants. For years, he has been one of the premier backstops in big time. And though now past the zenith of his career can still hold his own with many of them.

Ray, according to reports, likes his new job. He has his charges working out daily in the indoor annex of the Badger gym. Moreover, he has one of the largest squads in Wisconsin to work with.

Wisconsin, in the main, has turned out some pretty fair baseball teams in the past but with the White Sox star in the coaching role, the 1926 aggregation should be one of the best in a long while.

The coming of Schalk is considered another fine piece of work by George Little, athletic director, who is bent on giving Wisconsin's athletes the best coaching obtainable.

Schalk will work with the Badgers daily for the next five weeks when he is due to start for the spring training camp.

TOWN LEAGUE MAKES RULINGS

Campbellford Executive Decides to Limit Number Players.

PROTEST RULES.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 1—The executive of the Town Hockey League met in the public library Saturday night and discussed several matters of importance. Each team will be given eight tickets of admission, and any substitutes over and above the eight players, will be paid for out of that teams share of the receipts.

The referee's decision is to be accepted as final in all cases. All officials will be expected to rule with a firm hand and keep the play clean.

In case any team has grounds for a protest such protest must be handed to the secretary of the league within 24 hours after the game in protest, accompanied by a fee of $1.00.

The games for next Wednesday night will bring the Juniors into action against the Hydro at 8 p.m. and at 9.15 p.m. the Clerks clash with Menie.

Both games should be interesting and promise to fill Covert's Arena to capacity.

DOURO, February 1. — The prizes promised during the Douro re-union to the first three couples (who attended the re-union) to be married, have been awarded as follows:

First prize, 100 lbs. of sugar awarded to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Heffernan, who were married in September. Second, one year's subscription to the Examiner, donated by the Examiner, awarded to Mr. and Mrs. J.J.Shaughnessy, who were married early in November. Third, five pounds of tea, awarded to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Towns, who were married November 24. A fourth prize of a fruit set was also awarded to Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Farley, who were married November 25th, only one day behind the third prize winners.

DRY NAVY SAILORS SMUGGLED LIQUOR

Eight Sentenced to Year in Prison.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Feb. 1. —Convicted for smuggling liquor ashore in Government cutters, eight members of the Federal dry navy here were sentenced Saturday to one year each in the naval prison at Portsmouth, N.H. They also were dishonorably discharged.

The convicted men, who have been held in the brig of the United States steamship Pickering since their arrest over a month ago, were taken to a destroyer which awaited them off this resort and are now being taken to Portsmouth.

In an address to his men after reading the sentences, Commander Ridgley warned them that they "could not put anything over on him," and "could not get away with any acceptance of bribes from liquor smugglers or participation in any way with such law-breaking."

During the past eight months five other dry navy men have been found guilty on similar charges and equally severe punishment has been imposed.

AT THE GRAND

"THE GORILLA."

Something brand new in entertainment is promised at the Grand Opera House Saturday, Feb. 6, when Donald Gallaher and James W. Elliott present "The Gorilla," a drama in three acts by Ralph Spence staged by Walter F. Scott. As announced, "The Gorilla" is a thrilling, chilling, killing mystery, but its unusual quality comes in the fact that the entire play is shot with laughter, brought about through a burlesque of the very thrilling, etc., incidents devised to mystify and delight the spectator. "The Gorilla" comes with a reputation for first-class entertainment, having proved a popular attraction throughout the country, with five companies enacting it. The organization which will come here has just closed long engagements in Philadelphia and Boston.

AT THE CAPITOL

WHEN JESSE LASKY FIRST VIEWED "THE WANDERER."

When Jesse L. Lasky, first vice-president of Paramount, in charge of production first viewed the Raoul Walsh production, 'The Wanderer,' which comes to the Capitol Theatre to-day, he hailed it as a picture which marked a new milestone in the advance of motion-picture ideals and artistry.

He saw this picturization of the oldest dramatic theme of adventuring youth and sorrowing age—that of the wandering boy beset by the world's pitfalls, while the mother yearns for his return, fearing for his safety, with a tear in her eye and a crushing weight at her heart.

"On three past occasions," said Mr. Lasky, "I sat in the same projection room and was the first to view 'The Ten Commandments,' 'The Covered Wagon' and 'Peter Pan.'

"I can say with deepest sincerity that 'The Wanderer' is a production of equally as great magnitude."

"Inspiration is what 'The Wanderer' meant to me and what I believe it will mean to the millions who see it. I am very proud to have had a part in bringing such a picture to the screen."

AMENDMENT VOTE EXPECTED TO-NIGHT

May, However, Takes Place This Afternoon—Two More Considered.

OTTAWA, Feb. 1. — (Canadian Press).—The vote on the Conservative amendment to the address is expected to-day. Although the probability is that the vote will be taken in the House to-night, there is a possibility that the members may be called upon late this afternoon.

The Conservatives, it is understood, are considering two further amendments which may be moved, following the vote on the present Meighen amendment. A meeting of the leading Conservatives will be held this afternoon when a definite decision may be made.

Of the two amendments now under consideration by the official opposition, one, it is intimated, calls for a straight want of confidence vote in the Government. The second one, it is stated, may have reference to the Australian treaty calling for the protection for Canada's dairy industries.

HEAVY LOSS FROM DESTRUCTIVE FIRES

One Fireman Killed While South Bend Department Fought Two Blazes.

South Bend., Ind., Feb. 1 (Canadian Press)—A fire in the business district here today destroyed nine retail establishments, causing a loss estimated at $1,200,000. While the downtown fire was burning, a blaze destroyed the Standard Oil Company office building in the southeast section of the city, with a loss of $200,000.

John Devleschower, a captain of the fire company, was killed when, blinded by smoke, he fell from a building. Two other firemen were injured.

GIVES NEW THRILL TO OLD GOLF COURSE

Drive From Last Green Instead of From Tee.

In their relentless efforts to produce new and more trying difficulties in golf, many of the larger country clubs annually change their courses around, lengthening or shortening as the case may be, to introduce new angles to the golfer.

But many of the smaller clubs are unable to do this, owing to the heavy expense of putting in new holes and new greens. Such being the case, members of country clubs in some of the smaller cities year in and year out shoot the same old course day after day.

Their game naturally loses much of its attractiveness, owing to the fact that the course becomes monotonous. Two short drives and a chip to the green puts one on in three on No. 6. On No. 7 one long drive and a short pitch puts one on. On No. 11 two long drives and a brassie turns the trick.

The course is too well known. Everything is mechanical to the extreme. And, when one never gets to a neighboring city to shoot over a strange course, one wonders how he can introduce new angles into his game.

A system used by many who have spent years on the same old course is to tee off from a corner of the green instead of walking over to the next tee.

This system changes the course around to great extents — more so than one would imagine without trying it out.

The traps and bunkers are differently located and the old cut and dried process of taking a drive and an iron shot to the green is wiped away.

By driving off the corner of the last green played, new clubs are brought into play that otherwise would not be used on that particular hole.

The stunt has been found exceptionally serviceable in breaking up monotony of the game for one who plays the same course day in and day out where no changes in the curse are made within spaces of from five to a dozen years.

OBITUARY.

MISS C. M. L. MOWAT.
(Contributed.)

Death claimed on Saturday a young woman who was honored and loved by all who had the privilege of knowing her, in the person of Miss (Charlotte Mary) Lotta Mowat. Born in Toronto, she came to Peterboro at an early age and was educated here at the Central school and Collegiate Institute. She was a member of St. Andrews church and of the Elizabeth Bell Auxiliary of that church, being an active worker. Miss Mowat had been in the employ of the Peterborough Milk Products for 12 years.

At home she was devoted to two invalid aunts, and did all she could to brighten their lives. She was a member of the Business Girls' Club, and was known for her continual thought for others, although her kindly actions were so unostentatious that few ever knew of them. Her many friends will miss one whose wonderful character and Christian life had endeared her to them.

The funeral took place this afternoon from the family residence, 597 Homewood avenue, the service being conducted by the Rev. J. W. Gordon, of St. Andrew's church. The pallbearers were Messrs. G. A. Gillespie, Robert Allen, J. Gillespie, L. Thompson, E. Robinson and B. W. McClennan.

MRS. C. C. ELDRAGE.

Mrs. C. C. Eldrage, of Erie, Pa., died at Tampa, Florida, on January 25, the result of a stroke. She was formerly a resident of Peterboro, where Dr. Eldrage is well-known.

NO OPPOSITION.

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., Feb. 1 (Canadian Press).—Premier King arrived at Prince Albert shortly before noon to-day, and soon after was nominated for the House of Commons as Liberal candidate. The time for receiving nominations closes at 2 o'clock. Up to noon no other candidate had been entered, and the prospect is that the Premier will be returned by acclamation.

DEMAND INCREASE.

Trainmen and Conductors on U. S. Railways Want More Money.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1 (Canadian Press).—Eastern railroads today received demands for increased pay for trainmen and conductors and were given until March 2 to make their answer. The increased demanded amounts to about $1 a day.

The demands were contained in joint letters from the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and the Order of Railway Conductors.

Smelters' Remarkable Rise Led Toronto Stock Market

TORONTO, Feb. 1.—(Canadian Press)—With Consolidated Smelters leading the way, a general upturn of remarkable strength took place on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning. While Smelters were outstanding for its strength, the bulk of the trading was in Brazilian, which had a turnover of more than 2,700 shares. Brazilian made a new high at 91½, easing to 90⅜ at the morning close, a net advance of a point. Smelters was run up to 215, a new high, and closed at noon at that mark, an advance of 8¾ points. Abitibi sold up 3 3-8 at 85 1-8. Canada Steamships Preferred reached 65, but eased again to 63½, one point higher, and Brompton climbed 1¼ at 31. F. N. Burt gained 1½ at 66½, and City Dairy and Twin City fractionally. Rogers was marked up 3 at 60. Canadian Canners were about the only weak spot, both Common and Preferred easing a quarter point.

Wheat Prices Swung Up After Wavering Start To-day

CHICAGO, Feb. 1 (Canadian Press).—Despite a wavering start, wheat prices took an early swing upward today. Active buying by houses with eastern connections was chiefly responsible. Current reports indicated the absence of pressure of Argentine offerings in Europe, and also pointed to a decided cessation of the farm movement of Canadian wheat to the market. Opening prices, which ranged from 1-2c decline to 1-8c advance, May 176 to 176 1-8, and July 153 to 153 3-8, were followed by a rise all around, with May touching 178 and July 154 1-2.

Corn and oats were easy, influenced by large corn receipts of 569 cars here. After opening 1-4 off to 1-8 up, May 84 1-4 to 84 3-8, corn scored slight general gains and then receded to below Saturday's finish.

Oats started 1-8 to 1-4 lower to 1-8 advance, May 44 5-8. Later all months showed some loss.

In line with hog values, the provision market held about steady.

Trend Was Mixed To-day But Mine Trade Was Heavy

TORONTO, Feb. 1 (Canadian Press). — Transactions reached a total of 521,000 on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning, and some stocks benefitted by heavy trading, but the market was not wholly strong. Capitol, the leader, closed the morning 3-4 up at 39 1-4, and Canadian Lorrain was one higher at 83. The gold leaders were divided between losses and gains. Argonaut advanced 1 3-8 at 21 1-2, Argonaut Consolidated 3 at 43, Barry Hollinger 1 3-4 at 31 1-2 and Columbus Kirkland a half at 4 1-2. On the other hand Teck Hughes lost 3 at 362, Lake Shore 30 at 12.55, Keora a half at 12, and Kirkland Lake three at 122. Beaver eased one at 83 1-2.

Rising Price Tendencies Usher In New Month

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—(Canadian Press).—Rising price tendencies ushered in the new month on the New York Stock Exchange. While there was a disposition on the part of some large traders to defer operations, pending the publication of figures on brokers' loans, bullish demonstrations were aggressively conducted in some of the motors, based on reports of unusually heavy January sales of many of the large manufacturers. Speculative imagination also was fired by rumors of huge food and other combines.

GIRLS RETURNED HOME BEFORE SEARCHING PARTY AT BEWDLEY

Skated to Gore's Landing and Were Delayed by Wind in Evening.

PARENTS ANXIOUS

BAILIEBORO, Jan. 30.—Considerable excitement was aroused at Bewdley, on Monday last, when two of the young ladies went out on the lake to skate during the afternoon, and failed to return again before dark.

As dusk came on, the girls' parents became uneasy about their absence, and about seven o'clock set out in a motor car to scour the lake in search of the girls.

The searching party hunted around for a considerable length of time without finding any clue as to the whereabouts of the missing girls, but when they returned to their respective homes, after having hunted in vain, they found to their great relief that the wanders had arrived home during their absence.

The skaters had started out about three o'clock during the afternoon, and had skated to Gore's Landing. But had misjudged the distance which is in the neighborhood of six miles, and had not left themselves sufficient time to make the trip against the west wind before night overtook them. However, they arrived home about eight o'clock, apparently feeling none the worse for their expedition, with the exception of being somewhat tired after such a long skate.

Wednesday night's and Thursday's wind, and snow storm drifted the roads the fullest with snow that they have been filled this winter.

Highway Blocked.

On Thursday there was very little traffic on the highway as only a couple of cars ventured out, one car containing a couple of travellers got out from Peterborough, as far as Centreville, when they got stuck fast in the heavy snowdrifts, and were compelled, after considerable digging, to turn back and run their car into the Centreville Church shed, where they left it, and succeeded in getting a ride to Fraserville in a sleigh, where they took the train for Belleville. Gilgour's bread car also got as far as the corners, when the car plunged into a snowdrift in which the driver could not force it through. Fortunately, however, he secured Mr. J. Lucy, to pull his car to Bailieboro, with his team, where he was able to deliver his bread and then turned and ploughed his way back towards Peterborough.

Mr. John Porter made the trip to Millbrook for the mail on Thursday, but as the trains were late he was quite late in arriving back to the village. The mailmen on the local routes did not succeed in making their trips as the storm and roads were not in a fit condition.

On Friday forenoon the pathmasters on the local beats, with the road gangs, had a heavy morning's work in digging snow and making roads through the fields, but by Friday p.m., the major portion of the roads were in shape for traffic to pursue their course once again.

Personals.

Miss Frances Bonneycastle, of Campbellford, is supplying at the brick school, South Monaghan, during the absence of the teacher, Miss May Wood, who is ill with typhoid fever.

Mr. Jos. Graham, of Winnipeg, Man., is spending a visit with friends in this district.

During the past week there has been considerable traffic on Rice Lake, both of autos and cutters and sleighs. Quite a number of the South Monaghan farmers are hauling their wheat across the lake to Port Hope, and the roads are especially good for hauling heavy loads at present.

The farmers of this district are now busily engaged in cutting their wood for next winter, hauling out their grain, while the majority of farmers are also keeping their barnyard manure hauled out so that they will save time and labour during the summer months.

Sleigh Ride and Party.

On Tuesday evening the Epworth League of the United Church held their regular weekly meeting in the form of a sleigh ride and house party to the pastor's home, at Fraserville.

About fifty of the members of the league gathered at Mr. Harper's store at 7 o'clock, and from there everyone went in the three sleigh loads taken by Messrs. C. Barnard, N. Thompson and F. Barnard.

Rev. and Mrs. Foley acted as hostess and host to the members of the Bailieboro League, and a most enjoyable evening was spent in contests, charades, music and singing, as well as radio concerts, and last but not by anyways least came the bountiful refreshments, served by Mr. and Mrs. Foley and Misses M. and L. Foley, and Misses Jean Burnham, M. White, M. Earle, Mrs. J. Jemison, and Messrs. R. Johnston, R. Barnard.

The winners of the men and women of history contest, were group one, Mrs. Foley and P. Barnard, and group two Miss Jean Burnham and Miss M. Foley, and Messrs. S. Johnston and V. Jemison.

Everyone joined heartily in the good old game of charades, which provided plenty of amusement and laughter to make the whole party a success.

The music provided by radio, phonograph, and piano also added greatly to the enjoyment of the evening. At the conclusion of the progsam the President, F. Barnard moved a vote of thanks on behalf of the Bailieboro Epworth League to Mr. and Mrs. Foley for their kindness and hospitality shown to the guests, the appreciation was manifest in the usual manner by a hearty clap of the hands.

About eleven thirty o'clock the young folks again set out for their home town and a jolly good time was enjoyed by all.

Among those who were present were Rev. and Mrs. Foley, Mr. and Mrs. N. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. P. Barnard, Mrs. W. Bateman, Mrs. C. Dawson, Mrs. J. Jemison, Misses B. Harmer, M. and L. Earle, K. & M. Barnard, J. Dawson, K. Bateman, M. White, E. Lang, E. and D. Falls, I. Dawson, J. Burnham, M. and L. Foley. Messrs. John Porter, G. Harper, R. and S. Johnston, E. White, N. Earle, W. and K. Three-acre Rink.

On Monday evening the young people of Bailieboro and district, organized a skating party to Mr. Ed. Dawson's field, where the previous week's rain had flooded an area of about three acres, and this pond had frozen a splendid sheet of ice for skating.

Over fifty of the boys and girls gathered on the ice and a very pleasant evening was spent, which, at the conclusion, proved that there was no one present who had received any serious injuries, other than to have been humiliated by falling on the ice.

The girls were somewhat in the minority, and so the boys who were left to skate without a partner, enjoyed themselves immensely by playing hockey and cross tag in the moonlight.

A big sleigh load was present from Centreville, and altogether a most enjoyable evening was spent.

MEXICO POPULAR ON CITY RADIOS

Allan Lewis and Fireman Hatley Listen in on Concert.

Radio reception in the city must have been par excellence on Friday evening, judging by the number of fans who heard Mexico City broadcast. Sets numbering all the way from the seven tube variety down to the humble three report equally good success on this particular night. Allan Lewis, 568 Aylmer street, reports that he listened in for 20 minutes on the Mexican concert, and had it coming in clear all the time. He was using a four tube set at the time. Fireman Hatley, 140 Park street, reported having heard the same concert on a three tube set.

NEW STANDARDS PLACED ON BRIDGE

Iron Poles With 300 Candle Power Lamps Erected at Centre.

A modern local example of "gilding the lily" was made manifest recently to good effect when two iron standards bearing 300 candle power lamps were erected on the superstructure of Peterborough's half million dollar bridge.

The iron standards do not blend with the massive concrete work, but the additional light which they make possible would counterbalance that defect.

The standards are placed in the middle of the "bay windows" which carry the name Peterborough emblazoned so that all pedestrians may know where the bridge is.

Other alterations are in progress and two more standards will be erected on the bulwarks between the central concrete standards and the eastern terminal of the bridge.

VOL. LVII., No. 27 PETERBOROUGH, TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 2, 1926 PRICE THREE CENTS

PREMIER KING OPPOSED BY CAPT. D. L. BURGESS, VETERAN-FARMER, INDEPENDENT IN PRINCE ALBERT

Nomination Surprise to Liberal Leader—Papers Filed at Last Moment.

NATIVE OF ONTARIO.

Captain of 188th Battalion—Won M. C. in Flying Corps.

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., Feb. 2 (Canadian Press). — In Captain David L. Burgess, M.C., a farmer of the MacDowell district near here, who entered the Prince Albert Federal by-election contest Monday, Premier W. L. Mackenzie King has found an obstacle to his immediate return to the active leadership of the Liberal party in the House of Commons.

The nomination of Captain Burgess as an Independent candidate came as a surprise, although rumors had been broadcast to the effect that a "dark horse" candidate would enter the lists in opposition to the Premier. His papers were filed at the last moment, and when the Independent nomination was announced, there was an outburst of laughter from a group of Liberals gathered in the room.

"It's a joke," one called out, while another shouted, "We will get his deposit."

Unite Supporters.

Premier King, in commenting on the development, said the effect of Mr. Burgess' nomination would be to unite more closely the Liberal and Progressive forces.

The nomination papers of Premier King were signed by about fifty electors, from various parts of the riding. Those for Burgess were largely confined to the city of Prince Albert, Shelbrook, Colleston and Red Deer.

The necessity of a contest may result in a change in the Premier's schedule. He had proposed to return to Ottawa on Tuesday night, and although the pressure of business at the capital may preclude postponement of his departure, he is conferring with the local Liberal Executive on the matter.

In his address to the electors, Mr. Burgess announced his stand in a political "declaration of independence." He said he is not, nor will be, if elected, "under the lash of any party whip."

Burgess' Policies.

Mr. Burgess declared himself in favor of a general election being called at once, Senate reform, a selective immigration policy, early removal of the income tax, completion of the Hudson Bay Railway, tariff re-adjustments, re-arrangement of freight schedules to provide for haulage of products by Canadian transportation systems, for the equalization of grain rates to Canadian winter ports, especially those on the Pacific Coast. With regard to the transferable vote, Mr. Burgess said, "If such a system were practised, provided more stable government than our present one, I am for it."

Mr. Burgess, who is a native of Ontario, came West about ten years ago. He held a commission with the 188th Battalion during part of the war, transferring to the Royal Flying Corps in 1917. For his air exploits he was decorated with the Military Cross. He is now farming under the soldier settlement scheme in the MacDowell district, and at once time was employed as homestead inspector here.

NOW, HONESTLY—

That old expression really ought to read—spare the rod and save yourself from feeling bad.

I'll bet my canvas furnace gloves that 99 per cent of the children of today can be talked into doing right, quicker than they can be spanked into it.

You can spank a child several times for the same thing, but you seldom have to talk him out of a wrong more than once, especially if you've convinced him, through sensible reasoning, that the wrong was wrong.

There's a reason for reasoning, instead of thrashing things out with a thrashing.

Sixteen Minute Trial In United States' Court

LEXINGTON, Ky., Feb. 2 (Canadian Press)—Ed. Harris, a negro, pleaded guilty here today to an attack on Mrs. Clarence Bryan, whose husband and two children he had confessed to murdering, and was sentenced to be hanged on Friday, March 5, in Fayette County jail yard. The trial lasted exactly sixteen minutes.

CREW OF DUTCH SHIP SAVED BY HAMBURG LINER

Distress Calls From Sea Interrupted By Brief Message of Rescue.

STORM UNABATED.

British Freighter, With 32 Officers and Men 16 Days Overdue.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2—(Canadian Press).—The wireless raised its voice Monday above its week long chorus of distress to tell of another rescue from the Atlantic's unleashed gale.

It sputtered a brief dozen words into the Hamburg-American offices from Captain Carl Gralfs, of the liner Westphalia, saying he had saved the ofifcers and crew of the Dutch freighter Alkaid.

"Crew of Alkaid taken aboard," he said. "All well. To proceed to New York."

The now familiar refrain of distress was immediately resumed, telling of one more ship floundering and another sixteen days overdue and lost. It was the fifteenth repetition of that refrain since the gale began nine days ago.

The Westphalia came alongside the distressed Alkaid yesterday morning, about 1,000 miles off the coast of Newfoundland. The freighter had about 20 men aboard, as far as could be learned here. She was bound from Rotterdam to Philadelphia.

The Westphalia, carrying 248 passengers, was due yesterday, but is not expected now until Thursday or Friday.

British Ship Missing.

The missing ship which figured in Monday's messages is the British freighter Ryburn, which left Rotterdam on December 28, with a load of coal for Philadelphia. She is sixteen days overdue, and no word has been heard from her since she left Rotterdam.

An appeal was broadcast to ships at sea, asking if they had sighted her during the storm. She had 32 officers and men aboard.

Welsh Shipped Smashed.

In response to another message, the liner West Inskip had put about and was hurrying to the aid of the Johanne Dybwaid, but was 117 miles away and fighting heavy seas.

The Johanne Dybwaid called for help from mid-Atlantic, where, she said, she had been "badly smashed" by the storm. She was bound from Barry, Wales, to Boston.

The Fort Victoria arrived with 257 passengers Monday from Bermuda, only one hour late, after ploughing through 35 foot seas most of the trip.

Four other ships due yesterday could not make it. The Olympic is now expected Wednesday; the Berengafjord, of the Norwegian-American line, has been delayed until the same day; the Baltic is expected today, twenty-four hours late, and the Swedish-American liner Drottingholm announced she hoped to get here today or Wednesday.

OBJECTIONS TO AIDING SHIPPING OF COAL RAISED

Member For Weyburn is Opposed To Government Financial Help.

PAY OWN FREIGHT.

Other Members Discuss Election Methods and Railways.

OTTAWA, Feb. 2 (Canadian Press).—Several objections to the Government assisting financially in bringing Maritime or Alberta coal to Central Canada were advanced in the House of Commons last night by E. J. Young, Liberal member for Weyburn, Saskatchewan. The people in Central Canada, he said, "Consider it their patriotic duty to burn Alberta coal but they want the rest of Canada to help pay any extra cost.

"I am opposed to any man asking another man to pay his freight for him," he said.

Scurrilous Propaganda.

Dr. W. A. Hall (Liberal, South Bruce) said that the Conservatives had no right to accuse the present government of interfering with "constitutional practice and time honored precedent." The Conservative success in many Ontario constituencies last October, Dr. Hall believed, was due to "abundant expenditure by our opponents" and to "scurrilous propaganda" against the Liberals.

The Conscription Act of 1917, Dr. Hall said was a "dark spot in Canadian history." It had been a "selective conscription act" with a vengeance. There had been much "judicious selection and exemption which the Conservatives ought now to be ashamed of. The only kind of conscription that would have been justified was indiscriminate conscription, alike of man power and of wealth. Dr. Hall dealt with reciprocity and said that the tactics of the conservatives in the 1911 election was a lasting disgrace to Canada.

No Liberal Apology.

J. G. Rodicnaud (Liberal, Gloucester), said that in his constituency the opposition, ha by manoeuvring and by unscrupulous practices, endeavored to undermine the electorate. As to the Liberal varty, their campaign needed no apology so far as New Brunswick was concerned. He told members from the Maritimes sitting on the Conservative side that they would always appeal in vain for Maritime rights so long as they sat among that galaxy of men from Ontario and from Toronto.

Saskatoon Liberal.

A. M. Young (Liberal-Saskatoon), said the greatest piece of legislation of many years had been that creating the Railway Commission in 1906. In Northern Saskatchewan there was discrimination in freight rates, resulting from the limited application of the Crows Nest Pass agreement. It amounted to two cents per hundred pounds on grain and flour moving eastward. Repreeentations had been made to the commission but no action had been taken. Mr. Young quoted from the original agreement to establish the rights of the people shipping on lines not in existence in 1897 to the present Crow rates. The commission as he understood it, had been created in order that matters might be brought before it easily and dealt with expeditiously. In this matter there seemed to be a great delay. The railway commission had said that it was a court of justice. Mr Young claimed that it was not the purpose of the creators of the commissions to make it merely a court of law. He offered two suggestions: (1) Perhaps Western Canada could have larger representation on the Board, or (2) perhaps a section of the board could be permanently located in the west where cases could be dealt with more speedily.

The very greatest asset to Canada was her agriculture, and this indus-

F. D. Kerr, K.C., Brings Children From Fire In Water Street Building

Mother Helpless With Four Tots When Lawyer Comes To Aid While Fire Department Fights Stubborn Blaze in Roof and Top Floor.

FIRE HELD IN CHECK.

F. D. Kerr, K.C., departed from his usual routine this morning to bring four children from a blazing house on Water street, while the Fire Department contingent fought a stubborn blaze in the roof and top storey. Mrs. J. Bickersteth, mother of the children, was helpless with the tiny tots, when Mr. Kerr rushed up the stairs and lent a ready hand. The children were taken to another house out of the danger that threatened from blazing beams and falling water.

The entire roof of the building, at 428 Water street, was destroyed, and the furniture in the house was considerably damaged by water. An attempt was made by the firemen to combat the flames with chemicals only, so that the damage by water might be avoided, but recourse was finally had to the water hose. It was a difficult blaze to fight, three firemen, on one occasion, being perched precariously on the sagging and blazing roof, the only vantage point from which the stream of water could be efficiently projected.

Said "Chimney Fire"

The call came to the fire hall at 9.42 as a "chimney fire," but when the firemen arrived they found the entire roof blazing underneath the shingles, the fire evidently having started from some other source than a chimney. Dense smoke made the task more difficult, as it broke through the sihngles and wrapped the firemen in its stinging folds.

J. Bickersteth, owner and tenant of the building, said he had only a thousand dollars insurance on the property and furniture, which does not cover the loss and damage, although the shingles and wrapped made yet. He had been idle for some time, and only this morning started work, from which he was called to find his home in flames.

The ground floor of the building occupied by a heating and plumbing firm, and a vulcanizing shop, where damage was caused by water.

The firemen are given credit by eyewitnesses for confining the blaze to this building, with the Merchants' Press on one side and the big office building of the Sun Life on the other.

DEPUTATIONS BEFORE COUNCIL ASK FOR $400 FOR WATERWAY AND $1,000 FOR BABY CLINIC

Use of Services Extolled By Members in Requesting Grants.

TELEPHONE RATES.

Request That City Join With Union in Protesting Increase.

Two deputations appeared before the City Council last night requesting grants for the carrying on of their work. Consideration of the finance committee was promised both.

Well Babies' Clinic

Mrs. Mowat and Dr. Birnie represented the Well Babies' Clinic in requesting a liberal grant. The clinic supplies the place of the school doctor and nurse for children under school age. The death rate is higher among children of this age than among children of school age. Peterborough, Mrs. Mowat said, is rather above the average in infant mortality.

The clinic educates mothers in the care of children. Lectures are given from month to month.

Dr. Birnie pointed out that infant mortality in Peterborough is decreasing In 1925 there were 435 births in the city and 35 deaths. Stillborn babies numbered 43, and this is not counted in. Removing the record of babies that only lived a few minutes or hours or days, numbering 22, the infant mortality is only two or three per cent.

Dr. Birnie told of the work of the clinic—"we know we are doing a great work in Peterborough," she said. The work is mostly educational, and aims not only at saving lives but at making healthy babies.

We can't run the clinic on less than $1,100, and we couldn't do that without the seven doctors who give their services free, and the G.W.V.A. which gives free rooms.

Trent Waterway

F. D. Kerr, K.C., represented the Trent Waterway Development Association with ex-Mayor J. J. Turner and J. Wells Fraser of the Chamber of Commerce, asking that the old status be restored after a lapse last year when the grant was cut.

Mr. Kerr outlined the objects of the Association and pointed out the good work that is being done in developing tourist traffic. The importance of the business is being recognized more every year, he said, and Peterborough gets more financial results from tourist traffic than other communities along the route. We have just put through an exhibition at the New York Motor Boat Show and it has awakened a great deal of interest."

Kingston Girls Dislike Being Hugged On Streets

KINGSTON, Feb. 2 (Special)—The police have rounded up a seventeen year-old "Jack-the Hugger," who has been at large for some time, accosting young girls and young women on the street after dark. He was rounded up as a result of a description given the police by a young girl who was attacked by the young fellow and who was able to make her escape.

R. M. GLOVER IS CHOSEN LEADER

Ontario Provincial Dailies Elect President From Peterborough Examiner.

OTHER OFFICERS.

TORONTO, Feb. 2 (Canadian Press).—R. M. Glover, of the Peterboro Examiner, was elected president of the Ontario Provincial Daily Newspapers Association at the annual meeting of that body here yesterday, which was attended by members from many parts of the province. Howard Fleming, of the Owen Sound Sun Times, is vice-president, and Mr. Humphries, of the Guelph Mercury, was elected secretary-treasurer.

The executive were elected as follows: F. H. Leslie, Niagara Falls Review; J. W. Curran, Sault Ste. Marie Star; W. J. Kotz, Kitchener Record; W. R. Alloway, Oshawa Reformer, and T. H. Kay, Kitchener Record.

IN POLICE COURT

A local man appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley, charged with having been found intoxicated in a public place. It was a first offence, and after entering a plea of guilt, a fine of $10.00 and costs was imposed.

NO REFORESTATION.

Victoria Council Declined To Act.

LINDSAY, Feb. 2. — Victoria County will not take up the question of reforestation. At the closing session of the council a deputation of citizens urged upon the council the necessity of the county taking advantage of the assistance given by the Forestry Department and endeavor to promote forest growth on the great wastes in the northern part of Victoria County. The council took no action other than recommending that the Government prosecute reforestation on its own lands.

PREMIER OPENS HIS CAMPAIGN CHARGING MONEYED INTERESTS WITH TRYING TO RUN COUNTRY

Dominion Was Faced With Great Conspiracy at Election, He Says.

REVIEWS SITUATION.

Refers To Statements of Conservatives That They Would Not Oppose Him.

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., Feb. 2 (Canadian Press).—Premier King opened his campaign in Prince Albert last night with a speech in which he charged that moneyed interests in Montreal were endeavoring to get control of the government of the country. He had referred to Mr. Meighen's tariff policy. "Back of this protectionist thought," warmly exclaimed the Prime Minister, "lies the desire of a few men of great wealth to get political control in this country. That is the real issue in Canada, where a few men who are already very wealthy, who have certain established privileges, who reside for the most part in Eastern Canada and in Montreal more than anywhere else, whether these few men are going to succeed in getting political control in this country so that they can make the policies of Canada serve their money interests and their selfish purposes.

"This country was face to face in the last election," so the Prime Minister proceeded, "with as great a conspiracy as any country ever faced. That conspiracy has been made clear in the House during the past month. That conspiracy is now clear to every one in the Dominion."

Here Mr. King referred to the Patenaude conditions in Quebec and to Mr. Meighen's absence from Quebec during the last election.

Mr. Patenaude had said he was as independent of Mr. Meighen as he was of Mr. King, yet the Prime Minister charged this group from Quebec was to be part of the Meighen party.

Whatever Montreal moneyed interests were to tell them to do they were to tell Mr. Meighen to do. "The Government of the country was to be carried on in a secret council of these gentlemen in Montreal," the Premier declared.

There were only a few Patenaude candidates in the House of Commons, "but they had not been there

Slides and Skating Are Popular In Peterborough

Alderman J. M. Greene submitted a report at last night's meeting of the City Council showing the use that is being made of the city's slides and rinks.

These are the figures for the month of January:

Toboggan slide, average of 30 toboggans every night and an average of 150 people.

East City skating rink, 2,825 skaters.

King Edward skating rink, 4,016 skaters.

Walter Green skating rink, 2,500 skaters.

This is a total of 10,241 persons using the rinks in the city during the month.

GIRL DRINKS WOOD ALCOHOL

Was Complainant in Seduction Charge—Trial is Postponed.

IN HOSPITAL.

A young lady, who was to act as complainant in a seduction case, failed to appear, and after the defendant had entered a plea of not-guilty, Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton, K. C., informed the court that according to information he had received, the girl had drank a quantity of wood alcohol this morning and had been removed to a hospital. The trial will be held at a later date.

ENVOY EXPELLED.

MADRID, Feb. 2 (Canadian Press).—A dispatch from Tangier, Morocco, says that Captain Gordon Canning, Abd-el-Krim's peace envoy, has been expelled from Tangier and has left for England. His expulsion was due to disagreeable incidents between him and the Tangier authorities.

Captain Canning was coldly received by both France and Spain when he approached the respective governments in his efforts to bring about peace in Morocco.

FOUR CARS DERAILED.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Feb. 2 — (Canadian Press).—Derailment of four cars of a freight train near Boston Bar, 140 miles east of Vancouver, late Sunday night, delayed for five hours number one section of the Canadian National Transcontinental train leaving for the East Monday morning.

Railway officials state that when the accident occurred the train had left Kamloops westbound for Vancouver. Damage to the cars was heavy, but the train crew escaped injury. The cause of the mishap is being investigated.

FARM RESIDENCE IS BURNED DOWN

George Chapman, West of Bethany, Sustains Heavy Loss.

CHILDREN ALONE.

BETHANY, Feb. 2. — A disastrous fire occurred on Monday evening, when the residence of Mr. Geo. Chapman, about six miles west of the village, was burned to the ground. Mrs. Chapman and daughter, Miss Hazel, were in Toronto, and Mr. Chapman and eldest son were in the woods, and the two younger boys were at home alone. How the fire originated is not clearly known. About five o'clock one of the children called a neighbor's house on the telephone and said their home was on fire, and in a short time quite a number had gathered, but it was impossible to save the house, which was of brick, as there was no fire fighting apparatus. However, with the assistance that kept gathering, most of the household furniture was saved.

THE WEATHER.

To-day is Candlemas Day — the Feast of Purification, or of the presentation of Christ in the Temple. It is also supposed to be the day on which the bear comes forth from his winter's slumber to see if spring is near. If the sun is shining and he sees his shadow on the snow he knows that spring is yet six weeks away. The sun was shining brightly to-day, hence spring is yet in the distance. I direct the reader to an interesting bear story in another column, and to the tragic fate that befell a Campbellford pet bear whose curiosity got the better of him, and who rose several days before he should.—W. MEIGHEN AMENDMENT DEFEATED BY A MAJORITY OF TEN IN HOUSE

All Progressives, With Labor and Independent Members, Aid Government.

ANOTHER COMING.

D. Sutherland Announces New Amendment in Moving Adjournment.

OTTAWA, Feb. 2. — (Canadian Press).—By a vote of 125 to 115, the Meighen amendment to the Address, calling for tariff protection for Canadian coal and agricultural products, was defeated in Parliament just before midnight last night. Every Progressive member voted behind the Government against the amendment, as did A. A. Heaps and J. S. Woodsworth, Laborites, and Henri Bourassa, Independent. Although the anticipated Conservative amendment did not make an immediate appearance, the way for the introduction of one was paved by Donald Sutherland, Conservative member for South Oxford.

"In view of the rather protracted discussion from the Government benches," Mr. Sutherland said, after the announcement of the vote totals, "I desire to make a few observations on the Address. I have a motion to put to the House, and in view of the lateness of the hour I beg to move adjournment of the debate."

Parliament and galleries awaited during one tense moment intimations from the Government leader, Hon. Ernest LaPointe, which would either give acquiescence in the adjournment or precipitate an all-night debate. Mr. LaPointe, however, nodded to Mr. Speaker the Government's agreement to the postponement of further hostilities.

Before the adjournment, however, Right Hon. Arthur Meighen elicited from Mr. LaPointe the information that the Government intended proceeding on Tuesday with discussions of the Government's notice of motion to adjourn Parliament for six weeks. This means that Mr Sutherland's pending amendment and debate thereon will occupy secondary position on the order paper.

CAMPBELLFORD BEAR WOKE FROM LONG SLEEP AHEAD OF SCHEDULE

A. L. Riendeau's Cub Howled So Loudly He Shot it Sunday.

SLEPT SIX WEEKS.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 2.—A. L. Riendeau's pet cub bear, which he captured during the last hunting season, evidently got mixed in its dates with regard to the time that bears are expected to make their annual turnout after their long sleep, and, instead of waiting for Candlemas Day, rose from its lair early Sunday morning. The bear had been asleep in a pile of straw in a barn for the past six weeks, and although in that time it had not eaten anything, it emerged from its lair with at least two inches of fat on its ribs, in as good condition as it was when it took to cover. It made at once for the open air, but there was no sunshine, and if Bruin was seeking its shadow there was nothing of the kind in sight. However, it appeared satisfied to accept conditions as it found them, and showed no disposition to return to its slumber.

All went well until about two o'clock in the afternoon, when the bear, whose conduct had been so circumspect, suddenly developed a violent case of ursine insanity, and commenced a series of blood-curdling howls that disturbed the Sabbath quiet of the neighborhood for blocks around. These unearthly noises it kept up with such vigo that Mr. Riendeau was constrained to interfere in the interests of community peace. When persuasion failed to quiet the animal, a rifle effected the purposes. Now all that is left of Bruin is a thick hide, removed by Mr. Riendeau, and a fat carcass sufficient to furnish a banquet for those who fancy that kind of meat.

Students of natural history, who were anxious to learn at first hand just how a bear goes act on the second day of February are disappointed as the specimen on which they relied for an object-lesson, failed to live up to traditions.

OBJECTIONS TO

try should receive prime consideration. A protective tariff tended to build up the cities, but it should not be forgotten that a city could only be prosperous as the country around it. The protective priciple was not the proper one.

Mr. Young supported the early construction of the Hudson Bay Railway. It was essential to the west and both Conservatives and Liberals were committed to its construction.

C. E. Bothwell (Liberal, Swift Current) said that the soldier settlers of the west appreciated what had been done for them by the Government through the amendment to the Soldiers' Land Settlement Act. They were, however, unable to live up to the requirements of the Act because the farms and equipment had been purchased in 1919 and 1920 at high prices.

C. B. Howard (Liberal, Sherbrooke), said that he was a believer in protection, but was absolutely opposed to any form of protection which allowed the Canadian producer to sell his goods to Canadians at a price higher than it ought to be.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

THE FAMILY REMEDY FOR OVER FORTY YEARS

So Says British Columbia Lady of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. E. Callier Suffered From Pains in her Back and is Now Completely Relieved.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Feb. 1.—(Special).—"I can truthfully recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills," so states Mrs. E. Callier, 917 11th Avenue East in an interview. "I was doubled up with pains in my back, but after taking Dodd's Kidney Pills I have not felt a pain in two years. My father always kept them in the house, as he was subject to lumbago. He always felt relieved after taking them. We have used Dodd's Kidney Pills in the family for over 40 years. I hope Dodd's Kidney Pills will do others as much good as they have done our family."

Statements like this have built up and maintained the reputation Dodd's Kidney Pills hold today.

You will find that Dodd's Kidney Pills will relieve Kidney trouble, no matter where or in what form it is found.

BURNBRAE NEWS

BURNBRAE, Feb. 2.—January, 1926, has set a record for changeable weather that will probably stand for some time. The latest freak following Thursday's big storm, when the mercury went down to 15 deg. below zero, was the sudden thaw of Saturday, with a temperature of 40 deg., or 8 deg. above freezing. The mild weather caused local motorists to cast longing glances at the snow-filled roads, but it remained for Wilfrid Spencer to be the first to face the town line and Eighth Concession. Much patience and a good shovel enabled him to get through to Campbellford.

Mr. Fred. Johns, of Craik, Sask., who has been visiting relatives and friends here, has returned home.

Miss N. Hay has been spending a week in Peterboro.

Mrs. Herbert Watson is not improving very rapidly, following her serious illness.

ESCAPED FROM PRISON.

Prisoner Not Guilty of Original Offence.

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 2. (Canadian Press). — Impatience cost George Laboudiuk just three years of freedom.

Awaiting hearing on a charge of housebreaking, Labodiuk, with four other prisoners, made a bold break for liberty from the Provincial Jail here on October 6 last. Recaptured, he was sent to prison for three years for jail breaking. Yesterday he was arraigned on the original charge and found not guilty.

AFFLICTION MAY BLESS OR CURSE

Suffering Refines the Soul, Rev. C. W. Demille Says in Havelock Sermon.

FORMER PASTOR.

HAVELOCK, Feb. 2.—The anniversary services of the Havelock United Church were held on Sunday, Jan. 31. Rev. C. W. Demille of Oshawa, a former and much beloved pastor, was the special preacher, and the messages delivered at both services were most inspiring, and will no doubt linger long in the minds of those present.

At the morning service he spoke from the text, John 15, 2: "Every branch in me that beareth not fruit he taketh away, and every branch that beareth fruit he purgeth it that it may bring forth more fruit."

In opening his discourse, Mr. Demille expressed pleasure at having the opportunity of meeting with the congregation again after an absence of nearly ten years. "As I look into your faces this morning," he continued, there is a strong inclination to do something more than preach to you, and if I were to give my sermon a title it would be "The Opportunity of Affliction." We must choose between the leaves and the fruit and very often we choose the leaves rather than have the affliction which will better fit us to bear fruit in the service of the Master. "For whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth." Nothing worth while comes to us that does not have to be paid for. Affliction may bless or curse. It depends on the way it is taken, and we must choose whether it is to be a blessing or curse. Trouble is the common lot of mankind, and if God has given us affliction or trials it will make us sweet or sour, according as we are hitched onto God. Always the path of success leads through Gethsemane. Suffering refines, and where there is no great trial there is no depth of character. It is the record of all the race where there has been no affliction or suffering, there is that one deep note lacking in the character. Sometimes we cannot understand why we are called upon to pass through affliction, but the grace of God is offered to us and some day when we get over to the other side we shall understand.

In closing, he said, "There is wonderful opportunities in affliction and I am asking you to accept the life of Jesus as the best example of what life should be.

Evening Sermon.

The evening sermon was based on the first part of the 11th verse of the 27th Psalm: "Teach me thy way, O Lord." This verse, he said, had been the text he had preached on in Havelock one Sunday morning nearly eleven years ago. In the years that had intervened he had come to look upon those words with different meaning. Then they were the words of David, but to-day they are far more. They are one of the most difficult prayers to say. We like to have our own way, supposing our way is not right, and we take instructions in extremely small doses. He went on to show that there were seven ways we can receive or give instructions. First, by being an agent of God. We should not forget that we are part of the atmosphere which surround people and we are responsible for our actions. Second, by instinct. Third, by telling of experience. We need to go through life with a receptive mind and should be careful of the type of information we give. Fourth, by pleasurable activity. There is no better character building factor than play. And also in the training of the young there is no greater factor, but it should be harnessed, not giving it all our time and attention. Fifth, by purposeful activity (work). Sixth, by purposeful mental activity. The reading of hard books which necessitate study and arouse the mind to activity was here recommended. Seventh, by worship. We need worship, which is that endeavor to meet and recognize God and to shape our lives to His will. "Teach us Thy way, O Lord."

The choir, under the efficient leadership of Mr. Robt. Bonny, provided splendid music for both services.

On Wednesday of last week the choir of Knox Church gathered at the home of Mrs. Stanley Barlow for a social evening in honor of Mr. Phillip Greenley, who leaves in a few days for Detroit, Mich. The evening was spent in games and dancing, and dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

FILM STARS MARRY.

Alma Rubens and Ricardo Cortez Married in Riverside, Cal.

RIVERSIDE, Cal., Feb. 1—Alma Rubens and Ricardo Cortez, motion-picture stars, were married here Saturday.

Friends of Miss Rubens had known for some time that the actress would be married to Mr. Cortez as soon as her divorce decree from Daniel Carson Goodman became final. This took place on Friday, one day before the ceremony. Mr. Goodman, whom Miss Rubens married in 1923, was the actress's second husband. She was married in 1918 to Franklyn Farnum, well-known as a screen actor.

TORONTO, Feb. 2 (Canadian Press)—"Protection," from newspapermen, may be provided by officials of Portsmouth Penitentiary for John Doughty, when he is released today on the expiration of his sentence for the theft of $105,000 worth of bonds from A. J. Small, Toronto theatrical magnate who disappeared on December 2nd, 1919. Doughty was sentenced to six years.

Fires To Be Extinguished By Musical Vibrations

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (United Press).—Firemen of the future would not move outside the fire stations to put out fires, Charles Kellogg, California scientist, predicted, following a demonstration in which he put out a large gas flame with the vibration created by drawing a bow across an aluminum tuning fork. Kellogg, experimenting for the General Electric Company, predicted that each house in the future would have its "pitch" scientifically determined, and in the event of fire, that screech of a much larger tuning fork to correspond to the "pitch" would extinguish the fire.

JEWS LOSE CASE ABOUT SCHOOLS

Are Barred From Appointment to Montreal Protestant School Board.

IN SUPREME COURT.

OTTAWA, Feb. 2 (Canadian Press).—Judgment in the Jewish school case in Montreal was handed down by the Supreme Court of Canada, by which persons of Jewish faith are barred from being appointed to the Protestant Board of School Commissioners of Montreal and the right of the board to refuse to appoint Jewish teachers in the schools attended by Jewish pupils is upheld.

The judgment rules that the Quebec statute of 1903, dealing with educational matters is intra vires, "except in so far as it would confer the right of attendance at dissentient schools upon persons of religious faith different from that of the dissentient minority."

The difficulties between the Jews and Protestants arose out of the Provincial legislation of 1903, which declares Jews to be Protestants for educational purposes. The Protestants feared that this would demand that they give Jews appointments to the Protestant School Commission and also compel them to accept Jewish teachers in Protestant schools.

BRITAIN OBLIGED TO PUT OFF MEETING

Five Governments Asked For Postponement of Arms Conference.

LONDON, Feb. 2 (Canadian Press).—Great Britain was obliged to assent to the desire of the majority in the postponement of the preparatory disarmament conference at Geneva, five governments having asked that the meeting be put off. Premier Baldwin made this disclosure during the debate on the Speech from the Throne, with which Parliament was opened to-day.

Russia had been invited to the conference, the Premier said, and it was hoped the delay would give her time to consider the matter and decide to join, because it was practically impossible for Western Europe to make real progress toward disarmament without eastern co-operation.

WILL BE PLAIN POLICEMEN

No More Detectives or Sergeants on Oshawa Force.

OSHAWA, Feb. 2.—The positions of detective-sergeant and police sergeant in the Oshawa police department were abolished yesterday on order of the Board of Police Commissioners. Detective - Sergeant Charles Paxton and Police Sergeant George Terry revert to their former rank of first-class constables. Considerable reorganizing has taken place in the force. The shifts have been changed and the duty of investigations now falls on the shoulders of Chief O. D. Friend. The men will also be furnished with new revolvers and telephones will be installed in various sections of the city to allow the constables to keep in constant touch with the station.

ARTICLE No. 32

No discussion of the proper take-out of partner's no-trump is complete without an analysis of the take-out based on distribution. Very frequently you will hold a hand containing good cards and good help for a no-trump bid, but also a singleton or void suit which makes the no-trump bid a doubtful proposition. With this type of hand try to find the suit bid that best fits the combined hands of yourself and your partner. For example, suppose your partner bids no-trump, second hand passes, and you hold the following hand:

Hearts — A, K, 7, 6
Clubs — A, J, 9, 8, 2
Diamonds — 4
Spades — 9, 7, 5

With this hand you should bid two hearts and if your partner bids two no-trump, bid three clubs. It is a strong hand and ought to make game at either hearts or clubs. On the other hand the opponents may make a five card diamond or spade suit against no-trump and so save game.

The hands of all four players were as follows:

	Hearts — A, K, 7, 6 Clubs — A, J, 9, 8, 2 Diamonds — 4 Spades — 9, 7, 5
Hearts — J, 5, 2 Clubs — K, 7 Diamonds — A, 10, 8, 5, 3 Spades — 8, 4, 2	Y A B Z	Hearts — 10, 4 Clubs — 6, 5, 3 Diamonds — K, Q, 9, 6 Spades — K, 10, 6, 3
	Hearts — Q, 9, 8, 3 Clubs — Q, 10, 4 Diamonds — J, 7, 2 Spades — A, Q, J

Z bid one no-trump and A passed. If Y passes, B will pass and A will open the five of diamonds, thus making five diamond tricks and saving game. If Y bids two hearts, he will make a small slam, quite a difference. The distribution of a hand will frequently warrant a take-out with a minor suit. For example, if partner bids one no-trump and second hand passes, bid two clubs with the following hand:

Hearts — 6, 5
Clubs — A, Q, 10, 9, 7, 5
Diamonds — A, J, 9, 5
Spades — 7

This hand is good for five odd in clubs and only two odd in no-trump. Always take out with any seven or more card minor suit irrespective of the distribution. With hands divided 6-4-2-1 or 6-3-3-1 or 4-4-4-1 or 5-4-4, try to figure out a way to play the hand at a suit bid rather than no-trump. Hands of this type seldom go game at no-trump and represent the typical distribution take-outs.

The following hands were given as problems in the preceding article with the understanding that partner has bid no-trump and second hand has passed:

Hand No. 1
Hearts — 10, 8, 2
Clubs — 7, 5
Diamonds — A, 10, 8, 5, 4
Spades — 8, 4, 3

With the foregoing hand the partner of the no-trump bidder should pass. There is no reason for a bid of two diamonds.

Hand No. 2
Hearts — K, 6, 5
Clubs — 9, 5
Diamonds — J, 7, 3
Spades — J, 10, 8, 3, 2

With the foregoing hand the partner of the no-trump bidder should bid two spades. The hand is of no possible help to the no-trump and so comes under the rule for an obligatory take-out.

Hand No. 3
Hearts — A, 4
Clubs — 7
Diamonds — J, 10, 9, 4, 3, 2
Spades — A, K, Q, 4

With this hand the partner of the no-trump bidder should bid two spades. There is a bad distribution for the no-trump.

Hand No. 4
Hearts — A, J, 9, 6, 5
Clubs — A, 5
Diamonds — 7, 6, 5, 4
Spades — A, 3

With this hand the partner of the no-trump bidder should bid two hearts. It looks like game in hearts or no-trump, but the hearts is a safer bid. As a matter of fact, there was a little slam in hearts and only two odd in no-trump. "The stronger the hand, the better the take-out."

Answer to Problem No. 16

	Hearts — Q Clubs — Q, J, 8, 2 Diamonds — Q, 10, 7 Spades — none
Hearts — 7, 5, 2 Clubs — K, 10, 6 Diamonds — none Spades — K, 7	Y A B Z	Hearts — 9, 8, 4 Clubs — none Diamonds — K, J, 6, 5, 3 Spades — none
	Hearts — K, J, 3 Clubs — none Diamonds — 8, 2 Spades — A, Q, 6

Hearts are trumps and Z is in the lead. How can YZ win five of the eight tricks against any defense? Z should lead the king of hearts. On this trick A and B must decide which one is to be in the lead at trick three so B should play the eight of hearts. Z should then lead the jack of hearts and discard the eight of clubs from Y's hand. Either A or B may take the lead at the third trick. Suppose B plays the nine of hearts at trick two. Then Z plays the trey of hearts and A wins the trick with the seven of hearts. Y should now discard the seven of diamonds. A cannot lead spades for if he does, Z will make three tricks so he must lead a club. If he leads the king, Y should play the jack. If he leads a low club, Y should play the jack and lead back the queen. If A takes that trick, he cannot force Y in the lead for Y has the deuce of clubs. A must therefore lead the spades to Z's hand.

Suppose, however, at trick two, B plays a low heart. Z should then lead the trey of hearts, Y should discard the deuce of clubs and B wins the trick with the nine of hearts. He must lead diamonds. He cannot lead a low diamond for if he does, Z will win the trick with the eight of diamonds, lead the ace and a low spade. A will be in the lead and must lose a club trick. B cannot lead the king of diamonds or if he does Y will win two diamond and one club tricks. B must, therefore, lead the jack of diamonds. Y wins this with the queen and leads the queen of clubs. A must win this and lead a club. Y wins this trick and leads the ten of diamonds which B wins and returns a diamond which Y wins with the seven.

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 5, 1926.

THE PREMIER OPPOSED.

An unexpected development in the Prince Edward by-election in which Premier Mackenzie King is the Government candidate was the last-minute nomination of an independent soldier candidate, Capt. Burgess.

When both the Conservative and Progressive executives decided that their parties would offer no opposition to the election of the Premier, it was generally supposed that the latter would be returned by acclammation, and that he would be back in his seat in the House in a few days.

The appearance of a dark horse candidate, however, means that the motions of an election will have to be gone through, and that Mr. King will be out of the House until after February 15th, the date set for election day.

It is not expected that the independent candidate will constitute very serious opposition, but in view of the present political situation, the absence of the Premier for another two weeks is not a matter in which any of the political parties can find a great deal of satisfaction.

If the Government is to be carried on then it is in the general interest that the preliminaries be disposed of as soon as possible, and the sooner the reorganization of the Cabinet can be completed the better for everybody, even the opposition, who will find more flavour in a fight with the full strength of their opponents.

THE MIDDLE OF THE ROAD.

In his address to the local Rotary Club, City Assessor W. J. Henry touched upon the root of taxation troubles when he pointed out that the taxpayer himself is largely responsible for his tax problem.

That is a contention that is almost constantly been made by the newspapers—including the Examiner—but there seems to be the greatest difficulty in driving home its truth.

It is undoubtedly the case, as the Assessor points out, that municipal councils are being constantly petitioned for all manner of local improvements without any regard to cost, and that money bylaws have usually been created indulgently by the electorate.

It is equally true that there is a happy medium between municipal extravagance and a miserly policy that will stifle progress and growth.

This year's Council should endeavour to strike that medium, avoiding unnecessary expenditure on one hand and on the other avoiding a policy that means starved public services and a consequent deterioration.

As Assessor Henry put it in his address, there is no hope of reducing high taxation by a reduction of assessed values. Retrenchment offers the only way out, and this course has to be chosen with care, inasmuch as there is always the danger of a too niggardly attitude toward civic expenditures that if persisted in leads to a backward condition.

PASSING STREET CARS.

A well-known citizen protests to the Examiner that the new motor buses in operation by the Hydro-Electric Railway are being driven past standing street cars, often when people are leaving or getting on board the trolley cars.

This is a violation of the traffic rules that cannot be excused by pleading that the buses are public carriers.

Their rights in a case of this kind are surely not any greater than that accorded to any type of motor vehicle, for, as a matter of common sense, if it is dangerous to drive a light automobile through a number of people boarding or alighting from a street car it is extremely more dangerous in the case of heavy motor buses.

This regulation in regard to passing standing street cars is too often broken by drivers, and if those in charge of the public buses treat the rule as of no consequence it is to be feared that other motorists will seize upon this as an excuse for further latitude in their own case.

All drivers, whether at the wheel of motor buses, trucks or pleasure cars, should be made to realize that to pass a street car from which passengers are alighting or to which people are making their way is a serious offence.

The loss of a few seconds' time is surely a small price to pay for the assurance of safety to other citizens.

MUNSEY'S SUCCESSOR.

Canadians in general and the people of this district in particular should be interested in the fact that William T. Dewart has been elected President of all the enterprises owned or controlled by Frank A. Munsey, these properties including the New York Sun and the New York Telegram.

Mr. Dewart was not only born in Canada, but his father lived in this district, and was largely responsible for the promotion of the Lindsay-Haliburton railway.

The story of Mr. Dewart's rise to the responsible position he now holds is one of the romances with which the business life of this continent is replete.

In 1898, when twenty-two years of age, he applied for a position with the Munsey enterprises, but was informed that he was considered too young for the work.

Nothing daunted, young Dewart visited the offices of one of the Munsey concerns in person, and made such an impression upon the general manager of the Munsey enterprises who happened to be there that day that he was engaged, commencing work at $12 a week.

From then on it is a story of steady application to work.

For eighteen months or so his average working day was from 8 in the morning until midnight.

Then came his reward.

In rapid succession he became head bookkeeper of the Red Star News Company, assistant superintendent of the manufacturing plant and auditor of the business, and when the Frank A. Munsey Company was incorporated in 1902, he was made treasurer without bond, and the next year became as well vice-president and general manager.

Now Mr. Dewart is the head of all the vast Munsey enterprises.

BRITISH AND BEST.

We congratulate the London and North-Eastern Railway Company on its decision, just announced, to insist that supplies for its system made of steel shall be manufactured by British firms from British steel of British make throughout. It is a determination which will bring its own reward—first, in the amount of employment created in the districts served by the railway in question and the traffic that results, and, secondly, in the saving due to the high quality and wearing properties of British material.

The evidence which we were able to publish from a Japanese source shows how important from the railway standpoint is the good quality of British steel and how markedly it outstrips in its excellence the steel manufactured by other countries. The Japanese Railway Department, which is a branch of the Japanese Government and entirely impartial in its verdicts, has just completed an extensive series of reports on the working of the Japanese railways since 1872, dealing in particular with the behaviour of rails and with the causes of accidents. According to the summaries of these reports, which have appeared in the Japanese press, British rails proved the most durable and rails furnished by United States firms the least durable. Whereas the British rails in some cases lasted over 40 years in service, the American rails lasted only 10 years.

No doubt a great deal more will be heard of these Japanese tests, and the attention of our customers abroad should be drawn to them. It is well known that British steam engines and locomotives outlast all others, and Japanese experience now shows that our British steel rails have the same degree of excellence. A performance such as this to the credit of British manufactures ought not to be hidden, but to be advertised to the world in every possible way. It may conceivably remind some of those foreign propagandists who have been treating John Bull as defunct that he is quite alive and, when hostile tariffs give him the shadow of a chance, more than able to hold his own.—London Daily Mail.

THEY MUST ALL HELP.

How economy in one department can be offset by more expenditure in another is clearly shown in the position of the rate payer in New York State. The Federal, State and local governmental expenditures amounted to $2,919,000,000 in 1913, and had grown to $10,252,000,000 in 1924, or three and a half times what they were before the war.

In 1924 there was a decrease of $385,000,000 in expenditures of the Federal Government of United States. But in that same period State and local Government increased their outlay by $492,000,000 leaving a net increase as far as New York State is concerned of $107,000,000 in the total governmental expenses.

The most undesirable feature is that much of the increase is taking the form of debenture issues, which means that the ratepayers for years to come will have to carry on the load to maturity.

United States has no more taxing agencies than we have in Canada. Here we have township, village, town, county and city councils, trustee boards, boards of education, parks boards, public library boards, Provincial Legislatures and the Federal Parliament, and each of these possesses in its own right the power to levy taxes or else has a definite amount set apart for its use.

In the nine Provinces between Provincial and Federal Governments Canada has a total of 926 representatives who are paid to attend to the work of framing laws and regulations and transacting public business generally. These men are all paid, and the salary list is not far short of $3,000,000 per year. In addition, each Province as well as the Federal Government, has its own elaborate system of civil service. In the more local sphere of local government each municipality has its own paid officials. In all there is a very formidable force employed and paid by the public.

The tendency is always upward in the matter of expenditure. That leads to a continual search for new sources of revenue to keep pace with it. The Dominion Government raises its revenue by indirect or tariff levies and also by direct taxation on incomes and earnings; the Provincial Governments in recent years have invaded the field of direct taxation to an extent that would have been called an outrage before the war. Muhicipal governments tax property and also attack the same incomes from which the Federal authorities take their levy. A citizen of London is paying tribute not only to the taxing bodies in his own city, but also to the Provincial and Federal Governments. When he affixes a revenue stamp to a check he is paying taxes, when he visits a moving picture establishment he does it again, when he purchases articles protected by tariff he is once more paying his share of that tax.

It is difficult apparently for these numerous spending and taxing bodies to get the idea that there are numerous other agencies, each doing a work that means an additional levy from the same purse. It is of little advantage that we shall have a decrease in one quarter with a greater increase in another. Right now when estimates and budgets are being prepared in anticipation of the year's levy there should be a keen realization of this fact. The one chance for lessened taxation is in united action of all spending bodies to spend less.—London Advertiser.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

No doubt Capt. Burgess, independent soldier candidate in Prince Albert, will be writing to Col. Herb. Lennox, M.P., to know "how he did it."

Point out the error in this sentence: The announcement from a Progressive member that he is going to move that a substantial reduction in the tariff on motor cars and trucks will be received with loud cheers in the Border Cities and in Oshawa.

NOTHING UNUSUAL TO HEAR MEXICO

Three and Maybe Two Tube Outfits In Regular Touch.

Reports to The Examiner yesterday indicate that picking up Mexico by radio is no new feat, and nothing much to boast about if one has a large powered receiver. Three-tube home-made and otherwise sets seem to bring in the southern strains with ease, and there is a well-confirmed rumor that a two-tube outfit turned the trick.

Peterborough has been considered something of a hoodoo as far as receiving is concerned, and it would be interesting to know just what fans here are able to do. Did anyone in the city get Europe direct during last week's tests? Did anyone pick up the S.O.S. calls from the ships that were lost

Every other fan in Peterborough is interested in what YOUR set does.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

H. AND S. ASSOCIATION WORK

To the Editor of the Examiner:

In your issue of Thursday last the following statement appeared. "There are many children who are staying away from school these days because they have not the necessary clothing for their feet."

This does not do justice to the Home and School Associations of the city. Needy cases are reported to them by the Attendance Officer, and in no a single instance have they failed to respond. In many other ways, too, these Associations are doing fine work.

I do not include in this children under school age.

PARENTS' SACRIFICES

The Editor of The Examiner:

Your articles on "How I Earned My First Dollar," appearing on Saturday's, are extremely interesting. That from R. R. Hall, one of Peterborough's best-known lawyers, was particularly impressive, through his reference to the sacrifices made by his parents to enable him to obtain his legal education.

Such appreciation by a prominent citizen led the writer (a local mechanic) into reminiscent mood—to the days when parents signed Articles of Apprenticeship. The following extract from same (the regulation form signed by working-class parents apprenticing their sons) is sufficient to show to what extent parents will make sacrifices in order that their offspring may move a notch higher in the work-a-day world:

"That the said——, for a period of seven years, hereby covenants with the said master that during said term . . . he shall provide said apprentice with board, lodging, washing, clothes, etc."

As the "seven years" were usually when a youth was between 14 and 21, the obligation was no small undertaking.

ASCENSION DAY

The Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir.—In replying to the article in The Examiner of January 27, from Dr. J. Hawkins, Imperial Khalif of the Ku Klux Klan, I might state, that the books he refers to are not authorative that Ascension Day is listed as a holiday only in the Province of Quebec, doesn't say that it is a purely Roman Catholic holiday. In the Encyclopaedia Brittanica, on page 716, it says that Ascension Day continues to be observed in the Anglican Church as a great festival and it is also retained in the Lutheran Churches as warranted by Holy Scripture. It is a pity that this day is not observed in the province of Ontario, but what can one expect from such a split-up Protestant religion as exists today in this province. This holiday is observed by all the countries of Europe, Protestants and others, with the exception of the Jews. I am myself a Protestant and I again deny that Ascension Day is a purely Roman Catholic holiday.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your kindness in giving me a space in your valuable paper.

I remain, yours truly.

Winnipeg

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, Feb. 1—Prices were fairly steady with last week's decline on exports and butchers. The short supply is expected to put quotations back to where they were. One load of light handyweight butchers, good, sold at ..6.65 a cwt. Handyweight steers for overseas sold at $7.50 a cwt. There are 7 loads of western stockers in, but no price has been made on them this morning. The exporters were slow in operating and were not prepared to pay higher prices. Export heifers sold at $7 to $7.50 a cwt. One load of choice handyweight mixed butchers brought $7.35 a cwt. There was a falling off in the cow supply and prices recovered 25c a cwt. from last week's drop. Export bulls were firm at $5 to $5.75 a cwt. Today's cattle will be about cleaned up.

The calf market was strong again today with real good calves 14 to 14½c and light calves up to 11½c a lb. A load is being bought for Buffalo. This market is up 50c a cwt.

Lambs were up 50c a cwt. and one straight load a little over 90 lbs. each, from Bobcaygeon, was sold by Fred Dunn at 14½c a lb. Poor quality ewes were 13c and heavies and bucks 11c a lb. Fair quality ewes were 13c and heavies and bucks 11c a lb. Fair quality sheep were 7c a lb.

The light run of hogs of about 1,100 head kept this market firm and sellers were asking $13.25 a cwt. f.o.b. The price was settled on during the morning.

STERLING RATES

MONTREAL, Feb. 1 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here today as follows:

Sterling demand $4.86 7-8.
Sterling cables $4.87 1-2.

EGG PRICES

OTTAWA, Feb. 1 (Canadian Press).—The Canadian egg markets show further strength today as a result of continued cold weather.

Toronto—Wholesale, fresh extras 46 to 47, firsts 42 to 43, storage unchanged. Three cars States fresh offering wholesale 41; another reported rolling at cost 31 1-2 Chicago f.o.b.

Montreal.—Market steady for storage, higher for fresh; jobbing, extras 46, firsts 42, seconds 36.

Winnipeg—Fresh supplies quite plentiful; jobbing, extras 41, firsts 35 to 38, seconds 25 to 28.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Feb. 1 (Canadian Press). The export trade in Canadian grain on the Montreal market today was extremely dull, there being practically no demand from any source. A strong feeling for local cash grain was developed and prices advanced 1 cent per bushel.

The feature of the winter wheat flour situation was the weaker feeling and prices scored a decline of 20c per barrel. This was attributed to the more liberal offerings on the part of spot holders.

The local egg market today was stronger and prices for the higher grades were advanced 2c per dozen. Second grade storage eggs were weaker and prices declined 2c to 3c per dozen, with sales at 21c to 22c per dozen. Receipts of eggs today were 266 cases.

The receipts of butter today were 53 packages. There was no actual change in the condition of the market, but the undertone was strong. The demand was rather quiet and the volume of business small with holders asking 45c per lb for Canadian No. 1 pasteurized creamery and 44 1-2c per lb for Australian No. 1 pasteurized to arrive here about the middle of the month, but the highest price that has been realized for Canadian No. 1 pasteurized so far was 44c, No. 2 pasteurized 43c, and winter made No. 1 pasteurized 43 1-2c per lb.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Feb. 1 (Canadian Press).—Surprise that the United States visible supply of wheat showed a decrease of only 844,000 bushels in the last week gave a jolt today to friends to higher prices. Largely as a result, the wheat market closed unsettled, 3-8 to 3-4c net lower, May (new) $1.75 3-8 to $1.75 1-2, and July $1.52 7-8 to $1.53; with corn 3-8 to 1-2c down; oats 3-8 to 1-2 to 5-8c off, and provisions varying from 10 cents decline to a rise of 2c.

JOHN DOUGHTY OUT TO-MORROW

Former Secretary of A. J. Small Given Full Time Off.

MODEL PRISONER.

KINGSTON, Feb. 2.—(Special).—John Doughty, former secretary of Ambrose J. Small, missing theatrical magnate of Toronto, will walk out of the Portsmouth Penitentiary on Wednesday afternoon at 1.15 o'clock a free man, after having served his complete term for the theft of $105,000 in bonds, the property of Mr. Small. He will be taken from the prison to the Kingston Junction and there he will board a train for Toronto.

Every effort possible has been made to get Doughty to talk in an effort to ascertain what happened Mr. Small, but he has been as dumb as an oyster on the subject. Several times Toronto detectives have visited the penitentiary and interviewed him but his lips have been sealed on the mystery which stirred the country about six years ago.

Prison officials state that Doughty has been a model prisoner. As a result he has been allowed the full time off for good behaviour. He was sentenced in Toronto to six years in the penitentiary and arrived at the penitentiary on May 15th, 1921, which means that he has done four years and six months. When he first came to the "pen" he was given a job in the cleaning gang, but after a short time he was transferred to the office of the accountant, where he has been employed ever since, and he has been a very efficient servant. Upon his release, his duties will be taken over by W. W. Dunlop, former inspector of prisons, who is serving four years for theft.

SUBSIDY OF $100,000,000 TO COAL INDUSTRY PRESENTS PROBLEM FOR SESSION OF BRITISH PARLIAMENT

Prince of Wales Absent From Opening Ceremonies in London Today.

HEAVY PROGRAM.

Agriculture and Electric Power Schemes Prominent in the Agenda.

LONDON, Feb. 2. — (Canadian Press).—The state coach and all the customary medieval trappings of royal ceremony will again be displayed for the delight of London citizens in Their Majesties' procession to open the second session of the present Parliament to-day. In keeping with custom also and in remembrance of the notorious Guy Fawkes, the vaults under the House of Parliament will be searched early in the morning, and nothing will be omitted from the ancient and picturesque ceremonial. The only noteworthy departure from custom will be the absence of the Prince of Wales from the State procession owing to his inability to don a State uniform because of his recent accident. He is making an excellent recovery, and it is possible that he will witness the ceremony as a peer of the realm in ordinary dress.

Another notable absentee will be J. Ramsay MacDonald, who will not return from Ceylon until the end of the week. J. R. Clynes will fill his place as leader of the Opposition temporarily.

Speech Privately Read.

The session of Parliament just opening should be one of the greatest importance. The Speech from the Throne was read privately at official banquets given last night in the House of Lords and the House of Commons by Lord Salisbury and the Prime Minister, Stanley Baldwin. These also are very ceremonious functions, uniforms and orders being worn. When the servants retire, the Speech is read for private information.

The Speech is expected to refer to the Government's hope of a peaceful settlement with Turkey over Mosul; to the Italian debt settlement; to the coming Imperial conference and to European affairs concerned in the peace settlements and the Geneva activities. Its legislative programme will probably be short because the Government wishes to keep time in hand to deal with the coal question arising from the report of the Royal Commission, to be issued about a month hence.

A Busy Session.

It will be a very busy session, with the Government's new economy bill, its electrical power scheme and its measures for assisting agriculture, to say nothing of Chancellor Churchill's budgetary difficulties in finding revenue to counterbalance the £20,000,000 expended on the coal mining subsidy. The Baldwin Government will meet Parliament in undiminished strength, retaining practically intact its majority of 200 over all the other parties.

Labor, as the official Opposition, is little changed from the last session, but the small Liberal party of about 50 members is more divided than ever, having three warring sections, with threats of further secessions to follow the Mond incident. One such secession was announced Monday in the person of C. F. Entwistle, who, although not now a member of Parliament, was in 1924 deputy chairman of the committee of ways and means. He, like Sir Alfred Mond, has gone over to the Conservatives.

United States Heaviest Buyer Of Canadian Goods

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2. Canadian Press. — Canada exported more goods to the United States during the year 1925 than any other country in the world, Department of Commerce figures revealed here on Monday. On the other hand, the Dominion ranked only behind Great Britain in the matter of purchasing United States goods, and last year's imports and exports gave the United States a trade balance over Canada of almost two hundred million dollars.

Canadian imports for the period reached a value of $454,762,560. Great Britain sent $412,315,859 worth of goods over.

In the export column, Britain held its usual place as the leading customer of this country with a total trade of $1,051,975,748. Canada followed in second place with $650,762,508.

PEERS TO JUDGE INDIAN PRINCE

Commission To Inquire Into Conduct of Maharajah of Indore.

KIDNAPPED GIRL.

DELHI, India, Feb. 2 (Canadian Press).—The conduct of the Maharajah of Indore, one of India's most powerful native rulers, will be the subject of an inquiry under the direction of the British authority in India. The Government has decided to investigate the case of the Maharajah as a sequel to the attempted kidnapping of the dancing girl, Mumtaz Begum, once a favorite of his court, and the murder of Abdul Kadir Bawla, to whom she had fled for protection.

The commission of inquiry will be composed of two judges of the high court, two native ruling princes, and a senior officer of the political department. The inclusion of the native princes means that the Maharajah will be judged by his own peers. Their names will not be announced until the Maharajah consents to the inquiry.

His refusal will not necessarily entail immediate compulsory abdication, but in such event, the Government will decide what alternative steps are possible. In any case no final action will be taken until after mature and cautious consideration because of the vital political considerations involved.

The commission will follow the usual procedure used when the question of depriving a native ruler of his power, either temporarily or permanently, is under consideration. The Maharajah already has been informed that he may decline to attend the inquiry.

EX-KAISER AND PRINCE UNITED

Former German Crown Prince Visits Father in Exile.

DOORN, Holland, Feb. 2 (Canadian Press).—Profiting by the first day of the abolition of the visa between Germany and Holland, former Crown Prince Frederick William of Germany arrived here yesterday and passed through the village, unobserved, to his father's chateau.

The meeting between the former Emperor and his son was touching for it was the first time in more than two years that they had seen one another. William embraced his son and was unable to master his emotion, but the former Crown Prince displayed his usual gaiety.

Princess Hermine, who had previously made visits to Frederick William at Oels, is reported to have greatly facilitated the reconciliation which, owing to the Prince's attitude in militaristic and monarchist quarters in Germany, had been deemed impossible. It is thought, however, that the principal reason for the reconciliation is to be found in the matter of the settlement of the royal properties which, rumor says, President Von Hindenburg has promised will be favorable to the former royal families, and that a meeting of the members of William's family at this place is to discuss this subject.

The police guard around the chateau has been doubled.

NATIONALIZATION OF BRITISH MINES IS NOT MENTIONED IN COMMISSION REPORT

Closing of Unprofitable Coal Pits Suggested, According to Press Forecast—Retain District Wages Boards.

LONDON, Feb. 2.—(Canadian Press).—The Westminister Gazette prints a forecast of the coal commission's report, according to which the recommendations will include the grouping of mines somewhat after the manner already done with the railways, and the closing down of unprofitable pits. Such grouping is said to be essential for the satisfactory reorganization of the industry.

Another recommendation relates to international migration—the moving of unemployed miners to other districts where they could be employed in more active mines. It is further advised that wages and conditions shall be the immediate concern of the local organizations and that district wages boards shall be retained.

While longer hours and lower wages are not advocated, the commission considers that lower wages may be possible, which in the long run would give the men equal pay with their present earnings.

The commission recommends that the Mining Association representing the owners and the Miners' Federation should concentrate on national matters, such as safety of the mines, parliameintary business and for liaison between the mines department and these two organizations.

Apparently, if the Westminister Gazette is rightfully informed, there is nothing in the commission's report about nationalization in any form.

MISHAP DELAYS SPANISH PLANE

Propeller Damaged in Rough Sea—Wait Three Days For Spare.

A NIGHT ON OCEAN.

MADRID, Feb. 2.—(Canadian Press).—General Soriano, chief of the Spanish air services, gave King Alfonso yesterday the following version of the accident to the Plus Uultra as received in official messages from Commander Franco:

"Franco still had over 200 gallons of gasoline left when he reached Fernando Do Noronha Island Saturday evening, sufficient to make Pernambuco. But because of darkness the aviators decided to alight, only to be forced to remain aboard the seaplane all night because of the rough seas.

"When they left their cabin the next morning to inspect the machine, they found the rear propeller damaged, and therefor, decided to hurry the resumption of their flight to Pernambuco. When they had flown about 100 miles toward Pernambuco the damaged propeller went out of commission altogether, and from that on only the front propeller was used.

"The aviators will remain at Pernambuco for three days; they are awaiting a spare propeller which will reach them in that time. Commander Franco may stop off at Bahia on his flight to Rio Janiero."

SCHRADER LUMBER MILL TO LINDSAY

Company Buying Timber Limits in Haliburton.

LINDSAY, Feb. 2.—The vice-president of the Schrader Lumber Co., which has been operating large mills in Parry Sound district, was in town a few days ago relative to the purchase of large limits in Haliburton and the erection of a large mill in this district. The company has not definitely decided just where the mill will be erected, but every effort is being made to have Lindsay selected as the site. It is understood that fifty acres will be required. The company, it is understood, is in communication with the Canadian Pacific Railway authorities relative to railway connection, etc. The deal has not been closed as yet for the purchase of the townships in Haliburton.

BANQUET TO WARDEN.

Warkworth to Honor Warden McCubbin.

WARKWORTH, Feb. 2.—The following representative citizens have been appointed a committee to arrange for the banquet which will be tendered Reeve John McCubbin in the Leonard House to-night as a mark of honor for his election to the Wardenship of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham: C. J. Boyce, J. F. Freure, C. H. Curtis, P. S. Ewing and H. L. Walker. On an occasion of this kind, when one of their number brings distinction to the community, the residents of Warkworth and Percy Townships are sufficiently public-spirited to forget all partisan and personal differences and to unite in giving honor to whom it is due.

This is the first time that the Wardenship has come to Percy since 1910, when A. L. Boyce was elected to that position.

BANK CLERK STOLE TO AID BOOTLEGGER

Prisoner Carried in and Out of London Court.

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 2 (Canadian Press).—William A. McDonald was yesterday found guilty by a jury at the winter assizes of having conspired to defraud the Bank of Montreal of $7,603, and of having received the money, knowing it to have been stolen.

McDonald, according to the evidence, induced Herbert Brewer, a clerk at the bank, to advance him money for bootlegging operations. Brewer was last fall sentenced to two years for his part in the affair. McDonald is in a serious state of health, and had to be carried in and out of the court. Yesterday, while his counsel, Colin Leitch, of St. Thomas, was addressing the jury, McDonald was seized with a fit.

The case was marked by clashes between Leitch and Justice Lennox, the former charging too much latitude was shown the Crown. This the judge vigorously resented.

OBITUARY.

J. EDWARD DIAMOND

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 2—John Edward Diamond, who at one time was a leading business man in Campbellford, died at his home in Toronto on Saturday, aged 63 years.

The late Mr. Diamond was born on a farm in Seymour Township and lived there until he was 23 years old when he moved to Campbellford where he entered the real estate business in which he was successful from the start. Some of the finest residences in town were built by him. He was reeve of the town for two years. About 19 years ago he sought a wider field for his business activties and went to Toronto where he had resided ever since with the exception of two years which he spent in California.

The surviving relatives of the deceased are the widow and three children, Ralph of British Columbia, Mrs. Arthur Wigmore of Swift Current, Sask., and Mrs. Oswald Stanley of Trail, B.C. The surviving brothers are T.L. of Campbellford and William of Toronto. Samuel Diamond, the father, also resides in town.

The deceased had been a Liberal all his life and a member of the Methodist church.

The remains will be brought to Campbellford for interment and the funeral will be held at 2 o'clock Tuesday from the residence of T. L. Diamond, Front Street.

WALTER T. ROBUS

NORWOOD, Feb. 2—Mr. P. M. Grover was in Toronto during the week attending the funeral of the lite Lieut. Walter T. Robus whose death occurred in the General Hospital on Tuesday last. The deceased, who enlisted at Norwood, with the first contingent was a veteran of the 2nd battalion. He was wounded on the battlefield several times and in one encounter was shot through the chest five times. Owing to these wounds he wore a silver breast plate, and it is said that he succumbed as a result of having this plate changed. The funeral was held on Thursday last and interment was made in Mount Pleasant cemetery, Toronto.

EDWARD BANNON

NORWOOD, Feb. 2—The funeral of the late Edward Bannon who passed away at his home in Asphodel on Wednesday last after a very brief illness was held on Friday afternoon and was largely attended. The deceased was married about five years ago to Miss Olive McKay, daughter of Mr. John McKay and the late Mrs. McKay.

The late Mr. Bannon, who was thirty-one years of age, leaves beside his widow, two small children, a boy four years old and a little daughter six months old.

The sorrowing widow has the sympathy of a large circle of friends and acquaintances.

POLICE MATTERS TAKE ATTENTION OF CAMPBELLFORD COUNCILLORS

Motion To Reduce Chief's Salary is Defeated in Council.

CELLS ARE NEEDED.

Cost of Sending our Young Men to Warkworth Was High.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 2. — Councillor Cole, at the regular meeting of the Town Council Monday night, every member being present except Councillor Wiggins, made a motion, seconded by Councillor O'Sullivan, that the salary of Police Chief John Brown be reduced from $1,500 to $1,000 a year, the chief reason given for this move being that the position is not worth the larger amount now that there is a night watchman employed. Councillor Stone said that in his opinion the cut was too drastic, but that he would be in favor of setting the chief's pay at $1,200 a year. Councillors Cole and O'Sullivan changed their motion to meet the views of Councillor Stone. When a vote was taken, the motion was lost; Councillors Cole, O'Sullivan and Stone voting in the affirmative and Reeve Davidson, Deputy-Reeve Palliser and Councillors Abernethy and McDonald in the negative.

A Heated Discussion

There was a heated liscussion before his matter was finally disposed of, all the ground being traverse from the time of the appointment of Chief Brown over a year ago down to the present. Mayor Kingston, Reeve Davidson and Councillor McDonald defending the Chief and maintaining that he was giving the people good service and was earning his salary. Reeve Davidson reminded Councillor Cole that at the nomination meeting the same question had been raised by Councillor Cole and that he had met with very little support.

"We are not paying Chief Brown too much for what he is doing," was the Mayor's summing up of the situation.

Deputy-Reeve Palliser, who this year is chairman of the police committee, went no further than to say that some changes were necessary with regard to the hours to be put in by the Chief, whereupon Councillor McDonald told him that as chairman of the police committee he was the man to give such changes effect.

"The Chief may be on duty," said Councillor McDonald, "even if he is not standing on the Bank of Montreal corner. Sometimes he is needed on the west side, and I have seen him on duty late at night, especially on Wednesdays and Saturdays."

Council Will Investigate.

The Council as a body will investigate the recent police court case when four young men were sent to the Cobough jail on failing to pay a fine of $75 and costs each on a charge of violating the Ontario Temperance Act. The father of one of the boys appeared before the Council and declared that the defendants had been taken to Cobourg before the father had an opportunity of paying his fine, and that the young fellows while in custody had been denied the use of the telephone to get in communication with their friends. After his son had served two weeks at Cobourg the father paid his fine and costs amounting altogether to nearly $90, and the boy was released. As half the sentence had been put in, the father was of the opinion that he should receive a rebate, and stated that Magistrate Payne, who had sentenced the boys had told him that the Council alone could afford him any relief.

Before the Council can take any such action, the members were told by Town Solicitor Lynch, it will be necessary for them to make an investigation into the circumstances of the case, hence the decision to read the evidence taken at the hearing and to inquire into charges submitted by the father of the boy whose fine has been paid.

Cells Are Needed.

Three of the four defendants above referred to were arrested on a Saturday night, and as there were no cells here in which they could be kept over Sunday, they were taken to Warkworth and farmed out to the authorities there. It cost $8.00 to transport them to that village and back, the Warkworth constable charged $10 for mounting guard, the Township of Percy sent in a bill of $5 for lodging and fuel, and the hotel that furnished the guests of durance with meals had a score of $7.80 against the municipality of Campbellford.

These charges called the attention of the councillors once more to the fact that the town requires some place in which its occasional prisoners can be housed while awaiting a hearing, and it was decided that all the members go to the jail building to-day to see if the cells cannot be remodelled. If it is decided that this would be too costly an operation then it is likely that portable steel cells will be installed.

Auditors' Report.

Town Auditors A. J. Jenkins and C. A. Wilson submitted their report, in which they stated that they had found the accounts of the municipality in as good shape as it was possible to keep them with the system of bookkeeping in use. The town has outgrown this system, and a new one is required. At present it is impossible to make a correct estimate of the value of property owned by the town. The auditors stated that they had based their figures in this regard on those of former years, and refused to assume the responsibility for them. The report contained the following recommendations:

That a fire-proof safe be provided in which to keep the town's books and papers.

That workingmen in the employ of the town be brought under the operation of the Compensation Board.

That all paysheets be stamped with Excise stamps as required by law.

That new books be provided for the assessor and the tax collector.

The latter item in this report was referred to the Finance Committee with power to act

Other Business.

Reeve Davidson and Deputy-Reeve Palliser were appointed a committee to confer with the Fair Board on the question of establishing an auto tourists' camp at the Agricultural Grounds.

Economy is the watchword of the Council this year. A communication requesting a membership fee of $25 in the Municipal Association was laid on the table, on motion of Deputy-Reeve Palliser and Councillor McDonald.

On motion of Reeve Davidson and Councillor Abernethy, the same action was taken with regard to a communication from the Union of Canadian Municipalities, asking the Council to send a delegate to a meeting at Ottawa to protest against the proposed increase in telephone rates.

The usual annual grant of $1,550 was made to the Library Board, being at the rate of 50 cents per capita of the population.

Lower Insurance Rates

Mayor Kingston called attention to the fact that Belleville has secured a reduction of 15 per cent in its fire insurance rates and he thought that Campbellford was enfitled to a similar measure of relief as the town has complied with all the requirements insisted upon by the underwriters with regard to fire fighting apparatus. Reeve Devidson, who is chief of the fire brigade, said that the equipment here is equal to that of Belleville.

On motion of Reeve Davidson and Councillor Stone, the Mayor and Clerk McGregor were appointed a committee to write to Belleville to ascertain what steps should be taken to secure the reduction referred to.

EULER NAMED IN GRAHAM'S PLACE

Member For Waterloo W., Mentioned For Railway Portfolio.

DECLINES COMMENT.

OTTAWA, Feb. 2. — (Canadian Press).—It is understood here that W. D. Euler, Liberal member for North Waterloo, has been offered a portfolio in the Government of Premier Mackenzie King. Mr. Euler's name is connected with the portfolio of Railways and Canals, which is now held by Right. Hon. George P. Graham.

The member for North Waterloo declined to comment on the matter last night. "I really have nothing to say about it at all," was his statement when asked for confirmation. Mr. Euler is an experienced member of Parliament and had been prominent in committee work as well as in debate on the floor of the House.

DEPUTATIONS BEFORE COUNCIL

Information on all subjects connected with the tourist traffic is given daily through the Association. Last year when the City Council cut its grant in half the other municipalities followed suit, with the result that the work of the Association was hampered greatly.

The sum of $400 was asked—the same amount that was given up until last year.

Mr. Kerr thought that the Trent Association cannot pass out of being until the Ontario Association is fully developed. The city and district must uphold their end.

Mr. Turner said the City Council is asked periodically to invest in health, and the money is well spent. He also recommended to the good graces of Council the appeal of the Well Babies' Clinic.

The Trent Waterway Development Association is an investment that puts money in the people's pocket. The Ontario Tourist Association originated in Peterborough and spread out and the benefit obtained from the traffic of tourists through this district is considerable. The investment of $400 will be amply repaid, and could not be better invested.

Mr. Fraser recalled the missionary work already done by the Trent Association in conjunction with the Chamber of Commerce. It was doubtful for a time whether the show at New York could be put on this year, but the municipalities along the Trent route gave their support.

Last year, Mr. Fraser said, he asked the banks to keep track for three months in summer of the money tourists brought in. The figures given were $252,480. This is at the rate of $1,000,000 a year, and a firm promising that payroll would be welcomed with open arms. He did not consider the $400 asked for as out of the way.

City Accident Insurance

The Continental Casualty Co. quoted $1,450 to cover the city against accidents on its streets.

Alderman Ackerman moved that the offer be accepted.

Alderman Fife objected, saying the quotation was made after other offers were published.

Alderman Phelan suggested that the Zurich Company had given good service last year and he did not think anything better could be done than give the other companies a chance to meet or better the new offer.

Alderman Turner objected to the "peddling of the city's business," and moved that the policy be taken from the Zurich Co. at $1,540. His amendment carried.

Alderman Denne explained that the new quotation was from a Peterborough agent who was not notified of the opportunity and did not know about the opening until he saw the other quotations published. It was suggested that next year the request for quotations be publicly advertised.

City Trust

Vincent Eastwood was unanimously re-appointed a member of the City Trust for a further term of five years.

Telephone Rates

A letter from the Union of Canadian municipalities asked support in protesting the increase of certain rates for telephone service. It was pointed out that the change is very slight in Peterborough, with a reduction on domestic service and a slight increase in business service.

Alderman Greene thought the City Council should show its appreciation of the condition in other cities and protest against the increase. "If we allow these huge corporations to have their own way they would soon own our businesses," he said, moving that a delegate be appointed to support the Union of Canadian Municipalities in protesting the increase in rates.

Alderman Fife moved that the matter go to the Finance committee for discussion and his amendment carried.

Bus Speed

Alderman Greene cited an instance of speeding of buses and street cars—in the former case, 25 miles an hour and in the latter, 30 miles. He thought there should be some control of the speed of the street railway services.

The congestion at George and Charlotte streets when three buses stop there was pointed out by Alderman Denne, but Mayor Holloway believed that the situation would right itself in a short time.

C.N.R. Freight Shed

Alderman Greene suggested that instead of the C.N.R. building a freight shed at Charlotte and Aylmer street, a business block be erected there and the freight shed extended over King street.

Alderman Turner proposed that the C.N.R. be reminded of the promise to build a new freight shed this year, and that the engine house be moved to a new location. The communication will be sent.

Gas Rates

In announcing the changes in gas rates already published, the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission informed the Council it is unable to reduce the rates to $1.75 per 1000 cu. feet as requested by ex-Mayor J. J. Turner. With increased use and reduced costs following, it is hoped that some reduction to the smaller consumer may be made in future.

Railway Crossing

A notice was received from the Board of Railway Commission that when a bell and wigwag are installed at Reid street C.N.R. crossing the watchman may be removed.

Neglected Coughs

Often lead to serious trouble—Are quickly relieved by Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine.

Many people regard a cold as a simple incident. But Coughs and Colds when neglected lead on to pneumonia and consumption—the most dreaded diseases common to this Northern temperature.

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is well-known as a most effective treatment for coughs, colds bronchitis, croup and asthma. For many years it has held its place in the homes of Canada as absolutely dependable and was never so popular as it is today.

Composed of simple and yet powerfully effective ingredients it is suitable for children and adults alike and is found constantly in most homes for use in case of emergency. Prompt treatment is half the battle when fighting colds.

MITCHELL AS PRIVATE CITIZEN DENOUNCES MILITARY POLICIES

Former U. S. Colonel Resumes Attack For Which He Lost Commission.

TO TOUR COUNTRY.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—(Canadian Press).— William Mitchell, private citizen, resumed late Monday his fight against war and navy management of the national defense.

The former air officer took up the cudgel just five hours after he received official notification that his commission as colonel, U.S.A., had been vacated at his request by direction of President Coolidge. He recalled his efforts to "better conditions from within the service", and declared his intention as a citizen to keep up the struggle for a national defense "organized in a single department."

Mitchell's statement, the first of the kind issued, since he attacked the war and navy department in the celebrated statements he made public in San Antonio last September, which led to his conviction and sentence by a court martial, for insubordination, was a bristling denunciation of existing defense policies. Striking out against "military bureaucracy," he declared "Our Government has become one of bureaucratic domination."

To Tour the States.

At the same time, he announced that he would tour the country for the next three months to carry "straight to the people" a picture of "the true condition of our national defense." This, he said, he could do better as a citizen than "by remaining muzzled in the army."

Army and navy bureaucracies, he charged, "Have consistenly and purposely misled Congress and the people...., have manipulated the laws so they can control the armed forces even against the action of the president himself...., have coerced, bulldosed and attempted to ruin patriotic officers," and have shaken the land and sea forces in their conception of duty.

REPORTS TO COUNTY COUNCIL

The following is taken from Premier Ferguson's letter to the Trustees and Ratepayers,—"At least three serious conditions in the rural school situation admit of no dispute:

(1) A great many schools have too small an attendance to permit them to be either economically or efficiently conducted.

(2) The cost of maintaining the schools in any township is not spread airly among the ratepayers.

(3) The opportunities for High School Education are inadequate and unequally distributed.

Three important problems which must be faced grow out of these conditions, viz., the problem of the small chool, the problem of inequalities of taxation, and the problem of providing facilities for High School Education."

Again, Premier Ferguson says in his report, "the serious defects of the present rural school system may be traced to two conditions:

(1) The section unit seldom has enough money or enough pupils to make the provision of an Education beyond that of public school feasible.

(2) It is most difficult, if not impossible, to secure the co-operation of section units in measures that would decrease expenditures by a reduction of the number of schools, or in measures that would provide higher Educational facilities."

"I am convinced," says Premier Ferguson, "that the only means by which the difficulties of the rural school situation can be solved is the adoption of some method by which a greater measure of co-operative action among the people can be assured. Under the section scheme co-operation on an adequate scale cannot be obtained. In the enlargement of the unit lies the hope of bringing about this co-operation. The logical unit to adopt is the township, the unit for municipal purposes and for taxation. For sixty-five years the municipal unit has been the unit for school purposes in all the incorporated villages, towns and cities of the Province, and the scheme has been attended with excellent Educational results. Why should not the municipal unit be adopted for the management of the rural schools also?"

In considering this problem, the welfare of the child must be kept uppermost in mind. "The boy of to-day, is the man of to-morrow." He has an inalienable right to be well-fitted for the battle of life. We should aim at a better citizenship for to-morrow than we possess to-day.

At Young's Point, S.S. No. 8, Smith Township, a second teacher began work last September, resulting in a very much better organization and classification of the pupils and affording an opportunity for Fifth Class work.

BUILDING TOTAL FOR JANUARY WAS THE LARGEST ON RECORD

Winter Building is Increasing in Favour in Canada.

BUSY WINTER.

Both December and January Showed Total Over Twelve Millions.

Canadian construction contracts for the month of January as compiled by McLean Building reports, Ltd., totalled $12,669,000, as compared with $12,675,300 in December last, and $5,934,700, in January a year ago. The mid-winter months have in the past shown the smallest totals. The record for January indicates that winter construction is increasing in favor. In the cities evidence is seen of this on very hand. The large jobs now seem to go ahead the same in winter as in summer. Owners and builders alike are realizing that a saving in costs may be made by building when materials and labor are plentiful.

Residential building accounted for 20.7 per cent. of the January total, and amounted to $2,615,800. Business building totalled $5,080,700 or 40.1 per cent.; industrial buildings, $4,156,000, or 32.8 per cent. and public works and utilities $816,500 or 6.4 per cent.

The distribution by divisions was as follows: Quebec, 33.0 per cent.; Ontario, 28.2 per cent.; prairies 31.4 per cent.; British Columbia, 6.6 per cent; Maritime, 7.7 per cent.

Contemplated work to the extent of $20,024,100, of which the larger percentage will be proceeded with this year, was reported in January.

Urban Building.

There is not much choice between the building record of the cities in 1925 and 1924, although both are slightly less than for 1923. The building of residential structures still remains as the backbone of the building permit totals. Two large buildings in Toronto, the Administration Building in Queen's Park to cost $2,500,000, and the Hygiene Building $400,000, in the University grounds, are not included in the permit figures. Apparently in Ontario buildings which receive grants from the Provincial government do not go through the permit records, although those built by the Dominion government do. It must be remembered that the figures for the cities do not include any engineering expenditures nor do they include a much larger volume of building which is undertaken in rural place where no permits are issued. Thus they are hardly suitable for judging the trend of construction.

In Western Canada it is expected that a greatly increased demand will be shown for building materials of all kinds, particularly in the rural places. The better position of the farmers will enable them to make long deferred expenditures in respect to improving or adding to their premises. In the bulk, this demand should be great.

The cities having building permit totals over $1,000,000 for the year 1925 are as follows:

Cities	12 months 1925	12 months 1925

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

HENRY RAND, middle-aged credit manager of a department store, is reminded by his family that the next day is his son, JAMES RAND'S 27th birthday. Jimmy plans a theater party for his mother and father and his sister, JANET, and her fiance, BARRY COLVIN.

The following evening Henry Rand, a sticker for punctuality, fails to arrive home for dinner at his accustomed time. While the family is wondering, police telephone with word that he has been found dead in the Canfield Hotel.

Jimmy goes to the hotel. His father is in a gas-filled room that had been registered for by H. A. Jones of New York.

Police believe it is suicide. Jimmy doesn't agree. A woman's handkerchief is found in the room.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER III.

Detective Mooney, a squat little officer with a disfiguring scar running from the outside corner of his eye and across the cheekbone to the mouth, fumbled in his coat pocket and withdrew a small handkerchief. He held it out to Jimmy.

It was a white handkerchief bordered with fine lace, and smelling strongly of perfume. Jimmy looked at it closely. There were no initials, nothing about it to make it different from any other woman's handkerchief.

"It was lying on the dresser," volunteered Mooney, "right in plain view. That's all we found. It's the only clew whatsoever."

"And your theory, Sergeant?" Jimmy turned away from Mooney to address the policeman who had taken charge.

"My lad, I'm not tryin' to hurt your feelin's, but the way I had it sized up was just like this. If you'll excuse me for sayin' so. I had figured that your father possibly had got mixed up with some woman and was takin' a short cut to avoid trouble. I hate to say it to your face, but you'll welcome the truth and this sort of thing isn't new to me."

"You think there was a woman in this room?"

"I did at first. I don't know what to think now."

"Did you see any woman come upstairs this afternoon?" Jimmy had wheeled to face the clerk.

"No, sir. I didn't see any come in or go out."

"In this hole they are careful not to take notice of any women they see," remarked the sergeant, staring grimly at the little bald clerk.

A newcomer entered the room, a thin man with thin iron gray hair carefully parted in the middle and slicked down closely to his head. His large, red-veined nose seemed too heavy for his face.

The bald hotel clerk seemed to welcome his entrance. "Here's Bride, the night clerk," he announced, apparently relieved to escape the attention of the sergeant.

"Bride," snapped the policeman at the night clerk, "were you here last night when a man registered for this room under the name of H. A. Jones?"

Bride shifted his feet uneasily. "Yes, sir."

"What time was it?"

"About eight or eight-thirty, near as I can remember, Captain."

"Never mind the captain. That apple sauce doesn't work with me. What did this H. A. Jones look like?"

"I don't remember much about him. Lemme see—nope."

"Was he a big man or a little man?" pursued the sergeant. "You ought to remember that much."

"Well, at that I guess he was a pretty big man. He had his overcoat buttoned up around his neck—it being pretty cold—and his hat was turned down. Seems to me he did have pretty big ears and—oh, yes—he had red hair, a kind of sandy sort of red."

"Thought you said he had his hat turned down."

"He did. But I could see the hair on his temples. It was cut close, but you could tell it was red. He just asked for a room, and when I gave it to him he went right upstairs. I haven't seen him since."

"Did he sleep in his bed?"

"I don't know. Schwartz, the day clerk here, probably would know if he didn't."

"Did he, Schwartz?"

"I guess he did, Sergeant. The maid would have told me if the bed hadn't been slept in."

"You do a lot of drinking, don't you, Bride?" growled the sergeant.

The night clerk flushed. "I take a drink once in a while."

"Well, by the looks of that nose of yours you take a damn sight too many."

"Meyer." The sergeant turned to one of his men. "Did you tell 'em at Central Station to notify the coroner?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, when in the devil is he comin'?" To Jimmy he said: "We have to leave the body just as it is till the coroner arrives. They'll take him to the morgue long enough to determine the cause of death and then they'll turn him over to your family for burial."

"Who's talking about the coroner?" A large individual, carrying a little black satchel, breezed into the room. With a brief glance around him he knelt in business-like fashion beside the body of Henry Rand.

He felt over the dead man's heart. "What's it all about, Sergeant?"

The sergeant told him, briefly, what he knew.

"Humph," tersely remarked the coroner, "looks like a plain case of asphyxiation. Hello!"

He had run his hands expertly over Henry Rand's head. He was feeling with his right hand at the base of the skull.

"What is it?" Jimmy sprang forward eagerly. "What is it, Coroner?"

The coroner frowned. He was examining the back of Henry Rand's head.

"There's a slight lump here at the base of the skull that oughtn't to be here. It's not the bone structure, either. Humph. Anybody here know this man?"

"He's my father, Coroner."

"Did your father carry this lump at the back of his head? Here, feel with your hand."

Jimmy ran his hand carefully over the spot indicated. He felt what appeared to be a broad welt near the base of the skull and just to one side of the center. It was firm, but yielded the center. It was firm, but yielded slightly to his touch.

"I'm sure," answered Jimmy, "that my father never had this. If he had, I think I would have noticed it years ago."

"Your father has been hit in the head with something," quietly remarked the coroner. "What with, I don't know, but evidently with something very similar to a sandbag. That is, if he was struck hard enough to do any damage. At any rate, there is no abrasion, such as probably would have been caused by a blow on the head with a club or a hard weapon."

"You think, then, that he was murdered?" Jimmy hung on the coroner's next words.

"I don't know anything. I think it possible, but we'll have to have an autopsy to see what caused his death."

A strange young fellow had entered the room. Evidently a reporter, for he had been conversing quietly with the police sergeant, pausing now and then to jot down a word or two on some twice-folded sheets of rough paper. He stepped over to Jimmy.

"Sorry, Mr. Rand, but will you supply me with your father's age and the number of children he had? I think I've got most of the details from the police."

"He was fifty-five," answered Jimmy wearily. "He had a wife and two children, my sister Janet and myself."

"Thanks, Mr. Rand. Sorry to trouble you." He turned to the coroner. "What is it, Coroner, suicide?"

"It's murder," interrupted Jimmy grimly. "He seized the reporter by the arm. "You'll write nothing about suicide until you learn the coroner's verdict."

"Oho! You seem pretty sure. Well, I'll stick around a while, I guess. What's your idea of what took place?"

"My idea," replied Jimmy, "is that my father was lured to this hotel room under some false pretense, probably by some telephone call to his office. Anyway, we can check up tomorrow and find out what time he left the department store.

"I think that the man who registered as H. A. Jones of New York was in this room waiting for my father to come. When father did arrive, he was barely seated before he was struck on the head and knocked unconscious. You noticed that his overcoat is still on him. That is sufficient indication that he was not in the room very long, or, at least, that he was on his way out when he was struck.

"Then whoever hit him turned on the gas, shut the window if it wasn't already closed and walked out, locking the door behind him."

"And how about the handkerchief?" asked the reporter.

"I can't account for it, I'll admit."

"Don't you think it is at least an indication that a woman was in this room, at least for a while?"

"No necessarily," put in the coroner, who had been listening to Jimmy with considerable interest. "Not necessarily. A man could have planted it here, you know. Besides it was found in plain view right on that dresser, and you have to pass the dresser to get to the door. It seems to me it would be a pretty hard thing to miss, even by someone who was in a hurry. However, we're all shooting in the dark. I'll have to take the body to the morgue."

The reporter spoke to the police sergeant. "Mind if I take a poke around the room, Sarg?"

"Oh, go ahead, Howard. You're a blamed nuisance, but go ahead."

"Thanks." Howard began an inspection of the dresser and then the bed. "You know, Sarge, they say that it's almost impossible for a murderer to avoid leaving some kind of clew."

He seized the bedding and threw it back, jarring the bedstead violently as he did so. As the bed moved, Jimmy saw something fall from the horizontal railing that supported the foot end of the springs and flutter to the floor.

He was on it in a flash. On the floor it looked like a plain yellow square of cardboard, torn at one end.

"What have you got, Rand?" It was the police sergeant.

Jimmy turned it over. He held the yellow stub of a theater ticket.

"Paragon Theater," he read triumphantly. "Nov. 25. That's the night before last."

CHAPTER IV.

Jimmy held out the yellow stub to the police sergeant.

"That means," he said, deeply excited, "that the man who registered for this room, and the man who murdered my father, was in this theater the night before last. Howard," he turned to the reporter, "you were right when you said a murderer invariably left some sort of clew."

"And a fine clew it is," scorned the sergeant. "Where in the devil is the Paragon Theater? It isn't in this town."

"We'll find out where it is, then," Jimmy answered him. "We'll at least know where Mr. H. A. Jones comes from."

"This begins more and more to look like a real story, observed Howard. "The mystery of the theater ticket, eh? No, let's see. Our inspired headline writers would probably think of it as the mystery of the yellow stub. Let me take a look at it, will you, Rand?"

"Row H, Section C, Seat 31," he read. "Paragon Theater. Good only Monday night, November 25. Orchestra." He held it out to Jimmy. "Your man at least knew a good seat when he saw one."

Jimmy turned to the night clerk called Bride. "I've got to use the telephone. Is there one around? I don't see any in the room."

"There's a wall phone right here in the hall."

Jimmy rang the number of his home. He heard Barry's voice in the receiver.

"Hello, Barry? It's true, Barry."

"I know, Jim. The reporters were here—for pictures . . . God! I'm sorry."

"I'm coming right home. Barry," said Jimmy, and hung up.

Barry's arm was around Jimmy almost before he was in the door.

"Your mother's in bed, Jim. She went all to pieces—naturally. Janet's with her, trying to comfort her. I'll never cease to marvel at the way Janet took it. Never a tear. Not a sign of a breakdown. Just like a little soldier, Jim."

"I'm afraid of that kind of grief, Barry. Knowing Janet as I do, I know she'll hold her head high and eat her heart out rather than give way. I'd rather she let it out and got it over with. Stubborn blood in her."

"Rand blood, Jim." Barry patted Jimmy's shoulder. He was crying.

"I feel it too, old man."

"And this," Jimmy was saying, "is the only worth while clew we found." He produced the yellow stub and laid it on the table in front of him. "I suppose I ought to turn it over to the police. I simply walked out with it in my pocket. You know as much about the whole thing now as I do."

"What a mystery," murmured Barry softly, "and what a damn shame. A man without an enemy in the world to meet that kind of a death—and in a place like that."

Jimmy considered. "Apparently he had an enemy somewhere, Barry, though God knows where. Perhaps it's in the city where this theater is—wherever that may be. I suppose the only way to locate the Paragon Theater is to wire the police force of every city we can think of. Nothing at all out of the ordinary in the name Paragon. I suppose there are dozens of theaters with that name."

Barry picked up the torn yellow ticket and idly studied it. "Monday night, November 25. That shows it couldn't have been in the room very long, at least. Here's something else." He held it up closer to his eyes.

"Wait a minute, Jim. Look here!" he exclaimed. "Budd & Halter Printing Co., Chicago. Right there in fine print, under the word orchestra. Read it for yourself."

Jimmy picked up the sub and read it. "Funny I didn't notice it before," he mused. "I suppose it was the abominable light in that terrible room." He shuddered.

"We'll find out now where your theater's located," declared Barry. "I'm sending a telegram rightn ow to Budd & Halter."

He fished a piece of paper out of his pocket and went to work with a pencil. "How's this?" he read. "Your name on stub of yellow theater ticket issued by Paragon Theater. Important that police know where Paragon Theater is located. Please wire."

He moved over to the telephone. "I'm sending it right now, Jim."

* * *

The coroner's verdict was murder. The autopsy, he wrote in his report, disclosed a concussion of the brain, although the direct cause of Henry Rand's death was asphyxiation by gas.

"The blow on the head," he said to Jimmy later, "might not have been sufficient in itself to cause your father's death, although it was a serious case of concussion.

"However, there is no doubt that he was struck violently at the back of the head with some weapon. He couldn't have sustained that kind of an injury in a fall. He never had a chance to regain consciousness with all that gas in the room. A suicide theory simply isn't plausible."

"I knew it wasn't, Coroner." Jimmy walked over to the window of the little office in the morgue and looked out. His jaw set grimly as he fought back the tears that welled in his gray eyes. "I knew it all the time. "It couldn't have been suicide. If you had known my father—"

He stopped abruptly. He was unable to go on. Still staring out into the street, he clenched his fists. He clenched them tightly, till the knuckles showed bloodless and white. The grief within him was beginning to make way for full, hot anger.

The coroner still stood in front of his desk. "I never knew your father, Mr. Rand, but if he was anything like his son I know he must have been a man worth knowing."

Jimmy didn't answer him right away. When he turned away from the window, he gazed steadily into the other man's eyes. He said, simply:

"If I ever find the man who did that thing, I am going to kill him." He spoke slowly, quietly, but with cold finality.

"These things hurt, of course, Mr. Rand, but I would try to forget that part of it if I were you. After all, you know, the law handles these things for us."

"The law," shot back Jimmy, "would give my father's murderer a chance. I don't propose to. I would give him no more chance than he gave my father. I'd shoot him in the back. I wouldn't be satisfied with just killing him. I'd murder him . . . You understand? I'd murder him."

"Oh well." The coroner shrugged his shoulders. "You're young yet, Mr. Rand."

"I was 27 years old yesterday," said Jimmy, "but I'm considerably more than a day older today . . . Poor Dad . . . Why, we were down at his office today and they said he was right at his desk yesterday until two o'clock in the afternoon. His stenographer said he got a phone call about two and left the office immediately afterward."

"Did they know who phoned him?"

"No. Miss Fry—that's his stenographer—said he seemed a little pale and she thought he might be going out for a walk in the fresh air. He didn't say where he was going—Just said he expected to be back in an hour or two."

"And you think that's the call that lured him to his death?"

"No doubt about it in my mind. Probably whoever called did so from a pay station and met him in front of the Canfield Hotel."

"But the day clerk—he said he didn't see your father come in."

"No reason why he should. In the first place, he isn't behind the desk all the time. And there's a stairway right off the entrance that anybody can go up without being seen from where the clerk usually stands."

Jimmy picked up his hat. "Well, I'm going home . . . There's the funeral tomorrow, and a million things to be done."

"How is your mother taking it?" asked the coroner.

"Pretty badly. She's in bed. We've had the doctor. With my sister it's different. She's stood up under it better than most men would."

"There'll be police at the funeral tomorrow of course—in plain clothes. They always make it a point, on the wild hunch, you know, that they'll find some known crook or thug around that they can question. It's a known fact, that the ordinary run of murderer has a morbid curiosity in everything in any way related to his crime . . . More than one has been picked up at his victim's funeral. I might be there myself, Mr. Rand—if you don't mind."

"Of course not, Coroner. You've been kind . . . Everybody has—very kind. Goodby."

"Goodby."

On the way home Jimmy pondered until his head ached over the possible identity of the man who had registered as H. A. Jones . . . This man, he was satisfied, was his father's murderer.

But what possible motive could there have been? He dismissed the one of robbery. His father's pocketbook had been intact . . . . Blackmail? There was nothing in his father's life, he knew, to entertain the thought.

Perhaps he reasoned Henry Rand had possessed a secret that somebody else feared him for. It was possible. At any rate the whole thing, the phone call to Henry Rand's office and the room in the Canfield Hotel was so obviously a trap . . .

He was still puffzling over the problem as he turned in on the board walk in front of the Rand home and opened the door. His sister Janet was standing in the hall, a composed Janet, but with dark shadows beneath her eyes, shadows that told of sleeplessness. She held an opened telegram in her hand.

"What does it mean, Jimmy?" She held it out to him.

He read it: "Print tickets for several Paragon Theaters. However, Paragon Theater in Chicago only one using yellow stock. Budd & Halter."

"It means," said Jimmy, pocketing the telegram, "that I'm leaving for Chicago tomorrow night."

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

NO. 1—THE LAND OF THE BLUE CHERRY.

The Fairy Queen telephoned for the Twins to go to her palace at once as she had a very important errand for them to do.

So they lost no time in hunting up her secret dwelling place, which was south of the Dingle Dell, north of the Windy Wold, west of the Glimmering Glade and east of the Setting Sun.

"How do you do, my dears!" said the Fairy Queen when they arrived. "I'm very happy to see you."

"We're pretty well, thank you," said Nick. "Except that I've got a loose tooth and can't eat apples."

"And I have a scratch on my finger," said Nancy. "Caesar and I were playing and he scratched me."

"Just like a cat!" said the Fairy Queen. "They have queer notions of fun. But there! We're losing time and poor Twinkle Pen is suffering."

"Twinkle Pen!" cried the Twins together.

"Yes," nodded her Royal Highness. "Poor old Twinkle Pen! He is my chief clerk and secretary, you know, who attends to all my business and writes my notes for me. The poor dear fairyman went to take a drink of water last night, and in the dark he picked up his inkwell by mistake and drank all the ink."

"That was terrible!" said Nancy. "Did he die?"

"No," said the Fairy Queen. "Fairies don't die. But he turned black all over at once, then green, then purple, then blue. He's blue now, and his hair is orange. Beside that he is in a most peculiar condition. He can't stop writing. He just sits with a pen in his hand and writes and writes and writes all the time. He's filled up all the paper in the palace and he's beginning on the walls. The ink flows right out through the ends of his fingers. It's terrible indeed."

"Can't he stop?" asked Nick.

"It seems not," said the Fairy Queen. "He's written the A. B. C.'s in twenty languages, the dictionary twice, and added up all the numbers in the telephone book. I'm ever so afraid that he'll begin on 'Forty-nine-Blue-Bottles-a-Hanging-on-the-Wall.' If he does all is lost, for that poem has no end."

"Can we help?" asked Nick.

"Yes, indeed," said the Fairy Queen quickly. "That is why I sent for you. Doctor Pulsen Pills and Doctor Sniffles, the two fairy doctors for whom I sent at once, say that there is a cure for ink drinking. It is a blue cherry."

At that minute Doctor Sniffles himself walked into the room. And upon hearing the Fairy Queen's last words, he remarked, "Yes, a blue cherry is the only cure for our poor friend, as it was blue ink he drank. If he had drunk red ink, any cherry would do to cure him. But unfortunately it was blue ink. Even black ink would have been less difficult to cure, for there are black cherries in plenty. Or green ink would have been—poof!—nothing at all!"

"Of course it had to be blue!" said the Fairy Queen despairingly. "And where are we to find a blue cherry?"

"Aha!" cried a voice at the door. "That was what I was trying to think of—the very word. Blue! Blue! Blue! Forty-nine blue bottles a'hanging on the wall! Tra, la, la, la, la, la! I'll have to write that now. I still have all the sheets and table-cloths and towels and napkins to write on."

And in walked poor Twinkle Pen, looking like a large blue and orange mosquito.

"Me, oh, my!" sighed the Fairy Queen. "The worst has happened. We shall have to find the blue cherry as soon as we can now."

THE DAY'S HUMOR

HE BELIEVED HER.

"Billy and I are engaged."
"You don't mean it."
"No, but he thinks I do."

HIS NEW BED MATE.

Mother—Can't you two children stop quarreling?

Willie—Mother, I wish you would speak to Tommy. He wants to bring his caterpillar to bed with him.

THEN SHE SUED.

"When he refused to marry her, did she take it much to heart?"
"No, she took it to court."

HIS BUSY SEASON.

A burglar, when sentenced, asked: "Your honor, couldn't I start serving my sentence in three months time?"
"Why?" asked the judge.
"You see, your honor, I would lose so much right now. It is the height of our season."

TOO WILLING.

"My dear, I think I shall spend the night at my sister's," came his wife's voice over the phone, "do you care?"
"Not at all," he replied heartily.
"Then I had better take the first train home," she decided.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 3.

Benignant and happy forces rule this day, according to the movements of the stars. The luminaries in trine aspect favor those in the employment of others, and also assist generally to the favor and emolument of high places, a condition aided and abetted by the gracious offices, promising pleasant and felicitous relations and friendships of a business as well as personal nature.

Those whose birthday it is are assured a happy and prosperous year in business as well as personal relations. All affairs of the heart and home are due to flourish, and there is preferment from those in high places as well as recognition for those in employment who are qualified. A child born on this day should be accomplished, artistic and well liked and respected. It should make its best success in the employment of others, although all its undertakings should prosper.

Promise is most given when the least is said.—Chapman.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

It is a shame the way the stomach and intestines are neglected. In some people, the body is permitted to become a veritable cesspool. The wonder is that some persons live at all.

In the Winter time, particularly, the bowels are permitted to fill up with waste material. It is no wonder that indigestion, skin eruptions and all manner of evil things result from this neglect.

The most comfortable, well equipped and properly heated room in the house should be the bathroom. There should be permitted no excuse for bodily neglect by reason of inconvenience or discomfort here. It is the first duty of every household to provide this comfort not for luxury's sake, but for the sake of health and life.

There is no more important lesson to be learned than how to care for stomach and intestines. How to eat and how to dispose of the food waste, are vital to the happiness and welfare of every person.

Do you know how to select foods which are good for you? I know you can select good foods, foods that taste good, but that is quite another story. They may not be good for you at all.

I suppose you are one of that large body of persons who fall back on the old- old excuse: "I have always done these things and so did my father and my grandmother. They lived to be ninety-two."

Just because you had ancesters who lived to be a hundred, means nothing in your young life. What they did with their powerful constitutions you may not be able to do at all. You must live your own life, independent of what your forefathers did.

There can be no doubt that a simple diet, habitually followed, will do much to keep stomach and intestines in working order. Perhaps the surest test of whether or not the diet is well chosen is the action of the bowels. At least one, and, better still, two or three movements during the day, must be had if health is to be maintained.

If the bowel is clogged it means fermentation, germ growth, gas formation and damming back of the fecal stream. Then, from the lowest part of the bowel away up to the stomach, there is trouble in the digestive tract.

Some day soon I shall go into greater detail about the evils which may be traced to neglect oi these organs. Just now I want to urge you to look after the drainage canal, because to do so is essential to your well-being.

If you will keep this passage clean you will add years to your life.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES.

R. L. Q.—What would you advise for bleeding gums—?

A.—This may be due to pyorrhea. You should consult a competent dentist about this condition.

* * *

F. A. M. Q.—What do you advise for heartburn?

A.—This condition may be due to digestion. You should eat the simplest kind of food. Send self-addressed stamped envelope for full particulars and repeat your question.

G. D. Q.—How can I reduce?

A.—By eliminating from your diet as far as possible starches, sugars and fats. Eat plenty of fresh fruit and vegetables. Exercise daily in the open air.

THE POWER OF ADVERTISING AS SEEN BY AN EDITOR

An interesting editorial in the Mt. Vernon, Wash., Herald, captioned "As the editor sees it," has this to say about the power of ads:

It is only the ignorant man who tries today to belittle the influence of advertising.

Advertising has made the Victrola dog famous.

Advertising has run automobiles over the streets of practically every city in the world.

Advertising has started with one restaurant in one city and made a chain of them in scores of cities.

It has made the cash register a big brother to retail merchants throughout the world.

It has made the hand-written letter an oddity in business.

It has put Arrow Collars around your neck and Ingersolls around your wrist.

It has filled you full of shredded and flaked foods, canned vegetables, fruits and meats.

What advertising has done for these enterprises it will do in proportion for your business, regardless of how modest its beginning. It will do for you. Mr. Merchant, what it has done for thousands of advertisers in other fields.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

A GOOD JOKE ON DOTTY

When Dotty saw the two birds, one cramming its long, slender bill down the throat of the other bird, she threw up her hands in horror and cried out loud: "Oh, you horrid little creature! Stop that at once! I'll bet if Squeedee were here you wouldn't fight like that."

"Who's fighting?" asked a tiny voice, and Dotty turned around to see the very elfin himself standing at her side.

"Why, Squeedee," Dotty cried excitedly, pointing to the two birds, "Look at that wicked bird pecking that smaller bird to pieces. Please make him stop this very second or I'll get my brother's gun and——"

"Well, well, Mrs. Humming Bird!" cried Squeedee. "What's all this racket about?"

Out of the smaller bird's throat came the long, sharp bill of the larger bird, and the little bird squawked loudly.

"Hush, hush, my dear," soothed Mrs. Humming Bird to the wee naked bird. "No one's going to harm you."

"Well, if you didn't hurt it with that long needle-like bill of yours," snapped Dotty, "no one ever will. I never in all my life saw anything quite so cruel. Squeedee, make her promise not to do that again. What has that little bird done to deserve such treatment?"

"What are you talking about?" chirped Mrs. Humming Bird. "What have I done, Squeedee, that is so terrible?"

"Why, the way you were cramming your pointed bill down that poor little thing's throat," snapped Dotty, rubbing her finger over the wee bird's naked head. "It's terrible and you should be punished."

Squeedee winked at Mrs. Humming Bird and she laughed merrily.

"Why, my dear," she chirped, "my youngster was only hungry and I was just feeding——"

"What! By cramming your bill down its throat that way?" asked Dotty.

"Surely," laughed Mrs. Humming bird. "You see, I can't feed my children the way most mother birds do. They would soon die if I did. Isn't that so, Squeedee?"

"Yes," replied Squeedee, "Mrs. Humming Bird is right. Mother Humming Bird first eats the food, then when it's partially digested, she pumps it into her babies."

"My goodness!" laughed Dotty, "and here I thought you would surely ram your long bill right through its little body and pin it to the nest. My what an operation!"

The little naked Humming Bird, that, wasn't much larger than a good-sized bumble-bee, once more opened it yellow mouth and began to cry, and the little mother bird once more pumped food into its mouth.

The wee birdling nested down in the tiny soft nest and Mrs. Humming Bird, excusing herself, flew away in search of more food. Dotty stood watching the wee little sleeper a while, then she and Squeedee ran on to the garden in search of new adventure.

WEDDING BELLS.

CORKERY—FITZGERALD.

A quiet wedding was solemnized in the sanctuary of the Church of the Sacred Heart, at eight o'clock this morning, by the Rev. J. J. O'Brien, of Miss Kathleen Fitzgerald, daughter of Mrs. Fitzgerald and the late Patrick Fitzgerald, of Otonabee, and Dennis Corkery, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Corkery, of Otonabee.

After dinner had been served to immediate relatives, the happy couple left on the three-thirty-five train for Toronto, Niagara Falls and Rochester.

Mr. and Mrs. Corkery will take up residence at Lafleche, Sask.

NEWS OF BETHANY

Mrs. Clayton Waram was a visitor with Toronto friends for a few days last week.

Three-Minute Journeys

WHERE THE COMMUNITY HELPS YOU TO SHOP.

Most of us like to have some company when we go shopping. It is a lonely business—shopping by yourself. When you see all the lovely things that are offered for sale, you want to exclaim over them with some friend. And you want to have somebody with you whom you can consult occasionally, for confirmation of your own opinion or for a different opinion. Some trusted friend can always help you when you cannot decide for yourself whether the thing that is offered you is just the thing you want.

If you should ever chance to go shopping in Tientsin, China, you will find that needful company completely without any effort. Whether youWish it or not, your every purchase will be commented upon and you will be advised of whether you have made good or bad bargains for them.

And the commenter, in that case, will not be your carefully chosen best friend, but just as many members of will not be your carefully chosen best he community as happen to be passingf the shop, while you are making your purchases.

You may stroll into a tea shop with several packages under your arm.

After sampling tea, you decide upon your purchase and hearing a noise behind you, you glance about. You find perhaps a dozen interested onlookers. They are appraising the clothes you wear, your walking stick, your muffler, your wrist watch. All this is not done in a spirit of gossip. It is simple, unaffected friendliness. They show their interest in everything you do and have.

They may even open your packages and ask you how much you paid for each of the purchases. They will tell you whether you overpaid. They will inform you as to where you might have done better. If you open your address book or a letter of credit, they will read it over your shoulder with perfectly sincere gravity.

And if perchance, you resent this as an intrusion into your privacy, they will term you a most unaccountable person. They will not understand your reticence.

FIND OLD TOWN.

KENCHESTER, Eng., Jan. 30.—Excavations on a farm near here have resulted in the discovery of what is believed to be the foundations of the forum of the old Roman town of Magna. The lines of the market house, town hall, or law courts, are clearly defined according to the county surveyor who has carried on the work.

Rub It On At Bed-time

For Deep Chest Colds

All colds should be treated with vapors, for vapors alone can carry the medication DIRECTLY to the air passages and lungs.

Vicks is a "vapor" treatment in salve form. For deep chest colds you first apply hot wet towels over throat and chest to open the pores, then massage briskly with Vicks for 5 minutes, spread on thickly and cover with a flannel cloth.

Vicks not only penetrates like a poultice or plaster, but the ingredients, vaporized by the body heat, are inhaled all night long.

This double action usually checks the most stubborn cold overnight.

Graham had a luncheon and bridge at the Empress Hotel on Saturday, and Miss Mildred Morphet also entertained a number of her friends at a small bridge party on Friday evening.

Mrs. Robert Neill and Miss Agnes Neill leave on Thursday for Toronto, where they will spend a few days before sailing for Europe, where they will spend several months on the continent and in the Holy Land.

Miss Nalsh of Toronto, who has been the guest of Mrs. R. H. Turner, returned home yesterday.

Evening Frocks Favor Back Fulness

Following the vogue of outlining the figure this evening frock, developed in soft pink crêpe satin, reveals the smart bustle effect, or back drapery, achieved by means of two semi-circular sections set onto the plain back, held in place by shirrings, and finished with a large bow. Two bands of opalescent trimming form a deep V at the back and front, terminating in one of the new mandarin tassels. A less formal gown may be made of this frock by adding long sleeves which are included in the pattern. No. 1276 is in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. Size 36 bust requires 4⅞ yards 36-inch, or 2¾ yards 54-inch material. The bow requires 1⅛ yards silver or gold ribbon, and opalescent or other fancy trimming 2¾ yards. Price 20 cents.

Every woman's desire is to achieve that smart, different appearance which draws favorable comment from the observing public. The designs illustrated in our new Fashion Book are originated in the heart of the style centers and will help you to acquire that much desired air of individuality. Price of the book 10 cents the copy.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

Dear Annie Laurie:—

I am coming to you for advice, too. I have been engaged to a young man for over two years, and we are very fond of each other. In fact we really think the world of each other. My friend would like to be married in the spring and take up farming, as that is his trade. Would you advise me to go to the farm? And I would like to ask you if it would be right for him to be jealous with me if I should go skating without him or anywhere else?

Awaiting your reply,

BOBBED HAIR.

BOBBED HAIR: If you think that you could be satisfied on a farm, I would certainly advise you to marry this young man, as you are so fond of him. Farm life nowadays is rather attractive than otherwise if one has the means to take advantage of modern improvements, and it is a wonderfully independent life. Of course, the whole thing hinges on your own preference. If you are the type of girl who would despise the routine of the farm and make your husband's life miserable with complaints and wishes to move into the city, you had better not attempt the experiment. A man who loves the land will not be satisfied anywhere else, and you will be a drawback rather than a help to him if you start your married life with a secret feeling that you will persuade him to leave it as soon as possible.

No, it is not right for him to be jealous, as long as you do not flirt with anyone else. But men have a habit of being jealous, whether it is right or not. If you intend to marry him, humour him. Don't try to arouse his jealousy.

Dear Annie Laurie:

I am a boy of eighteen years of age. I am very much in love with a girl that I have known for years but only recently have I fallen in love with her. She never seems to take anything seriously. Could you tell me how I could show her how much I love her or what is the best way I could put the question to her.

Thanking you for your kind advice, I remain,

WAITING.

WAITING: I am very sorry, Waiting, to appear to put a crimp in love's young dream, but a boy of eighteen years of age who has spent several moons past in falling in love with a girl is absolutely hopeless. At your age, you emphatically should not be thinking of telling any girl that you love her, because calf love is not the type that should be spoken about at all. If you are not too far gone in this moon sickness of yours, I would suggest good reading or sports or an interest in music as an antidote for the foolishness you have been dreaming about. The young lady who does not take things seriously at eighteen has far more sense than you have. At that age, you should be thinking of your future career rather than of making love to a girl.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl sixteen years old. My brother's friend wrote him a letter and I broke the seal to see who wrote it. I answered the letter myself, telling him my brother wasn't home at present, but I would send his letter to him. I also asked him if he would be my friend.

I received an answer from the boy saying he would gladly be my friend, and the next I got from him said he was married. It was April, and I thought he might be trying to fool me. So I sat down and wrote him an April fool letter and asked him if he really was married.

He hasn't answered my letter, but, if he does, should I write again?

WORRIED.

WORRIED: It was quite unconventional of you to open your brother's letter, and exceedingly out of taste to write to the young man asking him to be your friend. Persons should be introduced by a mutual friend and not seek out a stranger by letter. Very likely, my dear, the young man is married and was wise enough not to answer your last letter. I trust you won't write to him again.

Menus for the Family

Breakfast—Stewed dried peaches, cereal, thin cream, baked French toast, syrup, milk, coffee.

Luncheon — Cheese fondu, brown bread, grape fruit salad, rolled oats, cookies, milk, tea.

Dinner—Broiled cod steaks, lemon butter, twice baked potatoes, diced beets in butter sauce, radishes, rice souffle, bran rolls, milk, coffee.

Although children under school age may not eat the luncheon salad nor the dinner radishes they will find a nourishing, varied menu the day without these two dishes. They may of course be served the lettuce and some of the celery used in the salad.

Grape Fruit Salad.

Two green peppers, 1 cup grape fruit pulp, 1-2 cup minced celery slice onion, 2 tablespoons nut meats, 2 teaspoons sugar, 1-4 teaspoon salt.

Cut peppers in halves lengthwise. Remove pith and seeds. Remove pulp from grape fruit. Drain. There should be 1 cup of fruit after draining. Use juice in the dressing in place of lemon juice. Rub bowl in which salad is to be mixed with slice of onion. Mix sugar and salt and sprinkle over fruit. Let stand a few minutes and combine celery, nuts and grape fruit. Pour over French dressing and fill peppers with mixture. Sprinkle with paprika and serve on a bed of lettuce.

THE VALUE OF FISH IN THE DIET.

The best, cheapest and most easily digested food is fish. Fish, being very nutritious and easily digested, should be used in the invalid's diet and for nursery dishes. The following recipes are chosen for these two uses.

Poached Fillets.

Butter over a frying pan and lay the fillets in it, then pour over a cupful each of fish stock and hot water, add a little pepper and salt and cook gently for ten minutes. Lift with a skimmer to a hot dish and then add a cupful of cream to a cupful of the broth, season, thicken with white roux and pour over the fillets. Garnish with sprays of fresh water cress.

Fish Turbot.

Take two pounds of fresh codfish cut from the shoulders and broil it in the usual way. Drain and cool the fish, then remove all skin and bones and flake it fine. Add to it a grated onion, pepper, salt, and put a layer in the bottom of a well-buttered baking dish. Dust with a few fine crumbs, dot with butter and add another layer of fish and so on until the dish is filled, having crumbs on top. Dot the top with butter, dust with seasoning, and pour over a small cupful of rich cream. Bake for twenty minutes to a half hour in a medium oven. If desired, drawn butter may be served with the fish.

Broiled Fillets.

Flounder or blue fish may be filleted for this dish. Dip each of the fillets into a little melted butter, dust with pepper and salt, and place on a greased broiler. Broil delicately, turning the broiler if it is one used over a wood or coal fire, or turn the fish with a spatula if it is cooked over or under a gas flame. Serve on a hot dish, garnished with lemon quarters and parsley.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Cremulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Limited, Toronto. Ont.

FASHION NOTES.

(Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, Jan. 30 (United Press).—Due to Mrs. Henderson's criticism of short skirts, the ladies of Washington society have christened a new scarf which is sufficiently long to extend below the skirt, "The Henderson Scarf." This scarf is merely a three yard length of chiffon, usually finely pleated, which wraps once about the throat with ends falling below the hemline of the frock. They are most attractive when made of the same shade as the frock as they then appear to be part of the frock itself. Bright, gaudy colors are not effective in such long scarfs.

The popular New York hotels offer many ideas in dancing costumes. Of course, everyone is certain by this time that chiffons and velvets are the ruling fabrics for evening wear. Young women prefer chiffons whereas matrons appear to best advantage in velvets or soft brocades. This week a new note was stressed when several girls appeared in tulle or chiffon frocks posed over gold or silver slips harmonizing with their dancing pumps. The slip in most cases was slender-lined while the sheer overdresses of tulle or chiffon in lovely pastel shades wree circular or ruffled.

Buckles of every description are being stressed for footgear of dressy type. Bright silver buckles ar worn by many although mostwomen feel thate cut-steel or bronze are quite as lovely and less conspicuous than silver metal These large buckles are worn, of course, with pump shades. Strapped shoes merely use tiny buckles through which the straps may slip and the buckle in this case is worn at the side covering the shoe button. Small bow-knots in cut steel or bronze are used as strap slips.

Taffeta is becoming again a popular material for the afternoon and evening frock. Often a plain black taffeta will be made with three scalloped ruffles set on in apron-front effect with each scallop outlined in flowered taffeta. Uneven hemlines are used to some extent on taffeta frocks. In evening models, for instance, the full skirt may be cut shorter in front than at the rear with the hem faced in cloth of gold.

SEVEN ANSWERS WILL TELL WHETHER YOU WIN OR LOSE

Here is How to Test the Success of Your Marriage Venture.

KINDS OF LOVE.

True Mate Love Shows Agreement on All Seven Points.

BY VIRGINIA SWAIN
NEA Service Writer.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—Here's a way to test your marriage—to ascertain mathematically if you're ever going to celebrate a golden wedding.

It has been devised by Dr. David Seabury, noted psychologist, and is based on a wealth of study and experiment.

A grade of 70 is necessary to establish a successful matrimonial adventure. Fifty-one per cent will do for good friendship, but is not enough to justify a wedding.

To make a grade of 70, you must qualify on five of the seven major points of temperamental agreement.

And the time is coming, Dr. Seabury thinks, when persons planning to marry will not only have to present the proper score, but also have to produce papers showing mental health from the age of five.

The seven points of temperament on which married happiness depends are: physical attraction, activities, emotion, intellect, ethics, ideals and religion.

Agreement on any five of these assures successful family life.

Love itself is also classified under seven heads in the new psychology.

First there is true mate love, such as that between Elizabeth and Robert Browning, in which there is perfect agreement on all the seven points. Mate love is very rare.

Then there is romantic love, like that of Romeo and Juliet, which would have vanished the first time Romeo saw Juliet with cold cream on her face. This is a bad foundation for marriage.

Third, emotional love, such as that which a dog has for its master, offers a poor basis for matrimony.

Fourth, there is sex attraction, which, unsupported by deeper love, soon dies down.

Fifth, the so-called secondary love is the satisfaction in home and children which often takes the place of actual affection for the mate.

The sixth type is that caused by propinquity and common interests, and the seventh is frigid, or, as Dr. Seabury calls it, "lunch basket love," whose main goal is a home and three squares a day.

Dr. Seabury's marriage clinic, which he holds as a part of his work as doctors' consultant, is a place where husbands and wives may be introduced to each other, psychologically speaking.

Dr. Seabury first talks to the man alone and then to the woman. Then he confers with with them together, and describes the temperament of each to the other, outlining the adjustments needed, and explaining causes of friction.

One of the commonest troubles is the clash of a father complex with a mother complex. That is, a woman who has always depended on her father to take care of her marries a man who requires the care of a mother. Both are miserable because they cannot get what they want and the marriage usually breaks up.

Dr. Seabury and his colleagues can solve 60 out of every 100 cases of marital difficulty presented to them, they claim.

The idea seems to be that good matches are made in the psychological laboratory rather than in heaven.

The ORACLE

This day we fashion Destiny, our web of Fate we spin. —Whittier.

Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute. —Milton.

A. R. G.—Yours is a somewhat conflicting personality. You were destined to a mild type of existence and above all, to make a fine home for some man. Circumstances of your life, however, have cast you in another role—in the business world. You should marry as soon as possible—with someone born in January, September or October. Avoid flirtations. May and July are good months for you and Friday is your lucky day. And when you marry, do not choose the sort of man who will want to make a servant of you. You have ability with both head and hands and like the good things of life. Do not be deceived by appearances or showy people. Cultivate as much as possible the spiritual side of your nature. You should be a skilful embroiderer and decorator. Be careful in your selection of food, so as to avoid stomach trouble.

You were born on Saturday.

The day of which you enquire, a Saturday, is a day for individuality in thought and action.

Your colors are orange and gray.

I. A. F.—Young man, you are just starting out in life, so I am going to tell you to mind your step. By natural inclination, you are strong, active and daring, but you are inclined to be self-centred and domineering and to disregard the rights of others. Followed out to its natural conclusion, this nature will not get you anywhere. You will constantly be striking snags that will impede your progress in every way. What you have to learn—and learn it now, before it is too late—is that success will come to you only through the exercise of cleverness rather than of force.

Cloak that force of yours under a diplomatic curtain that will soften and make agreeable to the world that resistless power that you want to exert and exercise at all times. Diplomacy must be your watchword in life. You will not be very happy when away from home and should try to buy a pleasant home of your own early in life. Guard against a high temper and choose your friends carefully, as you will be susceptible to influence from others.

You were born on Tuesday. The day you ask about is past. Your color is flame, in all its variations.

REA.—Marriage is your forte. Why waste your time in the business world? And when you do get married, do not flirt. A step in the wrong direction will wreck your life. Take that special talent of yours and develop it, regardless of anything anyone else may say. One thing you will have to remember when you get married is this fact: Embroidery on a luncheon cloth may suit your idea of a pretty finish for a table, but your husband will prefer a well-cooked dinner. Get busy and learn how to make him a good meal. You don't know much about it now. Study how to please and get what you want by smiling, rather than by frowning. The velvet glove is always the best policy for you. You would make a good nurse, but if you adopt that profession, don't let it interfere with your manifest destiny—as the maker of a home—after you have learned to control that capricious instinct of yours. It might be as well to remember too that there are some men who do not want to be run after. Make yourself more attractive and gentle, and they will come to you.

You were born on Monday.

Your colors are orange and gray, also scarlet.

V. B. H. (Kitty).—You should succeed in any career devoted to science or business achievement. Attainment will come to you in mental pursuits, but you must not attempt, that is as long as you remain unmarried, to stand alone. For you, "union is strength," and you should associate yourself carefully with others in any enterprises on which you may embark. Do not, either, attempt to control the affairs of others. You will fail miserably. You are inclined to talk too much and should learn the value of silence. You have a quick perception and a vivid mentality, but are inclined to be rather restless and skeptical, and should cultivate self-esteem and self-assertiveness. Do not ask unnecessary questions. That provokes other people. Within the next ten years, you may have a serious illness, but you will enjoy better health and more success afterwards.

You were born on Saturday.

Your colors are tan and opal shades.

Chick.—You will have to strive constantly to overcome indecision of character. Cultivate firmness above everything else, and avoid any evil influences that might tend to take you on the downward path. Do not allow yourself ever to become "blue." Your destiny is to help others and "service" is the keynote of your life—service for others, inspired by love. Do not, however, allow this tendency to hurt your own life, and make you serve your neighbors and family to the detriment of yourself. You have a kindly, amiable disposition and should make many friends as you go through life.

You were born on Thursday.

Your color is pink.

M. A. H. (Humkie).—You are rather young yet to have formed your life. You will have to guard, all the days of your existence, against a certain dark, mystical strain in your nature. It will serve you well enough if you devote it to analysis of religion, but do not allow yourself to be involved at any time in spiritualism or hypnotic research. A business career should suit you admirably, and you should be quite successful in any enterprise involving business, commerce or finance. If you belonged to a religion which sustained such institutions, I would say that you would make an admirable nun. However, if you choose the life of the world, learn to know the value of money and your business instinct will probably lead you to financial success. You would make a good dealer in real estate. You are very neat, kind and amiable, but you dislike routine intensely. Strive for habits of order and for patience and live a simple, wholesome life. Nervous disorders and stomach trouble will often be caused by impatience.

You were born on Thursday.

Your colors are steel and brick.

L. L. F.—You have a well-rounded nature, which should make for you a successful life. Happiness and success, however, will come with higher development of your spiritual nature, as you are inclined to live too much in the physical enjoyment of life. People born under your star have only to try hard to do great things in order to accomplish them, and your destiny in life is to bring happiness and joy to others and, as a consequence, to yourself. In following out this path, you will achieve most. A high degree of mentality is also indicated. Mental, business or scientific pursuits would suit you best. You must guard against a certain capriciousness in your make-up, which will not tend to a happy married life. Do not allow your natural kindness to lead you to assume the burdens of others and learn self-control first, last and always. The mental and the spiritual influences of life, if allowed to control you, will lead you on the right path. If you remain subservient to the senses, you will not be happy or successful, or make others about you happy. Think it over.

You were born on Friday.

The date you ask about is past.

Your colors are opal and tan.

ALERTS WIN ON LAKEFIELD ICE

Grove Defeated By 7 to 4 in Game Full of Thrills

AND PENALTIES.

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 2.—Alerts and Groves played a splendid game last night, with a final score of 7 to 4 in favor of Alerts, in the Lakefield league. The play was fast throughout thrilling the big crowd of supporters of both teams.

In the first period, Jack Ridpath scored at 2 minutes; Loosemore scored for Grove 5 minutes later and R. Hill shot a minute later to sore for Alerts. Penalties, Griffith and Wanamaker.

Loosemore scored the only goal of the second period. There were two penalties, Kerr and S. Hill.

With a tie at the opening of the third period, Jack Ridpath scored at one minute for Alerts, and R. Hill scored 8 minutes later. Griffith followed at 3 minutes later and Cullen tallied after 60 seconds. R. Hill scored for Alerts and followed it up with another immediately after. Just before the gong Ridpath shot in another to make sure, and Alerts had won by 7 to 4.

Penalties— Kerr (2), S. Hill, Payne and Wanamaker, Colborne (2), Griffith.

Griffith and Loosemore played a remarkably fine game for Grove, while Kerr, Ridpath and S. Hill starred up ice for the winners, with F. Hill performing wonders in goal.

Lineups.

Alerts—Goal, Frank Hill; right defence, Kerr; left defence, Sherman Hill; centre, Ridpath; right wing, F. Wanamaker; left wing, R. Hill; subs Payne, Hamblin.

Grove—Goal, Strickland; right defence, Hudson; left defence, Pullen; centre, Loosemore; right wing, Griffith; left wing, Cockburn; subs, Miall, Robertson, Earle.

Referee—A. Graham, Jr.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 2—At a meeting of the Curling club Monday night it was decided to hold the annual open bonspiel on the 16th, 17th and 18th inst. and the following committees were appointed to look after the arrangements:

Bonspiel committee—S. J. Moore, chairman; A. J. Meyers, A L. Riendeau, W. S. Wiggins, and R. H. Cole.

Ice committee—P. J. Kelly and P. J. Smith.

There are three trophies to be played for, two of which are now held by Campbellford rinks. The Victoria trophy was won at the bonspiel last year by R. Dunk and the Campbellford trophy went to the rink skipped by D. W. Douglas. The trophy donated by A. L. Riendeau was won on the same occasion by J. N. Bacon of Peterborough.

SENIOR RACE CLOSE

TORONTO, Feb. 2.—It is going to be a mighty hard job to keep that Kitchener team out of the play-off for honors in the eastern O.H.A. senior group. Right now the Green Shirts are leading the caravan and it was a Saturday night victory by 4 to 1 over Osgoode Hall at the Arena that made it possible for the Twin City aggregation to assume command. As things stand now, the group record is:

Teams.	W.	L.	T.	F.	A.
Kitchener	4	1	1	35	11
Osgoode Hall.. 4	2	0	22	13
Parkdale..	4	2	0	17	17
Peterboro	3	2	1	25	13
Toronto....	1	5	0	10	27
Hamilton..	1	5	0	12	40

Games this week: Wednesday, Toronton Canoe Club at Kitchener, Osgoode Hall at Parkdale.

Friday: Kitchener at Hamilton, Osgoode Hall at Peterboro.

ANNUAL MEETING SOCCER ASSOC.

Important Business Was Transacted; Rules Changed in Signing and Offsides.

ONE CITY LEAGUE.

The annual general meeting of the Peterboro and District Football Association was held last evening in the Chamber of Commerce rooms. In the absence of the president, Mr. Wyllie, who has left the city, a chairman was appointed to carry on the business for the evening. On the motion of J. Burton, Sr., and seconded by T. Stewart, Wm. Anderson was appointed chairman for the evening.

No Financial Report Given.

The auditors did not give a report on the financial standing, owing to the lack of the necessary books for the season 1925 and appointed a committee to get full information before giving a full report.

Write to Omemee.

The secretary was instructed to write Omemee Football Association with the view to their connection with the local soccer league, and get full information.

Signing Players.

It was unanimously agreed to change the rule regarding the "signing on" of players that in future a player signed on a Wednesday will be allowed to play on a Saturday but his letter containing the registration form must bear the Wednesday post-mark when received by the secretary. Also next season, the "offside rule" will be adopted as according to International Board ruling.

Recommend One Association.

After many discussions, the meeting was of "one mind" that a one Association in the city was the only and satisfactory way to encourage the sport in the district. They decided to hold a conference with all parties concerned in the near future so as to get a census of opinion for the welfare of the game. They expect to get an eight-team league, if possible.

HAYMAKERS THAT MADE HISTORY;

Villa Wins Flyweight Title From Johnny Buff.

By JOE WILLIAMS.

Pancho Villa didn't deal in individual haymakers; he bartered in wholesale quantities and he was seldom cheated in a trade. You never spoke of Pancho's punch — you gibbered in high, hysterical notes of "Pancho's punches."

The Golden Atom, flyweight champion, who died "in office" in San Francisco last summer from complications arising from an ulcerated tooth, was one of the most savage, whirlwind types of fighters the modern game has known.

It was this rushing, constantly battering style of battle that won the brown-skinned Filipino the flyweight championship of the world from Johnny Buff, the American, at Ebbetts field, Brooklyn, Sept. 14, 1922.

Starting at the opening gong, Villa pounced upon Buff with such a shower of left and right hooks the champion was bewildered. There was no adequate defense for such an attacker. Nobody tries to fight back at a tornado.

Villa responded to each lead by Buff with five blows of his own, beating a tattoo on Johnny's face and body like cold November rain slapping on a tavern roof.

As the fight wore on Buff began swinging wild and Villa's confidence grew. His speed of hand and foot was so great he made you think of a bumble bee darting in and out while his enemy struck wildly and ineffectually.

Johnny weakened perceptibly in the sixth. He had put his full force in a straight punch that landed squarely, without slowing the Golden Atom in the least. It seemed to take the heart out of the American.

The blow that told ringsiders they were gazing upon a new champion came in the tenth. Buff ventured a left. Villa responded with a rush and flurry of fists. Out of the confusion there suddenly darted a lithe brown right glove that crashed squarely into Buff's jaw.

The champion staggered half way across the ring. Villa was after him like a cat after a mouse. Both hands swinging, he rocked Buff from side to side with a fusillade of blows. A stray right connected with Johnny's jaw and he toppled to his hands and knees.

Buff, badly muddled, made his first serious mistake of the fight at this point. Without waiting for the count to give him a chance to round up some widely scattered wits, he staggered back to his feet and tried to slug with Villa. A blurred flurry—and spectators had their second glimpse of Buff skidding to the canvas, his nose neatly dividing the resin for several inches.

As the champion lay squirming on the floor, with Referee Patsy Haley slowly chanting him out, the bell tinkled, saving Buff from a certain knockout.

Buff's seconds did what they could with him during the breathing spell, but Johnny came out for the eleventh still out on his feet. Villa met him with a storm of lefts and rights, buffeting the groggy champion like a reed in a storm. Buff finally dropped his hands hopelessly and at that moment a towel sailed into the ring.

LENGLEN WINS TWO STRAIGHT

Defeated Emily Haeffely in the First Round at Nice.

TOOK DOUBLES, TOO.

NICE, France, Feb. 2 (Canadian Press). — Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, French champion, went through the first round of the singles in the Nice tennis tournament yesterday, defeating Miss Emily Haeffely of England, 6-0, 6-0. Then, paired with Baron Henri De Morpurgo, she defeated Mlle, Ducros and Paul Jaureguiberry by a similar score.

The assurance that Helen Wills and Suzanne Lenglen will meet across the tennis nets for the first time in the Nice tournament which opened yesterday, even if only in the mixed doubles, caused a spirited rush for the box office yesterday.

Mlle. Lenglen and her partner are regarded as certain to reach the finals in the upper half of the mixed doubles draw, in which they are seeded. Miss Wills and C. F. Aeschlimann are seeded in the lower half, where they will meet stiff competition. They must dispose of Mrs. Satterthwaite and the Hon. F. M. B. Fischer and also Mrs. Radcliffe and the veteran Stanley Doust before they reach the finals.

CONTROL.

The baseball pitcher's greatest asset is control, putting the ball where he wants to. The same applies to the bowler. It's the main thing in the ten-pin game, the most essential asset of any good player.

I can't dwell on the importance of control too much. Set out to acquire it. True, it will take time. But if you desire to be a success at the game you must have patience and perseverance. And plenty of both.

If you are to turn in strikes you must have control to put the ball where you want it—in the 1-3 groove. If you want to pick up your spares you needs must have control to cut down those odd pins here and there. And if you hope to cash in on your splits you must also have control to do it.

Many famous baseball pitchers have extended their big league careers several season after much of their stuff had left them simply because they possessed that big requisite—control. They knew where certain pitches would fool certain batters. And with their control they could hurl the ball just where they wanted.

Get control above anything else. For until you are able to shoot 'em where you desire you won't have much success as a bowler.

According to reliable estimate there are at least 35,000 bowling alleys in the United States.

SPRING WEATHER.

The time has come to speak of spring weather. It seems to be the general opinion that we are to have some sort of weather this spring.

* * *

The country at present is divided into two separate and distinct factions: (a) predicting an early and pleasant spring and (b) forecasting a late and utterly disagreeable spring.

* * *

There is no way to tell definitely which is right or why and the old-fashioned means of detecting the approach of spring by bock beer posters is no longer tolerated in our best drinking circles.

* * *

It used to be you could tell when spring was emerging from her winter stupor by the endless armies of ball players heading for Florida and other southern loafing points.

* * *

But now even this means nothing or less, for all the star left-handers own vast estates in the Dixie resort centers and devote what is known as their off-season to riding to the hounds and contests of archery and such.

* * *

In grandpop's time you could tell that spring wasn't more than three squares away when the store windows displayed new straw styles and flappers of the period began shedding fur scarfs, like a regal wiggler in Salome's time.

* * *

What's on the menu today besides tongue and spinach? The blond annoyances wear straw hats in blizzard's like Thursday's and furs in heat waves like July 16.

* * *

If you try to dope the weather by what they wear you'll get nowhere .....If you try to dope it by what they don't wear you'll get there even faster.

* * *

One of the few surviving pedestrians reports close up view of the first robin of spring in Toronto.... He saw it in a taxidermists's shop.

RETAIN CAREW CUP.

Oshawa Rink Defeated 21-7 at Lindsay.

LINDSAY, Feb. 2.—Monday afternoon an Oshawa rink, skipped by Geo. Peacock played Larry O'Connor's tankard rink for the Carew Cup, which has been travelling all over the country, and which was won by Lindsay last week. The visitors were defeated by the score of 21 to 7. Glanford club is next in line with a challenge. The rinks:

HOCKEY TEAM CONFIDENT.

Defeat By Cloth Works Team Not Disheartening to Menie.

BURNBRAE, Feb. 2—The Menie hockey team is not at all discouraged over the 3-1 defeat at the hands of the Cloth Works team last week. The players feel that with a few more practices and the addition of two or three good subs they will be able to make the other teams in the league step out. In spite of their lack of condition, the local boys clearly outplayed the town team, but were thwarted many times by Owens' uncanny work in the nets. A pleasing feature of the game was the large attendance of Menie supporters showing that local people are taking an interest in the team.

MARITIMES SOLD THEIR LIVES FOR PROSPECT OF GREAT CANADA

Prosperity of Eastern Provinces Dwindled After Confederation.

MONTREAL ADDRESS.

MONTREAL, Feb. 2 (Canadian Press).—Divided allegiance and absentee financial management were two Canadian drawbacks cited by Ira A. Mackay, M.A., Ph.D., dean of the Faculty of Arts, McGill University, in the course of an address to the Young Men's Canadian Club here last evening on the subject: "Some Further Reflections on the Present Political Situation in Canada." Some pay allegiance to Canada first and only, said Dean Mackay. Some pay their principal allegiance to Great Britain and the Motherland; while still others paid allegiance to the Empire.

"We are by derivation of origin a people with fundamentally divided allegiance," Dean Mackay submitted, adding: "And it is written that a house divided against itself cannot stand."

In condemning the other general problem of Canada, which he termed absentee financial management, Dean Mackay had under specific study the Maritime situation. He lamented the number of businesses and industries that had started in a small way in the Maritimes and had come to naught, many of which, however, had become big things abroad. He declared his conviction that industry demands inherent interest in it to survive, an interest which people of the same community were best able to provide, and in this connection it was felt that head offices of banks far away from the actual scene having the final say in supplying financial assistance to small industries, namely "absentee financial management" was "one of the worst evils we have."

Maritimes Dwindled.

Dean Mackay confined his main remarks to a discussion of the Maritime Provinces. Himself a son of Nova Scotia, he deplored the dwindling of the Maritimes strength. He was particularly forceful in referring to the record of shipbuilding in the Maritimes. From 1840 to 1860, he said, there were more ships built in the Maritimes than in any other country, not excluding Britain. In 1855 there were 1,500 sea captains sailing out of Nova Scotia ports. One half of the trade going out of Boston was in Nova Scotia bottoms, owned by Nova Scotia proprietors, and manned by Nova Scotia skippers.

Dean Mackay then developed the theme, speaking of the subsequent substitution of steel ships for wooden ships, and the various steps leading up to Confederation. In respect to the first point, he declared that if the government and the rest of Canada had shown the same enthusiasm in behalf of the Maritimes at this time of change in the construction of ships, as they subsequently showed in similar enterprises in other parts of the Dominion, the plight of the Maritimes might have been averted.

Regarding the point on Confederation, the plight of the Maritimes might have been averted.

Regarding the point on Confederation, he declared that the Maritimes turned their eyes from seaboard to land, and had sold their lives for the prospect of a great Dominion.

Dean Mackay had some caustic words to say about the laying of the Intercolonial Railway lines. He believed that it should have cut through what is now Maine. He affirmed, however, that the Maritimes position was not a matter of railway routes but loss of shipping.

Tale Not Yet Ended

"Forgetting Maritime rights may cost us a sorry sum in terms of Canadian unity, independence and security before the tale is told," he warned.

Other problems of the Maritimes discussed were: mixed industry, particularly mixed agrarian industry; flotation isolation; education; bad government.

More natural products are produced in the Maritimes than in any other country," and they were in as good a position to build steel ships as wooden ships," Dean Mackay said.

Under the heading of "flotation," he spoke of predatory promoters from Montreal and Toronto swamping small industries starting up.

Under "isolation," he dwelt on the "marooned" position of the Maritimes between present great trans-Atlantic movements, namely, north by the St. Lawrence, and south through New England ports.

It would be an unsound economic condition were we as a nation to be forced to rely upon the United States, to receive and export our goods during the winter season. The Maritimes give us the advantage of open winter shipping and this obligates us to assist them. I recognize this obligation and I propose to leave nothing undone in discharging this obligation which the nation owes to them."

Taking up the question of the diversion from Canadian routes of a year of 128,000,000 bushels of Canadian grain to United States ports the Buffalo and New York, Sir I pointed out that the shipment with grain was a matter of economic ocean shipping conditions, tion, greater shipping facilities of a un-States ports, with the possibil gam- "spot" shipping and other lissi- ive conditions appealed to thes of pers of and provided an indu nter for the diversion of exports iwell direction. or-

"Let me say," Sir Henry decl n, "that the Canadian National he ways have no object dearer to the heart than the desire to encourag the export of wheat through Canadian Maritime ports."

In touching on the use of coal mined in Western Canada in the East, Sir Henry emphasized the point that he stood for a self-contained and nationally united Canada. "We desire to assist in a wholehearted way to prevent the people of Canada from leaning on a foreign country for its fuel supply and to prevent our money from crossing the border to another nation; it is the economic thing to do. But if bringing coal from the West or the East involves a reduction of freight rates below the cost of carrying, then I think that the burden of carrying the coal should be placed where it properly belong, and not upon the railways but upon federal or provincial subsidies or both. Thus the people will know at the end of the year the cost of the movement and be in a position to analyze the figures of their coal balance sheet."

In conclusion, Sir Henry warned the gathering that if they considered the remedy for the coal or grain question to lie in a reduction of freight rates, they were opening the door to "almost chaotic consequences," and asked the question that if rates were reduced for coal, why might a reduction not be demanded on boots, clothes and other commodities?

"I do not think, said the C.N.R. President, in conclusion," that the Canadian National should be called upon to correct all the economic ills of the country, but if the people feel that the Canadian National should be called upon to reduce its freight rates to cure those ills, it would relieve me of the anxiety as to the result of its net earnings. The property is yours and with you must rest the decision. Does the progress made by the system justify an optimistic outook regarding the future? Does it suggest that instead of breaking it up, absorbing or destroying it, does it not suggest that you may have a thing of usefulness in your economic development, a thing which properly fostered may be an asset? You alone have to say what must be done."

CANADIAN NATIONAL LINES SOON AN ASSET, THORNTON'S OPINION

Railways Belong to the People and Should Receive Their Support.

TORONTO, Feb. 2.—In an address before the Canadian Club yesterday, Sir Henry Thornton denied that the National Railways were costing the people $100,000,000 a year but only $53,000,000 when assets created were credited, and concluded with the prophecy that the Canadian National Railways would ere long become an asset to the people of Canada.

"Some people," he said, "would like to see the C.N.R. disappear.

"This is the open season for hunting the Canadian National Railway," he said. "On all sides gunners are at work. Some abuse us for purchasing coal in the Maritimes. Some want lower freight rates and others don't, but they are conspicuous by their absence.

"There appeared from time to time such organizers that may be called "The Railway Abusers' Association'," said Sir Henry in reference to the Railway Users' Association.

Sir Henry stated that in his opinion the National Railways was rapidly approaching the day when it would cease to be a burden upon the people of Canada. The Canadian National Railways was a business enterprise and must be conducted as such. The Canadian National was relatively a new system and had to be advertised to make itself known. "The results of our policy has been reflected in the figures showing our net earnings," he continued, "and I should like to state that the general improvement of the road has taken place without deterioration and with no hardship to the officers and men.

In fact, much of the success attained was due to the loyal support of all the employees. They are proud of the Canadian National and of the patriotic service which they are giving to Canada in the building up of a valuable public utility."

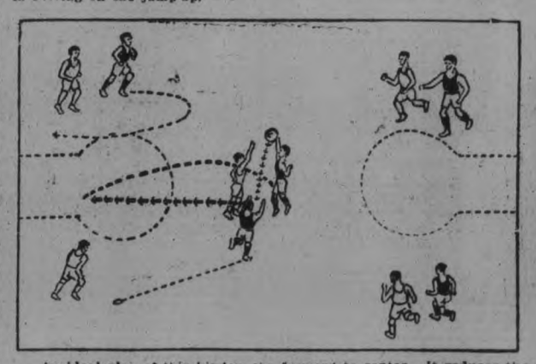
The aim of the Canadian National, Sir Henry stated, was to co-operate in every way with the people and to help in building up the nation. "All the people can contribute their share in this national work," Sir Henry added. We must remember that we owe a debt to the Maritime Provinces. They have the only winter ports on our eastern seaboard.

BASKETBALL

By THE CAPTAIN

NO. 18—FORWARD TO CENTER

A center's primary use on the toss-up is to give your team possession of the ball by out-jumping his opponent and in following-up shots that other teammates might not make good. But he can be used also in scoring on the jump-up.



An ideal play of this kind is the forward to center. It reduces the number of men handling the ball to two if worked successfully, and gives you an added offensive threat in your man at center.

The center taps the ball to the left forward. He, taking the tap while on the run, incurs no danger of interception if the guards keep out the opposing forwards. The center, seeing that his left forward has gained possession of the ball, cuts past the opposing team's center down the middle of the floor, where he takes a shot at the basket.

The main thing to guard against is that neither of the opposing forwards takes the ball from your man going in to take the tap. Your right forward, however, must also stay within himself and his opponent, so that the center has a clear path to the goal.

Once the center has gained possession of the ball near the basket, the right forward goes in for a follow-shot. The left forward, having made the pass successfully, also goes up to the basket to follow should his teammates miss.

BILLY EVANS Says:

From just a pinch-hitter to a regular big league berth in the outfield in one short year.

In a sentence that sums up the career of Walter French as a member of the Philadelphia Athletics. Not so many years ago French was a football star at West Point, as well as a sensational diamond performer.

Connie Mack, in summing up his plans for the coming season, has made the definite announcement that French is his choice for right field.

With French in right field and Al Simmons in centre, the Athletics will present the unusual spectacle of two players using baseball stances that are entirely unorthodox.

Simmons pulls badly from the plate, yet is one of the greatest batsmen in the American League. Some critics refer to him as "Foot-in-the-Water Bucket" Simmons. American League pitchers say a lot of worse things about him.

French hits the ball with his feet wide spread. He doesn't step into the ball, but rather hits from a flat-footed position. Opposing pitchers ridicule his style, but Walter does more than that to their offerings.

French is probably the fastest man in the American League, straight away. When the 1925 season opened his role was that of pinch-runner and hitter. He was remarkably successful at both.

In the difficult job of pinch-hitter, French had a batting streak from June 30 to July 25 that was decidedly out of the ordinary. In that period he was used nine times. He responded with six hits, laid down a sacrifice and struck out twice.

Thus in nine times at bat he delivered as Connie Mack would have him, six safe drives and a sacrifice as per instructions. Average .750.

His ability to hit in pinches so impressed Mack that it finally won him a berth as a regular. He immediately proceeded to prove to the estimable Mr. Mack that he had made no mistake.

Starting with the game of September 16, French played 14 games in right field before the close of the season. He hit safely in 11 of them, getting 21 hits, four of his drives being good for two bases. In four of the games he hit safely three times.

During the season he was used as a pinch-hitter on 39 occasions and had a mark of .351, an average of better than a hit in every three times up. His season's average was .370.

If French can continue where he left off as a hitter, his presence in the Philadelphia outfield is going to make Mack's club more dangerous than ever as a pennant contender.

INSURANCE OFFICIALS

Important changes in the management of the North American Life Assurance Company were announced this week at the annual meeting. Mr. L. Goldman, whose picture is shown on the upper left, above, retires as president and general manager, after more than 40 years' connection with the company. W. B. Taylor, upper right, formerly secretary, succeeds Mr. Goldman. Mark Bredin, lower left, president of the Canada Bread Company, becomes vice-president and director; Hon. Geo. S. Henry, lower right, with Arthur McMaster, K.C.; H. H. Ardagh, Toronto, barrister, and Avern Pardoe, president of Dominion Canners, were elected new directors.

PRESENTATION TO LIFFORD FARMER

Mr. and Mrs. William Whitesides Are Leaving For Bethany.

BETHANY, Feb. 2. — A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Whitesides on Tuesday evening last, when friends and acquaintances gathered at their beautiful country home to present them with a small token of their esteem on the eve of their departure for their new home in the village of Bethany. Mr. and Mrs. Whitesides have lived for over 20 years near Lifford and have made many warm friends, who regret to lose them and their family from their immediate neighborhood. The following address was read by Mr. Geo. Peters, while a beautiful silver tea set and mantel clock were presented by the committee:

To Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Whitsides.

"Dear Friends.— We, your neighbors and friends having learned that you contemplate in a short time to sever your connection with us, have taken this opportunity of assembling here tonight for the purpose of expressing in a tangible way our appreciation and esteem of you as neighbors and citizens of this community.

"We regret that you have decided to change your place of abode and to remove yourselves from our midst, yet we have this consolation in the fact that what will be our loss will be a gain to the community in which you are about to take up your place of residence. We have always found you and your good wife ever ready to extend the hand of friendship and hospitality to those of our community and always ready to exercise the axiom 'A Friend in Need is a Friend Indeed.'

"As a memorable evidence of our esteem for you, we beg you to accept this clock and this tea set to be regarded by you, not for their intrinsic value, but as a remainder of the feeling of friendship, love and respect which people of this locality have for you.

"We sincerely hope that you may both be spared to enjoy many years of comfort, health and happiness in your new home and although you will make many new friends yet may these slight tokens cause your reflections to wander back to your old friends of Lifford community and the many happy days we spent together, assuring you also of a hearty welcome whenever you wish to come back amongst us.

"The years roll on. You sit by your fireside in the twilight of a well-spent life and listen to this clock as it softly tolls the chimes of time, your reflections will wander back to those good old times we spent together and the radiance of those happy days we trust will make your closing years like the setting of a sun that melts away into the glorious light of Heaven.

"Signed on behalf of Lifford Community.—O. Staples, C. H. Tims, Herb Neals, Walter A. Neals."

Mr. Whiteside made a suitable reply on behalf of himself and wife and thanked the givers for their most beautiful gifts, assuring them that their home would ever stand open to them, let it be near or far, and as proof of this threw over his home to the guests for the evening to amuse themselves in whatever manner they wished, with the result that a pleasant time was spent in dancing and games and a dainy lunch was served.

Mr. Whiteside has had built a new house in the west end of the village here and expects to retire from farming and move here this coming week. His eldest son, Mr. Willis Whiteside remaining on the home farm, having taken unto himself a wife.

The story in circulation that some one of the Bethany hockey team was dangerously injured on the ice here last week during a practice game is untrue. All the boys are in perfect condition, and there is no need for alarm to be felt by their many well-wishers.

A very severe storm blew over the village on Thursday, making the roads almost impassible in places and preventing the rural mail man making his daily rounds, also keeping many children at home from school.

TRANSFER GAME TO TORONTO ICE

Peterboro Team Will Not Meet Osgoode Hall Team Here.

The Peterboro hockey club has decided to transfer the game with Osgoode Hall, scheduled for here on Friday night, to Toronto, the feeling of the players being that they have a better chance of victory at the Arena than on local ice.

Tickets for the game at the Toronto Arena will be on sale at McLeod's drug store to-morrow and arrangements will be made for extra accommodation on the afternoon C. P. R. train for local fans who want to go to the Queen City to see the game.

HELPFUL HINTS BY GOLFING STARS

(By Special Arrangement with Golfers Magazine.)

CECIL LEITCH — KEEPING THE HEAD STILL.

There is one thing, however, that every player must endeavor to do, and that is—"Keep her head still." The beginner is generally told to "keep her eye on the ball," advice which must be acted upon, but it is possible to do this and yet move the head. It is hardly exaggerating to say that the majority of bad shots are caused by the head moving during the swing. So before going on to the swing, I shall try to impress upon my readers the importance of this advice, by pointing out that the player who can keep her head still during the playing of every shot from a drive to a putt will find that she has few additional points to worry about or remember.

It is impossible to state exactly how far away from the ball a player should stand, but a rough idea can be gained by those who use the square stance by putting the club-head in its natural position behind the ball, holding the club in the left hand, and allowing it to drop to the height of the knee. The end of the shaft in this test should just miss the left knee. This simple device has often cured good players of the common fault of standing too far away.

SALE OF COOKING WAS SUCCESSFUL

Millbrook Presbyterian Ladies Raised Substantial Sum.

MILLBROOK, Feb. 2—The ladies of Grace Presbyterian church held a successful sale of homemade cooking in W. J. E. Gillett's store on Saturday afternoon, opening at 3 o'clock, with practically everything disposed of by 6 p.m.

The stand, used for the first time for a sale of this kind, proved most satisfactory, the central location, abundant floor space, with good lighting, giving every opportunity to display the array of tempting cooking, and to attend with ease to the needs of the numerous customers.

The afternoon tea tables were most attractive, and were well patronized, a number of the business men coming in for supper at the regular tea hour,

Mrs. W. E. Russell acted as cashier, and among others assisting were: Mrs. R. J. Doak, Mrs. R. J. McKnight, Mrs. W. T. A. Deyell, Mrs. S. E. Eakins, Mrs. W. J. E. Gillett, Mrs. Hawthorne, Mrs. R. McMahon, Mrs. J. Miller, Mrs. Harry Ball, Miss M. Hales, Mrs. T. Ingram, Mrs. M. Fallis and Mrs. A. Miller.

The total proceeds were in the neighborhood of $40.00.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the United Church held a special business meeting on Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. G. E. Burnham, the president, Miss M. E. Needham taking the chair.

The matter under special consideration was the lowering of the choir loft and organ in the church, the contractor, Garnett & Son, of Port Hope, being ready to go on with the work by February 1st, providing their tender for $1,200 was accepted.

Rev. F. H. Howard and P. Stinson, representing the building committee of the trustee board, were present and gave a report of the committee's interview with the firm mentioned regarding details of the undertaking.

Finally, by a standing vote, the Society decided to be responsible for financing the work, the building committee, Messrs. Howard, Burnham, Ball, Stinson and Johnston, to attend to the business arrangements of the undertaking, and Garnett & Son to be notified immediately that their tender has been accepted.

The "human calendar" scheme, recently adopted by the Aid, is turning out very successfully and will add materially to the funds on hand when completed.

Mrs. Ross Edmunds and Miss M. Duncan, who were appointed a committee to send printed cards to each lady in the congregation, whether members of the Aid or not, asking a donation of three articles for the bazaar in the fall, will have this matter attended to in the immediate future.

There were about thirty present at Saturday's meeting. The March meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. E. S. Burnham, Main street, on the first Tuesday of the month at 3 p.m.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Grace Church recently held its annual meeting when the following officers for 1926 were elected:

President—Mrs. R. J. McKnight.
1st Vice-Pres.—Mrs. W. T. A. Deyell.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Mrs. John Miller.
3rd Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Milton Fal-
Secretary—Mrs. Albert Miller.
Asst. Sec'y—Mrs. T. Ingram.
Treasurer—Mrs. J. R. Eakins.

Receipts for 1925 totalled $1,207.39, with a balance of $31.74 carried over into the current year.

SEVERAL TEAMS ARE IN RUNNING

Much Hinges on Results of To-morrow's City League Games.

FOUR GAMES COUNT.

Lots of things may happen in the City League tilts to-morrow night. Crescents, who got away poorly, now have a 50-50 position, and a win over Brintons will send them into a tie for first place. This game is sure to be a humdinger. Two set-backs in a row have caused De Laval some anxious moments, and the milk shakers cannot afford to lose to Raybestos who, by the way, are strengthening their line-up in the hope of grabbing a place in the play-offs.

Unless St. Andrew's have come out of the ether, they stand to drop a notch before St. Peter's, the students having gained a lot of confidence from their win of last week. Raybestos and St. James' should provide one of the most interesting games of the night.

The League standings are:

Junior Series.

	W.	L.	T.	Pts.
St. Andrew's	3	0	1	7
St. James'	1	1	2	4
St. Peter's	1	2	1	3
Raybestos	0	2	2	2

Senior Series.

	W.	L.	T.	Pts.
Brinton's	2	0	2	6
De Laval	2	2	0	4
Crescents	2	2	0	4
Raybestos	0	2	2	2

SPIES ON TRIAL.

Forty-eight Alleged Esthonian Agents Accused By Russians.

LENINGRAD, Russia, Feb. 2.—(Canadian Press).—Forty-eight alleged Esthonian spies were placed on trial to-day, accused of plotting against the Soviet State. It is believed that at least thirty of the accused face the death penalty.

The Soviet Government alleges that several have been in close contact with the British Intelligence Service.

FORECAST MADE OF COAL REPORT

British Paper Expects That Grouping of Pits Will Be Proposed.

INTERNAL MIGRATION.

LONDON, Feb. 2 (Canadian Press).—The Westminster Gazette prints a forecast of the Coal Commission's report, according to which the recommendations will include the grouping of mines somewhat after the manner already done with the railways and closing down of unprofitable pits. Such groupings is said to be essential for the satisfactory reorganization of the industry. Another recommendation relates to internal migration-moving of unemployed miners to other districts where they could be employed in more active mines.

It is further advised that wages and conditions shall be the immediate concern of local organizations and that district wages boards shall be retained.

While longer hours and lower wages are not advocated, the commission considers that lower wages may be possible, which in the long run would give the men equal pay with their present earnings.

SKI CLUB NOTES.

Weekly Hike Will Be Held To-night To Rye's Hill.

At a meeting of the Peterboro Ski and Snowshoe Club held last evening in the Y.W.C.A. it was the wish of all present to hold the weekly hike on Wednesday night. All members and all those interested in the club, whether members or not, are cordially invited to attend and are asked to meet at the Y.W.C.A. at 7.30 sharp, or at Rye's Hill on the Monaghan Road, to which place the party will proceed by way of Charlotte Street and the Monaghan Road. It is the wish of the club that there be a good turnout of snowshoers as well as ski-ers. Do not hesitate to be on hand and bring your friends along with you. Special evening at the club house following hike. Make it a memorable night in the history of ski-ing and snowshoe hiking in this city.

SCENE IN "THE GORILLA," LAUGH-MAKING MYSTERY PLAY AT THE GRAND ON SATURDAY.

The late Christy Mathewson pitched no fewer than 74 shutout games during his baseball career.

Starting with only twelve clubs in 1890, the British Amateur Boxing Association now controls over 300.

PREMIER OPENS

five minutes before they were supporting Mr. Meighen," he said.

Mr. King passed in review the political situation and events which followed the election. He argued that he had followed the correct constitutional course in not tendering his resignation, but in advising the Governor-General to summon Parliament as early as possible.

Parliament, he declared, had, by the rejection of the Meighen amendment of non-confidence, upheld his view.

He concluded with a reference to the co-operation between the Liberals and the Progressives. He had, he said, no desire for intrigue or entanglements. "So far as I am concerned," added Mr. King, "I have made it perfectly clear that I am ready for any form of co-operation open and above board. But it must be something that is open and above board."

The Prime Minister referred to the statements which he said had been issued by the Conservatives in Prince Albert and by the Conservatives at Ottawa that there would be no Conservative opposition in Prince Albert. He had thought at the time that the Conservatives were doing a chivalrous act and returning the courtesy which the Liberals had extended in times past. Mr. King declared he did not want to believe that there had been any lack of sincerity on the part of the Conservatives, but if, as appeared to be the case, the gentlemen who signed the nomination papers of Mr. Burgess were Conservatives. "If I find in his meetings Conservatives advocating his platform, if I find Conservatives coming in from outside to work for him, I shall leave the public of this Dominion to judge for themselves just how chivalrous and honorable the Conservative party has been in its professions."

Theatre

AT THE GRAND

During their spare time actors have many ways of amusing themselves and a majority of them are addicts of golf, which takes up enough of any man's time when seriously indulged in. However, Edmund Elton, who plays Mulligan in "The Gorilla," has a hobby quite all his own and that is making paintings with the grease paint actors use for making up. Painters when told of this work are inclined to scoff at it and they know the possibilities which are to be found in that media of color. Mr. Elton does not use a palette for his paints, but rubs it in with the tips of his fingers, a wee bit of wood or his finger nails. The result is a pastel-appearing picture which has, however a quality quite all of its own, something unlike any other painting ever seen. Both Maurice Barrymore and his son John, were fond of making paintings with grease paint. The painting will last indefinitely if placbehind glass. When one sees the gruff Mr. Mulligan, as portrayed by Mr. Elton, when Donald Gallaher and James W. Elliott present "The Gorilla" at the Grand Opera House Saturday, Feb. 6, no one would suspect that he had such artistic leanings.

AT THE CAPITOL

"THE WANDERER"

A picturization of one of the most interesting stories of the Bible, the story of the Prodigal Son, is at the Capitol for the first three days of this week, in "The Wanderer." It is an extremely interesting picture and owes much of its charm to the really wonderful photographic effects achieved. It is seldom that light and shadow are used with such splendid artistry as in this production. The fabrics and backgrounds of men and women in the story seem to live in actuality, rather than in pictured form, so artstic are the results thrown on the silver sheet. From the moment that the clustering sheep fill the opening picture with a misty sky in the rear to the last enfolding embrace of the father for his repentant son, "The Wanderer" is a real moving "picture" in every sense of the word.

Jether, the son of Jesse, and brother of Gaal, the hard-bitten elder of the biblical tale, is smitten with the charms of Tisha, high priestess of Ishta, infatuated momentarily with the clear-eyed, innocent keeper of the sheep. He demands his portion, receives it, and follows her to an unnamed city, where feating and gaming occupy his attention and dissipate his patrimony. The elements of wine, women and gaming that enter into his hectic, brief career, are well demonstrated in the little inset portions, where greedy, jewel-laden, feminine hands, the flowing wine cup and the rattling dice symbolize the agents of his downfall. Again, Tola, the agent of Tisha, is pictured as one of the first grafters, demanding his palm-salving tribute from the men who minister to Jether's extravagant desires.

The riotous scenes are good, but not overdrawn. They do not verge at any time on vulgarity, the artistic essence of the picture being carried out even in these sections. The feeding of the returning sinner with the swine is well portrayed and the embrace of the father at the end is satisfactorily ardent The picture follows out almost exactly the staged atmosphere of the story of the Prodigal Son, and there is a super cast that includes Tyrone Power as Jesse, the father; William Collier, Junior, as the somewhat weak prodigal; Ernest Torrence, as the dark-browed elder brother; Wallace Beery as Pharis, the uproarious sea captain who wins the fickle favor of Tisha with his many gifts; Kathlyn Williams as the patient, waiting mother, and Greta Nissen as the beautiful, unscrupulous woman who stands at the head of the primrose path.

There is a hilarious comedy that contains some excellent examples of trick effects in modern screen work. —Jeannette.

AT THE REGENT

"NEVER THE TWAIN" A GORGEOUS PICTURE

At last the South Sea Islands have been brought to the screen in a completely enchanting and effective story, "Never the Twain Shall Meet," adapted from Peter B. Kyne's novel of the same name. The picture had its first showing here last night when it began a three days engagement at the Regent Theatre.

Picturized in the South Sea Islands "Never the Twain Shall Meet" brings to the screen a note of realism and a series of gorgeously beautiful backgrounds that vie with any ever recorded by the motion picture camera. Tahiti and Moorea are used as the South Sea Island backgrounds for this torrid story of love, romance and adventure. As Tamea, the half caste princess, Anita Stewart has an unusual opportunity to portray the various facets of a dual nature—the passionate and stormy temperament of her native mother and the more civilized and reserved disposition of her French father.

Huntly Gordon as the newspaper man, does exceptionally interesting work in a difficult role.

OUT ON REMAND, DIES SUDDENLY

John A. M. Armstrong, Facing Many Charges, Stricken With Pneumonia.

UNDER HEAVY STRAIN.

TORONTO, Feb. 2 (Canadian Press).—J. A. M. Armstrong, ex-M.P., died suddenly at his home in Lloydtown this morning.

Mr. Armstrong was stricken with acute pneumonia yesterday afternoon, A statement given out by his family today said that he had been under a heavy mental strain and had been ailing for some days. Members of his family were with him and he is said to have been conscious to the end.

Armstrong was arrested some weeks ago on 30 charges arising out of or in connection with a case against H. H. Coffey, former bank manager at Schomberg, Ont. After several preliminary appearances Armstrong and Coffey appeared before County Magistrate Branton last week and were formally remanded till Thursday next.

John Alexander MacDonald Armstrong was born in 1877, in King Township, North York. He was educated at Upper Canada College, Toronto, and in May, 1900, married his cousin, Miss Alice Armstrong, who survives him with five children. He was in the business of real estate and conveyancing. After a term as reeve of King Township he entered the arena of Federal politics and was an unsuccessful candidate against Hon. A. B. Aylesworth in North York in 1908 but was elected in the general elections of 1911 and 1917.

RUSSIA ORDERS EXPECTED SOON

Will Relieve Germany's Precarious Economic Situation.

TIDE COUNTRY OVER.

BERLIN, Feb. 2 (United Press).—Large trade orders from Russia are soon expected to relieve Germany's precarious economic situation. Negotiations have progressed favorably for a three hundred million mark credit ($75,000,000) to Russia for the purchase of German goods, particularly machinery, and it is anticipated that the orders will be placed soon.

At the same time, the Government Departments have been considering the placing of about $15,000,000 worth of railroad orders immediately instead of spreading them over a year. These orders, it is estimated, would tide Germany over until the opening of spring, when it is anticipated that economic conditions generally will improve.

POLICE SEARCHING.

TORONTO, Feb. 2 (Canadian Press).—The county police are investigating the disappearance, almost two weeks ago, of Thomas Lewis White, a farmer and old resident of Cassel, Ontario, some miles north-east of Toronto. Search parties may be organized by persons of the community. White, who is 51 years of age, and has a wife and grown-up family, left his home on January 21st to drive to Unionville, where he made some purchases. He has not been heard of since.

FIRST MEETING OF POLICE BOARD

Mayor Welcomed By Judge Huycke, Who Was Re-elected Chairman.

ECONOMY SLOGAN.

Mayor W. T. Holloway attended his initial meeting of the Police Commission yesterday, when Police Chief Newhall presented his annual report. His Honor Judge Huycke, elected as chairman for the ensuing year, welcomed Mayor Holloway, and suggested that he mage an appointment with the Chief in order to gain a working knowledge of the police force. His Worship Magistrate O. A. Langley added his welcome and hoped that Mayor Holloway would experience a successful term of office.

After the reading of the minutes, Mayor Holloway enunciated his programme of economy and said that all departments would be thoroughly inspected with a view to cutting expenses. The burden of taxes was such he declared, that it would not stand an increase. He said that the reign of depression had been unparalleled in the history of the city, and that $8000 had been spended in dole last year.

His Honor the Judge, was in accord with the Mayor's desire to obtain more information and to examine all reports carefully. The matter of studying estimates as given in the police report will be deferred until Feb. 10th.

STORY TOLD OF RESCUE AT SEA

Captain of Westphalia Describes Saving Crew of Alkaid.

STOOD BY 24 HOURS.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—(Canadian Press).—The story of the rescue of the crew of the Dutch steamer Alkaid in mid-ocean by the Hamburg-American liner Westphalia was told last night in a radio despatch from Captain Graelfs, of the liner, to his office here. The message follows in part:

"Sunday, 2 a.m., received S.O.S. call from Dutch steamer Alkaid, Rotterdam. Went full speed and sighted her 11.15 a.m. Heavy waves washing over the whole ship. Rails, fore and aft, deck-houses and hatches carried away. Boats on the desk smashed to pieces. Badly damaged on account of heavy storm. No possibility of rescue work on Sunday, but waited for better weather. During the day the wind decreased in force. Sent a little hand ier. At 7 a.m. Monday I sent message to Alkaid that I would send a boat. Boat was lowered and got safe alongside Alkaid. Whole crew, 27, taken on at once time. Alkaid was set on fire and we left her burning all over. Boat was taken alongside Westphalia and more or less exhausted men pulled on deck. Nobody hurt. Our light boat was lost. Captain Roose of the Alkaid nearly drowned, when, as last man leaving his ship, he fell between ship and boat. I can only praise brave behavior of my crew. At 11 a.m. proceeded to New York."

Mining Market Was Firm With Trading Heavy To-day

TORONTO, Feb. 2 (Canadian Press).—The market was generally firm on the Standard Mining Exchange to-day, and the trading continued very heavy. Capitol and Barry Hollinger, the two leaders, were both strong, Capitol gaining two at 43¼, and Barry 1½ at 34. Keora advanced 1½ at 13, Mining Corporation 12 at 370, and Lake Shore 15 at 12.75. On the weaker side Teck Hughes lost two at 358, Kirkland Lake two at 119, and Consolidated West Dome an eighth at 22 5-8. Canadian Lorrain eased one at 83½.

Upward Swing Resumed On Toronto Exchange To-day

TORONTO, Feb. 2 (Canadian Press).—The upward swing was resumed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today and with the trading continuing heavy, the general advance was substantial. Brazilian and Smelters were again the leaders. Smelters opened five higher and climbed to 219, seven above yesterday, easing back to 217 at the morning close, a five point advance. During the session it touched 214 1-2 Brazilian made the new local high of 93 1-2, easing to 93 1-4, an advance of 7-8. Crows Nest gained 1 1-2 at 68, and International Nickel, suddenly active 1 1-8 at 45 3-8. C.P.R. was outstanding, climbing to 157 in heavy trading and closing the morning at 156, three points higher. Two soft spots were shown, F. N. Burt losing 1 1-4 at 65, and Winnipeg 1 at 51 1-2.

Unexpected Rise In Wheat Proves Difficult To Uphold

CHICAGO, Feb. 2 (Canadian Press). — Unexpected upturns in quotations at Liverpool and at Winnipeg, together with wet weather in the Argentina, carried wheat values up here to-day during the first part of the Board of Trade sessions. It was generally assumed that the rains in Argentina would delay the crop movement there. On the other hand, the apparent absence of export demand for North American wheat tended to make the price gains difficult to uphold.

Chicago opening figures, ⅛ to 1¼ higher, May (new high) $1.76¼ to $1.76 5-8, and July $1.53 5-8 to $1.54, were followed by numerous fluctuations within a range of about 1 cent. Corn and oats were easy, influenced by large stocks in sight and by the dearth of any pressing commercial demands. After opening 1-8c off to 1-8c up, May 83 7-8, the corn market underwent a moderate general sag. Oats started unchanged to ⅛c higher, May 42¼ to 42 3-8. Later the market showed declines. Provisions were dull and irregular.

Fluctuations Were Small With Trade Limit Narrow

NEW YORK, Feb. 2 (Canadian Press).—The main body of stocks fluctuated irregularly within a rather narrow trading area to-day, while speculative interest converged almost entirely on a small group of public utilities and specialties, which were bid up in brisk fashion. Marking up of the renewal rate on call money to five per cent. precipitated another bear attack which carried many of the motor and other popular industrial issues down one to two points below their earlier high figures, but they rallied again when the return flow of funds from interior banks carried call money rates down to 4½.

WOUND FATAL.

NORTH BAY, Feb. 2. Canadian Press. — John Redmond, a settler who lived on a farm about seven miles west of here, was fatally shot on Sunday last, according to word that reached here at noon to-day.

According to information received, Redmond and a companion were trapping in a bush when one of the guns carried by the men was accidentally discharged.

AROUND THE CITY.

Mr. W. E. Foley, who formerly was manager of the J. M. Greene Music Company, has been appointed manager of the piano sales department here, and has taken over the duties of his new position.

A fire broke out at 285 George Street yesterday afternoon, and burnt up the side of a wall and caused a hole in the floor before it could be extinguished. Chief Gimblett stated that while he did not know the exact cause of the fire, he was of the opinion that it was caused by hot coals falling from a Quebec heater which was in the room. The damage caused was small.

The firemen received their usual quota of "chimney fires" yesterday afternoon and this morning. They received a call to 356 Stewart Street at 4.40 yesterday afternoon, and just as they were arriving back from the Water Street blaze to-day they had to rush to 100 Aylmer Street. No damage was caused.

BRITISH HOUSE OPENED TO-DAY

Usual Ceremonials Were Somewhat Subdued For Royal Mourning.

CONTEST FOR SEATS.

LONDON, Feb. 2. — (Canadian Press).—His Majesty the King at noon to-day opened the second session of the present Parliament with all the State ceremonial and color which make this event one of the most fascinating of Great Britain's pageants.

The procession from Buckingham Palace to Westminster called for the usual brilliant military display, but owing to the court being in half mourning for Dowager Queen Alexandra, there was a somewhat more subdued tone in the House of Lords. Acting on the advice of his physician, the Prince of Wales did not participate in the picturesque proceedings, the broken collar bone which he suffered in his hunting accident making it impossible for him to don a uniform.

There was the usual competition among the members of the House of Commons for choice of seats.

Two determined male members of the House waited at the doors all night to secure the seats they desired.

DOORN, Holland, Feb. 2 (Canadian Press)—Festivities at Doorn house consequent upon the celebration of the ex-kaiser's sixty-seventh birthday and the arrival yesterday of his son, former Crown Prince Frederick Wilhelm, continued today. Last evening there was a grand reception presided over by the ex-Kaiser and his wife, Princess Hermine. They entertained numerous guests, including members of the high German and Dutch nobility.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY HELD ANNUAL MEETING LAST NIGHT

C. S. Thompson Was Elected President For 1926.

INTERESTING PAPER.

Joseph Grierson Spoke on Perennials and Perennial Borders.

An exceptionally interesting paper on the subject of perennials and perennial borders was presented by Joseph Grierson last night in the Chamber of Commerce on the occasion of the annual meeting of the local Horticultural Society. Mr. Grierson was certain that in the course of a few years Peterborough would be a beautiful city largely due, he thought, to the increased interest being shown in the hardier varieties of perennials. While the soil is not particularly conducive to rapid growth he claimed that a few loads of heavy clay loam, well fertilized, would result in strong plants, the beauty of which would be ample recompense for any expenditure involved.

As the sub soil in this locality is of a gravelly nature some found it advisable to keep the hose running so that the roots of the plants were kept cool. Too many people have a tendency to plant their borders on straight lines, he said. The curved line was far more attractive and was used almost exclusively in landscape gardening.

Mr. Grierson gave a comprehensive outline of the more important border flowers and shrubs, telling all the possible colour combinations in relationship to their length and the mass of growth. Delphiniums, originally blue, are now available in many shades of yellow and pink while it may soon be possible to obtain a red flower. Hollyhocks were also good as a background but should be allowed to seed themselves in order to insure getting a hardy stock. Bulbs do not seem to increase in Canada as they do in the old country but must be renewed after about three years' time. In Vancouver it is reported that a strain has been perfected which will increase. Darwin tulips were a fine variety which could be allowed to remain in the ground for an indefinite number of years. The Iris has developed greatly from the "blue flag" stage and is now obtainable in a riot of hues and shades. The phlox is another variety which has been improved greatly. The speaker concluded his address with a vision of an increased membership of the society and Peterborough becoming more beautiful year by year. He conducted a discussion later on the merits of certain plants in the border.

The report of the Nominating committee, which was accepted in its entirety presented the following as directors and officers for the ensuing year.

Directors appointed for two years: J. Edgar, J. H. Callander, D. Grant Reg. Turner, G. Land.

To complete two year term: K. Throop, T. E. Bradburn, E. E. Ingall, C. S. Cummer, Dr. J. E. Middleton.

President, C. S. Thompson
Vice President, Charles Lacheur
Secretary Treasurer, Frank G. Stinson.

In the absence of Mr. Stinson, Mr. Thompson read the treasurer's report which showed a favorable balance.

Dr. Middleton told of the activities of the society during the past year and spoke of the impetus which the holding of the gladioli show should give to floral culture in this city. He also paid a tribute to E. H. D. Hall who, he declared, had done much in securing Peterborough's parks.

SALARIES OF MEMBERS WILL GO ON WHILE PARLIAMENT IDLE, COMMENT OF MR. GUTHRIE ON ADJOURNMENT

Sir Henry Drayton Says the Government Exists By Purchase.

FORKE FAVORABLE.

Delay a Disadvantage To Progressives—Will Support Government.

OTTAWA, Feb. 3.—The adjournment motion of Hon. Ernest Lapoints was taken up immediately the House of Commons met Tuesday afternoon.

Sir Henry Drayton opined that the Government should have given some real reason for the motion, which, he said, in effect is that the Government could not carry on public business.

"This was the last phase of a series of contortions to keep a government in office which ought not to be in office." They have proceeded on an assumption that resuscitation was necessary—but Sir Henry said the Government was dead, and didn't know it.

No Right to Adjourn.

The wave of public opinion, dissatisfaction and contempt was not to be frustrated by this Government. He pointed out that the Government had put it out of their power to ask the adjournment. They had no right to do so. Unquestionably in certain instances governments which had been shot to pieces could approach the House in a constittuional way, but they had not done so. They had taken upon themselves to continue in the ordinary way and were not entitled to an adjournment.

"This Government can only exist by purchase," said Sir Henry. Indignant cries of "Order, order," from the Liberal side.

Sir Henry: "I repeat it exists by purchase." A furore of desk hammering by the Opposition ensued.

"The Government cannot ride two horses," said the member for West York. They couldn't come to the House and say they were ready to go on with business, and then ask for an adjournment.

"I am willing to admit there are many precedents where a new government has been given an adjournment to constitute itself," said Sir Henry, "but this is not a new government, it is the shattered remnant of the old, a broken up, broken down remnant."

The Minister of Justice knew the constitutional practice, went on the member, who then quoted authorities and alleged the Government had not followed proper practice.

Delay Fatal Day.

The Government, said Hon. Hugh Guthrie, was seeking to "postpone the fatal and fateful day for themselves for six more weeks." It claimed to be a Government; why not proceed to govern? The inconvenience to which members from distant parts of the country were being put was a less important consideration than the inconvenience to the Dominion as a whole. While the Government sought to re-organize "the combination of shreds and patches which it was to-day," the most pressing question in Central Ontario, that of coal supply, was neglected. The coal used by the average householder in that part of the country could not be got at any price. Coke has risen to some $17.00 a ton. Mr. Guthrie had been waiting since the beginning of the session for a chance to impress upon the Government the necessity for looking after this matter, and now that the debate on the address was nearly finished, the Government abruptly announced that the House would adjourn for six weeks. By that time the winter would be nearly over, and the Minister of the Interior would probably have continued his "experimenting but not getting anywhere" on the matter of coal supply.

Salaries Continue.

In the light of the Prime Minister's Richmond Hill speech, which spoke of the injustice of a Government continuing to enjoy salaries and "the fruits of office," there was one sinister consideration as regards this adjournment, said Mr. Guthrie. Those Ministers who still held their portfolios would be Ministers still, and the six weeks of the adjournment would be worth $1,200 in salary to them. The membership of the House as a whole was not entirely disinterested either, said Mr. Guthrie. The days of the adjournment would be counted in the sitting days of this session, and members might be paid for attendance in a Parliament which did not sit. Knowing all these things, the former Solicitor-General was of the opinion that Parliament should go on with its duties, consider and advance the legisla-

"He" Was a "She" Seeking a Room in the Y.M.C.A. But Smart Clerk Knows Limbs Are Not Of Male Sex

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (United Press)—"Gimme a room," piped a high, thin voice at the desk of the Twenty-third Street Y.M.C.A. here. The clerk in charge took one look at the thin legs in golf hose and plus fours, snickered at the cap pulled rakishly over one eye, and the hands sunk deeply into the trouser pockets.

"Name, please," he asked skeptically.

"Wilson—Bert Wilson," the visitor said in an attempted bass.

"You mean Bertha," said the clerk.

But argument was of no avail. Bertha insisted that she was Bert. The clerk called two detectives and still Bert insisted he was a he. Then a policewoman arrived and the figure in masculine attire admitted she was Sybil Rosaberry, Jersey City, seeking adventure. She will be charged with vagrancy today.

BOARD OF EDUCATION DEMAND IS $11,700 HIGHER THIS YEAR

Total Estimates Amount To $223,600 But May Be Reconsidered.

COLLEGIATE MORE.

Increase of $11,550 in High School; $5,700 in Public Schools.

Estimates totalling $223,600, being the requirements of the Board of Education for 1926, were submitted at the regular meeting last night, but will be considered at a special meeting of the board to be held next Tuesday, before they are forwarded to the City Council. This is an increase of $11,700 over the total for last year.

Secretary G. Harry Thompson explained the increase as follows. The increase on public school account is $5,700. This is made up in four items. Last year the board had a credit balance of $5,300 to work on, and this year it had only $3,200, leaving a difference of $2,100. Last year insurance premiums due on public schools amounted to $1,200. This year they come to $3,400, an increase of $2,200. Increases in salaries, according to schedule, come to $1,100. Mr. Thompson stated that most of the teachers are now at the top of their schedule. Fuel, it is estimated, will cost $300 more than last year.

The increase in the Collegiate account is $11,550. Last year, on account of the two extra teachers engaged for the commercial department and the illness of Mr. Pettit there was an overdraft in this department of $7,850, instead of a credit balance of $300, as at the beginning of 1925. Salaries, because of the increase in the commercial department and in other departments according to schedule, require an increase of $5,500. An increase of $200 in the cost of fuel is allowed for, while insurance premiums this year require $1,300 where none was required last year. An increase of $300 is allowed in the night classes. Fees from the collegiate can be figured at only $1,500 instead of $2,500, due to the decrease in the number of county pupils.

On general account there is a decrease of $5,550. Last year $7,500 was required, principally to meet the architect's fees on the extension, whereas this year only $1,950 is put in that fund.

Special Meeting

When Dr. J. J. Craig, chairman of the Finance committee, moved that the City Council be asked for these sums, E. F. Reid suggested that a special meeting of the board be called to consider the estimates and to see if any reduction could be made. E. B. Fowler supported Mr. Reid's suggestion while Dr. Craig suggested that, as the figures had been carefully considered by the various committees, they should be submitted to the Council and then, if the Council requested, a meeting could be held.

W. R. Turner said that there was no reason to wait, but that it was up to the trustees to investigate, Dr. Yelland could see nothing to be gained by such a meeting, as the figures had been carefully considered in committee. Mr. Fowler said that he thought the figures were right but that the Board should show a willingness to meet the wishes of the Council. Mr. Reid also said that he thought the figures could not be pared but that the members of the Board would gain valuable information by their consideration.

An amendment to Dr. Craig's motion, by Messrs. Turner and Fowler, was upheld and a special meeting will be held on Tuesday evening next.

GASOLINE AND MOTOR OIL PRICES CHARGED IN ONTARIO REASONABLE

G. T. Clarkson Presents Report to the Provincial Government.

NO REGULATION.

Refiners, Though in Position to Control Prices, Are Not Doing So.

TORONTO, Feb. 3 (Canadian Press).—The prices charged for gasoline and motor oils in Ontario between January, 1924, and July, 1925, were fair and reasonable, G. T. Clarkson says in his report after an investigation. He was asked to make a report by the Ontario Government about a year ago and has now presented it. The range in prices among the retail trade he attributes to local conditions.

Mr. Clarkson accepts as a true condition, the evidence given by refinery officers and wholesale dealers to the effect that there is no understanding or agreement to "stabilize" gasoline prices in the province. He finds that Canadian refiners, although in a position to regulate the prices, have not taken advantage of this position.

Founder Of Model Town Suicides From Ill Health

ANDOVER, Mass., Feb. 3 (Canadian Press). — This city awaits with sorrow the last home-coming of William M. Wood, former president of the American Woollen Company, and - - icide because of ill health at Daytona Beach, Fla.

Her it was that Wood lavished a fortune upon the project nearest his heart—Shawsheen Village, a settlement of model homes for the mill workers that included a beautiful town hall, post office, dance hall and theatre.

NO CRIME LACK IN PETERBORO'

Chief Newhall Recalls Fifty Serious Cases in Past Year.

LONG RECORDS.

Chief Samuel Newhall in conversation with the Examiner this morning said that he had heard a remark to the effect that Peterborough had experienced few cases of a criminal nature during the past year. In proof of his contention to the contrary, Chief Newhall produced a file, which held communications from the central office. On the list were acknowledgments of finger print records received to the number of more than 50. The persons represented had all been taken into custody here and had received sentence in the Peterborough police court. The Chief said that many of the men were vicious criminals who had long lists of convictions, some having as many as 50 registered against them. While the crime of murder did not appear upon the crime sheet for the year sentences were given as punishment for theft, vagrancy, forgery and burglary.

FOUR MILLION AUCTION.

New York Fur Sale Nears End.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (Canadian Press)—Sales on the seventh day of the winter fur auction here reached four hundred thousands dollars, which put the grand total to date well past the four million mark. Due to the time required to sell the record volume of silver fox Monday and Tuesday, when over forty-six hundred were auctioned, it was found necessary to lengthen the sale another session.

The skins sold consisted mostly of blacks, the best of which brought seventy dollars. The prices paid for the entire collection averaged twenty per cent above those of the New York Auction Company's winter sale of 1925.

100 CANADIAN DOGS IN NEW YORK SHOW

$15,000 Cash Prizes Besides Specials.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (Canadian Press)—Canine life of Canada will be well represented when the doors of Madison Square Garden open here on February 12 for the golden jubilee show of the Westminster Kennel Club. Through the offering of $15,000 in cash prizes in the regular classes in addition to the various special club awards, the jubilee becomes the richest bench show ever held. More than 100 Canadian entries have been received from practically every principal city in the Dominion, and many dogs from European countries will make trans-Atlantic journeys to compete. The show is to run for three days.

Walter H. Reeves, a prominent dog fancier of Belleville, Ont., has been chosen to take an important part in the judging. Terriers, hounds, mastiffs, St. Bernards, whippets and many other varieties will vie for prize ribbons under the eye of the Belleville man.

SALE OF SCHOOLS IN WEST THREATENED

Manitoba Municipality Failed To Pay Interest.

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 3 (Canadian Press)—Public schools of West Kildonan, a municipality adjoining Winnipeg will be offered for sale this week as the result of action taken yesterday by bondholders.

Foreclosure notice for non-payment of the interest due was served on the authorities some weeks ago, but proceedings were stayed through governmental intervention. ....

Subsequent negotiations failed to bring about a satisfactory settlement and notices of sale were served upon the secretary of the school district.

Payment of the money due is the only way to forstall the sale, government officials say, but the school district and suburban board that administers the affairs of the municipality claim there are no funds available to prevent the sale.

REGIMENT KEPT LEXINGTON MOB FROM PRISONER

Guns and Bombs Dispersed Crowd at Trial of Negro.

TO BE HANGED.

Death Penalty Passed in 15 Minutes For Triple Slaying.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Feb. 3.—With all the weapons of modern warfare on guard outside the court house, Edward Harris, a negro, was tried yesterday, and sentenced to be hanged March 5th on charges of murdering Clarence Bryant and his two children and attacking Bryant's wife.

Then under sentence of death, Harris was started back to Frankfort prison with 1000 soldiers to guard him against death. Harris pleaded guilty and was sentenced to be hanged with in 15 minutes after the bailiff called the court to order.

Harris was tried formally on a statutory charge.

In Kentucky conviction on this charge can carry but one penalty—sentence to be hanged in the county in which the crime was committed.

After the trial, lawyers and newspapermen, the only persons outside of the court officials permitted within the court house barrier, were held for ten minutes to give Harris a start.

He was bundled from the court-house into the automobile of James A. Kehoe, the state adjutant-general, and the car sped away for Frankfort 50 miles away.

Machine Guns.

There was no disorder as the caravan from Frankfort prison wound its way into the city before the trial.

Harris was moved in the automobile of James A. Kehoe, adjutant-general of Kentucky. Convoying the adjutant's car were five army trucks, loaded with members of the Kentucky national guard.

Thirty five machine guns bristled above improvised barricades as Lexingtonians gathered to watch the procession.

It is estimated that 1200 soldiers are in the city.

Searched Applicants.

Guards on the court house lawn, and in the corridors, searched all applicants for admittance twice.

Officials expressed confidence in their ability to hold the trial and remove the prisoner from the city without violence.

At 3 a.m., Harris was taken from Frankfort reformatory and placed in Kehoe's car. He was made to lie on the floor of the tonneau and a blanket was thrown over him.

Gas Bombs Used.

In front of the reformatory where tear gas bombs had dispersed a curious throng a national guardsman of about Harris' height was carried to a second car, made to lie down and covered with a blanket.

Then covered by five truck loads of soldiers, two in the lead, one between the automobiles carrying blanketed men, and two behind, the motor cars left the reformatory and by a circuitous route headed for Lexington.

The party left Lexington at 5.30 a.m., and proceeded directly to the court house. It passed through the barrier and under coverage of sharp shooters, machine guns and tanks guarding the court house, without interference.

Harris was taken directly to the court house and guarded there.

Roads Guarded.

On the outskirts of the town 14 men were posted at each of the 11 roads entering the town and no one was allowed to pass without a special permit. Business was suspended and guards patroled the streets.

Inspection squads roamed at random through various districts. At 35 points of vantage barricaded machine guns were posted and from the roofs and upper storeys of the houses sharpshooters kept watch.

On each side of the court house stood a tank, and a truck load of soldiers ready to be rushed to any danger point in the city.

For four squares about the court house a cordon was drawn, patrolled at close intervals by guardsmen.

Every man who passes that barrier must carry a special military permit. This is examined again at the court house door. At each place the person who would enter must submit to search. This applies to every one except the judge.

No Secret Trial.

It originally was reported the trial would be held secretly at 5 a.m. but Judge R. C. Stoll balked at the plan.

"I will not be intimidated by mob threats," he asserted; "the trial will be held at the usual hour."

Safely Returned.

FRANKORT, Ky., Feb. 3.—Edward Harris, under sentence of death was returned here safely at 10.25 a.m., despite the threats of mob violence.

"I sure is glad to get back," Harris told his warden on his return to the prison.

James M. Lynch and Charles P. Howard will be opposing candidates for president in the coming election of officers of the International Typographical Union.

Milk Bottle Thief Given 23 Months In Winnipeg Jail

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 3.—(Canadian Press).—An ingenious scheme for making money from the sale of empty milk bottles, proved the downfall of Harry McNaughton, employee of a local dairy company, who was sentenced to 23 months in jail here Tuesday on a charge of fraud. He promised a fair profit to merchants who would finance his scheme. After collecting about $700, the investors discovered they had been the victims of a "milk bottle myth." McNaughton told the court he had been under the influence of liquor when he started the present scheme, and had hardly been sober since.

OLDEST TREE SPARED.

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 3.—The state of Washington's oldest inhabitant, a cedar tree 2,300 years old, has been spared the ax through the generosity of nature lovers. It is 200 feet high, 58 feet in circumference and 18.4 feet in diameter.

Bohn Again Missing From His Home Here; Is A Mysterious Case

Missing Machinist Said To Have Leaped Back Fence To Escape Companion—Ran South on Donegal Street and Has Not Returned.

SECOND TIME INSIDE MONTH.

Albert Edward Bohn, 413 London Street, who disappeared on January 8 and was missing two days, is again absent without explanation. On the last occasion, his lapse was put down to amnesia, but the police today say that he deliberately ran away in this latest adventure.

It is said that Bohn was approached by a fellow workman, Mr. Welsh, who accompanied him to his home. There the front door was fastened, and Bohn went around the back. In a few minutes his companion followed him, and on his appearance, Bohn leaped over a back fence, ran along an alley and south on Donegal Street, where he disappeared. No trace of him has been found.

It will be recalled that when Bohn disappeared last time it was rumored that he was seen on Chamberlain Street, and when he ran off yesterday he was going in this direction. Francois, who was consulted by The Examiner on January 9, said Bohn would be found in the country north of Peterborough, and when Bohn returned to his home that evening, it was believed that was where he had been.

"Far-away Look."

The foreman of the department where Bohn was employed in the C.G.E. is quoted as saying Bohn had a "far-away look" on his face. He only worked one day between his last disappearance and this later mystery.

His former disappearance was blamed on the strain of a new machine lately introduced in the brass department. He had complained of a sleepy and tired feeling, but was said to have nothing to worry about.

Well-Known Here.

Bohn is well known in Peterborough, having been employed at the C.G.E. for 20 years. He was a drummer in both the Salvation Army and the Peterborough Rangers' bands.

The police have as yet no clue to the scene of Bohn's wanderings, though several theories have been suggested.

REPUTATION OF CITY BUSES ESTABLISHED WHEN REPORTER TRAVELS AT BUSIEST HOUR

All Buses on Time Between 4.45 and 5.50—Special Picked Up C.G.E. and Colonial Weaving Employees—No One Left By the Wayside.

PEOPLE TRY TO BOARD CARS ON SIDE THAT HAS NO DOOR

Closer Relationship Between Passengers Established By New Service—Some Forget To Press Buzzer Until Bus Reaches Stop—Trouble For Driver.

"The buses can't carry the 5 o'clock crowd."
"People are left standing at every corner."
"The buses are never on time."
"The buses don't stop at the right places."

These are some of the complaints heard about the new service. In fact it would be impossible to list the faults attributed to the buses by citizens. So, just to find out whether there was any truth in the reports, an Examiner reporter spent an hour yesterday evening riding on the three main bus routes. He started at 4.45 and ended at 5.50, and this is what he found:

The Byersville bus, number 6, was re-routed to catch the DeLaval custom. It left Charlotte Street at 4.47 with 9 passengers and there was no increase in that number. One of the passengers expressed displeasure when he found that the bus was not going to Byersville. Near the C.G.E. and Colonial Weaving plants a bus was waiting for the workers to be released at 5 o'clock.

Number 6 proceeded down as far as the Exhibition park, turned around and waited for the DeLaval custom. Twenty persons got on there. In the meantime the special had gone from the C.G.E. but there were still many people walking along the street; number six picked up three more passengers and proceeded to Charlotte street, returning at 5.05. The trip was made in 18 minutes and a total number of 32 passengers was carried.

Jackson Park Route

The Jackson Park car left immediately at 5.06 with 26 passengers. At the end of the route two small children remained; as they made the round trip, it may be assumed that they were sightseers. The trip was made without any noteworthy incident, the total number of passengers carried being 32. This bus returned at 5.30.

Nicholls' Park Route

The Nicholls' Park bus left at 5.31 with 11 passengers on board. Near the end of the run a lady and small child were taken on. They approached from the wrong side. The lady explained that in the "Old Country" it was possible to get on a bus from either side. Eighteen passengers were carried and the bus was back at Charlotte street at 5.50. One lady was heard to say: "These buses are a great thing aren't they."

The drivers appeared to be exceedingly courteous and had occasion several times to stop and pick up passengers who were waiting on the wrong side of the street. Many of the passengers wishing to alight did not press the buzzer until the bus was at the stop, causing the driver considerable inconvenience in bringing the heavy vehicle to a halt.

Within the hour trips had been made down to Lansdowne street, west to Monaghan road and north along Armour road to Nicholls' Oval. The cost was twenty cents.

CITIZENS GATHER TO STUDY SCHOOLS

Township Boards and Consolidated Schools Were Considered.

COBOURG, Feb. 3.—A forward step was taken in rural educational matter by representative citizens of Haldimand, Percy, Cramahe, and Brighton townships when over one hundred assembled at Castleton to discuss matters in connection with rural school work and especially the oft discussed matter of the proposed township school board bill.

Mr. R. B. Dawson was elected chairman and Mr. Fred Brentnell, secretary. The meeting convened under auspices of the recently organized school trustees and ratepayers association for Colborne and Cramahe township.

The association was pleased to have preesnt, Mr. Wm. Morris, secretary of the Provincial Association, and Editor of the Canadian School Board journal, who addressed the meeting. He outlined the steps that led up to the proposed Township School Bill. It was further stated that in Ontario there are about 1,000 schools with a very small attendance, some of them in fact having but one, two or three pupils, on an average. He questioned the wisdom of maintaining such schools. Mrs. Morris spoke of the success and economy that is attending Consolidated schools, where these have been established, and asked those assembled to inquire into this, and study more mentally this advanced phase of rural school work.

The majority of those present favored a continuance of these meetings for the study of rural school affairs, and the executive met at the close of the meeting to plan for another gathering.

BELL FOR CHURCH.

Gift From the White Star Line.

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 3 (Canadian Press)—The ship's bell formerly used on the Canopic, which is now in the hands of the shipbreakers, has been presented to the rector of a church at Forester Falls, Ont., through the courtesy of the White Star line. The bell arrived last week and was hung Tuesday.

Charles Mauger le Couteur, formerly with the Mersey docks and harbor board, Liverpool, and now a resident near Forester Falls, was instrumental in inducing the White Star Company to present the bell to the rector of the parish.

CHARRED BODY IN COBALT FIRE RUINS

Identified as Insurance Agent —Fire on Sunday Night.

COBALT, Ont., Feb. 3. (Canadian Press). — Late Tuesday afternoon identification was made of the body found in the ruins of the Hunter block, which was destroyed in a fire here Sunday night, as that of John Lanthier, insurance agent.

Lanthier, who lived in an apartment in the block, was not missed until Monday, but even then no anxiety was felt about his disappearance. Workers clearing away the debris Tuesday morning found his badly charred body among the ruins.

Mrs. J. Johnson, who is in hospital receiving treatment for burns, received in the fire, informed the police yesterday that Lanthier had awakened her and then attempted to break a window so that she might escape. It is thought that he turned back into the interior of the building to find a means of escape and was then overcome.

The General German Federation of Trade Unions, which embraces all the trade unions composed of manual workers, has a membership of more than 4,500,000.

KING CONCLUDES PERSONAL TOUR

Left Prince Albert This Morning For Ottawa—Spoke at Shellbrook.

ASKED CO-OPERATION.

SHELLBROOK, Sask., Feb. 3—(Canadian Press) — Premier Mackenzie King last night closed his personal campaign in the federal by-election of Prince Albert. This morning he leaves again for Ottawa by way of Saskatoon and Regina. At all points at which he has spoken in Prince Albert, Mr. King has been accompanied and supported by Premier Dunning of Saskatchewan. Premier Dunning pressed last night for cooperation between Liberal and Progressives.

Premier King continued his argument for Liberal Progressive cooperation. He said he had always looked upon Progressiveism as an advanced form of Liberalism. For that reason he had never wanted to see that force divided. For that reason he had always wished to bring about closer relations between Liberals and Progressives.

"It has been said at Ottawa," added Mr. King, "That in the last campaign I took knocks at the Progressives. I don't think I ever did except in that I said it was a pity to have a separate party, and if I have given one knock I have received a thousand. The whole brunt of the Conservative attack on me is that I have catered to the Progressives."

Mr. King added that he would not be happy until he saw united the men and women opposed to Toryism. The Prime Minister pressed that the forces opposed to "Toryism" should get together.

NO DECISION ABOUT ARMSTRONG DEATH

Coroner's Inquest Adjourned Until Organs Are Examined.

TORONTO, Feb. 3 (Canadian Press).—No decision as to the cause of the death yesterday of J. A. M. Armstrong, Schomberg conveyancer, who faced nearly 50 charges of theft, forgery, fraud, and false pretences, was reached at the preliminary inquest held in Schomberg yesterday afternoon by Coroner Devins of Aurora. The inquest was adjourned pending analysis by Provincial authorities of the stomach and kidneys.

BRITAIN'S POLICY FOR AGRICULTURE

Government Issues Official List of Its Plans.

LONDON, Feb. 3 (Canadian Press).—The Government last night issued an official paper explaining its agricultural policy. The Government's proposals are as follows:

The preparation of a scheme on a sound commercial basis for short term credits and credits for improvements and for land purchases.

The development of small holdings..

The continuance of the present afforestation programme.

The appropriation of £1,000,00, spread over five years, for grants in aid of drainage schemes, grants for agricultural research and education.

The continued fostering of the sugar beet industry. The Government considers that at present condition do not justify revolutionary methods.

BIGAMY RUMORED.

Film Star in a Hurry To Wed.

RIVERSIDE, Cal., Feb. 3. — Whether or not Alma Rubens, film star, has been guilty of bigamy was under official investigation here yesterday.

Because she is alleged to have married Rickardo Cortez a week too soon, Miss Rubens may be involved in the serious charge of having too many husbands. A record in the superior court of Los Angeles shows that her decree of divorce from Dr. Daniel Carson Goodman cannot be made final until next Saturday.

Alma married the handsome Cortez last Saturday.

Within the past five years, the manufacture of synthetic ammonia has developed into a substantial industry in the United States.

RECORDS BROKEN BY CROWN LIFE REPORT

Most Successful Year in History is Shown By Statement.

The biggest year in the history of the Crown Life Insurance Company was recorded in the report for 1925 presented at the annual meeting held at the Home Office in Toronto on February 1st.

Marked increases in all departments of the company's business, a low mortality among policyholders, and a highly satisfactory interest rate earned on investments featured the report. The rapid growth of the company was indicated by the fact that business had doubled in the past four years, and quadrupled in the past eight years.

President Mr. G. T. Somers, in recording a gain of $18,566,755 in insurance in force, stated that the objective for the year had been considerably exceeded, bringing the total amount of insurance in force to $60,404,541. This is an increase of about 20 per cent. over the preceding year.

The report showed a surplus of $271,116.59, after providing for an increase of nearly one million dollars for policyholders' reserve, which now stands at $6,361,732. A total of $107,485.25 was paid out in dividends to policyholders — an amount very close in total to the death claims paid, which totalled $196,888.82. Payments on account of matured policies and annuities totalled $274,276.48.

Assets totalled $7,427,821.02, an increase of $1,116,520.51 over the previous year. Mortgages on real estate increased by $754,706.07, bringing the total up to $3,877,863.15. Bond and debentures increased by $217,233.71, making a total of $1,577,648.27.

Mr. Somers pointed out that the average rate of interest earned on total ledger assets, including profits on sale of securities, was 7.28 per cent., which, having regard to the high quality of the assets, was extremely satisfactory.

As a result of the progress made during the year, a further increase in the scale of dividends to policyholders was put into effect on January 1st, 1926.

The President referred to the loss the company had sustained in the death of Mr. William Dineen, who had been a director of the company since 1918. His place on the board has been taken by Mr. H. Victor Cawthra of Toronto. The other officers and directors remain the same for the ensuing year.

Left Prince Albert This Morning For Ottawa—Spoke at Shellbrook.

ASKED CO-OPERATION.

SHELLBROOK, Sask., Feb. 3—(Canadian Press) — Premier Mackenzie King last night closed his personal campaign in the federal by-election of Prince Albert. This morning he leaves again for Ottawa by way of Saskatoon and Regina. At all points at which he has spoken in Prince Albert, Mr. King has been accompanied and supported by Premier Dunning of Saskatchewan. Premier Dunning pressed last night for cooperation between Liberal and Progressives.

Premier King continued his argument for Liberal Progressive cooperation. He said he had always looked upon Progressiveism as an advanced form of Liberalism. For that reason he had never wanted to see that force divided. For that reason he had always wished to bring about closer relations between Liberals and Progressives.

"It has been said at Ottawa," added Mr. King, "That in the last campaign I took knocks at the Progressives. I don't think I ever did except in that I said it was a pity to have a separate party, and if I have given one knock I have received a thousand. The whole brunt of the Conservative attack on me is that I have catered to the Progressives."

Mr. King added that he would not be happy until he saw united the men and women opposed to Toryism. The Prime Minister pressed that the forces opposed to "Toryism" should get together.

BRITAIN'S POLICY FOR AGRICULTURE

Government Issues Official List of Its Plans.

LONDON, Feb. 3 (Canadian Press).—The Government last night issued an official paper explaining its agricultural policy. The Government's proposals are as follows:

The preparation of a scheme on a sound commercial basis for short term credits and credits for improvements and for land purchases.

The development of small holdings..

The continuance of the present afforestation programme.

The appropriation of £1,000,00, spread over five years, for grants in aid of drainage schemes, grants for agricultural research and education.

The continued fostering of the sugar beet industry. The Government considers that at present condition do not justify revolutionary methods.

BIGAMY RUMORED.

Film Star in a Hurry To Wed.

RIVERSIDE, Cal., Feb. 3. — Whether or not Alma Rubens, film star, has been guilty of bigamy was under official investigation here yesterday.

Because she is alleged to have married Rickardo Cortez a week too soon, Miss Rubens may be involved in the serious charge of having too many husbands. A record in the superior court of Los Angeles shows that her decree of divorce from Dr. Daniel Carson Goodman cannot be made final until next Saturday.

Alma married the handsome Cortez last Saturday.

Within the past five years, the manufacture of synthetic ammonia has developed into a substantial industry in the United States.

RECORDS BROKEN BY CROWN LIFE REPORT

Most Successful Year in History is Shown By Statement.

The biggest year in the history of the Crown Life Insurance Company was recorded in the report for 1925 presented at the annual meeting held at the Home Office in Toronto on February 1st.

Marked increases in all departments of the company's business, a low mortality among policyholders, and a highly satisfactory interest rate earned on investments featured the report. The rapid growth of the company was indicated by the fact that business had doubled in the past four years, and quadrupled in the past eight years.

President Mr. G. T. Somers, in recording a gain of $18,586,755 in insurance in force, stated that the objective for the year had been considerably exceeded, bringing the total amount of insurance in force to $60,404,541. This is an increase of about 20 per cent. over the preceding year.

The report showed a surplus of $271,116.59, after providing for an increase of nearly one million dollars for policyholders' reserve, which now stands at $6,361,732. A total of $107,485.25 was paid out in dividends to policyholders — an amount very close in total to the death claims paid, which totalled $196,888.82. Payments on account of matured policies and annuities totalled $274,276.48.

Assets totalled $7,427,821.03, an increase of $1,116,520.51 over the previous year. Mortgages on real estate increased by $754,706.07, bringing the total up to $3,877,863.15. Bond and debentures increased by $217,233.71, making a total of $1,577,048.27.

Mr. Somers pointed out that the average rate of interest earned on total ledger assets, including profits on sale of securities, was 7.28 per cent., which, having regard to the high quality of the assets, was extremely satisfactory.

As a result of the progress made during the year, a further increase in the scale of dividends to policyholders was put into effect on January 1st, 1926.

The President referred to the loss the company had sustained in the death of Mr. William Dineen, who had been a director of the company since 1918. His place on the board has been taken by Mr. H. Victor Cawthra of Toronto. The other officers and directors remain the same for the ensuing year.

DELORO SAFETY FIRST SOCIETY ANNUAL MEETING

R. A. Elliott, President, and Other Officers Unanimously Re-elected.

MARMORA DINNER

140 Safety Suggestions in 10 Months—Only 15 Impracticable.

MARMORA, Feb. 3.—The first annual meeting of the Deloro Safety First Committee was held in the Hub dining rooms on Thursday, January 28, with an excellent attendance, only three members being unavoidably absent. The attendance also included Drs. H. Crawford and D. Thomson, and Mr. H. W. Sabine of Marmora.

Host Arthur Hart served a sumptuous repast at 6:45 p.m. Whilst tables were being cleared, the members retired for a smoke. The meeting was then called to order by Mr. R. A. Elliott, the chairman, who, after roll call, brought on the regular monthly business. As soon as this was dispensed with, the business of the annual meeting was proceeded with.

The chairman gave his report, in which he presented some startling figures whereby it was shown that the Safety First Movement had been a complete success and more than justified its existence. Mr. F. Paquet followed with the secretary's report. Herein it was mentioned that 140 suggestions were sent in by employees during the ten months which have passed since the inception of the movement. All of these suggestions were acted upon, save fifteen, which were deemed impractical. In other words, 89 per cent of the suggestions were carried out and every second man on an average turned in a suggestion.

Election of officers formed the next item of business. The old executive committee was re-elected as follows:

Chairman—R. A. Elliott.

Vice-Chairman—J. H. Hemphill.

Secretary—F. Paquet.

Assistant Secretary—W. R. Regan.

Then followed the appointment of the various sub-committees:

Inspection Committee—Messrs. H. F. Berry, J. H. Hemphill, K. B. Patterson, R. Hunter and A. R. Pengilly.

Complaints Committee—Messrs. W. Williams, W. R. Reynolds, J. Judge and C. H. Buskard.

Competitive and Publicity Committee—Messrs. A. V. Yates, H. A. McNally, C. Hayes, R. Parker and J. Judge.

Benevolent Relief Board—Messrs. R. A. Elliott, C. H. Buskard and R. Scott.

Complimentary speeches were listened to from Messrs. S. B. Wright, F. A. Bapty and H. W. Sabine and Drs. H. Crawford and D. Thomson.

The meeting adjourned with the singing of the National Anthem.

This very active Safety First Committee is affiliated with the Ontario Safety League and the National Safety Council.

Born.—On January 29, 1926, to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Davidson, a son.

TWEED NEWS

TWEED, Feb. 2.—Mrs. E. H. Good and son, Reginald, of Orillia, are spending a couple of weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Wright.

Mr. Ralph McGuire is spending a couple of days in Cshawa.

Mr. Wilbur S. Gordon is in Montreal for a few days this week.

Miss Marie Meiklejohn underwent a serious operation in Toronto General Hospital.

Mr. Geo. Prentice's sale of farm stock and implements on Wednesday drew a large crowd. Mr. E. J. Courneyea, of Tamworth, was the auctioneer.

AYPA MEMBERS EUCHRE GUESTS

Lakefield Association Entertained By Mr. and Mrs. B. Q. Dench.

CHURCH MEETINGS.

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 2.—On Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. B. Q. Dench entertained the members of St. John's A.Y.P.A. at a jolly progressive euchre party at North Douro Lodge. Miss Verna Payne and Mr. Milford Hampton won the first prizes and Miss Helen Everett and Mr. F. R. Alford the consolation prizes. A novelty was introduced by the giving of prizes to those who had scores half way between the winners of the other prizes. These prizes were won by Miss Winifred Payne and Mr. Reg. Murduff.

Mr. Cox thanked Mr. and Mrs. Dench for their hospitality, which has been so many times extended to the members of the association and which always has been a great source of pleasure to every one.

Among those present were Rev. W. Cox, Mr. and Mrs. Chappell, Mr. and Mrs. Braden Blewett, Mr. and Mrs. Woodhouse, Mrs. Chads, Mrs. W. Millage, Mrs. Stenner, Mrs. T. Waldon, Misses H. Crawford, H. Everitt Graham, Hampton, Jackson, T. & W. Payne, G. Summers, D. and G. Watson and I. Webster; Messrs. F. R. Alford, W. Bullied, L. Charlton, M. Hampton, R. Murduff, B. Summers, T. Simpson, E. Robertshaw, A. and F. Webster, E. Waldon and K. Wannamaker.

United Church Annual.

The annual meeting of the United (Presbyterian) Church, Lakefield, was held in the church on Tuesday evening January 26th, with Rev. P. L. Jull in the chair. In spite of the stormy weather there was a good attendance and a fine spirit of harmoney prevailed.

The treasurer's report showed that $2303.75 had been received for local purposes and there was a balance on hand of $67.50, after all bills were paid; $610 had been sent to the Church Treasurer for missions and, as the missionary year does not close until March 31st, the allocation of $800 will doubtless be exceeded. The W.M.S., which raised $211.73 exceeded its allocation. The Mission Band raised $32.13, and the Young Women's Auxiliary $42.91, in each case nearly double the amount raised the preceding year. The Ladies' Guild raised $334.59, and the Sunday school $183.86; all of which was extremely gratifying.

The choice of a distinctive name for the congregation was left over for a future meeting.

The following are the officers of the congregation for the coming year: Session, Rev. P. L. Jull, Moderator, A. J. Young, clerk, A. J. Kidd, H. Sutton, F. A. Tanner, E. W. Bailey and James Walton.

Managers: J. A. Porter, Chairman; F. J. Burgess, Rec-Secretary and Treas.; Dr. G. E. Renwick, Financial Secretary; F. A. Tanner, A. J. Young, W. A. Fairbairn, E. G. Mullen and C. S. Tanner. Trustees, J. A. Porter, W. J. Charlton, T. Braden; Collectors and Ushers, Roy Charlton, Frank Payne, Donald Kidd, Ivan Crowe, Russell Payne, Bruce Charlton and Gordon Porter; Auditors, W. H. Casement and E. W. Bailey; Organist and Choir Leader, Miss A. Hunter.

After the business meeting refreshments were served by the ladies and a social hour was spent in the school room.

Vestry Meeting.

The annual vestry meeting of St. John's Church was held in the schoolroom on Tuesday evening with the rector, Rev. Walter Cox, in the chair. The reports of the various organizations show a satisfactory year's work and the report of the Treasurer showed a balance in hand. It was decided to put a basement under the Sunday school and to do up the rectory.

The Vestry thanked the organist and choir for their faithful service during the year and the officers and members of the various societies. A vote of thanks was passed to Miss Louise Hampton, who so faithfully and reverently cared for the Sanctuary, making it her special charge.

The rector re-appointed Mr. Samuel E. White as his warden and Mr. J. C. Strickland was re-elected people's warden. Mr. T. W. B. Marling was re-elected Secretary-Treasurer of the church.

The sidesmen appointed were: Messrs. T. Watson, Jas. Watson, James Simpson, Arthur Webster, Milford Hampton, Walter Chappell, G. G. Ogilvie and T. Simpson.

Lay delegates to the Synod—Messrs. O. A. Langley, A. E. Dawson and H. G. FitzGerald.

Auditors—Messrs. E. R. Tate and H. G. FitzGerald.

Tuxis Election.

A joint meeting of the Katchewanooka and Star Tuxis Squares was held on Monday evening in the Regent St. school room. Officers were elected for the coming year—Norman Lemay was elected Pretor and Kenneth Kemp, deputy Pretor of the Katchewanooka Square and Gordon Porter, the Pretor, and Ivan Crowe, deputy Pretor of the Star Square.

After the opening ceremonies and hymn, and the transaction of business, the Chairman, Norman Lemay announced the debate of the evening—"Resolved that Western Canada has greater possibilities for immigrants than Eastern Canada."

Norman Lemay and Kenneth Kemp upheld the affirmative on behalf of the Katchewanooka Square, while Donald Kidd and Samuel Pammett supported the negative on behalf of the Star Square.

The debate was closely contested, the affirmative winning by one point.

The judges were Rev. P. L. Jull and Messrs. A. B. Burrows and J. S. Montgomery and in summing up the debate came to the following conclusion: Points for the East, (a) a better system of churches and schools in the East; (b) crops are more certain; (c) markets are better and fruit is more abundant; (d) greater amount of mineral wealth in the East. Points for the West: (a) Land is more easily obtainable; (b) working conditions are better; (c) more up-to-date cities; (d) more invigorating climate which produces a hardier race of people; (e) the splendid come-back of the leader of the affirmative leader. The debate showed careful study and thoughtful preparation on the part of all who took part, but the part taken by Norman Lemay was considered exceptionally good.

This is the second debate and it is expected that more will follow during the winter as they are proving both instructive and entertaining.

W. M. S. Entertained.

Mrs. Charles Grylls entertained the members of the W.M.S. of Regent St. Church at a very delightful afternoon tea on Thursday of this week, the occasion being the wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Grylls. In spite of the inclement weather there was a good turn-out and a pleasant afternoon was spent.

A dance will be given on Friday, February 12th in the Lakefield House, under the auspices of the Holy Name Society of St. Paul's parish.

Personals.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Hunter moved this week from Chippewa Ave., to their new home on Katherine St.

Mr. G. J. Elmsley is in Toronto this week.

Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Howard and Miss Edna Howard left this week for their new home in Forest, Ontario.

Reeve J. C. Strickland was in Peterborough this week, attending the County Council.

SCRAP SAVES A LIFE.

RIVER ROUGE, Mich., Feb. 3.—A scrap torn from a playing card tossed by fate under a revolver hammer probably saved the life of Eugene King of the River Rouge police department. King was attempting to round up some freight yard thieves. One of them wrested King's revolver away from him and fired. He missed. As he pulled the trigger again the bit of cardboard, blown on the wind, lodged in the weapon and the cartridge failed to explode. Another detective shot the assailant before he could fire again.

SCHOOL EXERCISES AT CAMPBELLFORD

Annual Commencement on Friday Night.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 3.—The annual commencement of the High School will be held in the auditorium of the new building on Friday evening next and a programme of unusual interest will be provided. One of the features of the entertainment will be a play entitled "Forty Miles an Hour," eight of the students taking part. Leonard's orchestra has been engaged to furnish the music. There will be the usual presentation of scholarships, medals and field day trophies. This promises to be one of the best entertainments of the year and a capacity house is assured.

OBITUARY.

MRS. JAME SEQUIRE.

NORHAM, Feb. 3.—Obsequies for the late Mrs. James Sequire, who passed away at her home, in Brighton township, on Friday morning, were held at her late residence, on Sunday at 1.30 p.m. and were conducted by her pastor, Rev. Mr. Lochead, Presbyterian minister of Warkworth. The deceased was well known having lived all her life within a few miles of where she was born 63 years ago. Mrs. Sequire was taken with a stroke several weeks ago and bore her suffering with heroic patience. Besides her husband she leaves to mourn her loss three daughters, Mrs. Edward Clarke, Havelock; Mrs. David Melville, Northern Saskatchewan; and Mrs. Orville Casement of Percy township; four sons, Charles at home, George of Campbellford, and Archie and Garfield in Saskatchewan.

The pall bearers were Thomas Dilworth, Andrew Runciman, Rolland Pettifer, Robert B. Nelson, Stanley Ellis and Charles Pettifer. Interment took place in Warkworth cemetery.

GRACE DINSDALE.

KEENE, Feb. 3.—The funeral of the late Miss Grace Dinsdale, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Dinsdale of Keene took place from Saturday afternoon from the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Dinsdale of Keen took place from the home of her parents, for interment in Pine Grove cemetery, Keene.

Miss Dinsdale passed away at 1.15 on Thursday, Jan. 28th, at Weston, after a lingering illness of about a year. The remains were brought from Stouffville on Friday.

She leaves to mourn her loss besides a sorrowing father and mother, two sisters, Margaret at home and Mrs. W. J. Armstrong of Detroit, Mich., and four brothers, Elmer of Detroit, and Victor, Donald and Jack at home. The floral tributes were beautiful.

The pall-bearers were: Messrs. D. Kempt, A. E. Fletcher, C. Dinsdale, W. T. Fletcher, G. Burley and Robert Keitle.

JAMES MONTGOMERY.

NORHAM, Feb. 3.—After a brief service in the Bethany United church, on Saturday afternoon, the remains of the late James Montgomery, of the Orser neighborhood, who passed away on Thursday evening was interred in McPhail's cemetery. Mr. Montgomery was born in Brighton village in April 1848 and has lived his whole life within a few miles of his birthplace. Besides his wife (nee Rachael Billings), he is survived by three sons, Harry, of the Orser neighborhood, Ray and Bruce of Colborne and three daughters, Mrs. George Robinson, Orser neighborhood; Mrs. Ernest Wilson and Mrs. John Plumpton, both of Campbellford. The sons and sons-in-law acted as pall bearers.

SALARIES OF MEMBERS

tion which the Government had promised to bring down, and should refuse to take a long recess at this time.

"Healthy Precedent."

Henri Bourassa (Independent, Labelle) thought that the situation under which the Government existed only with the support of other groups of the House, constituted a "healthy precedent." Progressives would contribute some of the principles in the legislation to be considered, Labor members would do the same, even his own party of one might before the session ended present some modest elements of legislation, and he added, amid laughter, the Liberal party would supply the votes to put these things into force.

"Far better have open covenants openly arrived at, than secret agreements reached between members of one party" exclaimed Mr. Bourassa. If the policy which the Government had been 'persuaded to adopt' is a good one, then every member of the House could pass upon it when it was concerned, he would never give his vote to turn out one party simply in order that another party might come to power.

There was too much tendency for members of Parliament to run into groups and constitute themselves a close corporation, he said. He advised his fellow-members "not to take ourselves too seriously here, but to take the people outside a little more seriously."

Mr. Bourassa suggested that since the Senate had arranged to meet again on Friday, the 15th, the Government might just as well put some of its promised legislation into such shape that the Senate could work on it during the Commons' recess and thus advance the work of Parliament as a whole.

If the Senate was the non-partisan body which Sir John Macdonald had said it would be, then the Conservative members should find no objection to this proposal. If the House was to go on during the period of by elections, the speeches in the House of Commons would be little more than stump speeches. Mr. Bourassa again urged that the gentlemen of the "serene house" be given the consideration of Government measures first.

Forke, the Master.

C. H. Cahan (Conservative, St. Lawrence-St. George) disagreed with Mr. Bourassa on the point that the Commons shou'd "abrogate its functions in order that the Senate might assume them." The Government was taking a step that meant the sheer abandonment of the first principles of self-government. The Commons should resume self-government before it adjourned. Mr. Lapointe had led the Government with ability, but the really important measures were framed by the Progressive group. The rural credits legislation was being drawn up by Mr. Forke, who was the real master of the situation.

Hon. Chas. Stewart, Minister of the Interior, asked where Mr. Cahan received the information.

"We all know it," was the reply. The terms of the Rural Credits Bill had been suggested to the Progressives and they were considering it daily. There would be no responsible Government until the man who was framing the legislation was on the opposite side of the House and members of the Opposition had the right to interrogate him.

Robt. Forke, Progressive leader, said he was surprised that the Conservatives were so anxious to know what the Progressives were thinking about. The Conservative organs in the country were talking much of corruption in Parliament. They were trying to mislead the people. "I do not know anything of these things. I know of nothing that I have done that would dishonor my party or Parliament," said Mr. Forke.

Support Adjournment.

The Progressive leader said he would support the motion for adjournment though it would be a serious disadvantage to Progressives, who were mostly farmers, to have the session reach on into the summer. He agreed with Mr. Bourassa that by-elections while the House was sitting would mean campaign speeches in the House. "We might just as well spend a few weeks at home as listen to that sort of thing," he said. Mr. Forke said that the Progressives would support the Government so long as they thought it was bringing forward legislation in the best interests of the Dominion.

Even Mr. Meighen had said that he was willing to support the Speech from the Throne, said Mr. Forke. Mr. Meighen rose to his feet and demanded that Mr. Forke quote chapter and verse to prove this. Mr. Forke said that the Conservatives were too often asking for long quotations. He was sure that he had received the impression that Mr. Meighen had expressed willingness to support the measures contained in the Speech from the Throne. Mr. Meighen demanded that Mr. Forke either quote his announcement to this effect, or withdraw his statement.

Mr. Forke: "I want more information before I withdraw."

Mr. Meighen insisted upon a ruling from the chair. The Speaker ruled that a member having denied that he made any statement attributed to him, the House must, of course, accept his word. Mr. Forke was willing to bow to the ruling of the chair, but he added that many members of the House had been greatly misled as to where Mr. Meighen stood on many questions.

Mr. Forke, in conclusion, expressed the hope that the Canadian newspapers would cease to talk about corruption and degradation that was supposed to be taking place in this parliament. "I don't know anything about this so-called corruption," exclaimed Mr. Forke, and he added his belief that the newspapers he referred to were doing a great deal of harm to public life in Canada by making untruthful assertions.

An Idle Parliament.

R. S. White (Conservative, Mount Royal) said that if Mr. Forke wanted to associate himself and his party with the Liberal party that was his business, but he should be perfectly fair with the House as to what terms the association was based on. Mr. White did not believe that the electorate as a whole approved of the proposal for a long recess. The House had been elected to transact business. Sitting for a month, it had done practically nothing. He wondered why Government had called Parliament only to adjourn it. Looking down the Treasury benches, Mr. White said that he was reminded of Disraeli's description of another government of an early day — "A ring of extinct volcanoes from which not one flame flickers from a single pallid crest."

Mr. White would therefore oppose an adjournment which could have no other purpose than the re-organization of a "non existent Government."

Thos. L. Church.

T. L. Church (Conservative, North-West Toronto) was opposed to the motion for adjournment. Parliament had been called to meet a Government which had no mandate, no sessional programme, and no member of the House of Commons from Ontario in the Cabinet. It was the first time, he said, since Confederation, that Ontario had been unrepresented in the Cabinet so far as the Commons is concerned. He thought it was about time that there should be a "ginger group from the old Province of Ontario" to look after the interests of that Province. There were pressing economic problems to be solved, and until they were solved, Mr. Church would agree to no long recess in the House.

Mr. Church denounced the attitude of the Progressive party in current politics. The performance of some other members in trying to justify their allegiance to the Government while they claimed independence, Mr. Church described as "cheap political burlesque" on the part of so-called independents who were Liberals first, last, and all the time. He invited the Progressives to "stop playing pussy in the corner," and come out with some definite policy. The Progressive platform, he asserted, was "made to get in on and not to stand on."

HOUSE DEBATES TO FOUR O'CLOCK WITH CONSERVATIVES ATTACKING MOTION FOR SIX WEEKS' RECESS

Two Opposition Motions To Adjourn Beaten By Narrow Margins.

STEVENS' ATTACK.

Conduct of Customs Department Hotly Assailed By Ex-Minister.

OTTAWA, Feb. 3 (Canadian Press).—The motion for adjournment of the debate made by J. L. Stansell, Conservative member for Norfolk, Elgin, in the House of Commons shortly before four o'clock this morning, was defeated by a single vote. An earlier division on a similar motion had found the Government with a majority of ten, but in the second vote five Progressives, Messrs. Campbell, Lucas, Carmichael, Boutillier and Fansher, voted with the Conservatives. These five members are the ones who supported the Opposition on the first vote of the session, when the Government was sustained by three. The day was a hectic one in the Commons. Opening with a motion for an adjournment of Parliament until the 15th of March, to commence when the debate on the address concludes, it finally ended in an agreement for the adjournment of the debate at four o'clock this morning. The Conservatives had previously tried to obtain the adjournment of two motions offering to allow debate on the Lapointe motion to have precedence today if the Government would agree to adjourn. This was refused by the Hon. Ernest Lapointe, acting Government leader.

The attack on the Government motion for a six weeks' recess from the Conservative benches was vigorous and sustained. Speaker after speaker, the Government remaining silent, rose from the front benches of the Opposition and condemned the proposal. Finally at about midnight, the debate culminated in a speech by Hon. H. H. Stevens, Conservative, Vancouver Centre, in which he made a number of charges in connection with the administration of the Customs Department. He moved an amendment calling for a committee of seven members to investigate the charges and opposing any adjournment of the House until this was granted. The amendment was before the House when it rose.

On of the developments of the day was the offer of the Minister of Customs, Hon. H. S. Boivin, of a preliminary committee to investigate the conduct of his department. Mr. Boivin was replying to the charges made by Hon. H. S. Stevens, Conservative, Vancouver Centre, that "graft and corruption" had been practiced in the Customs Department throughout the Dominion, but particularly in Montreal.

He denied that his Department had lost time in investigating rumors of irregularities in his Department, and read to the House an amendment which he proposed to move to a motion already placed on the order paper by Hon. H. H. Stevens, when that motion should be reached. His amendment called for the appointment of a committee to investigate the operation of the Customs Department for the past twenty years and to recommend prosecution of any convicted of dishonest practice.

Mr. Stevens moved at a late hour his amendment to the Government's motion for a long recess until March 15, a motion which did not reach a vote before the House closed at four a.m.

The Conservatives had asked for an adjournment of the debate at 11 p.m., but their motion was not supported by the House. Mr. Stevens then brought on his charges against the Customs Department. He asked the House to refuse any adjournment as long as his charges against the Customs Department remained uninvestigated. These charges included one that nine filing cabinets had been removed from the Department of Customs and that damaging evidence contained therein had been taken to the home of an ex-Minister and there destroyed. To this charge Mr. Boivin replied that some boxes had been parked by secretaries who were appointed years ago by the Conservative regime, with papers considered to be the private property of the retiring Minister and sent to him.

Mr. Stevens charged that one of the reasons why the Government wished to secure an adjournment was that it feared the result of the publicity which had been given to alleged irregularities in the Customs Department.

The national exchequer had been "stripped of a substantial portion of its revenge, through the operations of a ring of dishonest officials, and the Government had taken no adequate steps to prevent it, claimed Mr. Stevens. He denounced former Special Preventive Officer Bissaillon of the Customs district of Montreal, as a corrupt official, the "worst of crooks, the intimate of Cabinet Ministers, and the petted favorite of this Government."

Mr. Boivin denied that he had ever met Mr. Bissaillon—"And I never want to meet him"—added the Minister of Customs. He added that he had investigated the charges made against the operation of the Montreal district before Mr. Stevens' charges had been made public. He stated emphatically that if any employeee of his department was accused of mis conduct that official would be suspended as Mr. Bissaillin had been. If he was found guilty on investigation he would be dismissed. That would be the policy of the Customs Department as long as he was in charge of it. Feeling ran high during the last hours of the debate. Talk of graft and corruption, of debauched officials and of illicit drug peddling and liquor running were bandied back and forth.

"Criminal and crook," "smuggler and thief," whose "evil, slimy influence had debauched officials," were some of the phrases employed by Mr Stevens to describe Mr. Bissaillon.

Mr. Boivan at one stage expressed the opinion that the whole debate over the adjournment of the House had been staged for the special benefit of the electors in Prince Albert constituency.

"There is a bye-election on in Prince Albert and we are talking to the electors there at this moment," said Mr. Boivin. Another charge brought against the Customs Department by Mr. Stevens was that it had sold at a ridiculously low price alcohol seized in a raid. Mr. Boivin admitted that he had sold 14,000 gallons to a Montreal distillery at 36 a gallon. That was one cent higher than the average price for alcohol of that grade.

Mr. Boivin defended his department's appointment of extra staffs before elections. Many of the employed had prevented partially rum running around the shores of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. "I will not say that they prevented it all," he added.

School Association and were back at school. He had granted four adolescent certificates during the month, while several had been cancelled.

The matter of the hydrants at the Prince of Wales school, which had refused to operate when the fire department had tried to use them for flooding the school rink, was discussed, and it was decided that they should be put under the inspection of the Peterborough Utilities Commission on the same terms as the City's hydrants.

No Tag Days

On recommendation of Mr. Mowat, no collections may be taken up from the children, except on the occasion of the annual tag day of the Children's Aid Society, by means of tags or seals, without special permission of the board. No agents will be allowed to call on the teachers during school hours.

The attendance record is as follows:

W.M.S. QUILTING BEE.

KEENE, Feb. 3.—The Women's Missionary Society of Keene United church will hold a quilting bee at the home of Mrs. Gilbert Howson on Thursday afternoon at two-thirty. Members are invited to bring a friend along with them and tea will be served after the quilting.

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered at the Keene Methodist United church next Sunday at 10.30 a.m. Sunday school will be held in the evening at 7 p.m.

Mr. Elmer Dinsdale was home from Detroit over the week end.

Miss Pearl McCann spent the week end at the home of friends here.

Billy Burley has returned home from Belleville after spending the past week at the home of his sister, Mrs. Arthur Newman.

Men are busy harvesting a supply of ice for next summer.

The ice is about twenty inches thick where it has been cut, but the average is about a foot.

During the rough weather of last week Mr. James Foley had a shed demolished by the wind.

A motor sleigh passed through the village on Monday.

EUCHRE PARTY WAS VERY SUCCESSFUL

St. Paul's Ladies Were in Charge—Lakefield News.

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 3.—The ladies of St. Paul's church held a progressive euchre in the Lakefield House on Friday evening last, and while the attendance owing to the bad roads and numerous counter attractions was not as large as one could wish, those who attended had a very jolly time and the party was a genuine success. Prizes were won by Mrs. A. Northey and Mrs. Leo Spencer, and the consolation prizes by Miss B. Graham and Mr. W. Hawn. Mrs. George Charlton and the Misses Kennedy and Fortier were in charge.

The seventh card party of the series given under the auspices of the A.Y.P.A. was held on Thursday night with a slightly smaller attendance than usual owing to the terrible storm which swept over the district. Prizes were won by Mr. B. Blewett and Mr. C. F. Webster, and the Consolation prizes by Mrs. A. Northey and Mr. Gordon Strickland.

Among those present were Rev. and Mrs. W. Cox, Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Stenner, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Woodhouse, Mrs. B. Blewett, Mrs. A. Northey, Mrs. E. H. Northey, Mrs. W. G. Stone, Mrs. Trude Waldon, Miss Hazel Cranford Miss Hampton, Miss Verna Payne, Miss Winfred Payne, Miss Gertrude Summers, Miss Ida Webster, Messrs. W. Bullied, L. J. Charlton, G. G. Connell, W. WEDNESDAY, FEB. 3, 1926.

FORMER LOCAL MAN HONOURED.

The election of Mr. R. F. McWilliams, K.C., of Winnipeg, as President of the National Council of the Y.M.C.A. in Canada will be a source of satisfaction to his very many friends in Peterboro.

Mr. McWilliams is one of the many worth-while citizens this city has contributed to the upbuilding of the Canadian West.

A former Mayor of Peterboro, prominent in every activity that had as its motive the betterment of local conditions, a keen sportsman well remembered for his progress as a player with the Peterboro rugby team when rugby championships were more or less of a common thing in this city, Mr. McWilliams is a many-sided Canadian who in the responsible position to which he has been ebited should be capable of excellent service.

It is a signal tribute to be chosen to preside over the activities of such a splendid body as the National Council of the Y.M.C.A., and both the Y.M.C.A. and Mr. McWilliams are to be congratulated upon the election of the former Peterboro citizen.

The Y.M.C.A. President, although a resident of Winnipeg for years, has never lost interest in his old home town, and his many friends here, on the other hand, have followed his Western career with satisfaction.

YOUTH AND THE HIP FLASK.

Sarnia Canadian Observer: Cardinal Dougherty of Philadelphia in making a plea for the resuscitation of the Catholic Total Abstinence Society, said: "There is more drinking of hard liquor now by our American youth than in former years. Who ever heard of boys and girls carrying hip flasks before prohibition? Now, it is said to be common."

Cardinal Dougherty is taking commendable action in urging a live total abstinence society, for the adult members of his diocese, because it is in the interests of good health and general welfare. It is disappointing, however, that he expressed only regret concerning the delinquency of the youth.

If the juvenile population has become a hip-flask brigade, it is a serious reflection on parents. Three or four decades back that could not have happened, because parents would have extended wise counsel on the subject of youthful addiction to intoxicants, and if that did not have the desired results there was a birch rod conveniently in the offing, which generally carried conviction with it. In those days the boys and girls were usually kept on the straight and narrow path until their own discretion had opportunity to function. It is not denied that some of them went bad in the finish, but they did so in cold blood after they had opportunity to know better.

THE QUESTION OF GRANTS.

The visit of deputations representing the Well Babies' Clinic and the Trent Waterway Development Association to the City Council illustrates what the Examiner has already pointed out, i.e., that civic bodies no matter how sincere they may be in advocating retrenchment run into a snag when they attempt to put their ideas into practical use.

Here are two organizations whose usefulness to the community cannot be denied.

The Babies' Clinic has undoubtedly done much to educate young mothers in the bringing up of their children; it is impossible to estimate in dollars and cents the value of the benefits that have been obtained by those who have availed themselves of the services of the clinic.

Seven local physicians contribute their professional knowledge and services to the clinic without charge, and the G.W.V.A. provides the quarters in which the work is carried on, but even with this assistance it is necessary to find an additional $1,100 each year to finance the work.

The Trent Waterway Association bases its request for financial assistance on the grounds that its efforts result in a greatly increased tourist traffic into this city with a consequent increase in business.

Undoubtedly the association has in the past few years been the means of securing a vast amount of publicity for this district, and its request for a $400 grant from the city is not unreasonable.

In brief, both these organizations are worthy of assistance: what, therefore, is to be the attitude of a Council that desires to retrench?

It is one of the many problems that confront members of civic bodies.

A SIGNIFICANT BANQUET.

The fact that the people of Warkworth are arranging a banquet in honour of John McCubbin, Reeve of the village, to celebrate his election as Warden of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham strikes the Examiner as full of interest.

The wardenship of a county is an important position, and it is no small honour to be singled out by members of the Council as worthy of presiding over the deliberations of the county body.

Unfortunately, however, these things are not usually sufficiently recognized, and it seems reasonable to suppose that something is lost as a result.

More public appreciation of the honour that goes along with the responsibility in such appointments would do much to make the public service more attractive and perhaps result in a greater desire to serve.

It has always been one of the greatest obstacles in the way of securing the candidature of good men in municipal elections that there is far more criticism than praise for those who undertake to serve their fellow-citizens.

The people of Warkworth do well to honour Reeve McCubbin, and by doing so to demonstrate the fact that the wardenship is a position of importance and responsibility, elevation to which should be regarded as a decided tribute.

M.P. NOT A MERE AGENT.

Miss Agnes MacPhail is reported as having stated in Toronto that before giving her vote on any vital question in Parliament she will consult with and be guided by her electors in Southeast Grey. Thus:

"For my part I am going to consult my executive. When each vote in the House may mean the overthrow of the Government and an election, the responsibility on every member of Parliament is tremendous, and many of us are realizing this. For my part I represent Grey County, and the people of Grey County must share the responsibility with me."

Miss MacPhail, we fear, has not thoroughly informed herself of the relations which should exist between a member of Parliament and his or her constituents. She was not sent to the House of Commons by the electors of Grey as an agent or even a delegate. She was sent there upon the basis of certain broad principles to vote with due caution and conscience upon national questions, using the facts available to her to make decisions on her own responsibility. To hold any other doctrine, to argue that members must be merely the gramophones of the whims and caprices and almost necessarily uninformed or very imperfectly informed demands of any local committee in a constituency hundreds of miles removed from the actual theatre of action, would be to reduce Parliament to chaos and cripple its effectiveness. What precise knowledge, what accurate information can the executive committee of some political campaign organization in Southeast Grey possess to enable Miss MacPhail to reach more sound conclusions? And what if all the members of the House followed her example, and, before recording their votes, demanded instructions from local committees in their ridings? The theory is manifestly not desirable or safe.

We would humbly counsel Miss MacPhail to read Burke's address to the electors of Bristol.—Ottawa Journal.

DEMON THAT HAUNTS RADIO.

So little is known regarding terrestrial and atmospheric magnetism that the occurrence of any new phenomenon only adds to instead of lessening the mystery. Only on Tuesday last telegraph companies and Washington scientists were both startled by some obscure variety of "earth currents" that interrupted communication in spots over the entire eastern region of the continent and extended as far west as Chicago and St. Louis. Wires passed out of business for no apparent reason, tests showing that they had picked up a voltage registering as high as 95, thus extinguishing currents. Voltage was changed from zero to the maximum without understandable cause, all that could be gathered being that these voltages picked up and receded and were never sufficiently steady to permit of the adjustments necessary to enable the wires to work. Nor did overhead or underground wire show any difference, although the underground wires, normally the more satisfactory in operation, were thought to have been most affected. Owing to the erratic movement of the currents, it was impossible to apply corrective measures because of the rapid changes. Its effect on radio was problematical and scientists would not hazard a guess as to this, though they welcomed the opportunity to record their observations for later study.

At the recent convention of the United States Institute of Radio Engineers, international experts present engaged in a discussion on the sources of static interference in transmission. Many owners of receiving sets have doubtless wondered why reception is good when the weather is bad or vice versa, and have abandoned the effort to ascribe a reason for the behavior of the instrument, especially on company nights. Dr. W. L. Austin of New York asserted that the sources of interference might be world wide and that a thunderstorm in New Orleans might affect the receiving sets in his part of the country. The receiving apparatus is capable of detecting such atmospheric disturbances over a radius of more than 1,500 miles. The explanation seems plausible enough, for if the wavesc an be flashed for great distances it naturally would follow that any electrical display would have a pronounced effect. If the loud speaker transmits the effect of a passing street car, a thunderstorm supposedly would disarrange even reception over a vast area.

Dr. Austin expressed the opinion, however, that all static disturbances do not have their origin in thunder clouds, and that the lightning flash itself does not necessarily prove the worst offender. One authority has discussed the probability of discharges of electricity from thunder clouds to the upper conducting regions of the atmosphere. These discharges would be exactly the same as those experienced in summer except that they would be "upside down." Instead of leaping from a cloud to the earth, the flash would extend into a higher stratum. Such discharges would be invisible, but they would have a pronounced effect on the radio. It has been noticed that static in some instances comes from definite regions, centres or mountain ranges, and that in nearly every case it is stronger in the afternoon and night. This expert said that while great wealth awaited the inventor of a device which would eliminate the clicks and yowls from the loud speaker, science was no nearer solving the problem than it had ever been.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The death of Harry Bretz, well-known Toronto newspaper man, killed by a motor car as he stepped off a street car in Toronto early Monday morning, is a tragic proof of the danger of motorists driving past street cars at corners.

The bear having seen his shadow yesterday, the problem now is, as it would have been if he hadn't done so, one of finding a fuel supply for another six weeks.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

KEEP THE OLD MEN DANCING?

An English authority advises wives with husbands past middle age "not to let them sleep in a chair over a book." The eminent authority advises wives with "old boys" to awaken their hubbies and make them dance.

This is not a bad idea for getting us old tops busy and then buried.

I have been watching for several years the outcome of mismating December and July, and I have also noticed the increasing number of charming widows.

And this leads us to the real subject: When hearts combine with the same thoughts, there is a never-dying fire.

Now fires are not all kindled the same way. Some destroy, not merely warm.

When a blistering, noon-burning July bride marries the dying embers of emotion and then expects a lively dancing partner, she expects too much.

Wise and Otherwise.

When a crowd goes out hunting the rabbits are the ones who have the narrowest escapes.

Street car conductors never become evangelists. They get nickels and pennies in their own business.

Due to a shortage of underwear lots of knees are cold.

The needle is mightier than the pin.

Nowadays it is almost impossible to respect grey hairs. All of them are dyed black.

Any flapper who likes to dance cheek to cheek will tell you that two heads are better than one.

Bandits have quit robbing banks. They rob coal offices, where the real money is.

Parents make kids get up on week day mornings, and the kids get even with them on Sunday.

Excerpts from any prominent man's speech: "I am not a public speaker." "And, as I said before." "That reminds me of a story." "Accustomed as I am to public speaking, etc."

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

MORE MEXICO.

258 Rogers St., Peterboro.

Editor Radio News:

Dear Sir.—In your radio on Saturday night I saw an item on long distance reception, by a seven-tube set. This gentleman on George St. got Mexico City on Friday night on his set. I think there must be quite a few who were able to tune in that night in Peterborough for I got the finish of that programme from Mexico City on a two-tube set, and got the announcer's CZE very clear. Perhaps the drawing power of the large set made this possible. At any rate I was able to catch it on this small set. I hope local fans got in on Sunday afternoon on the amateur broadcasting programme of our Radio Club friends in Lindsay, which came in very clear, and entitles them to great credit for their enterprise and perseverance.

Yours faithfully,
JOSEPH GRIERSON.

ABOUT THE BUSES.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir.—I noticed in The Examiner this week a statement to the effect that the Hydro was asking the city council for an exclusive franchise to operate buses on the streets of Peterborough.

Now, Mr. Editor, before such a franchise is given to any concern, it is usual, I believe, to make sure that the applicants are capable of carrying out the contract by giving satisfactory service, and that the Hydro buses certainly are not doing at present.

In the first place, the buses are too small, or perhaps I should say, not roomy enough. They are small for ordinary-sized people, but if any one inclined to stoutness gets on they are very apt to get wedged between the seats, or if in the aisle, standing, it is impossible for anyone to get past them. The result being loss of time for taking up passengers and putting them down, making the bus actually slower than walking in the rush hours. The buses are evidently not meant to be used on shopping expeditions, as there is no room for anyone to sit in the seats holding parcels or baskets.

Might also draw attention to the fact that the people who have patronized the street cars steadily for the last few years at the 7-cent fare are now being penalized by the starting point being moved a few hundred yards in the south and south-west portions of the route, so as to give service to a part of the city that has never previously had a service, when the Hydro has neither the equipment nor the experienced drivers to serve the routes the street cars were covering on a fixed time-table.

On Wednesday evening, about 7:50, a large crowd was waiting to get on the bus to go down town from Byersville and when the bus arrived it could not take more than half the crowd, so they had the choice of waiting another 20 (?) minutes, or walking, so walking really seems to be the surest method of getting to the centre of the city if you want to be there on time.

The 5-cent fare was the proper move, and I think that if the fare had been reduced years ago there would have been no question of the cars paying, and the buses then would have been of great service to feed the street cars.

Therefore, Mr. Editor, I wish to protest against the idea of an exclusive franchise for Hydro buses until they remedy these little grievances.

Thanking you for your space. Yours truly, —Byersville User.

ENFORCING THE O.T.A.

Editor, The Examiner.

Dear Sir.—Referring further to your suggestion "that law does not appear to sober men," I make this statement "that I know of many men being completely sobered by law, and many of these who were on their way to complete wreckage are now sober, industrious men, some in mercantile business, some manufacturers, stock dealers and other respectable occupations and, best of all, some of these young men thus reclaimed have been earnest Christian workers for many years."

One young man who could drink more than the average man became a very prominent temperance worker in Manitoba and knows well what "government control" means in that province, a judge recently stating it was a disgrace.

But to return to law enforcement in Peterborough—I blame the temperance people and all respectable citizens who are reaping the benefit of the many laws enacted for the prevention of crime and the safety of the public from law breakers, and surely if any law comes under the above heading the O. T. A. does. The very things that are being said about its non-enforcement proves it. The many crimes that are being, or have been committed under the excuse of "being drunk, or being affected by strong drink," proves it.

Then, this being the case, why do not our officials detect those who break this law openly and covertly? This is only a fair question. Many of the law-abiding citizens can explain the system by which they apparently deceive the police. I have very great respect for officers who are appointed to guard us from law breakers. But one thing sure there is something wrong somewhere in the enforcement and this is what the council, backed by all loyal citizens, should find out. Yours sincerely, —A. H. Allen.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Feb. 2—Trading was quiet this morning, with no noticeable change in prices. Commission men did no press sales, and the undertone was a little firmer. Four choice export steers sold at $8.50 a cwt. Choice heifers for home killing brought $7.40 and $7.60 a cwt. One load of quality short keeps, 1,100 lbs. each went to Orono this morning at $7 a cwt. Good mixed butchers were quoted $6.50 to $7 a cwt., and good mediums $5.75 to $6.25 a cwt. One bunch of real good light handy-weight butchers brought $7.10 a cwt. For a choice butchers' bull, $6.50 a cwt. was paid, and a choice cow brought the same money. Some cattle will likely be held over today.

This was another day of hot trading in the calf market. Choice calves were 13 1-2 to 14 cents, and any good calves brought 12 cents a pound up. Medium quality calves were up to 11 cents a pound.

Lambs were firm at 14 1-2 cents a pound for good quality ewes. A bunch of 30 Southdown lambs from Brodie, of Ringwood, brought 16 cents a pound, but these were select.

The market on Monday's hogs was $13 to $13.25 a cwt. f.o.b., and with a light run again today, the general bid is $13.25 a cwt. f.o.b.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Feb. 2 (Canadian Press). — There were no developments in the domestic grain trade on the Montreal market today. Prices for oats were maintained with little business done owing to the restricted demand.

The demand for spring wheat grades of flour continues small with prices the same as yesterday. Winter wheat was about steady at the recent change in prices.

An easier feeling prevailed in the market for fresh eggs and prices were a shade lower. There was a steady demand and a fair volume of business was done in fresh extras at 47 to 48c, firsts at 43 to 44c, and seconds at 35 to 36c per dozen. The receipts today were 1,436 cases.

There was no improvement in the market for storage eggs. Sales of odd small lots of extras were made in a wholesale way at 25 to 27c, firsts at 23c, and seconds at 18c per dozen, while jobbing extras sold at 35c, firsts at 30c, and seconds at 23c per dozen.

The potato market for spot was strong and prices advanced from 10 to 25c for Quebec.

The receipts of butter were 1,175 packages. The demand was limited and the volume of business small, but prices were fully maintained. Sales of odd small lots of Western No. 1 pasteurized were made at 44c per lb., and No. 2 pasteurized were made at 44c per lb, and No. 2 pasteurized at 42 1-2c to arrive, while New Zealand No. 1 pasteurized near at hand sold at 44 1-2c per lb, and a lot for shipment was placed at 41 1-2c per lb.

The receipts of cheese were 201 boxes. There was no change in the market. Early makes were quoted at 21 to 12 1-2c per lb, and current receipts at 17 1-4 to 17 3-4c per lb.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Feb. 2 (Canadian Press).—With many traders giving heed to talk of domestic shortage and of delay on the part of Europe in getting supplies, the wheat market ranged higher today and finished well toward the top figures reached. Closing quotations on wheat were firm at 1-2 to 1 1-2c net advance, May, new, $1.76 to $1.76 1-8, and July 1.54 to 1.54 1-8; corn 1-8c off to 1-8c up; oats 1-8 to 3-8c down, and provisions varying from 5c decline to a rise of 17 cents.

Wet weather in Argentina, likely to delay the crop movement there, did a good deal to emphasize the upward tend of the wheat market here and so likewise, did an unexpected advance in quotations at Liverpool and Winnipeg.

MINNEAPOLIS GRAIN

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 2 (Canadian Press). — Flour unchanged; shipments 47,022 barrels. Bran $23.50 to $26.

Wheat—No. 1 Northern $1.71 to $1.74; May $1.06; July $1.62 5-8.

Corn—No. 3 yellow, 72 to 78c.

Oats—No. 3 white, 38 to 38 1-2c.

The Public's Chief Concern

IN the matter of telephone service we believe the public's chief concern is in two points:—

[1] People want to know that they can count upon getting a complete telephone service of high quality, day and night, now and in the future.

[2] People want such service at a price that is as low as sound business practice permits, and less than the value of the service received.

These points are the essence of true public service, and this company is just as deeply concerned in them as is the public.

At the present time, as we have explained, an increase in rates is needed to assure the continuance of the kind of service our subscribers require

The reasons are:—

[1] Our earnings per telephone have declined, due to the great development of lower rate service, such as two-party line.

[2] Large additions to plant at present-day prices, as compared with the low price levels of a few years ago, have increased the fixed charges to be provided from our earnings.

[3] The low rate of depreciation suggested by the Board of Railway Commissioners, as a temporary measure, is now known to be inadequate to protect the investment.

A reasonable adjustment of the wide difference between present telephone rates and the cost of doing business is an obvious necessity.

Such technical subjects as property valuation, rate of return, and depreciation expense have an important part in determining telephone rates. Casual discussion of such subjects is often misleading for it can deal only briefly with matters that must be gone into in great detail to be clearly understood.

¶ These and all other factors will be presented in detail to be fully considered by the proper public authority, the Board of Railway Commissioners for Canada.

The booklet "Telephone Service and Rates" states the facts of our position. A copy has been mailed to all our subscribers. If your copy has not reached you, we shall be glad to send you one.

BURDEN IMPOSED ON TAXPAYERS OF BRITAIN BY TERMS SETTLING ITALIAN DEBT SAYS LLOYD GEORGE

France and Italy Both Prosperous, But Given Easy Funding of Loans.

COMMONS DEBATE.

Liberal Leader Says Disarmament Essential To Locarno Treaties.

LONDON, Feb. 3. — (Canadian Press).—In the course of the debate in the House of Commons Tuesday, former Premier Lloyd George, the Liberal leader, while criticizing some of the acts of the Conservative Government, took occasion to praise several points in the Speech from the Throne. A Laborite, with the recent secession of Sir Alfred Mond from the Liberal party in mind, exclaimed: "Are you going over, too?"

Mr. Lloyd George humorously bade his interrogator to have patience and he would see for himself.

The former Premier then plunged straight into disarmament. He declared that the Treaty of Locarno, without disarmament, was simply a steel trap with very tricky springs, liable to snap with crashing teeth. He admired Mr. Chamberlain's energy and promptitude in pressing forward with disarmament. This was an all-important task for the peace of Europe.

Unfair to Taxpayers.

Mr. Lloyd George criticized the inadequacy of the Italian debt settlement and the French tentative proposals—if, he interjected, anybody was aware what these precisely were. If Italy had paid on the same basis on which Great Britain was paying the United States she would be paying £16,000,000 yearly instead of £4,000,000. The same applied to France. He thought the British taxpayer was not being treated fairly. He would have preferred a general cancellation, but the settlement with the United States made that impossible.

Why, he asked, should France and Italy pay less? Both were in a prosperous condition. Italy was forging ahead, building factories, always competing with Great Britain in the textile and shipping industries. Italy ought to pay the debt before giving subsidies for the building of ships to take away British trade.

Baldwin Satisfied.

Premier Baldwin said he desired to leave the discussion of the Italian settlement for a special occasion, but he promised that Chancellor Churchill should at an early date furnish information about the position with regard to the French debt. Having regard for Italy's capacity, what she was paying the United States, and Anglo-Italian friendship, he thought the settlement equitable.

HOW ATHLETES TREAT STRAINS AND SPRAINS

Gymnasium director advises simple, easy treatment

Hard exercise brings lame muscles—and often bruises and strains as well.

An athletic director in a gymnasium at Utica, N. Y., writes that he has found a simple and always effective way of treating them.

"Just pat on a little Sloan's Liniment, as the bottle says, without rubbing. It takes out stiffness and pain as nothing else will. We have it always on hand and we think it is the best ever."

Sloan's gives real help because it doesn't just deaden the pain: it gets at the cause. Right to the place that hurts it brings a healing tide of fresh new blood—builds up the injured tissues—clears out the fatigue poisons.

Almost at once you feel relief. Stiffness, swelling, inflammation go down. The pain stops. Get a bottle today and have it on hand. All druggists—35 cents.

PRESENTATION TO WOOLER RESIDENT

Members of Friends Church Gave Purse to Asa Rogers.

WOOLER, Feb. 3.—The members of the Friends church gathered at the home of Garrett Nelson on Friday evening, to express to Asa Rogers their appreciation of his untiring services by presenting him with a purse of twenty-five dollars, the occasion being his 83rd birthday. The evening was spent socially, and Mr. Alex Dunn gave an address, bearing on his stay in California, especially the experiences he and Mrs. Dunn endured on the drive going out, by losing their way, and high winds blowing down their tent, all of these making the journey more interesting.

The Syndicate Threshing Company of the Holland neighborhood held its annual meeting at F. A. Dorland's home on Saturday night.

A large number have enrolled for the four weeks' course in Agriculture which is being held in Wooler under the Northumberland County branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture during this month. Among the lists of subjects that will be taken up is Live Stock, Dairying, Feed and Feeding, Field Crops, Veterinary Sciences, Soil, Cultivation and Drainage, Fertilizers, Fruits and Vegetables, Poultry, Beekeeping, Weeds, Insects and Fungus Diseases, Farm Accounts and Management, Co-Operation and Markets, Business Methods and Public Speaking. Colds Are Not Necessary Evils

Observance of One Fundamental Rule of Health Protects Against Them

Whether one catches cold easily is largely a question of physical condition. If the general vitality is low, resistance to disease is weak and at such a time a cold is easy to contract and difficult to check.

Constipation is frequently the cause of such a state of health, with its attendant listlessness, biliousness, headaches and a general lack of vitality. Poisons from the waste matter that remains behind after improper, irregular bowel elimination are picked up by the blood and carried to every part of the body. They weaken your resistance to disease.

Thousands of people who have suffered from self-poisoning in this way have found that Nujol, the internal lubricant makes bowel elimination sure and easy.

Nujol softens the waste matter and permits thorough and regular elimination without overtaxing the intestinal muscles. Nujol can be taken for any length of time with no ill effects.

If you take cold easily, ask your druggist for Nujol to-day—and remember, look for the name "Nujol" in red on both bottle and package.

THIRD FAILURE TO END STRIKE OF COAL MINERS

Philadelphia Conference Adjourney Indefinitely and Fruitlessly.

THREEE PROPOSALS.

"Now a Lockout" Says John L. Lewis, Leader of Miners.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 3 (Canadian Press).—The anthracite wage conference adjourned shortly after seven o'clock last night without date. No agreement for settling the strike was reached.

The operators yesterday submitted two proposals seeking to end the suspension and the miners presented one plan. All were voted down. The operators then moved an adjournment without date, subject to the call of Chairman Alvan Markle. The motion was seconded by the operators, and the third attempt to end the strike in joint conference came to an unsuccessful end.

In a statement after the conference broke up, President John L. Lewis, of the miners, said:

"The anthracite situation is no longer a strike. It has become a lockout."

Major W. W. Inglis, chairman of the operators' negotiating committee, in a statement, said that "We are faced only by the blind determination of Mr. Lewis to impose his will upon us, our employees and the people of this country."

Major Inglis made the statement that the operators would submit their rejected proposals "to our employees and to the people of the anthracite region and ask them also to judge of the fairness of our course."

Stores Bankrupt.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., Feb. 3. — The prolonged anthracite strike has brought approximately 150 retail stores within the limits of Shamokin and Coal townships to the verge of bankruptcy, Donald J. Zimmerman, mercantile appraiser, declared. He added that many of the merchants would be unable to pay the county assessment in sales recorded in their ledgers.

Mr. Zimmerman said these merchants had thousands of dollars due from idle miners, on their books, and that unless the strike was settled there would be "wholesale bankruptcies within the next month."

REGULAR MEETING WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

Plans For War Memorial Were Discussed at Madoc.

MADOC, Feb. 3.—The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. A. H. Foster on Friday afternoon. Mrs. T. Tumelty, president, was again able to take the chair after an absence of two months through illness.

The roll call was answered by "suggestions for Monday" from the large number of members present. For some time the members of the institute have been discussing the erection of a memorial to the soldiers. At a previous meeting it was left to the executive to finish making arrangements regarding the buying of a lot on which to place the monument, and on Friday last it was announced that the lot formerly belonging to the Young property, on the corner of Church and St. Lawrence streets had been purchased from Mrs. A. Harrison. The plans for the monument itself have not yet been made.

A motion was passed that a tea and pancacke social be held in the vacant store in the Shaw block on Saturday, Feb. 13.

A teacher of sewing is expected to conduct classes beginning on Feb. 15th, but the proposed course in basketry has had to be abandoned owing to the fact that word has been received from headquarters that there are no instructors in that work.

The business discussions took up so much time that the program had to be curtailed. A very interesting address on "A Day's Work" was read by Mrs. F. Dafoe. The meeting closed with the usual social half hour and refreshments.

LADIES' JEWELS BRIGHT AGAINST COURT MOURNING

Brilliant Display of Diamonds and Pearls at Parliament Opening.

HALF MOURNING.

Queen Mary Wore Jet Gown and Priceless Gems.

LONDON, Feb. 3. — (Canadian Press).—The State opening of Parliament yesterday furnished one of the most brilliant displays of diamonds and pearls the House of Lords has seen in recent years. As the court is still in half mourning for Queen Mother Alexandra, most of the women wore black, but the dark gowns served merely to emphasize the brilliance of the gems. Imposing tiaras threw veritable halos of light about the heads of their owners, diamonds gleamed in aristocratic ears and about aristocratic necks, and in some cases almost hid the bodices of the wearers.

Queen Mary wore a shining jet gown, which was a background for a huge stomacher of diamonds. She had diamonds in her ears, a high pearl and diamond collar encircled her throat, and she wore an imposing crown bearing Maltese crosses composed of priceless diamonds.

The Duchess of Devonshire wore ropes of pearls, and Lady Cynthia Colville and Lady Ampthill had diamond coronets. The Marchess Merty Del Val, wife of the Spanish Ambassador, wore a corsage draped with pearls and a coronet tipped with pearls.

Many other magnificent gems were displayed by the women members of the peerage who made up a large part of the crowd in the galleries.

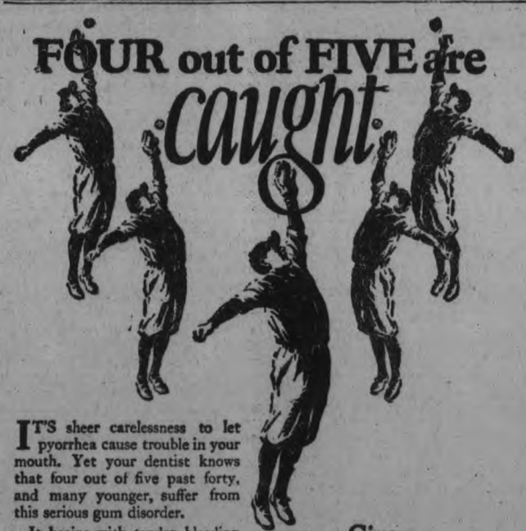
FOUR out of FIVE are caught



IT'S sheer carelessness to let pyorrhea cause trouble in your mouth. Yet your dentist knows that four out of five past forty, and many younger, suffer from this serious gum disorder.

It begins with tender bleeding gums. Soon the teeth loosen in their sockets and the poison spreads through the system, causing rheumatism, neuritis, and other similar diseases.

Forhan's for the Gums is the simple, easy way to keep you out of pyorrhea's clutches. It's a pleasant dentifrice that firms the gums and gives the teeth a thorough cleansing. It contains Forhan's Pyorrhea Liquid which has been used by dentists for the last 15 years in the treatment of pyorrhea.

If used regularly and in time, Forhan's prevents or checks pyorrhea and so is an important safeguard to health. Begin today to use Forhan's night and morning as a wise precaution. All druggists, 35c and 60c in tubes.

Give Your Dentist a chance

Too many wait until an aching tooth forces them into the dentist's chair. It is folly to suffer this needless pain when all you have to do is to give your dentist a chance to prevent trouble in your mouth by visiting him at least twice a year for a thorough teeth and gum inspection.

The YELLOW STUB

by Ernest Lynn

COPYRIGHT 1932 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

HENRY RAND, middle-aged business man, is expected home by his family to celebrate his son, JAMES RAND'S 27th birthday. A theater party is planned to include Henry Rand, his wife, his daughter, JANET, her fiance, BARRY COLVIN, and Jimmy.

While they are waiting, police telephone that Henry Rand has been found dead in a cheap hotel.

The body is found in a gas-filled room. A slight welt is on the back of the head. The only clews are a woman's handkerchief and the stub of a yellow theater ticket. The coroner's verdict is murder.

Jimmy learns that the theater is in Chicago and decides to go there.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER V.

At Henry Rand's funeral Detective Mooney mingled quietly with the small crowd and cocked an appraising eye on everyone present. He also made careful inspection of the group of curiosity seekers outside the house.

If he expected to find anyone to whom suspicion might point as the murderer of Henry Rand, he was disappointed. He spoke to no one, except to explain his presence to Jimmy. After the funeral was over, he slipped away as unobtrusively as he had come.

Mrs. Rand had rallied sufficiently to stand the ordeal of the funeral service. She remained composed until the last words had been said in the cemetery, when, with Jimmy's arm around her, her body shook with sobs . . . Jimmy wondered how he was going to tell her that he was going away to Chicago. . . . But he told her—on the way home, in the presence of Janet, and of Barry, who was riding with them. The thought of the pain he was giving her made him miserable. . . .

"I can't lose you, too, James. I can't." With her black gloved hands Martha Rand pressed her handkerchief to her mouth to hide her trembling lips.

"What good will it do, James? The police will do all it is humanly possible to do. They'll send somebody to Chicago or at least communicate with the police there."

"I've talked it all over with the police here, Mother. They're sending a man, but I'm going with him."

"But James, you're not a detective. What do you know about hunting criminals? Besides," her lips were quivering again, "you don't know what kind of danger you might run into."

"I think I can take care of myself, Mother," he said, confidently. "For your sake, I'll be careful." He tried to make clear to her his feeling that there was no other course for him to take.

"I feel that it's my duty, Mother, my job. Feeling as I do, it wouldn't be right for me not to go."

"Don't go, James."

"I'm sorry, Mother, but I'm going. Somewhere in Chicago, I think, is the man who caused all this. If the police can find him, well and good. If they don't, I will.

"At least, I'm going to try my best," he amended. . . . His jaw had set grimly, in the fashion familiar with him when his emotions were stirred.

"I think he should go, too, Mother." This from Janet, who was staring, white-faced, out of the car window.

Her left hand clenched and unclenched nervously. "If I were a man, nothing could keep me from going," she burst forth. "If I were Jimmy, I'd devote the rest of my life, if necesasry, to running down that—that fiend.

"The cruelty of it—and the shame!" she cried.

"The shame! Why Janet, what do you mean?" It was Barry.

"You know very well what I mean, Barry. You're a—a friend—"

"Well, I hope so!" cried Barry.

"You were very close to father," she continued, speaking rapidly and still looking out of the window, "and it may not occur to you what other people, who didn't know him, are bound to think.

"Oh, I know!" she cried. "They'll be sympathetic, but just the same they'll lift their eyebrows when we're not present and want to know how Henry Rand came to be in that room in the Canfield Hotel."

"Janet!" There was real pain in Barry's voice. "Not that, Janet. Anyone who knew your father—"

"They all didn't know him as well as you did," she interrupted. "They'll be sorry, but they'll wonder . . . They'll talk about the disgrace, as they'll call it, and they'll pity Mother and me. . . . I tell you," she cried fiercely, "I don't want their pity! Do you hear me? I don't want pity. I want to know!

"Jimmy," she turned to her brother, her gray eyes seeking his. "Jimmy, you go."

"Janet is right," said Jimmy. He was holding his mother's trembling hand . . . patting it.

Their car—the chief mourners'—had stopped in front of the Rand home. Jimmy helped his mother out and led her up the board walk—Henry Rand's board walk that he had so stubbornly preserved in the face of the family's united ridicule and pleas for a cement one. The shabby walk seemed strangely dear to them now.

He accompanied his mother straight to her room, where she lay down on the bed, exhausted.

"About our finances, Mother. I've got about a thousand dollars saved up and I've had most of it transferred to a checking account in Janet's name. She'll have to be the man of the family now.

"I've got enough to last me until I get a job in Chicago. I'm not going to touch your bank account here. You'll need it. Then, there's the insurance; it isn't very much, but it's enough to keep up the payments on the house and take care of you for quite a while."

Barry had left and Janet was alone in the living room when Jimmy came down stairs. She was seated on the piano bench, her back to the keyboard, staring fixedly at the rug. She was a dejected looking figure, her chin cupped in one hand, the other lying limp in her lap.

"What's the matter, Sis?" Jimmy tried to put some of the old time light-heartedness in his voice.

"I've broken with Barry, Jimmy." She was still staring at the floor. The words were flat, toneless.

"You've what!" He was staggered. "You mean that Barry—"

"No, Jimmy. Barry didn't; I did."

"Well, what in the name of heaven—what was it, a quarrel? Oh, you'll make it up, Sis, you'll make it up."

"There was no quarrel, Jimmy." Her voice was barely more than a whisper. She lifted her head and turned to face him.

"I simply told him, Jimmy, that I couldn't marry him as long as this—this thing was over us. I told you before I can't stand pity. People will say he married me out of sympathy. Well, they can't say it now."

"Well, gosh all hemlock, Sis, people knew you were engaged."

"Oh, don't you understand, Jimmy? You do, you do, I know. Can't you understand that with the notoriety and all and the—the disgrace that hangs over us until this thing is cleared up, that I simply can't go through with it?"

"I think I do, Sis." His lean jaw had set again.

She said, almost fiercely: "If I can't bring him a name as free from reproach as his own, we'll never marry."

Jimmy was running through the sheet music above the piano keyboard. He felt tremendously sorry for his sister . . . . Idly, he noticed that the topmost sheet bore the title, "Woodland Sketches."

He turned from the piano, shoving his hands in his pockets. "How did Barry take it, Sis?"

"He told me I had entirely the wrong perspective. He told—he told me I was a fool."

"So you are, Sis, just a little fool. We both are, I guess." He patted her shoulder. For the first time since the shock of Henry Rand's death, Janet was visibly moved.

"Don't worry, Sis, we'll see this thing through somehow, I know. "Tell me," he sought her chin with his hand to lift her eyes to his, "tell me, do you still love Barry?"

She tried to look at him steadily, but her lips trembled. Her eyes fell and she covered them with her hands.

"Yes, Jimmy, I love him. I always will love him. Oh, why, why did this awful thing—" She could go no farther. She threw her arms down on the piano keys. . . . They struck a strange, harsh sound . . . Her face buried in her arms, she gave way to long-suppressed tears.

Jimmy was pacing the floor. "God!" he cried softly, "God!"

. . . . He was at her side, his arm around her. "Poor Sis," he murmured. "Poor Barry."

* * *

That night Jimmy left for Chicago. With him was Detective Mooney.

Barry was down to see him off and wish him well.

"Good luck, Jim, and fight hard, old man. And if you need me, let me know and I'll come a-running." He pressed Jimmy's hand and turned away.

"Barry." Jimmy seized him by the shoulder and turned him around. "About Janet, you know. She told me—and I'm sorry, sorrier than I can tell you. But don't give up, Barry. She loves you; she told me so."

"You don't know me, Jim, if you thought I'd give up. Goodby, old man. take care of yourself. I'll keep an eye on the folks."

"I knew you would, Barry. Goodby." He walked through the gate.

CHAPTER VI.

"Not much to go on, Rand, but better than nothing." Detective Mooney folded his wallet, in which he had just replaced the yellow theater stub and the handkerchief.

The train was pulling into Chicago. "As far as I'm concerned," observed Mooney as they were leaving the Pullman, "the first thing to do is to get in touch with the local police. Courtesies of the profesh, you know."

He continued, more seriously, "I'll have to let the detective bureau know I'm here and what for. Chances are they'll be glad to give us a lift if they can be of any use. After that I'm darned if I know our next move, unless it's to go down to this Paragon Theater and see if there's any chance of running down the guy who bought this ticket." He tapped his chest, where the wallet reposed in the inner pocket of his coat.

"There's about as much chance of doing that," he added, as" of finding a needle in a haystack."

"But still a chance," Jimmy persisted.

"Well, I'm not overlooking any bets, no matter how slim they look. Give me credit for that."

"Look here, Mooney," Jimmy hastened to add at sight of the other's injured look, "don't think I have any idea that this thing is going to be cleared up in a day. I haven't. As a matter of fact, I've come here prepared to stay for some time and the first thing I'm going to do is to hunt up a rooming house and a job. I haven't the slightest idea of how to go about running down a clew. I'm not one of these story-book amateur detectives. I m darn glad you are along with me, Mooney.

"I have an idea, though, that I can be of some help. Besides, he added, "when we catch this—this man we re looking for, Mooney. I want to be there.

Mooney looked at him shrewdly "So that s the way the land lies," he said. "I've an idea, Rand, that you intend to make it hot for this customer if we do find him. Look here, now," he turned on Jimmy, "you'll not be pulling any rough stuff on anybody while I'm along. The law will take care of 'em."

Jimmy was staring va antly at the passing crowd in the station. He did not answer. When he spoke he gave no indication that he had even heard

"While you're down at police headquarters, Mooney, I'll be looking around for some place to live, and perhaps for a job. And if I want to do any job hunting," he added, "I'll have to get a hustle on. Today is Saturday and most places will be having a half holiday. Suppose I meet you at two o'clock."

"Two o'clock," agreed Mooney. "In front of the Paragon Theater. We might as well start out on the right foot."

Jimmy's search for suitable living quarters was short. He found what he was looking for after answering a couple of classified "ads."

It was a large room, and spotlessly clean, with a double bed, two comfortable chairs and a mahogany finished dresser. The bath was near-by in the hall.

There was even a telephone—an extension of the one downstairs. Mrs. King, the landlady, a tall, angular woman with a tired look in her eyes, explained that the gentleman who had been occupying the room and who had just moved out—"to get married"—had been particularly insistent on having a phone in his room.

"Of course, if you don't want it," she added, "we can have it taken out. It will cost you 50 cents a week extra."

"I think I'll have it," decided Jimmy. "How much is the rent?"

"Eight-fifty a week, with the phone—in advance."

"Here's a week's rent." Jimmy handed her the money and she stuck it in the large pocket of her checked gingham apron.

"The phone, Mr.—Mr.—"

"Rand," supplied Jimmy, "James Rand."

"About the phone, Mr. Rand. You can use it all you want for outgoing calls. The incoming calls ring at the one downstairs. I'll have to call you when someone phones you and you can answer it right here."

Jimmy walked to the window and looked out. The room was on the second floor, front, and overlooked a neatly kept yard in a neighborhood where business was fast changing what apparently had once been a desirable residential district.

What especially pleased Jimmy about the room was its nearness to downtown. Close enough to walk to and from work, he thought, and there would have to be strict economy. A saving of car fare would help.

He washed and changed into fresh linen. Then, armed with his newspaper, he set out in search of a job. . . .

* * *

Where his search for a room, though, had been short and successful, his job hunt was long and fruitless. It seemed to him that he had been going up and down elevators all morning, only to find that some successful applicant had been ahead of him or to listen to the polite "regrets" of office managers and other executives who murmured hazily something about "lack of experience. Sorry."

He met Mooney promptly at two. The lobby of the Paragon Theater was crowded, it being Saturday matinee.

"When the crowd gets inside," declared Mooney, jerking his thumb toward the entrance, "we'll have a few words with the bird who sells the tickets."

"It does seem like a waste of time," admitted Jimmy forlornly. "Like taking a shot in the dark."

"Who's throwing cold water now?" jeered the little detective. "This morning you were saying it was a chance, at least."

The lobby gradually emptied. "Come on," said Mooney, "we'll take that chance now."

"Sold out for the matinee," the young man behind the barred window informed them before Mooney could ask his question.

"We're not lookin' for matinee tickets," replied Mooney.

"Advance sale over at the other window." The young man was preparing to close up for the afternoon.

"Not so fast, brother, not so fast. We want to get some information." Mooney pulled back his coat and allowed the ticket seller a glimpse of his badge. "Do you ever keep a record of the people who buy tickets?"

"What do you mean, keep a record?" The man behind the window was scornful, and annoyed at being held up.

"Here's what I mean," Mooney persisted. "Suppose John Smith calls up and asks for a reservation on Monday night. Would you have a record of the seat you had laid aside for him?"

"Not after he had called for it. We write his name on an envelope and hold the ticket until a certain time. If he doesn't call for it by then we put it on sale. If he does, he takes the envelope with his name on it."

"We've got a ticket stub here," put in Jimmy, "and we're trying to locate the man who used it. I suppose we're crazy to bother you, but it's pretty important."

There was frank friendliness in his voice, and the ticket seller appeared mollified.

"That's all right, you're not bothering me. I'll be glad to help you out if I can, but there isn't much we can do about it. It's almost like trying to trace the purchaser of a yard of ribbon in a department store. Let me see the ticket." He held out his hand.

Mooney took out his wallet and fished out the handkerchief and the yellow stub. He replaced the handkerchief and tossed the stub beneath the brass window grating.

The young man picked it up and studied it. "Monday night, November 25," he read. "That was last Monday night." He returned to the stub again. "Row H, Section C, Seat 31." He looked at Mooney and Jimmy and shrugged. I might have sold the ticket myself, friends, but I'm darned if I could tell you who bought it."

"Well, thanks very much for your trouble—" began Jimmy.

"Wait a minute." The man behind the window had picked up a seating chart. "There's an outside chance that this seat might be a permanent reservation. We have quite a few seats laid away for regular patrons, and H. Center is a pretty good seat. H-m-m, let me see." His forefinger raced over the floor plan.

"By gosh, you're in luck!" he cried excitedly. He reached for a little leather bound book and opened it. "This record says that Seat H31 is reserved every Monday night by Thomas Fogarty—address Mayfair Hotel. A chance in a million, and you hit it."

"Imagine that!" Jimmy exclaimed softly. "Just imagine it, Mooney. The luck of it."

Mooney was still staring at the ticket seller.

Finally he found speech. "Thomas Fogarty!" he ejaculated. "That's big Tom Fogarty. I'll bet a million dollars! One of these hard-boiled political bosses and as crooked a bird as ever managed to stay on the outside of a jail."

LAWYER IS INVENTOR.

CASTLEFORD, Eng., Feb. 3. — Invented by a London lawyer and perfected after many years' work, the first successful English bottle-making machine is now at work in a local glass factory, where it has been proved capable of turning out 27 quart bottles a minute. The bottle-making machine production, heretofore, has been practically a monopoly of American firms.

GRADUATES OF OMEMEE SCHOOL ADDRESSED BY MR. H. R. H. KENNER

Commencement Exercises of High School Held in Coronation Hall.

LIBRARY APPEAL.

OMEMEE, Feb. 3.—The commencement exercises of the Omemee High School were held on Friday evening last in Coronation Hall, and the efforts of both teachers and pupils were crowned with success. A large and appreciative audience greeted the performers, who excelled themselves in the various numbers, and on almost every occasion were forced to make a second appearance.

Mr. Harry Lamb, a member of the Board of Education, made a very efficient chairman.

Promptly at 8 o'clock, the curtain rose and the scholars were heard to good advantage in their opening chorus, entitled "Dear Old High," and as an encore they responded with "We're Ready to Begin." The valedictory address was most ably given by Miss Katy Weir, an honor graduate. Lawrence Sandy, who is a bright imitator of Harry Lauder, next appeared, and in his Highland costume drew rounds of applause at the close of his two well-rendered Scotch songs.

To show a preference in the folk dances would be almost impossible, as they were both worthy of much praise, and showed that a great deal of careful training had been spent by their teacher, Miss G. M. Meredith. The first was the "Dance of the Moonbeams," in which eight girls who were prettily attired alternately in pink and green crepe paper dresses trimmed with golden stars and wearing a gold crown and wings, performed their drill to perfection. The second was a Spanish Dance, when Spanish costumes of orange and black were worn and tambourines with streamers of the same colors were used in the performance of the dance. Both were exceedingly pretty and well received by the large audience.

The "Guess Who" song and drill undoubtedly received the greatest comment and applause. Ten boys in gay costumes with paper bags over their heads, a face drawn on front and back, went through their drill amid laughter, and kept all guessing as to "who was who," until the song when they removed their hats and revealed the secret as they sang heartily "Guess Who."

The presentation of the diplomas was made by Rev. E. W. Rowland to the following graduates: Beryl Hart, Marion Pogue, Florence Rutherford, Vera Thorn, Katy Weir, Genevieve Sandy, Verna Windrim, Rae Overholt and Ross Rutherford, followed by a few brief remarks. Rev. Mr. Weir was called upon by the chairman to present the lower school certificates, and after having performed his duty, he excellent himself in a brief speech, wherein he pointed out the relationship between education and religion, as they should go hand in hand together, to the pleasure of his hearers. The following received certificates: Evelyn Bland, Lillian Brandon, Helen Mackey, Carrie McQuade, Elda Overholt, Hazel Thorn, Meta Thorn, Mary Weir, Milton Brandon, Gordon Hayes, Norman Henderson, Thomas Laidley, Ross Widdis.

At this interval the teachers, on behalf of the scholars, were each presented with a beautiful bouquet of roses by Misses Christina Connell and Hazel Thorn.

Address By H. R. H. Kenner.

A real treat of the evening's entertainment was the presence of Mr. H. R. H. Kenner, Principal of the Peterboro Collegiate, who first addressed the athletic winners, namely, Ilean Pogue, Helen Mackey, Hazel Thorn, Amy Crafton, Floyd Parsons, Howard Wilson and Jamie Mackey, and congratulated them on their success.

After dismissing them, he addressed the gathering, bringing in a note of humor at the beginning and later briefly touched on the deeper requirements of education, and gave what his idea of a teacher would be by repeating the "Teachers' Creed." His talk throughout proved very interesting, as well as intellectual, and was marked with rapt attention.

Several selections were given by the orchestra, composed of Misses Gladys Lowes, Elda Overholt, Helen Mackey, Jamie Mackey, Arthur Stephenson and R. Thurston, which were well received, while the scenery was being arranged for the short two-act play, entitled "A Dangerous Experiment," which followed. The play was under the direction of Miss M. Keough, and was splendidly given by eight brilliant pupils, Misses Elda Overholt, Ethel Stephenson, Helen Mackey and Messrs. Harold Rea, Arthur Stephenson, R. Faulkner, Rae Overholt, Lawrence Sandy. Each character was suited to the part, and the note of humor which prevailed and the keen interest shown testified of the delight of everyone.

Misses Gladys Lowes and Lillian Race were the able accompanists of the evening, and their numbers were highly appreciated.

The closing number was the "Dunce's Drill" my several boys in costumes of black and white, and wearing a dunce's cap, who were seated on high stools trying to acquire some knowledge from the small book which they pondered over, and afterward in fine style they performed their drill with accuracy.

The remarks by the Principal, Miss G. M. Meredith, brought the programme to a close, and the commencement held in January, 1926, is enrolled in school history as probably one of the best ever staged.

A.Y.P.A. Programme.

The splendid programme given by the committee in charge was very much appreciated by the members of the A.Y.P.A. on Monday evening, February 1. A piano solo by Miss Marion Dickson opened the programme. Mr. J. Wilby gave a reading, which spoke of how the old chorus, "For he's a jolly good fellow," was the most popular song in the world. It seems that this song is to be heard in almost any country, and certainly in every country where Englishmen are. A solo was sung by Miss Dickson, after which Miss E. Curry gave a reading on the life of G. H. Handel and afterwards played one of his productions. Those present indulged in a contest of musical terms, which terminated the evening's entertainment.

Next week's programme is to be a series of lantern views of the Nile.

Popularize Library.

The Library Board have decided to make a canvas of the village for new subscribers and also to get the people interested in our Library. Each member of the Board has a certain portion of the village to canvas, and will call at each home during the week. The membership fee is one dollar for the first member of the family and fifty cents for each of the other members of the family, and the canvassers are hoping to meet with success.

Ice-cutting commenced on the pond last week, and already several homes have received their supply for summer use. The ice is 19 ins. in depth and is of good quality. Messrs. Clemett and Wagstaff are operating the saw, which is working very satisfactory.

Messrs. William O'Neill and Elmer Mahood shipped a carload of cattle to Toronto last week and disposed of them for 6½c and 7c per lb. A nice sum was realized on the 25 head, which was very satisfactory to the owners.

Miss Myrtle Weir and friend, Miss Foley, of Fraserville, spent the week-end with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. Weir.

Mrs. W. H. Meredith, of Peterboro, attended the commencement exercises in Omemee on Friday evening.

Mr. W. Lamb of Peterboro was a visitor in town on Saturday.

Mr. Jos. McCallum of Bobcaygeon spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Brooks.

Miss Calder of Peterboro was the guest of her friend, Miss Florence Rutherford, over the week-end.

Mr. Herman Shaw of Midland visited relatives in this vicinity last week.

Mrs. C. MacArthur and little daughter, Marjorie, of Washago, are the guests of her father, Mr. Bert Sanderson.

Miss Charlotte McEachern of Woodville spent the week-end with her friend, Miss Marion Dickson.

Rev. J. A. Kennedy of Dunsford occupied the pulpit in the Continuing Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning and was greeted with a large congregation.

Miss Vera Thorne of Peterboro spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Thorne.

Mr. H. R. H. Kenner of Peterboro was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. H. Lamb while in town for the High School commencement.

Dr. McPhee, of Orillia, has purchased the dentist business in Omemee operated by Drs. Irvine and Laidley, of Lindsay, and will open immediately in the rooms above Mr. Beatty's store. It is some years since Omemee has been favored with a permanent dentist.

A colored troup visited Omemee on Monday evening and put on a varied programme in Coronation Hall. The concert was well patronized, but many were disappointed in their programme, as it did not come up to the shows on previous occasions. The proceeds, however, were very gratifying to the performers, being about $175.

Mrs. A. McDonald

Throat Trouble

Toronto, Ont.—"For about eight years I was subject to laryngitis, my throat would get very sore and I would lose my voice. I would have a spell of this kind a couple of times a year, especially in the winter when the weather was cold and disagreeable. It would be a couple of months each time before I would fully recover from these spells and get my voice back. I doctored and took medicine with little relief until I began taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and it has so completely relieved me of this trouble that I scarcely ever have a sore throat or suffer in any way from my former trouble."—Mrs. A. McDonald, 28 McMurrich St.

Golden Medical Discovery is put up in Dr. Pierce's Laboratory in Bridgeburg, Ont., and sold by all druggists in both tablets and liquid. Send Dr. Pierce 10c if you wish a trial pkg.

TRINITY LADIES' AID.

Regular Meeting Was Held at the Home of Mrs. A. W. Cressman.

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies' Aid of Trinity Church was held on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. W. Cressman, Hunter street west. A special feature of the meeting was the bringing in by the members of their talent money made during the year, the total being $242.00.

Mrs. C. C. Cragg, the president, was in the chair and the usual business meeting was followed by a short musical programme. Vocal solos were given by Mrs. Middleton, Mrs. Widdess, and Miss Alma Blanchard, and a piano solo by Miss Florence Saunders. After the close of the meeting a social half hour was spent when dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Cressman, assisted by members of the society.

McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets Fine For Thin Under Developed Kids

Children Love Them Because They Are Sugar Coated and as Easy to Take as Candy.

It's your duty, Mother, to see that the frail, peaked, sickly youngster grows up to be strong in body, keen in mind and robust in health.

Extracted from the livers of the lowly codfish are the health, weight and strength producing vitamines that are found in McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets, which are sold by pharmacists all over North and South America.

Doctors know about them and so does McDermid and Jury, Jas. Lynch and Bond's drug stores, and if your children need building up ask for these tablets to-day if you want to give your loved ones a good appetite and put pounds of good healthy flesh on their bones.

But be sure and get McCoy's.

They are not expensive—60 tablets 60 cents—and if you are not pleased with the improvement after 30 days, your money back.

A very sickly child, age 9, gained 12 pounds in seven months and is strong and healthy.

One skinny woman gained 9 pounds in 24 days.

HEAVY DAMAGE IN MORNING FIRE

Business Block and Apartments Damaged at Port Arthur.

LOSS $60,000.

PORT ARTHUR, Feb. 3 (Canadian Press).—Fire, believed to have been caused by an explosion of coal gas, caused damage estimated at $60,000 to an apartment and business block on Cumberland Street here this morning.

The fire completely gutted the ground floor of the Pickard block.

The Pickard stock of men's furnishings, valued at $30,000, is a total loss, while smoke and water severely damaged the apartments and the rooms of the Port Arthur Conservatory of Music.

PEARY'S POLAR CLAIM DOUBTED BY J. E. BERNIER

Canadian Arctic Navigator Refers to Discrepancies in Peary Record.

TIME FACTOR WEAK.

Peary Could Not Have Covered Distance in Time Alleged.

QUEBEC, Que., Feb. 3 (Canadian Press)—Captain J. E. Bernier, veteran Canadian Arctic navigator, in an interview at his home in Levis said the personal letter that had been written to him by Admiral Robert E. Peary and to which he referred a few days ago, did not contain anything to prove that Peary did not discover the north pole. It was merely a letter thanking Captain Bernier for having found and returned some of Peary's records.

Captain Bernier, is, however, in possession of a letter from Dr. F. A. Cook, the contents of which insofar as they refer to a certain position, prove that he never was near the North Pole, Bernier Claims.

It was with some reluctance that Captain Bernier spoke of Admiral Peary's dash for the pole, but he said that in connection with Peary's claim many things had never been explained. Peary reported that he discovered the North Pole on September 6, 1909, yet was only a year afterwards that he submitted two pages out of his diary for examination by a sub-committee which had been appointed to examine his records. Furthermore, Peary himself said before another committee that the only examination his instruments were given by the sub-committee took place in a Boston railroad station in the baggage room and at night.

Another very important point in Peary's "successful polar expedition," was the time he made from a point 133 miles from the pole and back over twice that distance, following his claimed sojourn of 36 hours at the pole, to the "Roosevelt," his ship, which was at Cape Columbia. He had left R. A. Bartlett behind and made the last leg of the trip alone with a negro, yet, despite fact that he had to travel 266 miles more than Bartlett and stayed 36 hours at the pole, he returned to the "Roosevelt" only one day after Bartlett.

Impossible Feat

Roald Amundsen, continued the navigator, said after his last attempt to reach the pole that eight miles a day was good going over the rough ice, and Knud Rasmussen, E. B. Baldwin and other Arctic explorers agreed that Peary could not have covered the 133 miles in the time he claimed. Moses Bartlett, an officer who sailed with both Cook and Peary in a letter written to Captain Bernier and which the latter produced yesterday, inserted the following statement: "I would as soon take Cook's word as Peary's figures."

Due to the fact that at 89.57 degrees north, where the sun is almost on a level with the horizon, a 48 foot long shadow should be thrown by a six foot object, said Captain Bernier yet there was practically no shadow shown behind the man photographed by Peary at the north pole, three miles further north. Captain Bernier, therefore, refused to believe that Peary got his bearings when three miles from the pole. Without taking his position from the sun every day, neither could he account for variation and therefore would not have been able to have gotten back to his ship in a straight line over the course he had followed while going to the pole.

Not Credited in U.S.A.

Captain Bernier said that the United States government did not credit Peary with the discovery of the North Pole and in connection with the correction of maps Nos. 2142 and 2160 of the United States Coastal and Geodetic survey and the navy department, he showed the interviewer a printed speech of Hon. Henry T. Helgesen, representative of North Dakota, which was read in the House of Representatives on January 16, 1916, in support of this contention.

ADJOURNMENT BEING DEBATED

Will Be Disposed of Before Debate on Address is Renewed.

AN AMENDMENT.

OTTAWA, Feb. 3. — (Canadian Press).—The motion respecting adjournment of the House until March 15 has, under an arrangement reached in the House last night, precedence over the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne. The motion to adjourn the House will be debated until it is disposed of, then the address will be considered.

To the motion for adjournment is attached an amendment moved early this morning in the House by Hon. H. H. Stevens, stating that "no such adjournment as is asked for should be granted until a special committee of seven members is appointed to investigate thoroughly the Customs Department."

This motion to adjourn and the amendment are before the House today.

PERSONAL REMARKS AT MINE CONFERENCE

Lewis and Inglis Make Prepared Statements To-day.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 3.—An exchange of prepared statements in which personal animosities were aired marked the anthracite controversy today. President John L. Lewis of the miners, charged that the negotiating conference broke up yesterday because of the desire of Samuel D. Warriner, chairman of the Anthracite Operators' Conference, to exact his "pound of flesh."

Major W. W. Inglis, operators' subcommittee leder, retaliated with the charge that Lewis had not correctly stated the mine operators' proposals to the 158,000 striking miners.

FASCISTI ADVISED TO JOIN MILITIA

Mussolini's Brother, in Editorial, Tells Them Work is Needed.

MILAN, Feb. 3. — (Canadian Press.)—Arnaldo Mussolini, brother of the Premier, to-day supported in an editorial in the Popolo D'Italia the recent command of the Premier that Fascisti must enlist in the militia. "Fascism," he wrote, "overcame disgruntled mentalities from within. Now it is faced with another form of quasi servitude, namely that of tin soldiers and mock fighters. Reports from provincial meetings are very instructive but this young movement has a vastness of tasks to accomplish and, gentlemen, it is either into the ranks for you—or get out."

MATCHES BLAMED.

Chief Says Children Obtained Matches From Father's Pocket.

In connection with the fire that occurred yesterday at 428 Water Street, Chief Gimblett stated this morning that it was caused by two of the children, three and four years old respectively, obtaining matches from their father's pockets and igniting them. He said that the mother of the children had attempted to fight the blaze herself for some time before notifying the Fire Department.

Chief Gimblett calls the attention of parents to the danger of letting children obtain matches and stated that he had issued repeated warnings in this respect.

AMMUNITION SEIZED.

Was Being Smuggled Into Mexico From United States.

NOGALES, Arizona, Feb. 3 (United Press) — Seventeen thousand rounds of ammunition believed intended for revolutionary forces, has been seized here as it was being smuggled into Mexico.

The ammunition was concealed in a Nogales-Sonora taxi cab driven by a Mexican. It is thought that he was delivering it to a woman known here as "Laura, queen of the smugglers."

SECOND CONCERT BY SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

Wednesday, Feb. 10th Date Announced For Next Event —Fine Programme Prepared.

Owing to all suitable dates in January having been taken by other important events, the Symphony Orchestra withheld their promised January Concert, and are now announcing Wednesday, February 10th as the date of their second entertainment.

Under the exacting direction of Rupert Gliddon, conductor of this fine organization, a wonderful programme has been prepared covering both popular and high-class selections, that are certain to be a revelation to Peterboro lovers of the best in music, and bound to engender a sense of pride in the fact that this city is the home of such a well-rounded, superbly-balanced orchestra, and its half a hundred component artists.

The evening of Wednesday, Feb. 10, will be well employed by using it to attend and enjoy this second of the series of three planned for the winter now passing.

To all who do not now hold tickets purchased at the time of the first concert in December, a special price is presented of 75 cents for the remaining two,—the third to be put on some time in early March. They are now on sale at Giles' and McDermid and Jury drug stores, and at the Conservatory of Music.

This musical entertainment well deserves a crowded house, and at the very low price of admission there certainly should not be a vacant chair.

MANITOBA POWER BONDS ON MARKET

Part of Proceeds For Enlarging Plant.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (Canadian Press).—The Manitoba Power Company, Limited, has sold a new issue of $10,000,000 first mortgage 5½ per cent sinking fund gold bonds to a Canadian and United States banking group. It is expected these bonds will be offered publicly later this week.

Proceeds will be used to retire $7,500,000 of the company's first mortgage 7 per cent. sinking fund gold bonds, series A and, in part, to finance new construction, including the installation of a third unit of the company's modern hydro-electric power plant on the Winnipeg River at Great Falls.

This unit will increase to 84,000 horsepower the installed capacity of this plant, which ultimately will be 200,000 horsepower. The company also will use part of the proceeds to finance the construction of a 15-mile steel tower double circuit transmission line, which will tie-in with the main transmission system of the Winnipeg Electric Company, thus developing still further the super-power system which is being built up in Western Canada.

POWER FACTOR TO BE EXPLAINED

B. L. Barns Will Speak on Subject of Interest to Power Users.

ALL INVITED.

The Peterboro Branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada is to have a meeting to-morrow night, February 4, upon the timely subject of "Power Factor Connection," as applied to industrial establishments. The paper will be given by B. L. Barns, vice-chairman of the branch, and alternating current design engineer of the Canadian General Electric Company. The subject is a topical one, in view of the contemplated action by the Utilities Commission to penalize all users for low power factors. The subject will be tackled in non-technical language, and will explain the reason why there is a power factor and the factors that vary it. The speaker will outline the various methods of correction.

The paper will be of particular interest to all power users, and the Executive of the branch has forwarded cordial invitations to attend to all the members of the Peterboro Manufacturers' Association, but others interested will be heartily welcome.

The meeting will be held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms at 8.15.

GAS IN STOMACH HURTS THE HEART

Thousands of Cases of Heart Failure Are Caused by Acute Indigestion, Says Medical Writer

Gas pressure from sour acid, upset stomach is not only nauseating and highly uncomfortable but some day it may prove fatal!

When your meals are followed by bloating, a feeling of fullness or pressure, shortness of breath and pains around the heart, you may be sure that the acid condition of your stomach is producing a GAS that is pushing upwards and crowding your heart. That's the reason for the shortness of breath and sharp, shooting pains.

Whether young or old, the presence of stomach gas is truly serious and should always be given prompt and careful attention.

To quickly banish gas, cleanse and sweeten the stomach, neutralize the acidity—nothing is better than the daily or "as needed" use of ordinary Bisurated Magnesia. It gives almost instant relief.

Any good druggist can supply Bisurated Magnesia, in powder or tablet form, at very small cost—but be sure you get BISURATED Magnesia—recommended by Doctors and Druggists throughout the civilized world for more than 13 years.

HATS TOO HIGH FOR CARS.

LONDON, Feb. 3. — Immense high-crowned hats, which have suddenly appeared as a change from the cloche shapes, are worrying motor car makers and causing complaints from women motorists. Some of the crowns are conical, some square, and others are bent over into absurd shapes, but all of them are 10 to 12 inches high and the women find it hard to enter small two-seated cars without bending double to prevent breaking the top pieces.

CONCERT AT WELCOME.

Was Held Under the Auspices of the W.M.S.

WELCOME, Feb. 3.—A concert was given in Welcome Church on Friday evening, under the auspices of Group "C" of the W.M.S.

In the absence of the pastor, due to illness, Mrs. Clare occupied the chair.

The programme was as follows:

Hymn, All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name.
Prayer, Mrs. E. Martyn.
Instrumental selection, Mrs. R. C. Symons.
Reading, Miss Jean Hawkins.
Selection, Bethesda Quartette.
Reading, Miss N. Dickenson.
Vocal duet, Jean and Evelyn Bosnell.
Instrumental duet, Mrs. Budd and Miss Woodger.
Solo, Mrs. Harry Tinney.
Reading, Mrs. McHolm.
Solo, Mrs. S. James.
Reading, Miss J. Hawkins.
Vocal duet, Messrs. E. H. Martyn and R. C. Symons.
Reading, Miss Norma Dickenson.
By request, When the minister comes to tea.
Selection, Bethesda Quartette.
Reading, Mrs. McHolm.
Instrumental duet, Mrs. Budd and Miss Woodger.

Mrs. E. H. Martyn, president of the W.M.S. moved a vote of thanks to all who had so willingly given their services. This was seconded by Mrs. R. C. Symons.

At the close of the programme, all who assisted on the programme were entertained at a supper, when the ladies of "Group C" were hostesses.

The Welcome Young People were well represented at the Port Hope rink on Saturday evening.

A sleighing party from Canton, attended the rink at Port Hope on Saturday.

The Cobourg-Toronto bus was unable to make its regular trips on Thursday and Friday but has travelled according to schedule since Saturday.

TUM, TE, TUM, TUM.

There's one old-fashioned habit that, it seems, we'll always keep. It's rocking little babies till they drop away to sleep. It furnishes a treat for any parent, any night, to take a littie youngster and to cuddle it up tight.

It's always been a rule that you must hum a little tune. There's something rather soothing when you hear a person croon. A tiny tot will snuggle when you take it on your knees, and humming seems to make a baby feel at ease.

I've known a lot of fathers who could never sing a note. It wasn't meant that music e'er should travel from their throat. And yet, they'l sit and try it; watch the satisfaction come from a sleepy little infant, as they tum, te tum, tum tum.

Oh, I know just how it happens. I've a baby of my own. I rock, and sing, and thrill her with a draggy monotone. To anybody else 'twould be a tum, te, tum, tum, tum, but shucks, to her, they're wonderful—the crazy tunes I hum.

HORSE GETS EVEN.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—A performer at the Cossack show, Holland Park Rink, mistreated a horse just before the performance started. He was standing at an excit watching the show when the horse approached him from behind, turned and kicked. The performer landed in the centre of the rink much to the amusement of the spectators.

Women's Safety

ECLIPSE FASHIONS

Exclusive Patterns by Hazel Bayne

A Decidedly New Frock

New York and Palm Beach agree on the chic of this decidedly new long-sleeved frock. The material, a flat crêpe in printed design, forecasts a mode which women will be quick to adopt for smart afternoon wear. New details include yoke front and back with kimono shoulders, versatile tie collar, inverted plait at side seams, and narrow belt passing through bound buttonholes front and back. Long full sleeves are joined to the yoke and gathered into narrow bands at the wrists. No. 1220 is in sizes 34, 36, 38 and 40 inches bust. Size 36 bust requires 3⅝ yards 36-inch, or 3⅛ yards 40-inch, or 2½ yards 54-inch bordered material, as pictured. Price 20 cents.

The secret of distinctive dress lies in good taste rather than a lavish expenditure of money. Every woman should want to make her own clothes, and the home dressmaker will find the designs illustrated in our new Fashion Book to be practical and simple, yet maintaining the spirit of the mode of the moment. Price of the book 10 cents the copy.

Menus for the Family

Breakfast—Grape juice with lemon, cereal, thin cream, creamed dried beef, crisp whole wheat toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Baked celery and cheese, bran bread, apple sauce, ginger bread, milk, tea.

Dinner—Salisbury steak, broiled bananas, head lettuce with French dressing, creamed spinach, poor man's rice pudding, graham bread, milk, coffee.

Since no potatoes are served with the meat a simple rice pudding is suggested as dessert. The pudding is made without eggs and supplies the necessary starchy food for the diet.

Baked Celery and Cheese.

Two cups diced celery, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 2 cups milk, 2 eggs, 1-2 cup grated cheese, 1-2 teaspoon salt, paprika.

Cook celery in slightly salted boiling water until tender. Use as little water as possible and cook dry or drain. Melt butter, stir in flour and slowly add milk, stirring constantly. Cook until thick and smooth. Add cheese, salt and paprika and stir until cheese is melted and perfectly blended with the sauce. Stir in the yolks of the eggs beaten until thick and lemon-colored. Add celery and fold in whites of eggs beaten until stiff and dry. Turn in a well-buttere baking dish and bake 30 minutes in a moderately hot oven. Serve at once.

SNOW BLIND — By Juanita Hamel

Poor little Dan Cupid is having a hard time of it. For hours now he has been trailing this precious pair over the snows, and his poor little feet ached like anything.

And his eyes—well, he can hardly see—he's almost snow blind. True, he's tied a bandage over them to keep out the glaring whiteness of the surrounding earth, but he has to lift it every so often to get his bearings. And then what does he find? That these two lovers are taking advantage of his temporary blindness to stop on the trail and whisper those soft nothings that seem to go hand in hand with love. And nothing daunted by the cold, the kisses seem to be sweeter and warmer, just because they're taking advantage of the blinded state of their "chaperon."

Poor Cupid! His is a hard life, but he loves it, for he knows he's making mortals happy—and perhaps, who knows?—this blindness may be only affected to give these two a chance to find their Happiness in the Love he has planned for them.

MALAY STYLES ARE DISTINCTIVE

Women Wear Clothing of Similar Cut, But Use Decorations.

LIKE COSMETICS.

By HORTENSE SAUNDERS.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3. — If you really want to learn distinction in dress and perfection in line, don't go to Paris, go to Malay, urges Mrs. Carveth Wells, wife of the English lecturer and explorer, who is now in this country.

"I have been in practically every country and have seen the native costumes of every land, but never have I seen women who had so mastered the art of extreme simplicity and extreme sophistication as have the women of Malay," she told me.

"They have convinced me that we are all wrong in changing our styles from season to season. They have been wearing precisely the same cut of costume for hundreds of years, and they have mastered it.

Simple.

"A simple straight coat, and a length of cloth that ties in front with a particular knot and becomes a skirt—a sarong and badju—constitute their uniform, but they make it more distinctive than Poiret's most extreme models.

"And despite the fact that all women wear gowns of the same cut, they all achieve an originality we of New York and Paris yearn for."

The monotony of cut is quite offset by the marvelous colors and fabrics they use, the colorful embroidery batik work, and the incrusted jewels they use, she explained.

Mrs. Wells spent six years in the jungles of Malay, accompanying her husband on an engineering trip, and she penetrated many of the dense portions of the interior of that peninsula where a woman had never before ventured.

"I went there with a certain temerity about snakes, and after six years in the jungle, I became so adept at killing them that now there is no sport I enjoy more than killing snakes. I even had a tilt once with a king cobra, in which I came out the victor."

Their Weakness.

Though we might learn about clothes from the Malay lady, we could teach her something about make-up and cosmetics, Mrs. Wells believes.

"The Malay women use more make-up than any women in the world—except Americans," she laughed, "and if they could get hold of the fingernail enamel, the convenient lipsticks and the varieties of paints and pomades that are available in American shops, they would probably be the happiest women in the world."

HEAT EXPANDS AND COLD CONTRACTS

Don't exert much strength in screwing a spark plug so tightly into a hot motor. When the engine cools the cylinder metal will contract, making it extremely difficult to remove the plug when necessary.

Don't Neglect The Children's Coughs and Colds

Mrs. Wm. W. Card, Bancroft, Ont., writes:—"Last winter my three children had very bad colds, and they would cough all night long, which was very annoying to the rest of the family.

I could get nothing to help them until one night, a friend who was staying with me, advised me to give them

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup

I immediately got some, and after I had used four bottles of it my children became quite well again, thanks to Dr. Wood's."

This preparation has been on the market for the past 37 years; you don't experiment when you buy it; put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Flowered Cream Challis Makes This Afternoon Party Frock.

An afternoon party frock for the girl of twelve or under can be quite a problem, unless her mother knows the attractiveness of challis for just this purpose.

This material, which is not expensive and is most effective, is shown above, using a flower pattern on a soft cream ground. The little flowers are pink, and the stems green.

Matching green crepe de Chine makes the rounded yoke band and the hem border. The frock is finely shirred at neck and waist.

HEDDA HOYT TALKS ABOUT THINGS THAT INTEREST THE BUSY WOMAN OF 1925

FASHION NOTES.

By HEDDA HOYT.
(Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (United Press).

Consider the poor little snail
Who's got a shell tied to his tail;
Regardless of fashions
He's tied to his lashings;
He might as well be in jail.

Many of the youthful frocks are made so snugly at the hipline that it takes one with a snail's figure to wear them. Girls who wore size 16 in misses frocks last year find that they have to wear an 18 size this year due to the narrow hipline. Skirts may flare at the hem but hips must be as clean-cut as a hound's tooth. Even the jumper frocks are extremely scant as to hipline.

* * *

Shoes take tropical hues at Palm Beach this season. Doubtless we shall see them at Northern resorts this coming summer. Both kids and satins in shades often contrasting with the costume are being worn.

* * *

There's a string attached to everything these days. Particularly is this true in the dress world where strings begin in shoulder seams and knot midway down the back, tie in bow effect at the side of the high neck or fall in loose effect from turn-back collars

Lavender-hued hosiery is the latest shade seen on the Avenue. One must look closely to see the lavender since the stocking is really gray with an orchid cast. They are worn with black satin slippers or with gray suede shoes piped in purple for street wear.

* * *

There is a new machine for mending runs in stockings which is soon to be established in towns throughout the United States. Mending is done so perfectly that the stocking is new to all intents and purposes. The mending charges are very reasonable and one should be on the lookout for shops which do this work.

BURNT UTENSILS.

The marks of burn may be removed easily if the utensil is filled with cold water containing some soda, and is then set over the fire till the water boils.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

AIR DAILY.

Beds should be aired at least half an hour daily with all windows open.

WRAPPED ICE.

Ice that is wrapped in newspaper will not keep the refrigerator cold. It has to melt in order to cool the box.

SWEET BUTTER.

Be especially careful to keep sweet butter in a covered container, for it absorbs odors and flavors from other foods in the ice box more rapidly than salted butter.

FRYING PANS.

Wipe grease off frying pans before washing, using tissue paper or paper towels kept in the kitchen for that purpose.

Policewomen in St. Louis made nearly 3,000 arrests last year.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I have thought often of writing to you, but I was living in hopes that by now have died I guess, so please give me some of your good advice.

I am a young man with rather a quiet disposition. I have met many girls, but, like every one else, have met the "one" girl for me, but my fate was not as smooth as I hoped it to be.

I met her nearly one year ago. How she thrilled me the first night we met is more than I can explain. I went out with her just a short, happy while, when came the crash, or rather a few words that lead to a quarrel. Neither of us cared to relent that night, so we let it go. We parted, but why can't I forget her? I think of her constantly and wish we could come to an understanding. I heard she likes me very much, but as she isn't the forward kind, she keeps her distance. We meet the odd time. We speak, too. Every day I lived in hopes of meeting her at night to make up our little quarrel, but no such luck for poor me.

See, Annie Laurie, I feel blue! How can I win her back? If you tell me how to win her back and I get her, I'll sing your praises all over.

Thanking you most kindly.
ABSENCE CANNOT HEARTS DIVIDE.

ABSENCE CANNOT HEARTS DIVIDE: Did it ever occur to you to take the common sense way out of the difficulty? Love is blind. Possibly that is why lovers do so many peculiar things. Did you ever hear of the man who faced an absolutely insurmountable obstacle? He was just about ready to give up in absolute despair, when he had a saving second thought, or perhaps it was his sense of humour that intervened. (A sense of humour can be applied to love entanglements as well as any other situation in life, you know). He said: "I took my hat, I took my staff. My load I settled fair. I approached that awful obstacle with an absent-minded air. And I walked directly through it, as if it wasn't there!" Get the idea? Your situation is quite a cheerful one. Here is a girl who likes you and whom you apparently love, as you cannot forget her. All you have to do is to either ring her up or stop her on the street and talk about—what? Your quarrel? Certainly not. Your affection for her? No, decidedly. Talk about the weather or the score at the hockey game or the latest moving picture, and, before you leave her, if she appears to be pleased to talk to you, ask her casually if she is going to be in some evening soon. If she doesn't appear to want to talk to you, don't make this last suggestion at all. Just have a few brief words, then leave her and you will have her guessing. And, in any event, you have cleared the way of that quarrel that has been hanging between you. Why go around wearing an out-of-date quarrel next your heart any more than you would wear a last year's coat. Get together again and then you can have a new quarrel about something, or better still, take a lesson from this experience and sidestep the quarrels, even if you have to leave her politely in the middle of a sentence. You are wasting a lot of valuable time, my friend, and if you cherish this heart-sick feeling, presently it will spread and hurt your whole life, and you will be unable to stop its devastating course. Be a man and take the first step. A girl can't do it and preserve the dignity which is a necessary attribute for the mothers of the race.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young girl of sixteen and am coming to you for advise. I go out with a young man who is one year my senior. He always gives me a good time, but I think he is in love with another girl, who I know does not love him.

Every chance he gets he would rather take the other girl before taking me, but if she refuses he then comes to me. Dear Annie Laurie please advise me what to do.

KITTY

KITTY—As you are only sixteen, you should not spend too much time in worrying about an affair of this sort. A girl of sixteen and a boy of seventeen are liable to be madly in love with two or three people in a year—in turn, I mean, of course. You will look back at this episode with a smile—that is, if you happen to remember it at all, when you are ten years older. Certainly, just at the present moment, you are absolutely convinced that you are firmly in love with this other young creature and you will no doubt be honestly indignant over this answer. That is an infallible sign that you are really sixteen. Every emotion is lifelong and permanent at that age—until it is supplanted by some other emotion. If I were you, I would go out with this young man whenever you feel like it. If he loves the other girl better than you, it don't mean much. Unless you are a remarkable trio yuo will all be loving somebody else in a short while. If you have to worry about something, worry about your complexion and its care. That is a far more valuable asset to you in life than the affection of a youth of your own age.

Cocoanut Oil Fine For Washing Hair

BETTY COMPSON
Whose growing popularity and beautiful hair are movie topics

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Do not use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can not possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and a few ounces will last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified. Beware of imitations. Look for the name Watkins on the package.

Do You Do This?

FRIENDS are coming at seven tonight. You've fondly planned those dishes that will please. Perhaps a pudding—or a cake. How carefully ingredients are selected. Fresh country cream—finest creamery butter—highest grade flour—then perhaps a flavoring extract made from coal-tar chemicals. Imagine!

Shirriff's True Vanilla is a delicate flavor that truly tempts the palate. Straight from the deliciously fragrant tropical vanilla bean. Pure ingredients deserve Shirriff's True Vanilla—the flavor stays. Six drops of Shirriff's True Vanilla equals 18 drops of artificial vanilla. And 25c flavors 25 cakes —Economy!

The ORACLE

This day we fashion Destiny, our web of Fate we spin
—Whittier.

Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute.
—Milton.

H. B. G.—You have a high sense of honor, but are too sensitive for your own good. You are a natural home builder and will make some man a good wife, as you like everything pertaining to home and home comforts. You are usually determined to have your own way, but have a sympathetic, kind heart for others in misfortune. Never forget that perfect honesty and truthfulness are essential to great character-forming. Lean to be self-reliant and learn to concentrate. Study yourself, make yourself independent of all outside influences, and an excellent nurse, but you must fight against indolence and indifference. You are also prone at times to neglect promises and engagements and to put things off.

You were born on Wednesday. The day for which you enquire is past.

Your colors are scarlet and heliotrope.

A. L. J.—I am sorry to have kept you waiting so long for an answer, but there were many enquiries to answer before yours was reached. I do not find that you have any great aptitude for the work you are engaged in and rather think you are wasting your time. However, your reading does not give any strong indication as to just what line you should follow. You have a certain amount of creative power which is not being utilized, but it is not of a mental or musical type. Did you ever think of embarking on some type of work that would be entirely different to your present occupation—such as salesmanship or life insurance selling—a job that would require some of that tenacious cleverness and diplomatic handling that would probably spell success for you. A "blind alley" job is your trouble. Then again, you are always in a hurry and do not like to await results. You are somewhat impulsive, and quite individual, and these qualities certainly are not needed in your present job. Throw off the yoke, man—get out of it—get away—take your family with you, if you have one, even if you have to charter an old 'bus and ride the roads like the old-time gypsies. "Be gritty, be plucky, be cheerful—be the master of your own success." Get into something where you can specialize and where you will not be in a rut. Your job is waiting for you somewhere. Go out and find it—and then, don't worry about it. Make your own opportunity.

You were born on Monday.

Blue and silver are your colors.

J. M. M.—You have an excellent memory, along any line that interests your mentality, and are interested in religious and educational matters. By natural inclination, you have a certain amount of creative power, which, if undeveloped, is apt to tend to the coarse and pugnacious element. Life, however, has destined you for service of the more personal kind—the service inspired by love, so that, instead of allowing the lower elements in your nature to gain the upper hand, you must constantly strive against them and work to gain self-control. Say, "I can and I will grow better every day, so that the world will be brighter for my coming and sorrowful at my departure." You should wear pale, delicate shades, preferably those of blue and green. Cultivate the society of men. You will make an ideal wife. And make the most of the present moment, forgetting yesterday and losing no time in expecting the blessings that are to come.

You were born on Saturday.

The day of which you enquire, a Thursday, is one on which to avoid arguments and to undertake nothing new.

Sara K.—You have ability, both mental and physical and should attain much in either science or business. You are original and can plan, as well as execute, artistic decorations. You are inclined to be changeable, which is not at all a good quality, and as your highest happiness will come through bringing joy to others, you will have to learn to control this characteristic, and also the evil thoughts which come to you unaware. You should listen to others older than you, and profit by their experiences in life. Guard against flirtation and cultivate naturalness in your dealings, particularly with men. You are not especially fond of housework and should try to achieve self-poise more than any other quality. You will not get the most out of life until you realize that the world contains different types of people, and that forbearance is a virtue which we can all cultivate with profit to ourselves.

You were born on Wednesday. The date of which you ask is past.

Your colors are opals and tans.

M. F.—You have unusual understanding and sympathy with the trials and troubles of others. Your life may not have been one of material achievement to any great extent, but you are possessed of tenacity that serves to take you through many situations. You are generous, affectionate and kind hearted, rather secretive about your own affairs and those of your neighbors also and fond of pretty things in wearing apparel. A critical faculty must be guarded against. Picking people to pieces is not just the very best way to get along in the world. Individuality although you may not always have practiced it, is your strong point. The world does not want copyists. Care in what you eat and drink will guard your health to a good old age.

You were born on Friday.

I regret that the date you enquire for is past.

Your colors are blue and green.

Sally.—You have the ability to face the circumstances of daily life and to smile at misfortunes, but your character has conflicting elements that pull you this way and that. You should have a strong nature, devoted to love and service of those about you, but there are many flaws in your makeup. You must, to achieve any measure of success and happiness, associate yourself with others in any enterprise, and you must not try to control the affairs of those about you. And yet this, perhaps, is what you try to do at times, and you are apt to resent keenly advice, even when given with the best of intentions, preferring to follow out your own ideas. You will have to learn this lesson of co-operation before anything else, as you are not fitted temperamentally to be a good leader, being changeable and inclined to a jealous impatience that will destroy your most cherished hopes. Practice silence, and spend some time alone every day. Do not ever take stimulants or drugs, and shun alcohol especially. Take care of your health.

Yes, you were born on Saturday.

Your colors are red and brown.

Y. E. S.—You are quite well poised and inclined to regard your own doings with satisfaction. New enterprises do not appeal especially to you. Your destiny in life is to bring joy and laughter to others and in this way earn happiness for yourself. You are rather well fitted to follow this out, if you will remember that a clattering tongue sometimes brings mischief in its wake. "Silence is golden"—speech is only silver. You are deeply interested in religious and educational matters and have a vivid memory. You are magnetic but should control a restless spirit. However, a certain amount of travel is essential for your well-being. This restlessness will cause you great trouble at times, if you do not control it by turning your energies into channels where they will be dissipated without hurt to yourself or your friends. Keep busy at something—you have talent along several lines—particularly in artistic ways. You will not make a good housekeeper, but should try to marry while young, as, despite this handicap, which you can overcome with practise, you will make an ideal wife.

You were born on Wednesday, not Tuesday, as you state.

Your colors are steel and purple.

The day of which you ask, Monday, is one for real personal freedom and for exercise of individual thought and action.

FAMOUS FORTUNES

By Barbara Bayne

HENRY L. HIGGINSON—"Boston's Grand Old Man."

Much of Boston's history revolves around the life of Henry L. Higginson, who, for over half a century was identified with its activities.

Born in New York City, November 18, 1834, four years later he became a citizen of Boston. He entered Harvard in 1851 but on account of his eyes he was compelled to give up his studies. He found employment in the counting house of S. & B. Austin.

But his greatest interest in life was music, and a timely legacy enabled him to study in Vienna. He returned to America just in time to hear the echo of the first shot fired in the Civil War—at Fort Sumter. Entering the service as second lieutenant in the United State volunteers, Company D, Second Mass., he soon became major.

He Studied Music in Vienna.

Severely wounded at Aldie Gap, Va., he was carried home; a shot at the base of the spine and a sabre cut across the face incapacitated him for further military service. While convalescing he was married to a daughter of Prof. Louis Agassiz—a marriage which allied him to a long list of old Boston families.

Quincy Adams Shaw, of Calumet and Hecla fame, had also married a daughter of Prof. Agassiz, and, with his brother-in-law, Alexander Agassiz, had launched into a mining venture in Michigan.

Higginson, now a member of the banking and brokerage firm of Lee, Higgison & Company, had confidence in the project and backed Shaw with all their resources. The copper property soon declared a dividend of $9 a share, and Prof. Agassiz now had the means to lead a series of scientific experiments which rank him with Darwin and Huxley. He had said, "I am too busy to make money."

Mr. Higginson, now rich from his investments in the Calumet and Hecla Mine, entered other fields of activities, principally railroad construction—the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, a Boston enterprise, the Western and the Burlington & Missouri railroads.

The firm of Lee, Higginson & Co. had weathered two great disasters—the Boston fire M 1872 and the panic of 1873—and came out of the storms with increased business. Higginson was an officer or director in many corporations, including the American Telephone and Telegraph, the General Electric Co., and many mining and exploration companies. He was worth many millions of dollars.

The year 1881 witnessed the crowning of his career, when he formed the famous Boston Symphony Orchestra. For more than thirty years he paid its annual deficit, and it remains a monument to the public spirit of its founder.

The useful, honored, crowded life of Major Higginson came to a close November 14, 1919. In a flag-draped coffin on which rested the sword that he carried in the Civil War, the "Dean of State Street" was buried at Arlington Chapel.

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

A Connecticut reader asks about a diet to be followed by persons who have indigestion. She refers particularly to those cases where there is a great deal of gas formation in the stomach.

I am glad this reader appreciates the fact that proper diet is an essential to the relief of such digestive disturbances as she has in mind. I doubt if very much can be done for those persons who are unwilling to make the personal sacrifice involved in a correction of the diet.

We are all creatures of habit. Some of our habits are good and some are bad. Whether a habit is a good or bad one, it is difficult to change it. If ill health is the consequence of a bad habit, he is a very unwise man who neglects to reform.

When it comes to food and eating, everybody is the creature of habit. In early childhood we learn to like certain foods and to dislike others. Indigestion may be due to eating too much of the foods we like and, strange as it may seem, it may be due to denying the system the good effects of certain foods which are essential to the well being of the body.

Gas formation may be the result of overeating or of an improper method of eating. It may be due to eating the wrong kind of food. Of course I would be a very unscientific doctor if I contended for a moment that all cases of indigestion are of necessity the result of wrong eating. The truth is indigestion may be a symptom merely. It may be a sign of chronic heart disease. It may be associated with gall stones or a chronic inflammation of the appendix.

In every case of obstinate intestinal discomfort, and likewise in all cases where there is gas formation in the stomach or intestines, the family physician should make a careful examination. It is particularly important that this should be done, if there has been loss in weight, continual pain or occasional vomiting. Your doctor will probably advise that an X-ray picture be taken.

In a simple case where the trouble is plainly due to bad eating, there are some foods which should be omitted. Eggs are particularly bad in such a case. I am a great believer in milk as a human food, but in cases of this sort milk may be omitted from the dietary.

Avoid chowder and rich soups; hash, stew with rich gravies; fried foods; pickled or corned meats; salted, preserved or smoked fish; pastry, nuts and ice water.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

BOBBY MEETS A QUEER LITTLE WATERMAN.

Bobby peeked over the wire fence to see who was in the water.

"I can see the bubbles coming up," he mused, "but I can't see anything in the water."

Just then, up popped a little, shiny brown head, a patch of white around the mouth and whiskers like a cat, and Bobby stepped back from the fence.

"You don't need to be frightened," chuckled the little waterman in a whistling voice. "I'm not going to hurt you. Ever been in this Alligator Farm before?"

"No, I haven't," replied Bobby, politely. "But I do think they should put a card up on your fence so a fellow could tell what kind of an animal you are."

"Give them time, Sonny," laughed the animal, coming out of the water upon the rocks. "They just put me in here yesterday. Never seen an Otter before? I can tell by the way you are looking at me you haven't. Well, take a good look, for that's who I am, Mr. Otter. Folks say my long body, short legs and small head resemble that of Billy Marten's. My tail is longer and flatter than Marten's. That's due to the fact that I use my tail to help me through the water."

"You look something like a seal to me," said Bobby, coming closer to the fence. "You are a pretty animal."

"Thank you," laughed Mr. Otter. "You see, I'm a water animal. I can get along on land, too, but not so fast as I travel in the water. See how loosely my legs are jointed to my body? That helps me in turning and twisting around while swimming. Yes, and my webbed feet help me in the water. They act as paddles."

"Do you live in the water all the time?" Bobby asked.

"Oh, no, not all the time," chuckled Mr. Otter. "My house is in the bank of this pond. You can't see the opening because I have hidden it among those reeds. I wish the youngsters were older, I'd like to have you meet my family. But baby Otters never open their eyes before they are eight days old, and mine are not that old yet. You'll have to come back when they are about two months old and see how Mamma Otter and I teach them to fish."

"Is that why you live so near the water?" asked Bobby. "So you can have all the fish you want to eat?"

"Guessed it that time," laughed Mr. Otter. "We love fish and crabs. It's a slick fish that can get away from me, once I spot him. Another funny thing about Otters, no matter how long we stay in the water, we never get wet. This outer suit or fur that you see me wearing covers an undersuit of softer fur. It never gets wet. This brown coat is a water-proof coat all right and doesn't let the water through. Well, I must go. Come see us again," and he crossed the pond to the other side before Bobby had a chance to ask any more questions. Bobby watched him disappear behind the reeds, then he ran on to see the Alligators.

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

No. 2—THE BLUE KANGAROO

"Where is the Land of the Blue Cherry?" asked the Twins.

The Fairy Queen went to a map that hung on her wall. "I have so many kingdoms," she said, "that I have had to have a map made of them, so I shall know exactly how to reach each one."

She ran her finger up and down and finally she exclaimed, "Here it is! About six fairy miles from Yum Yum Land, seven fairy miles from Nobody's Land, eight miles from Hidy Go Land and nine miles from the Land of Dear Knows Where. Now you should know exactly how to reach it. At any rate your magic shoes will know the way."

Suddenly poor Twinkle Pen who had turned blue all over from drinking up his ink, began to sing, "Forty-nine bluebottles a'hanging on the wall! Forty-nine bluebottles a'hanging on the wall! Where can I find something to write on? I must put that down a thousand times so I won't forget it."

"Quick, children, go at once!" cried the Fairy Queen. Poor Twinkle Pen! He can't be cured until he eats a blue cherry. Find it as soon as you can and bring it back."

So Nancy said:

"Magic shoes, please be good little fairies,
And help Nick and Nancy to find the blue cherries."

"Cherry!" corrected the Fairy Queen. "There is only one. It is called the Land of the Blue Cherry. No one knows exactly where it is. If he did know, I suppose the cherry would no longer be there. It is supposed to cure all ills!"

"Like the Apple of Life that saved the beautiful princess in the fairy tale," said Nick.

"Exactly," said the Fairy Queen. "Forty-nine bluebottles—" began poor Twinkle Pen again.

"Oh, do hurry!" begged the Fairy Queen. "Do hur!—"

Suddenly the Fairy Queen and Twinkle Pen and the palace and everything faded away. And the Twins found themselves in a strange land.

A large kangaroo was leaping toward them on its tail.

As it approached the Twins saw that it was quite blue, and that it wore a blue coat and hat.

"Names, please!" said the Kangaroo, stopping suddenly and taking a book out of his coat pocket. "And why didn't you come in by the wicket?"

"The wicket!" said Nancy in surprise. "Is there a wicket? And what is a wicket and if so, how many, and that being the case—how?"

Nick didn't look any more surprised than Nancy herself. She hadn't intended to make any such speech at all! The words just came without thinking. But the thing was, that when they came, they came. She couldn't have held the words back any more than you could hold back a snowstorm.

"That's what you get," said the Blue Kangaroo sharply. "The old wizard has already cast his spell over you, I see. He's the only one in the whole country who knows the secret of the blue cherry. And he's so afraid that strangers will ask about it that he mixes them all up. If you had come in the front way by the wicket gate, all would have been easier. Now you'll both have to try and have the spell removed. I'll tell you just one more thing. The wizard's name is Blue Whiskers."

The Twins had nothing to say to this, so the Kangaroo went on:

"What are your names and ages. The laws in this land which are called Blue Laws, because they are written on blue paper, require it."

"Nicky and Nancy—I mean—Nacky and Nince, I mean!—" began Nick.

"Never mind!" said the Kangaroo. "It's the charm. I happen to know your names."

So he wrote down, "Nancy and Nick—the Twins."

Will Your New Chesterfield Be

A Banquet for Moths or Mothproof?

A CHESTERFIELD or a big upholstered chair is a favorite breeding ground and a veritable banquet for moths and their progeny.

If the covering is not to their liking, they crawl, sneak or burrow into the interior and do their nefarious work out of sight—unless the fillings are mothproof.

The damage a single female moth can be the cause of is well-nigh unbelievable.

Grubs from One Female Can Destroy 100 lbs. of Wool

Scientists say that the young grubs of a single female moth can destroy 100 lbs. of wool in a year. Each moth-worm increases its original weight 385 times in the ninety days it exists, before it spins a casing and turns into a moth.

Spraying poison onto the covering of a Chesterfield is only a makeshift proposition. It leaves the interiors unprotected—an easy prey to moths. And, even if the fillings as well as the exteriors were sprayed or dipped in a moth poison, the poison would evaporate in time.

For example: Arsenic dries into dust and evaporates in the air. Gasoline kills moths, but it, also, evaporates.

The only way to make coverings and interiors permanently mothproof is not to use a poison but to make the materials permanently uneatable by moth-worms.

If moth-worms cannot eat, they cannot live. They cannot live and grow unless they can find an ingredient known to science by the name of "keratin." This "keratin" is contained in wool, feathers, hair, fur, bristles and many other materials. "Keratin" is to a moth-worm what milk is to a baby. Absolutely indispensable.

Moth Worms Cannot Exist

The industrial chemists and scientists who, after years of research, discovered and perfected the moth-proofing process used by Snyder's Limited, found a chemical compound that would change this "keratin" and make it uneatable to moth-worms, for the entire life of the fabric. Moth-worms simply cannot exist on a material given this mothproofing treatment, because, lacking "keratin," there is no food in it for them. Death from starvation is their immediate and certain fate.

We guarantee the permanence of our mothproofing. We give you a printed and signed Guarantee. Read it. It fully protects you. You cannot lose. You are absolutely safe when you select a Snyder "Sani-Bilt" Chesterfield and Upholstered Chairs.

GORMAN DENIES MONEY DEMAND

St. John Skater Says Detroit Report "Is News To Me."

$500 TO COMPETE.

DETROT, Mich, Feb. 3 (Canadian Press).—Charles Gorman, of St. John, world's amateur speed skating champion, has demanded $500 and expenses to compete here this week in Detroit speed skating races, Julian Fitzgerald, past president of the International Skating Union declared last night.

Fitzgerald, who is in charge of the championships here, gave out a telegram which he thought had come from Gorman at St. John, in which Gorman said that for $500 and expenses, he would race against time only.

Fitzgerald said that a demand for payment constitutes a breach of the amateur rules. Immediate action, he said, is being deferred pending a reply by Gorman to the following telegram, which Fitzgerald sent last night: "This is an amateur meet. If you are coming to skate, you will receive the same as others, and will skate in competition."

This telegram was in reply to the following message allegedly from Gorman:

Fitzgerald charged Gorman is taking a "run out powder" to avoid competing with O'Neill Farrell, the Chicago skating flash.

RECREATION.

There are many forms of recreation. To my way of thinking bowling is the greatest of them all. You get plenty of action on the alleys.

Bowling gets virtually every muscle in the body to working. Arms, legs, wrists and all. It gets them limber and into shape. And keeps them in shape. It helps the wind, makes you limber and quick on your feet, graceful, too.

Unlike the old days, the alleys are now more or less of a meeting place for business and professional men. After a busy day at the office or about town they congregate at the alleys for an hour or two of much-needed recreation.

All folk who are confined indoors and at desks in stuffy offices should have some form of recreation. And I know of none better than bowling.

They used to call golf a "rich man's game." (It's still a bit expensive, too, I guess). And therefore, every Tom, Dick and Harry didn't afford to play it.

Bowling, however, is well within the means of all. It doesn't only develop one physically, but tends to bring out one's sporting qualities, patience and perseverance. Moreover, you make friends on the alleys. In brief, I consider bowling the freshest pastime and the greatest exercise for the individual.

Firpo, the Argentine heavyweight fighter, was a drug clerk before he entered professional pugilism.

WORTH KNOWING IN SPORT

 Johnny Kilbane held the featherweight title 11 years. He won it in 1912; lost it in 1923. It was one of the longest reigns in pugilistic annals.

Kilbane annexed the crown from the once great little ringster, Abe Attell. Kilbane won on points in 20 rounds. Two years previous Attell had gained a decision in 10 sessions, Attell had been the titleholder four years.

In 1917 Kilbane stepped out of his class to meet Benny Leonard. Kilbane was knocked out in the third round. In 1923 he defended his honors against the French war hero, Eugene Criqui. In the sixth round Kilbane took the count. He then retired. **

HAYMAKERS THAT MADE HISTORY

Kilbane's Defeat By Criqui Surprised Fistic World.

By JOE WILLIAMS.

Johnny Kilbane, the master boxer, featherweight champion of the world, started out to give Eugene Criqui of France a boxing lesson and a few pointers in the art of polished ring repartee. He did neither.

Criqui ignored his dancing-master tactics, kept boring in and knocked him out in the sixth round of their championship bout in New York, June 2, 1923. And Criqui's knowledge of English not being all it might have been, Kilbane's verbal sallies and personal quips sailed as harmlessly over the ex-poilu's head as a lot of his long-range punches.

Kilbane went into the fight carrying odds to three to one he would knock out the Parisian lathe-hand with the artificial jaw.

Kilbane took the first round easily, shooting his punches from a distance. Criqui was having trouble getting started. It looked like another easy win for the Clevelander. He began opening up with his descriptive adjectives and vaudeville tactics.

Kilbane's Wise Cracks Wasted.

He dangled a glove in the Frenchman's face and accompanied the gesture with remarks not exactly complimentary to the French race. This was considered smart work. It was calculated to throw Mons. Criqui in a rage and make him an easy mark for a cool attack.

Kilbane, quick of wit and gifted in repartee, had won many fights this way. He had outjabbered the mouthy Abe Attell in winning the title back in 1912; taunted Johnny Dundee into a retreat when Dundee seemed to have the title won, and tongue-lashed George Knockout Chaney into submission before a single punch was landed.

But Criqui merely grunted "Je n'al pas comprehends," or the correct French equivalent thereof when Kilbane began chattering, and kept boring in, as unstoppable as a war tank—or a Terry McGovern. Kilbane's most penetrating weapon of attack, his barbed tongue, was useless. The Frenchman DIDN'T KNOW WHAT HE WAS TALKING ABOUT!

Right to Kilbane's Heart.

Kilbane began to lose ground almost immediately. In the fourth round the first damaging blow of the fight was recorded. Criqui edged in and sank a hard right in the pit of Johnny's stomach.

The end came in the sixth. Answering the bell, Kilbane was breathing heavily. His abnormally big chest rose and fell convulsively. Criqui showed no effects of the early rounds. Cool and unflustered, he crowded in and began pounding away at the champion's waistline. Stepping back he shot a right to Kilbane's heart. Johnny's knees sagged, he spun half way around and went into an instinctive clinch.

The death toll was about to sound. Criqui wrestled Kilbane off. For a moment they stood eyeing each other thoughtfully. Then, with less warning than a swooping hawk, the Frenchman unleased a long swinging right hand. It was what is known in the argot of the ring as a "sucker punch."

The Kilbane of old would have caught it deftly with his left glove and countered. But this was not the Kilbane of old. It was instead a grey-haired, horribly tired, ring-worn veteran desperately paging a miracle—a miracle that was not within hearing distance.

The long-swinging right hand—"the sucker punch"—landed square on the button, and Kilbane went flopping back on his haunches, not out but badly stunned. At six he was on his knees. At eight he tried to rise to his feet. But his trembling legs buckled under him, much like Leon Errol, the stage comic, and he was counted out by Referee Jack Appel.

"I saw the punch start," Kilbane told me after the fight. "I saw it at the half-way point. I even saw it land, and yet I couldn't get out of the way."

TANKARD RINKS BADLY BEATEN

Hamilton Vics 29 Up on Peterborough in Second Round.

IN CONSOLATION.

TORONTO, Feb. 3 (Canadian Press).—Hamilton Victorias vs. Galt Granites, and Toronto Queen City vs. Collingwood, is the draw for the semi-finals this morning at the Toronto Curling Club (Victoria Club) in the Ontario Tankard. The finals will be played this afternoon and for the first time in the fifty-one years' existence of the Ontario Curling Association, the historic cup and banner will be decided on artificial ice.

Hamilton Victorias, Peterboro, Galt Granites, London, Napanee, Toronto Queen City, Owen Sound, and Collingwood survived the first round, Owen Sound, last year's finalists to Barrie, beating Guelph Royals by 4 shots, while Napanee and London had three shot margins over Toronto Granites and Plattsville, respectively.

The surprise of the day was the 29 shot trimming that Hamilton Victorias gave Peterboro. Queen City were nine up on Napanee but Collingwood had only a margin of three over Owen Sound. In this game McGill needed two to tie the last end, but Norman Rule, who had previously scored a six end on McGill got the shot. Another six end reported was Muir of Hamilton Victorias, over Connal, of Peterboro.

Results of Second Round

Hamilton Vics:	Peterboro:
Wm. Muir...20	J. Connel ...10
J. Torrance..22	R. P. Best..12
51	22

Majority for Hamilton Vics, 29.

Galt Granites:	London:
J.S. Webster..18	T. Trout ...13

Majority for Queen City, 9 shots.

Collingwood:	Owen Sound:
W.D. Fryer..20	T. Thompson 14
Norman Rule 19	J.B. McGill 22
39	36

Majority for Collingwood, 3 shots.

The draw for the second round of the Burden Trophy this morning is as follows:

Agincourt vs. Peterboro
Plattsville vs. London
Sarnia vs. Napanee
Cobourg vs. Owen Sound

Luck Plays Leading Part In Golfers Hole In One

What element of luck is included when one registers a Dodo?

The makers of holes in one claim there is no luck attached to the glorious shot.

But there is one man who has registered a hole in one who attributes it entirely to luck—and luck alone.

He is Dan W. Hill, postmaster at Asheville, N. C., who made his hole in one on the short 140-yard No. 3 at Asheville Country Club.

"Of course, I was trying to get somewhere close to the green," admits Mr. Hill. "I cut loose and hooked my ball. It started off into the rough, struck a tree and bounded back into the fairway, rolled over a bunker ridge and upon the green and down a little slope right into the cup for as pretty a hole in one as I ever had hoped for."

But is it luck after all? People try to shoot for the green when they tee off, and if that is their intention, why call it luck when their ball drops out of sight for a Dodo?

GIRL RIDES WINNER.

First Under Wire in Steeplechase.

NOTTINGHAM, England, Feb. 3 (Canadian Press).—Miss Mary Barhour, 17-year-old student, won the Tollerton Steeplechase here Tuesday, riding Alroi. Her sister, Elizabeth, one year older, failed to place with Blacona.

The girls are the daughters of John Milme Barbour, parliamentary secretary to the finance ministry of the Ulster Government, and are believed to be the youngest race horse owners in the world. Elizabeth won the Irish Cesarewich last October, riding Branconi.

ROMANCE OF COLUMBUS.

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—Tangible records of Christopher Columbus—the most mysterious and romantic figure in America's historical background—are being accumulated here in a collection of relics and pictures, documents and seals, which began with the World Columbian Exposition in 1893.

TENNIS GAMES EASY FOR BOTH

Helen Wills and Mlle. Lenglen Won at Nice.

MAY MEET FRIDAY.

NICE, France, Feb. 3 (Canadian Press).—Helen Wills invaded Suzanne Lenglen's territory Tuesday afternoon, and in her debut on the courts of the French star's home club, participated in two one-sided victories. Paired with C. F. Aeschlimann, the Swiss champion, the United States champion passed easily through the first two rounds of the mixed doubles in the Nice tournament, thus gaining the quarter finals.

Mlle. Lenglen won two matches yesterday with the greatest ease, not losing a single game.

Miss Wills and her partner dropped only one game in winning their double victory. They defeated Mlle. Neveu and Captain Christie in two love sets and then overwhelmed Miss Evelyn Woods and Mr. Caulfield, 6-0, 6-1.

The combination of the California girl and the Swiss star proved highly pleasing to Riviera tennis fans, as it presents an exceptionally powerful attack, featured by Miss Wills' hard driving and Aeschlimann's brilliant net play.

Experts agreed after watching yesterday's matches that Miss Wills and her partner should give Mlle. Lenglen and Baron Henri De Morpurgo the stiffest kind of battle when they meet in the mixed doubles finals at the end of the week, as it now is generally conceded they will.

The following is stated to be the inside story of Miss Helen Will's failure to meet Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen in the singles of the Nice tourney which began Monday. Suzanne's father, who, being secretary of the Nice club, is interested in the local gate receipts, desired the meeting to take place, but he was over-ruled by the Riviera publicity syndicate which, fearing a Lenglen walk-over would affect the attendance for the remainder of the season, insisted that the meeting be postponed.

This was simply done by the Nice club announcing that grooved balls would be used. As Helen already was considerably handicapped by the slow sodden courts the further restriction of a grooved ball on her fast play caused her to withhold her name from the singles in the hope the Nice club would show a sporting spirit. It didn't and so at the last moment Suzanne was able to enter the singles, certain of not meeting the American champion.

It is very doubtful now if the two will meet at all on the Riviera since the remaining big tourneys, one at Cannes next week and another at Monte Carlo, Suzanne is scheduled to play only once in the singles. It will be the easiest thing for her to dodge that, not from fear of her opponent, but conforming to the wheels within the wheels of Riviera tennis politics into which Helen should never have ventured without a hardened mentor.

Much more tennis is being played off the courts than on. The fact is, Helen is being used more and more to boost the Riviera season.

She is collecting trophies at a fast clip. She won her second cup at Cannes today from Mlle. Contoslavos. The American's form in the final showed she is nearing her normal excellence in all save the overhead smashes and the betting accordingly veered slightly in her favor in regards to her proposed meeting with Mlle. Lenglen.

HOCKEY RINK IS STILL POPULAR

Many Games Scheduled For This Week at Lakefield.

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 3.—The popularity of hockey never fails and as the season advances games become so numerous that the rink has a veritable merry-go round of this game which takes premier place in the village heart.

Games for this week in the Lakefield District Hockey League are:

Thursday—Rats vs Grove.
Friday—Colts vs Warsaw.

The T.C.S. team in expected to play the Grove on Tuesday afternoon.

There will be the usual midget and bantam games which never lack interest.

Curling scores for last week are as follows in the scheduled games:

January 28—Theo Crawford, 13; J. McFadden, 4; Chas. Lake, 13; Galvin, 9; J. W. Ridpath, 11; P. Spence, 6; D. H. Charlton, 12; B. Q. Dench, 3.

January 29—Rev. P. L. Jull, by default of J. C. Strickland; C. S. Tanner, 11; G. H. Spence, 4; J. W. Ridpath, 10; J. J. McFadden, 4; B. Q. Dench, 12; J. E. Galvin, 4.

Owing to the District Cup games and the Peterboro Bonspiel no games were played in the early part of last week.

YACHTMEN FEAR ISLAND.

SAN PEDRO, Feb. 3. — Most yachtsmen stear clear of the desolate and wind-swept San Nicolas, one of many islands off the coast of southern California. It has long been the chief place of discussion by old-time mariners and it is inhabited only by a man named MacArthur and his wife who care for 2,000 sheep owned by a cattle company.

LEAGUE LEADERS HELD SCORELESS

Pittsburgh Beat Ottawa 1-0 —Maroons Blank Canadiens.

BOSTON WON.

PITTSBURGH, Feb 3 (Canadian Press).—In the presence of an estimated crowd of 9,000, said to be a new attendance record at Duquesne Gardens, the Pittsburgh hockey team rode to victory over the powerful Ottawa sextette here last night 1 to 0, after sixty minutes of furious playing which saw skating, checking and team play of high-class variety.

Drury, the Pittsburgh ace, gave the Pirate brigade its well-earned and deserved victory, when he sent the puck whirling through Goal Tender Connell's legs for what proved to be the winning marker.

Montreal 2, Canadiens 0.

MONTREAL, Feb. 3 (Canadian Press).—Montreal Maroons blanked Canadiens before a capacity arena here last night 2 to 0, and this made good their safe hold on second place in the National Hockey League race, and for the time let Canadiens down into fourth place. Nelson Stewart, crafty centre of the Maroon team, and leading goal-scorer in the League, netted both of Montreal's goals in the first period.

Boston 3, St. Pats 2.

BOSTON, Feb. 3. — (Canadian Press).—The once lowly Boston Bruins showed their teeth last night and defeated St. Patrick's of Toronto in the National League hockey fixture here 3 to 2. Flushed with their victory over Montreal in the Canadian city on Saturday night, the Boston team delivered an attack that would have bothered the strongest team in the professional ranks, coupling with it their well-known stonewall defence.

To Carson Cooper, forward line star of the Boston team, fell all three goals tallied by his team.

WATER SAVES DRIVER.

TATAMY, Pa., Feb. 3.—Driving near here an autoist fainted at the wheel, but was immediately revived when he was plunged into the river when his automobile left the road.

BASKETBALL

By THE CAPTAIN

NO. 19—GUARD TO FORWARD

The adaptability of a play oftimes depends on the qualities of the players involved in the formation. It may be ability to pivot, height, sturdiness or speed. The guard to forward play requires sturdiness of the guard and speed as the forward's essential.

The left guard comes up the floor with his opponent and beats him to the tap. The right forward, after losing his rival, pivots and cuts back to the basket to take a pass and shoot for the goal. It is necessary that the forward show speed in getting under the net and also that the guard be able to get rid of the ball at the proper time.

The left forward is the main follow-up player in case the right forward fails to score, and must be ready to take a pass in case the play is stopped anywhere.

The center, because the left guard is brought up the floor, cannot attempt to follow-up until he makes certain the opposing team has not gained possession of the ball. After he has determined this, he can also cut for the basket, preferably around the right side of his opponent, so that he doesn't get in the way of a pass.

The right guard, keeping his opponent out of the play, does not make an attempt to follow the shot or get in the scoring. He is the main defense and must be ready to lessen the danger of your opponents' scoring, should they break up the formation at any point. This play can be reversed by letting the left side players exchange duties with those on the right.

CHURCH HOCKEY LEAGUE SCORES

Murray Street 4, St. Paul's 2.

St. Paul's lost to Murray Street 4 to 2 in a Juvenile Church League game last night. Both teams played good hockey, but Murray Street had better team play. Chenhall starred for St. Paul's, scoring both counters, while Doughty scored the four goals for the winners. Chambers played a wonderful game in goal, stopping many a shot which looked impossible to save. The teams:

Murray Street—Goal, Chambers; defence, Westbrook and Armstrong; centre, Doughty; wings, Sage and Smith.

St. Paul's—Goal, Stinson; defence Snelgrove and Tedford; centre, Rose; wings, Tedford and Chenhall; sub., Cuthbertson.

The Trinity Church Juveniles bowed down to their third consecutive defeat last night in the church league when the All Saints' sextette trotted off the ice with a 5 to 0 victory tucked neatly under their belts. The game was a well contested battle from gong to gong, both teams hitting a fast stride. The Methodist crew played stellar hockey in the beginning but as time flew on they gradually faded out of the picture. The Anglican boys played like pros, their back-checking and stick-handling earning them a clean cut verdict. Frost Griffin, Worsencroft, Jones and Louden were the goal scorers for the Saints.

Line-up as follows:

Trinity — Goal, Cairns; defence, Ferguson; wings, Doxee, MacGee; centre, Bath.

All Saints—Goal, Murphy; defence Griffin, Worsencroft; wings, Frost and Goodson; centre, Jones; subs, Louden, Evans.

Penalties—Trinity, 0; All Saints, Goodson, 1.

Jack Smith handled the bell satisfactorily to both teams.

Loosen Up That Cold With Musterole

Have Musterole handy when a cold starts. It has all of the advantages of grandmother's mustard plaster WITHOUT the blister. Apply it with the fingers. You feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief.

Made of pure oil of mustard and other simple ingredients, Musterole is recommended by many nurses and doctors. Try Musterole for bronchitis, sore throat, stiff neck, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, croup, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back or joints, sore muscles, sprains, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest. It may prevent pneumonia and "flu."

BILLY EVANS Says:

OPPORTUNITY.

Opportunity is often the only thing needed for certain athletes to beome stars.

Ability is of course the most important asset in any sport, but opportuhity is a very close second.

Often baseball stars in the making sit on big league benches for years before getting a chance to show, simply because some sterling veteran whose work satisfies the manager, plays the same position.

Take the case of Freddy Lindstrom of the New York Giants. If Heine Groh hadn't injured his leg just prior to the 1924 world series, Lindstrom's rise to fame would have been delayed at least a year, probably longer.

In the emergency, Manager McGraw could call upon no one other than the 19-year old rookie. Lindstrom stepped into the breach and played such remarkable ball that the dependable Groh wasn't missed. Indeed his work featured the series in the field and at the bat.

* * *

Manager McGraw is now paying the penalty of Lindstrom's rise to fame. He's the first New York holdout of 1926.

OBERLANDER'S CASE.

The past season in football furnished another shining example of what opportunity means.

The outstanding figure in college football was Swede Oberlander of Dartmouth. He was the big noise in the Green machine.

The thing that made Oberlander the most talked about man in the grid game was his marvelous forward passing. While proficient in all departments of play, Oberlander's greatest punch was his passing game.

For two seasons, 1923 and 1924, Oberlander of Dartmouth was a mighty good football player, but he didn't break into the headlines very often.

During those two seasons most of Dartmouth's forward passing was done by Mr. Edward Dooley. An injury, due to a fall while horseback riding, made it apparent that Dooley would be lost to Dartmouth for 1925.

Oberlander set about to take his place. A football was his constant companion last summer. It is said he spent one hour a day throwing forward passes. His phenomenal play of last fall was a tribute to the effort expended during the summer.

* * *

If Oberlander can impart his forward passing ability to the Ohio State players, where he is to coach next fall, look out for the Columbus eleven.

PROPER RECOGNITION.

Getting on the card at one of the big boxing shows in the east often makes a fighter who otherwise would have a hard time getting the proper recognition.

It isn't always an easy task to break into the elite of the east's boxing. The promoters are loathe to gamble with some unknown.

In this connection I recall the case of Johnny Kilbane, ex-featherweight champion. In his early days as a boxer he was a hit in Ohio, but little known outside the state.

Jimmy Dunn, his manager, asked me to use my influence in getting him a chance in the east. Johnny Mooney, an old friend of mine, was then the matchmaker at the Armory Athletic Club at Boston.

Mooney put Kilbane on as a favor to me, taking my word that he would deliver. He was the hit of the show and to the end of his career remained a big favorite in Boston. Then came a chance to box in Philadelphia, where he also scored heavily.

* * *

Those two bouts let the natives know there was such a person as Kilbane. In a few short years he was featherweight champion. He needed only the big opportunity.

D. AND O. LEAGUE MEETS FEB. 27

Notices Sent Out To Eight Clubs To Have Delegates There.

SOME NEW TEAMS.

OSHAWA, Feb. 3. (Special.) — Notices were mailed out yesterday evening to Brighton, Colborne, Cobourg, Port Hope, Orono, Bowmanville, Oshawa and Whitby, to have delegates present at the annual meeting of the Durham and Ontario Baseball League, to be held in the Queen's Hotel, Port Hope, on Saturday afternoon, Feb. 27 when the election of officers for 1926 of both the Intermediate and Junior series will be held. Delegates to the annual meeting of the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association will be elected, and a general discussion as to the coming season's operations will take place.

Whitby and Bowmanville were with the League in its first two years of operation but then withdrew, but are again to affiliate, while Colborne and Brighton are seeking the new League franchise.

HELPFUL HINTS by GOLFING STARS

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH GOLFERS MAGAZINE)

CHICK EVANS—HIS BEST TIP—THINK.

The finest tip I ever had given to me was dropped into my ear by the master of golf and was in one word. Think!

You could guess from the hint above the name of the man who thus started me to really thinking about golf—and your guess is right; it was Harry Vardon.

He saw in my style of playing not only a style that meant accuracy, but my performance before him revealed to his trained senses the fact that I had been a diligent practicer. He looked me square in the eye and said:

"You have the start of a champion's game. There is but one thing could say to help you—think!"

The golfer who would whittle his card down to something like par must not be content with the knowledge that the hurried golf shot is nearly always a spoiled shot. He must know—he must think out in advance—everything that is going to happen when he makes his shot. The muscles will obey if the mind is first properly directed. Undoubtedly the greatest word in golf is, Think!

CRESCENTS TO STOP BRINTONS?

Fans Should Not Miss City League Games To-night.

CLOSE CONTESTS.

Unusual interest has developed in the Brintons-Crescents senior tilt at the City League games to-night. Brintons are leading the parade with Crescents and DeLaval close behind battling for the leadership. To-night's contest, which is bound to be a stirring affair from start to finish, is the last one on the bill and will commence at nine o'clock. All four contests will be hard fought as the schedule will be completed next week.

The fans will not make any mistake in coming out to-night. It will be the only hockey of the week, the senior O.H.A. game having been transferred to Toronto.

HUMANE SOCIETY PLANS TAG DAY

Regular Monthly Meeting To Be Held — Membership Campaign Results.

The Peterborough Humane Society held an enthusiastic meeting last night in the Council room of the Chamber of Commerce.

A report was read from Inspector Smith regarding his activities on behalf of dumb animals since the last meeting. William Bull, 692 Stewart street, offered the society the use of his barn for housing dogs that may come under the care of the Society.

It was decided to hold a regular monthly meeting, notice of which will be advertised through the local press.

After considerable discussion regarding a suitable date for a tag day, it was decided that a committee be appointed to set a date as early as possible and that the Chief of Police be interviewed regarding same.

The membership campaign is now well under way and many new members are already on the roll.

PRESBYTERIANS TO BRING IN MINISTER

Representatives To Be Sent To Old Country and United States.

TORONTO, Feb. 3 (Canadian Press).—With a view to bringing to Canada Presbyterian ministers from England, Ireland, Scotland and the United States, two representatives of the Presbyterian church in Canada will be sent immediately on a tour of these countries. This was the plan approved by a commission of the Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada at a meeting held yesterday.

STEAMER SANK.

Canadian Vessel Collided With British Ship, Sinking It.

ANTWERP, Belgium, Feb. 3. — (Canadian Press). — The steamer Marloch, of the Canadian Pacific Line, bound for Canada, was in a collision yesterday with the British steamer Whimbrel from Liverpool for Antwerp, off Flushing. The Whimbrel was badly damaged and sank, but the crew was saved.

INTERMEDIATES GO TO LAKEFIELD

First Contest on Friday and Return Game Here Monday.

STRONG TEAM.

Peterborough's Intermediate O. H. A. team, which is being promoted by the City Hockey League, and will be made up of players selected from the four senior teams, has been instructed to meet Lakefield, and the first game of the home-and-home series will be played in Lakefield on Friday night, with the second contest here next Monday night.

The locals should be able to muster a strong team, with all the players in good condition, thanks to the campaign in the City League.

STUDIO CLUB MET.

Pupils of Dorothy Allan Park Elected Officers For 1926.

The Dorothy Park Studio Club held its first meeting of the season, at the residence of Mrs. Park, 332 Rubidge street, on January 30. As usual it was well attended by the pupils, many new pupils being welcomed into the Club.

Mrs. N. D. Foote, vice-president was in the chair.

A report of the club's activities during 1925 was read by secretary-treasurer.

The officers elected for this year:

Honorary president—Mr. R. Gliddon.

President—Miss Helen Lytle.

Vice-President—Mrs. N. D. Foote.

Secretary-Treasurer— Miss Alice Price.

Social Convenors—Misses Frances Robertson and Geraldine Collins.

A vote of thanks was passed to the retiring president, Mrs. Ford Turner. The programme was unusually interesting.

A paper of immense interest was given by Mrs. Allan on "Development of English Music." Mrs. Allan's distinct enunciation, charm of manner, and her vast knowledge of the great English composers, their operatic works, and brilliant achievements, did much to enlighten the pupils.

Some of the famous musical composers were: Elgar, Sullivan, Bishop, Grieg, Debussy, Landon Ronald, Granville Bantock, and many more.

The soloists were: Mrs. N. D. Foote, Mrs. Walter Byers, Misses Jean Padgett, Helen Lytle, Ethelwyn Dix.

The composers of the different songs, Herman Lohr, Arne, Roger Quilta, Bishop, Purcell.

The greatest enjoyment of the afternoon were the several selections given by Moir Allan Park (piano, vocal, violin).

The programme concluded with a musical competition, and social tea hour.

Wants Explanation About Hockey Games

To the Editor of the Examiner,—

I have just noticed in this evening's paper where the players, or I guess it is the management of the Peterboro Hockey Club, have decided to transfer Friday's game to the Toronto Arena. I wonder if they consider that they are giving the fans of Peterboro a square deal. We are not all millionaires that we can follow them to Toronto and do they expect to do any better against Osgoode Hall on Toronto ice than they did on the 21st of January? We were given to understand at the beginning of the season that Peterboro would play their home games at Brock St. rink providing there was ice. I think Mr. E. Wright made that statement through the press. It seems to me then an explanation is necessary to the fans of Peterboro.

SCENE FROM "THE GORILLA," AT THE GRAND OPERA HOUSE SATURDAY, FEB. 6TH.

Theatre

AT THE GRAND

"THE GORILLA"

Ralph Spence achieved an amazing success with his first play the laugh-making mystery, "The Gorilla" which Donald Gallaher and James W. Elliott will present at the Grand Opera House Saturday, Feb. 6.

Mr. Spence wrote the play and then submitted it to A. H. Woods, Mr. Woods paid him advance royalty three different times, to retain an option and, finally, surrendered the play because he insisted on putting a star in it. Two other managers paid advance royalities and also surrendered it. By this time Spence thought he had a permanent money earner, but when Donald Gallaher and James W. Elliott took it they surprised him by making a production. "The Gorilla" has been one of the biggest money making plays produced in recent years and there are five companies on tour in the United States alone.

AT THE CAPITOL

ETHEL SHANNON DEPLORES RIDING.

Pretty Little Film Star Buys Horse, Rides Once, Then Sells It.

Ethel Shannon, pretty red-haired star playing the lead opposite Harry Carey in "The Texas Trail," scheduled to play a three days' engagement at the Capitol Theatre tomorrow, is offering for sale her newest possession.

Somebody had told Ethel that horseback riding is fun but she failed to see the joke when she awoke the morning after the first ride and felt like a rusty iron door being opened for the first time in fifty years.

The vivacious Ethel has been appearing in pictures for several seasons and has played a variety of parts, perhaps the best remembered of which is her role in "Charley's Aunt" with Syd Chaplin. She claims that this most recent engagement with the Carey company is not at all like playing in comedies. She can't see anything funny about riding around on a horse for six consecutive days, and ever since she first rode that sweet little chestnut she bought, she is a bit timid about horses. They go in your bones, as it were.

AT THE REGENT

GEORGE O'BRIEN HAS NEW TYPE ROLE IN 'THE FIGHTING HEART'

William Fox Player Portrays Country Boy in Latest Photo-drama.

"Smiling George" O'Brien nails another rung in his ladder of different screen characterizations. In "The Fighting Heart," which opens on Thursday at the Regent Theatre, the genial William Fox star portrays a role that is a wide contrast to any formerly characterized by him.

For the second time "Smiling George" comes under the direction of John Ford, brilliant Fox director, who made the year's screen sensation, "The Iron Horse"—which scored heavily for both O'Brien and Ford. George's role of Davy Brandon in "The Iron Horse" was the smiling young man's first leading role in the picture.

His magnificent work in that production prompted William Fox to place him under a long time contract. Since the completion of his first success, George has ascended to the peak of the screen profession, by virtue of a succession of splendid screen characters that not only called for the usual requisites of a star but for diversified histrionic talent, coupled with superb physical strength.

All of which goes to prove that William Fox judged wisely when he selected George O'Brien for stellar roles.

ENGLISH SOCCER

LONDON, Feb. 3 (Canadian Press) — Manchester United and Bolton Wanderers advanced to the fifth round of the English Football Association cup competitions as a result of victories in the re-played fourth round games today. Manchester United defeated Tottenham Hotspurs by 2-0 and Bolton won from Bournemouth by 6-2. The games were played on the grounds of the victorious teams. Manchester United meets Sunderland and Bolton Wanderers meet South Shields in the next round.

She Was Troubled With Chronic Constipation

Once your bowels become constipated you are in for a lot of trouble, as constipation is one of the most prolific sources of disease that the human race is addicted to, therefore a free motion of the bowels every day should be the aim of everyone who aspires to perfect health.

Mrs. O. W. Lawrence, Cloverdale East, N.B., writes:—"I was troubled with chronic constipation, and became so bad I was almost afraid to eat anything.

One day I saw your advertisement of Milburn's

LAXA-LIVER PILLS

so I got three vials, and after taking them I have never been troubled since with constipation."

TRAINING SCHOOL TO TEACH UMPIRES

Novel Plan of Billy Evans To Make Job Much Easier.

At last—a training school for umpires, conferring the degree of M. A.

Not Master of Arts, as you might surmise, but Master Arbitrator.

Billy Evans, famous American League umpire, has evolved a new plan that will explain the job of baseball umpiring in such a way that the most inexperienced may have a thorough understanding of it.

Even the expert umpires will be helped by the many valuable tips and discussions the course contains.

"Umpiring can be taught," says Billy Evans. "It is not a matter of physical prowess, as some believe.

"There is a proper way to everything that comes up on the ball field. With the right foundation umpiring is not nearly so difficult as it seems.

"Lack of the knowledge of the rules and the proper application are the greatest faults and worst troublemakers."

Billy Evans, who now turns baseball professor, is anxious to impart to umpires the world over the information he has gained as the result of 20 years as a major league umpire; also an official in six world series.

A letter addressed to him at 1200 West Third street, Cleveland, O., will bring you the details of the course in umpiring.

REPRIEVE TOO MUCH.

OSSINING, N. Y., Feb. 3.—News of a stay of execution was too much for Ambrose Ross, sentenced to die in the electric chair for murder during a bank robbery on Long Island. Ross was eating his last supper, and contemplating the dozen cigars which were to last him until he went to the chair, when the keeper informed him of the reprieve. He become hysterical and was taken to the prison infirmary.

In 1925 Colorado led the States in the production of beet sugar.

NOTHING TO SAY FOR PUBLICATION SAYS DOUGHTY

Secretary of Ambrose Small Left Kingston This Afternoon.

SHUNS PUBLICITY.

For Sake of His Two Boys in Toronto, He States.

KINGSTON, Ont., Feb. 3. — (Special).—"I have nothing whatever to say to the press," was the statement of John Doughty, former secretary to the late Ambrose Small, to a local reporter after he was released from the Portsmouth Penitentiary this afternoon at one o'clock. Doughty was not inclined to talk, and lived up to the advance reports that he would not talk. During the time the reporter was in conversation with Doughty, he asked as a special favor that nothing more be said about him than was possible, on account of his two boys who live in Toronto.
Doughty was released from the prison in the ordinary way. At 11.30 a.m. he was brought to the main office of the prison, where he waited in what is known as the "cage," until the time for leaving for the train. At 12.45 p.m. Doughty, in charge of the prison messenger, John Kennedy, boarded the motor truck and proceeded to the Canadian National Station at Kingston Junction. He was accompanied by another convict, who had been granted a parole, and who went to Montreal.

AROUND THE CITY.

Yesterday afternoon a dog was proceeding along Charlotte street, apparently normal, when suddenly its eyes became glazed, and in a few moments it was writhing around in agony. The police were called and in a few moments the pup had passed on to the happy hunting grounds, P.C. Wheeler despatching it with a well aimed shot.

International Match Will Be Held at Niagara Falls This Year.

J. J. Duffus of Peterboro was elected president at the annual meeting yesterday of the Ontario Ploughmen's Association.
Niagara Falls, Welland County, gets the International Ploughing Match this fall. The competition will be held on the battleground of Lundy's Lane, almost within earshot of the great cataract. Here a piece of level clay loam has been selected, with water, power, transportation and housing facilities promised.
Practically the whole afternoon at the annual meeting of the Ontario Ploughmen's Association at the King Edward Hotel yesterday was taken up in choosing the site of the big match this year. Deputations from London, Kitchener, St. Thomas and Niagara Falls were heard. While all the delegates painted a glowing picture of what their particular municipality was prepared to do if the competition was secured, these short addresses, all being of a similar nature and many containing much irrelevant information, became rather tiring towards the conclusion of the meeting.

F. D. Kerr, K.C., Does Not Desire Personal Credit

The Editor,
Peterborough Examiner
Peterborough, Ont.
Dear Sir,—In reading the report of the fire on Water street yesterday I was surprised to find that a little incident in which I, with others, took part was greatly magnified.
Captain S. R. Pearson, Mr. Charles Coleman, Mr. James Edgar and myself are all equally guilty of whatever took place, but I desire to make it very clear that the occupants of the house were in no personal danger and that those of us who rendered some slight assistance also incurred no personal risk.
I recognize that the report as written was intended to create a little amusement, but I would like to have my other friends included.
Yours truly,
F. D. KERR.

BOHN AGAIN MISSING

Mrs. Bohn's Story

Mrs. Bohn when interviewed by The Examiner today told the following story:
"Last Sunday night Mr. Bohn and I went for a walk and on our return he declared that he felt well enough to go to work in morning On Saturday he had made arrangements with the foreman although he (the foreman) had advised against such an early return to the shop.
"On Monday he went to work and came home feeling quite well. I wanted him to get another bottle of tonic but he said that it wasn't necessary. Yesterday morning he started to work again, leaving the house at 6.30. A moment or so later the door bell rang but I did not get up to see who was there because I thought it would be the milkman. Later I learned that a man by the name of Welsh who lives on the Jackson Park road had seen my husband going in the wrong direction. He attempted to lead him back to the house and had just rung the doorbell when my husband struggled free and ran away. Mr. Welsh at once notified the police who came to the house immediately. They searched but could find no trace of him."
When asked if Mr. Bohn had offered any explanation of his former disappearance. Mrs. Bohn said that on the Wednesday following he had recalled walking for a considerable distance and that he had slept in a barn. He could give no definite information as to the general direction travelled nor the length of his journey.
Mrs. Bohn added that she had not obtained medical advice before her husband returned to work because he had seemed so well and was in fact averse to such attention. If she had thought it necessary, she declared that she would have had a doctor.
Mrs. Bohn was unable to state whether or not a search party had been organized at the Canadian General Electric plant where her husband was employed.
A number of the women from the immediate neighbourhood were today with Mrs. Bohn attempting to console her during the period of uncertainty which she is now enduring. She feared for his safety if he did not return by tonight being certain that two nights spent in the open would seriously endanger her husband's health.

Stock Prices Moving Up Easy Money Rates Help

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.— (Canadian Press.)—Stock prices made a further recovery in to-day's market under the stimulus of easy money rates, higher crude oil and gasoline prices and rumors of higher dividends. The failure of the coal conference to reach an agreement for the resumption of anthracite mining brought about some selling of shares of hard coal carrying railroads, but had no apparent effect on the general list. With the advance in gasoline prices assuming nation-wide proportions, oil shares were heavily accumulated. Although the weekly steel trade reviews reported little change in the situation, steel shares appeared to be shaking off their recent sluggishness.

Advances In Majority On Active Mining Market

TORONTO, Feb. 3 (Canadian Press)—Advances were again predominate in the Standard Mining Exchange today, Barry Hollinger and Columbus Kirkland, leaders in volume of activity, also leading the upturn. Barry advanced three at 37 3-4 and Columbus 1 1-2 at seven. Teck Hughes and Vipond each improved one at 359 and 186, and Mining Corporation climbed nine at 386. Outstanding among the generally moderate gains was the sudden advance of Noranda from 16.00 to 17.15, in firly heavy trading, following the bills for the incorporation of the town of Noranda passed yesterday.

Trading In Brazilian Shows Large Increase

TORONTO, Feb. 3 (Canadian Press) — Trading in Brazilian was tremendously increased on Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, and there was a consequent decrease in other parts of the list. The morning's turnover, which resulted in a local high for Brazilian of 95 1-2, amounted to 4.75 shares. The stock closed the morning an eighth below yeosterday at 94 5-8. Consolidated oSmelters climbed to 222, then likewise eased to a fraction below yesterday at 218 1-2. F. N. Burt closed 2 1-4 lower at 63. Elsewhere the market was generally firm, C.P.R. touched 163, and the morning close at 161 3-4 was 2 3-4 higher. Nickel advanced a quarter at 45 1-4, and alcohol 1-8 at 17 5-8. Canners common was up 3-4 at 13 3-4 and preferred a quarter at 64 1-2.

The opening, 7-8c to 2 cents higher, May (new) 177 1-2 to 178 and July 155 to 155 1-2 was followed by moderate additional gains.
Corn and oats sympathized with wheat. After opening 1-4c to 1-2c higher, May 84 1-8 to 84 1-4, corn continued to point up grade. Oats started at 1-8 to 3-8c advance, May 44 1-8 to 44½ 1-4, and held near to initial figures.
In line with hog values the provision market was steady.

Better European Demand Caused Upturn In Wheat

CHICAGO, Feb. 3 (Canadian Press).—Upturns in Chicago wheat prices were witnessed early today as the result of a new advance at Liverpool and of continued rainy weather delaying the crop movement in Argentina. Reports of better European demand for wheat were also current. Furthermore a trade authority asserted that aside from dwindling stocks in the United States, European commereial supplies are small and that all good milling grades abroad command substantial premiums, with only inadequate supplies on ocean passage.

Minister Says Government Has Done Its Best Against Smuggling.

OTTAWA, Feb. 4. — (Canadian Press).—Yesterday's brief sitting of the House of Commons saw no weakening in Conservative opposition to the Government motion for adjournment of Parliament until March 15. A tired House assembled at three o'clock, after the previous sitting which lasted until four o'clock on Wednesday morning, but no change in the attitude of either Government or Opposition was indicated.

At the outset, the Government announced that it was willing to appoint a committee to probe the Stevens charges against the Customs service. The announcement was made by Hon. G. H. Boivin, Minister of Customs, who said that the Government was ready to confer with Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Opposition leader, on the preparation of a motion for appointment of such a committee. Mr. Meighen expressed willingness to confer with the Government but made it clear that the Opposition would not agree to a long adjournment of Parliament, even if the committee was granted.

Drastic Legislation.

The Stevens amendment calling for a committee to probe the charges gave Hon. Ernest Lapoint, acting Government leader, an opportunity to speak without closing the debate on the main motion for adjournment. He admitted that smuggling was being carried on between Canada and the United States. He pointed to drastic legislation for its repression, introduced by the Government last year, and passed by Parliament.

"Everything possible will be done to try and check smuggling in this country," he said.

Hon. James A. Rose, Minister of Finance, also referred to the Stevens charges. During the general election he had met with strenuous opposition in his constituency from bootleggers and smugglers. "I have reason to believe that they were financed by the Tory organization in Montreal," he said. The Government was doing its best to suppress smuggling, which existed not only in Montreal, but also in Toronto, and at other places in Canada.

"Ramshackle Remnant."

That this "ramshackle remnant of a Government" was incapable of carrying on the country's business, was the opinion expressed by Hon. R. J. Manion, Conservative, Fort William. There should be no long recess of Parliament, especially in view of the Stevens charges. They should be investigated at once. Hon. R. D. Bennett, Conservative, West Calgary, pointed out business which could be done during the time which the Government proposed to adjourn the House. He said that but a fraction of the amount voted last session for repression of smuggling had been used by the Government for the purpose.

The debate was adjourned by Donald Sutherland (Conservative, South Oxford), who will have the floor to-day.

King Not Sacrosanct.

"When did Mr. King become so sacred that it is a crime for anyone to be nominated against him?" asked Dr. Manion. For his part he thought that any young man would consider such an opportunity for election a good one, in view of the Prime Minister's previous

COFFEY STANDS FOR THEFT

Committed on Fifteen Charges in York County Court.

PROCEEDINGS ENDED.

TORONTO, Feb. 4. Canadian Press. — Henry H. Coffey was committed for trial when he appeared in the County Police Court before Magistrate Brunton to-day, to answer to 15 charges of theft. Mr. Coffey, who was formerly manager of a branch bank at Schomberg, was jointly accused with J. A. M. Armstrong, the former M.P., for North York. The latter died suddenly two days ago, and in court to-day the Crown formally dropped proceedings against him.

BEALE ARRESTED AFTER LONG HUNT

Stole Body in Insurance Swindle, Police Say.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 4.—Frederick G. Beale, said to be wanted in New York State, in connection with a $100,000 insurance swindle, has been arrested here, Chief of Detectives Guy Reeves announced.

Beale, who has admitted his identity to police, is being held without bond, awaiting extradition, to Hancock, N.Y., where a warrant has been issued for his arrest.

According to police, Beale insured himself last September for $100,000, then stole the body of James H. Davis from a grave in Riverside Cemetery, Hancock, N.Y., placed the body in his motor car, set it afire, and then drove it over a cliff. The body fell out of the car during the dive over the embankment, and Beale then set it afire in attempts to destroy all identification marks.

Following Beale's disappearance, his supposed widow collected the $100,000 insurance. An investigation by the life insurance company led to doubts being cast on Beale's death, and a more rigid investigation followed. This resulted in an indictment by the Delaware county grand jury on October 21, in which Beale was charged with stealing a body and with defrauding the insurance company.

Police all over the country have been looking for him since that time.

NEW ELEVATOR FOR MIDLAND STORAGE

Fourth House To Hold Two Million Bushels.

MIDLAND, Feb. 4 (Canadian Press).—The grain elevator capacity of this town is to be increased by the erection of a fourth house. The owners are the Great Lakes Transportation Co., and the building will be erected by another local firm, Macfarlane, Pratt and Hanley. It will be capable of holding two million bushels, and it is the intention of the owners and contractors to have it ready for the fall trade The new house will increase the capacity of the four Midland elevators to twelve million bushels.

Five Years In Prison For Receiving Stolen Money

LONDON, Feb. 4.— (Canadian Press.)— Justice Lennox in assize court yesterday afternoon sentenced William A. McDonald of this city to five years in Kingston penitentiary. McDonald was found guilty last week of conspiracy to rob the Bank of Montreal and receiving $7,503 from the bank, knowing it to be stolen. McDonald is seriously ill, but Justice Lennox said the prisoner's manner of living entitled him to no mercy. McDonald received the money from Herbert Brewer, a clerk in the Bank, to engage in bootlegging enterprises. Brewer is serving two years for his part in the affair.

RISE IN PRICE OF C.P.R. SHARES IS DISCUSSED

Financial Editor of Manchester Guardian Ascribes it to Agreement.

REDUCE WASTE.

Elimination of Duplication, Not Smelters' Rise, Cause of Increase.

LONDON, Feb. 4 (Canadian Press).—The financial editor of The Manchester Guardian, commenting on the remarkable rise in price of Canadian Pacific Railway shares, finds it difficult to believe that this is due entirely to appreciation in the shares of Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company of Canada in which the Canadian Pacific Railway Company is largely interested.

It seems more probable, The Guardian's financial editor says, that the recent buying may be connected with the suggestion of Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways, that the two Canadian railway organizations should agree on mutual working arrangements whereby unnecessary competition should be eliminated or reduced.

SIX MONTHS' TERM.

For Theft From Brockville Stores.

BROCKVILLE, Feb. 4.—(Canadian Press.)— For breaking into two stores in Westport and stealing from them, Edward Bennett was yesterday sentenced by Judge Dowsley to serve six months in the Ontario Reformatory with a further indeterminate sentence of two years. Thomas Hoban, of Westport, faces a receiving charge in the same connection.

FALL OF WALL KILLS FIVE MEN

Ten Unaccounted For and Eleven Others in Hospital.

HURT IN FOUNDRY.

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., Feb. 4. — Canadian Press. — Five men are known to have been crushed to death, eleven others (some in a serious condition) are in the hospital, and ten others are unaccounted for, as the result of th collapse of a brickwall at the foundry of the North and Judd Mfg. Co. on East Main street, shortly before noon to-day.

The dead were not identified.

ARRESTED IN WINDSOR.

Escaped From the Kingston Police Nov. 12.

KINGSTON, Ont., Feb. 4. — (Canadian Press.)—John Lett, the ticket of leave man, who escaped from the custody of the city police on November 12th, while being conveyed to the county jail, has been re-arrested in Windsor, according to word received Wednesday by the chief of police, Capt. H. Robinson, and will be returned to the Portsmouth institution to complete the unexpired period of his original sentence, some thing over six years.

FIVE MEMBERS OF ONE FAMILY DIE IN FIRE OF UNKNOWN ORIGIN

House Near Cassopolis Burned to Ground With Its Occupants.

FATHER'S THREATS.

Birth of Child to Daughter Caused Father To Make Threats.

CASSOPOLIS, Mich, Feb. 4 (Canadian Press).—Five persons, all members of the same family, were burned to death early today when a fire of undetermined origin destroyed the home of Williaim Wilkinson, on the shore of Magician Lake, near here. The dead are:

Mr. and Mrs. Wilkinson; Floyd, their son; Cimeth, an unmarried daughter, and her three days' old baby.

Two other sons of the Wilkinsons were away from home when the house burned. The neighbors saw the flames but the building was in ruins before help arrived. All the bodies were recovered.

County officers were told that the father had made veiled threats since the birth of his daughter's child.

Youth's Life Is Saved By Pair Of Bootlaces

PERTH, Feb. 4. — A pair of bootlaces yesterday saved the life of Sylvester McNamee, son of Mr. and Mrs. James McNamee, of Stanleyville. While he was chopping wood in the bush on his father's farm the axe slipped, inflicting a deep wound in his left foot. Alone at the time he was unable to move, but by means of his bootlaces made a tourniquet and topped the dangerous flow of blood. In about two hours he was found by his father, who secured a sleigh and moved the young man to the hospital. Last night he was reported to be in a very weakened condition. Doctors say his presence of mind undoubtedly saved his life.

It is said that radio-telephonic communication across the Atlantic, with the same privacy as present long distance telephone communication, will be developed.

Loyalty To His Girl Friend Lose sMan Chance To Win Charleston Distance Dancing Contest

NEW YORK, Ferbruary 4 (United Press).—For the moment at least John Gioia is the world's champion endurance dancer, Until other precincts are heard from, Gioia, the father of two children, will claim the title by virtue of 22 hours and 30 minutes of carless feet flinging.

The victory was gained on a judge's dicision. The management of a local dance hall stopped the contest while the three contestants were still in the throes of the Charleston. Gioia's expertness and general durability were adjudged higher than those of Harry Purcell and Charpie Kay, second and third respectively. Morrow Blackburn, a hot Charlestoner from Birmingham, Ala., was fourth, but he might have won had he not been so loyal to his "girl friend." Entering the dance hall at midnight yesterday, he was told of the contest.

"Well," said Blackburn, "I'll enter, but I'll have to quit at 7.30 tonight."

He was ankling superbly at 7.30, but quit cold.

"I've got a date to take a girl to a dance," he said.

STEVENS CHARGES.

OTTAWA, Feb. 4 (Canadian Press).—Announcement of the personnel of a committee to investigate the charges of the Hon. H. H. Stevens (Conservative, Vancouver Centre) concerning alleged irregularities in the Customs Department will not be made at the House of Commons today, it was stated by Hon. G. S. Boivin, Minister of Customs and Excise this morning.

A preliminary conference in this matter will probably take place today between Mr. Boivin and the Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader.

MINERS REPORTED TRAPPED BY BLAST

Score of Men Caught in Pittsburgh Explosion.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 4 (Canadian Press).—A score of miners were trapped last night when an explosion occurred in mine No. 4 of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Company at Bruceton, Pa. First reports were to the effect that three miners were known to have been killed.

Experts from the United States Bureau of Mines headquarters were sent to the mine to take charge of rescue work. The mine is located about 15 miles from Pittsburgh, just off Library Road, the main highway leading south.

Number 4 is a shaft mine, electrically equipped, with an annual tonnage of more than 300,000. Normally, the mine employs about 250 men.

NEGLIGENCE IS JURY'S VERDICT

John Budding Did Not Obey the Rules of the C. N. R.

CRUSHED BY CARS.

LINDSAY, Feb. 4.—(Special).—An inquest was held on Tuesday night to inquire into the cause of the death of John T. Budding, C.N.R. car inspector, who was fatally injured by being crushed between cars in the local C.N.R. yards on the evening of January 27th. Coroner Dr. Logan presided, and the evidence of Geo. Munt, the only person who witnessed the accident, disclosed the fact that Budding attempted to take advantage of a sixteen or twenty-inch space between a coal car and a van in order to cross the track, when he was caught and crushed. The verdict was that the accident was the result of negligence on the part of Budding in not upholding the rules of the Canadian National Railways.

Britain's Birth Rate Shows Steady Decrease

LONDON, Feb. 4 (United Press).—"Race suicide" is appearing in England and Wales.

Official statistics for the birth-rate last year show 18.3 births per thousand, compared with 18.7 in France, 46.2 in Russia. Thus England and Wales now have the lowest birth rate in the world—a rate which has steadily declined since 1913, when it stood at 24.1 per thousand.

ALLEGED FRUIT COMBINE TRIAL STRIKES A SNAG

Prosecution Halted at Vancouver and Jury May Be Discharged.

DEFENSE PROTEST.

That Seized Letters Should Not Have Been Introduced.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Feb. 4 (Canadian Press). — Prosecution proceedings were temporarily halted and 12 jurymen relieved from attendance at the alleged fruit combine trial yesterday and a possibility looms that Mr. Justice D. A. Macdonald will discharge the jury and order a new trial.

Counsel for the 53 defendants contended that evidence which was inadmissible had been read into the record by the Crown Prosecutor, J. C. McRuer. The difficulty has developed out of evidence of J. Lewis Duncan, K.C., Toronto, who, as commissioner, appointed under the Combines Investigation Act investigated the business of companies, allegedly controlled by the Nash organization.

Mr. Duncan identified letters which, according to his testimony, he found on the premises of Vancouver Mutual, Limited.

Defendants allege that many of the letters were produced for Duncan by employees on his demand as commissioner. Their counsel, therefore, objected to the admissibility of the documents on the ground that the Combines Investigations Act, 1923, stipulated that such evidence would not be used on a subsequent occasion against the party producing it.

Mr. Justice McDonald was doubtful whether he could grant defendants request that the jury should be excluded during the hearing of this issue, but after consulting Chief Justice Hunter, who expressed the opinion that the jury ought to be excluded, the trial judge ordered the jury to retire, and they were temporarily excused.

It has taken three years for the charges to reach the trial stage, but revelations made in the meantime, have involved 42 fruit corporations which with their managers and supervisors, formed an organization alleged to have virtually controlled the price of farm products from Winnipeg to the Pacific coast. They are claimed to have mulcted both consumer and producer in their alleged conspiracy.

Nash Subsidiaries.

The accused, 53 in number, are subsidiary corporations and officials of the gigantic Nash fruit interests, controlled allegedly by the two Nash brothers in Minneapolis and having ramifications throughout the United States as well as Canada. To find a jury of 12 who could try them, Sheriff Macdonald sent out Royal Canadian Mounted Police in autos to round up one thousand talesmen in Vancouver. Nearly 900 of these were summoned before the accused and the crown, were both satisfied with the jury. The defence had been allowed 586 challenges and it used up all but 50 of them.

The 12 good men and true, composed of some of the biggest business men in Vancouver, are now sitting as an assize court in Vancouver to try the 53 companies and individuals on charges of conspiracy, fraud, breach of trust and similar crimes. Since the grand jury reported, the charges under the Combines Act, have been dropped, the crown having decided to follow the decision of Chief Justice Meredith in Toronto declaring the act itself as unconstitutional.

Rousing Report.

The report Duncan made to the House of Commons at Ottawa was a sensational one. He explained at the outset that the regular course of produce from farmer to consumer was through a brokerage firm, which bought from the farmer and sold

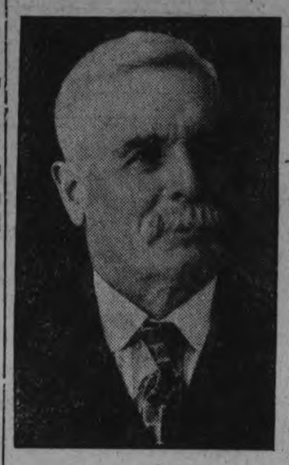
BANQUET TO WARDEN M'CUBBIN COMMUNITY'S TRIBUTE TO PUBLIC SERVANT HONORED BY COUNTIES

HONORED AT BANQUET.



JOHN McCUBBIN
Reeve of Percy Township and Warden of the Counties of Northumberland and Durham, guest of citizens at Warkworth banquet.

Master of Municipal Law and Parliamentary Practice is Reeve of Percy.

MANY ENCOMIUMS

Complimentary Banquet at Leonard House, Warkworth, a Notable Event.

(By a Staff Reporter)

WARKWORTH, Feb. 4—Coming to Canada a Scottish immigrant lad without friends, his only equipment a determination to win a place in the new world, becoming a successful farmer, entering the public service first as a school trustee, then the Township council, reaching the position of reeve and finally achieving one of the ambitions of his later life, the election to the highest municipal place — the gift of his county—the wardenship.

The above is an epitome of the life of John McCubbin, the new Warden of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham, who was tendered a banquet in the Leonard House here Tuesday night, a function in which all classes joined to do him honor. Those who have known Warden McCubbin the longest and most intimately are the first in their expressions of their appreciation of his ability and integrity and the reports that have reached others are all of the same tenor. In this case Mr. McCubbin is the exception that proves the rule, showing that occasionally at least a prophet does not lack honor in his own country.

Friends of the warden parading his worth, said that an evidence of this was afforded by the fact that in his contest for the office he was able to defeat so able an opponent as the popular Reeve Davidson of Campbellford, who was at the banquet, and who was acclaimed as a man big enough to be a good loser.

Tried and Proven

Warden McCubbin has already presided at one session of the Counties Council and in that time demonstrated his fitness for the office. He is a master of municipal law and parliamentary procedure, and when some of the metropolitan representatives essayed to counsel him as to his rights as a presiding officer he demonstrated that he knew rather more of such matters than his volunteer advisors. His friends, and the members of the Counties Council who placed him in his present position, have no misgivings as to the future. John McCubbin, as Warden, will make good.

Some Graceful Tributes

Every one of the thirty or more speakers on the programme, had something of a complimentary nature to say of the guest of the evening and about these tributes there was a ring of sincerity that could not be mistaken.

Rev. Father Ferguson, who acted as toastmaster, in his opening address said, "I want to say this: Mr. McCubbin has always been a thoroughly honest councillor and a true friend of every man who wished to advance the interests of the community. In selecting him as their warden the county councillors showed that they had brains and I am satisfied that the public business will be well looked after."

Other Tributes

Walter M. Fowlds, of Hastings, warden in 1924—"To be warden is one of the greatest honors a man can attain. The warden represents two counties which require the services of three memebrs of parliament. I know Mr. McCubbin as a man of honor, one who will always keep his promises, a man faithful and efficient in his public service."

Sam Clarke, M.L.A.—"I have been in the legislature for 28 years and I am free to admit that the Warden is a bigger man than I am for he represents four times as many people. Percy Township should be proud of its son."

Addressing the Warden directly Mr. Clark continued "You may have

WINDOW FALLS ON LADY'S HEAD

Peculiar Accident at St. Paul's Church Had No Serious Results.

CORD BROKE.

A peculiar accident, fortunately without serious results, occurred in St. Paul's Church last night.

Owing to the interest that has been shown in the midweek service, and the large crowd in attendance at last night's meeting, it was decided to hold the service in the Sunday School hall. In an attempt to get more ventilation, one of the windows was opened from the top.

The cord holding the window broke, and the window fell into the room, landing on a lady's head, cutting her slightly. Another lady fainted from the shock. Dr. Clark was called and both ladies were able to proceed home after treatment.

Rev. William Allan stated that all the windows were being inspected today, new cords being installed where needed and in addition every window would be chained so that a repetition of such an occurrence would be impossible.

TIGHTENS HOLD ON FOOD SUPPLY

Another Gigantic Food Combine Launched in Wall Street.

LINKS 2,000 STORES.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Wall Street tightened its hold on the United States bread basket yesterday with the announcement of the formation of another gigantic food combine, the National Food Products Corporation.

Announcement of this new corporation, which is to include 2,000 chain stores in 20 states among other properties, is almost coincident with the announcement of the recently formed $2,000,000,000 Ward Food Products Corporation, headed by William B. Ward and the merger of "Jello, Inc.," and Ingleheart Brothers' Flour Mills and the projected merger of the California Packing Company with the Postum Cereal Company.

Wall Street's new policy of seeking a profit by trading in the stock of gigantic food corporations is stated in the announcement of the new concern:

"It marks the first time that such a concern has been formed to specialize in the food industry, which, in value of annual output, the investment involved, and the number of people engaged is the largest American industry."

The new company, like the Ward Corporation, has been incorporated under the laws of Maryland, and is capitalized at 1,000,000 shares of Class B common, and 1,000,000 shares of Class A common stock. There is no preferred stock, but the total is assessed at $200,000,000 for taxation purposes.

VALENTINO DENIES MARRIAGE RUMORS

Hardly Knows Pola Negri, He Declares When Asked.

ALBUQUERQUE, N.Y., Feb. 4.—(Canadian Press.)—Rudolphe Valentino, film star, yesterday branded as ridiculous a report that he is to marry Pola Negri, movie actress. Valentino was travelling through here to California. "Why I hardly know her," he declared. Miss Negri left here at midnight for California, she said, to consummate some business transactions.

FORGIVEN BY WIFE.

David L. Marshall Indicted For Murder.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 3—With in a dimly-lighted anteroom of the coroner's office, Mrs. David L. Marshall yesterday bestowed foregiveness upon the man she married 20 years ago, and who is now a confessed murderer.

Sober drama was written into this meeting of husband and wife, their first since the 42-year-old chiropractor was taken into custody after the slaying of Anna May Dietrich, Norwood milliner.

Soon after the meeting with his wife, Marshall was formally held without bail for action by the grand jury. The coroner's jury found that Miss Dietrich was killed "by compression of the throat."

An indictment for first-degree murder is anticipated.

The Meeting

Newspapermen were hustled from the anteroom. As they left they heard an anguished cry: "Oh, David, David, what have you done"

Then one stifled word: "Jennie"

NO MORE PILES

Thousands Bless Dr. Leonhardt, the Physician Who Discovered This Common Sense Remedy

If you think that the surgeon's knife is the only method of escape from the misery of piles, it's because you haven't heard of the new treatment known as Dr Leonhardt's HEM-ROID.

The Doctor's treatment is internal. By experimenting for years he discovered the exact cause of piles and then went further and compounded a remedy that would remove the cause.

Dr. Leonhardt wants every sufferer to benefit by his discovery and so that there will be no doubting or delay, McDermid and Jury and all druggists are authorized to sell HEM-ROID with guarantee that it will do as stated or money back.

On that honorable basis every sufferer should secure a package of Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID today.

GIANT PLANES NOW ARE BEING BUILT

Will Weigh Over Fifteen Tons When Fully Loaded.

LONDON, Feb. 4. — (Canadian Press.)—Huge seaplanes are in the course of construction for the authorities, and when complete will be the largest craft in the world. One giant is having two 1,000 horse power engines installed and when fully loaded will weigh more than 15 tons. Another super-flying boat will be driven by three engines, capable of developing 2,100 horsepower. It will have accommodation for thirty passengers in a luxurious saloon.

FEWER PASSENGERS.

London Street Railway Income Falls.

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 4. — Canadian Press. — The report for 1925, presented to the annual meeting of the London Street Railway Company showed a net income of $14,850.54, as compared with $33,897.71 for 1924.

Passengers carried were 12,552,064, a decrease of 747,570, as compared with the previous year. Charles Currie, Cleveland, was re-elected as president; R. G. Ivey, vice-president, and L. Tait, manager and secretary-treasured.

J. C. Elliott, M. P., W. M. Spencer, of London, H. H. Allyn, Cleveland, and W. D. Broderick, with the above, form the directorate.

Temperance Society To Oppose Dry Law In U. S.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4. — (United Press).—The Church Temperance Society of the Protestant Episcopal Church, feeling that prohibition has undone the work of two years of the temperance movement, will work for a modification of the Volstead Act to permit the sale of light wines and beer.

This decision, as announced by Dr. James Emphringham, national secretary, is the result of answers received during the last year to 20,000 members of the society, including both clergy and laiety. Among the reasons given for the desired modification of prohibition were the complaints that the Volstead Act had resulted in increased drinking among young people, "is class legislation," "discriminating in favor of the rich," and has brought about disrespect for all laws.

CALOMEL TO-NIGHT

Cleans and Tones Up the Whole System.

It is the best medicine in the world for headaches, indigestion, gas on the stomach, constipation, high blood pressure, bad taste in mouth, rheumatism, poisoned system, etc. One tanol calomel tablet before meals or two at bedtime and a cup or two of hot water first thing in the morning will wash all the previous day's wastes, gases and toxins from the system making you feel better, and better, work better, digest better, and be 100 per cent better in every way. Get a few of these simple tablets from Webber's Drug Store, and you will be surprised how effective they are.

NO INDIAN MEMBERS FOR PRIVY COUNCIL

Assembly Fears To Make Appointment—Might Spoil Chance of Supreme Court.

DELHI, India, Feb. 4 (Canadian Press).—Despite an appeal by Sir Alexandra Mussiman, Member of the Executive Council of the Governor-General, and Leader of the Assembly to "Seize this golden opportunity" of conferring benefits on Indian litigants by sanctioning the appointment of two persons experienced in Indian law and practice to to the judicial committee of the Privy Council, the Assembly yesterday rejected a motion to provide for the appointments by 50 votes to 40.

Opponents of the measure acknowledged the services of the judicial committee, but feared that acceptance would spoil the chance of establishing a Supreme Court in India.

LEAGUE COUNCIL MEETING CALLED

Application For Entry of Germany Will Be Considered.

MEET NEXT WEEK.

GENEVA, Feb. 4.— (Canadian Press.)— Following the receipt of news last night by Sir Eric Drummond, secretary general of the League of Nations, from German sources, the application for an unconditional entrance into the League had been despatched to Geneva, the League's machinery for calling a special council meeting was set in motion. An extraordinary council will be called either for next Tuesday or Wednesday by President Scialoja of Italy.

THE CHATEAU FRONTENAC, QUEBEC—AND WINTER SPORTS PROGRAM.

With seasonable weather prevailing and a nice blanket of snow on the ground, winter sport season in Quebec City is now well under way. The snow-wreathed beauty and exhilaration of a winter vacation are a growing need. Winter sports are quick and effective restoratives, bringing to you the enjoyments of glowing youth. Up in the spruce country, where amidst the color, mirth and hospitality of old Quebec, the true winter carnival spirit is to be found.

The recent fire at the Canadian Pacific's famous hotel—the "Chateau Frontenac" has caused no interruption in the social activities—there being ample accomodation and public rooms for guests—nor in the winter sports program arranged by the Sports Director of Chateau Frontenac and the Frontenac Winter Sports Club. Organized activities and interesting events daily, includes skating, snow-shoeing, hockey, ski-ing Mardi Gras Carnival, etc. Vari-colored costumes present a brilliant spectacle. The season terminates with the open championship bob sled races February 27th.

Hotel reservations arranged—full particulars of railroad and sleeping car fares gladly furnished on application to any Canadian Pacific Agent. 3d-26,30,4

HOME AND SCHOOL ASSOCIATION MEETS

Plans For Tea and Concert Discussed at Queen Alexandra School.

The regular monthly meeting of Queen Alexandra Home and School Association was held on Monday evening, February 1, the president, Mrs. H. G. Walker, in the chair.

After routine business was attended to, the nominations were discussed and a nominating committee appointed.

Arrangements were completed for the Valentine tea to be held at the school on Saturday, Feb. 13, and also for the teachers' concert on Feb. 22.

Prizes are to be bought for the oral contest, to be held at the latter event.

Mrs. Geo. Helson has many calls for relief these cold days.

The banner was again won by Senior Third, Miss Eagleson's room.

The meeting was well attended. After the singing of God Save the King, dainty refreshments were served by the convenor, Mrs. Robt. Reid, assisted by several ladies.

BIBLE CLASS MEETING.

Disposition of Bazaar Profits Was Discussed at Bethany.

BETHANY, Feb. 4.—A business meeting of the Adult Bible Class was held in the class room on Monday evening. The chair was occupied by Mr. Monk, superintendent of the school, at the request of the president of the class, Mrs. Crerar. After a hymn and prayer the secretary and treasurer each gave veyr satisfactory reports. At the recent bazaar $165.00 was cleared of all expenses and the meeting was thrown open for discussion as to the best method of disposing of this money. It was decided to set a certain portion aside for bazaar work next year and a certain amount was to be given toward helping to buy a piano for the Sunday school. It has long been the desire of the "Young Ladies Mission Club" to do a little home missionary work in the home church and it was thought that the purchase of a piano to replace the old worn-out organ which has done duty on all occasions for the past twenty years was a fitting place to begin, hence the willing assistance to this cause from the Adult Workers. Another portion was voted for Missions and as there was still a balance it was decided that if official board of the church was in need of assistance at the end of the year a portion would be freely given. Several other items of business were attended to and the meeting ajourned until the annual meeting which will take place some time in March.

Bryon Davis met with a peculiar and rather a painful mishap one day last week. He was helping a neighbor to cut some wood. While standing beside his rig putting on his coat in preparation to go home, the horse apparently took fright and reared up, knocking Mr. Davis down and leaving him with a very sore arm where he had been kicked.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Waram entertained a number of their friends on Monday evening.

A short course in agriculture for boys and domestic science for girls is being held in this village during the month of February.

At a height of 100 feet, a person can may see an object 11-2 miles at sea.

TRENT RIVER MAN HURT CUTTING WOOD

Limb of Tree Fell, Striking Joseph Dunn on the Head.

TRENT RIVER, Feb. 4—Joseph Dunn met with an accident on Saturday morning while chopping wood on McCulloch's Island. A limb of a tree struck him, knocking him down and bruising him considerably He also received a severe cut on the head. His brother, Trueman, and son, James, were with him at the time. The injured man had to lie in the snow some time, till a conveyance could be brought to take him where medical assistance could be secured. He was taken to Trueman Dunn's home and is doing as well as can be expected.

ORANGE SOCIAL.

Concert Was Held in L. O. L. Hall—Roads Are Blocked.

WARSAW, Feb. 3.—Last week, cars made their way to and from Peterboro, though the stage goes with a team.

The south half of boundary is broken through fields.

The Orangemen held a very pleasant social in their hall on Tuesday evening. Rev. H. B. Herrington was chairman. There were a few games, some community singing, then a speech by the chairman. Other items were, recitations by W. Anderson, and Mrs. George Clements, reading by Mrs. Charles Tighe, solos by Mrs. Ollie McIlvena, and Mr. Blakeley. Song by Mrs. Stewart Clysdale, Miss V. Taylor and Mrs. G. Taylor; Instrumental music by Mrs. Arthur Payne, Messrs. Bolton, Bryan, S. Hamblin, and F. Dayton. Addresses by Messrs. Currie and Sargent.

Alfred Bolton and family moved to Burleigh on Wednesday.

Mrs. Jacob Payne spent a few days with friends near Warsaw last week.

Alex Calder shipped over a carload of cattle on Monday from Indian River. Arthur Edwards' shipment had the heaviest cattle and J. A. Crowe the largest number.

Buck's men were in the district, felling cim trees for his cheese-box factory.

The only car that came into the village on Sunday was Milford Payne's.

Some of the roads around Warsaw are well-filled.

Wallace Anderson broke the boundary road on Wednesday morning, but no load could go over it.

The storm did not prevent the Sunday school pupils from getting out Sunday morning, but it thinned the evening congregation. Rev. H. B. Herrington preached a sermon on "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."

Rev. Walter Cox was unable to get down to the Anglican Church Sunday afternoon.

There seems the mistaken idea that the sewing and millinery classes are to be held in the Institute rooms. They will be heated, and girls who wish to bring their lunch can heat it and rest in the rooms, but the classes will be held in the large room above them. The wooden partition has been removed and a stove is being put in. A good-sized room across the hall has also been secured for use as a workroom if needed.

If the Institute could afford to put up the expense it would, but there will be at least $10 expense, possibly if the weather is very cold, more; so the fee of 50c. for those who are not members, and 25c. for those who are, should not deter anyone. The class-room and work room are well-lighted.

DIPLOMAS PRESENTED.

Many Pupils Receive Awards For Regular Attendance.

MARMORA, Feb. 4—The attendance at the United Church Sunday school on Sunday afternoon attained to the high level of the previous Sabbath. Diplomas for good attendance during 1925 were awarded to James Linn, Annie Linn, Yvonne Knox, Marion Sweet, Nellie Davidson, Gertrude Potts, Lena Rogers, Jessie Williams, Annie Knox, Gladys Williams, Jennie Connors and Frank Wilkes.

Robert Raikes certificates were awarded James Thomson, Olive Airhart, Harry Bateman, Thomas Warren, Douglas Airhart, Jean Thompson, Alice Henry and Edith Henry. The monthly missionary collection exceeded six dollars.

A letter describing the voyage of Miss Bertha Fidler, missionary to the Armenians in Syria was read to the school by Mrs. W. J. Cottrell. As this lady gave an address to the school last summer, the letter was followed with close interest.

HARD TIMES PARTY.

Warsaw W.M.S. Held Successful Social on Monday.

WARSAW, Feb. 4.—The United Church Women's Missionary Society held a "hard times" social on Monday evening.

The basement was quite well filled. Refreshments, brown bread bread and butter, sandwiches, plain cakes and tea, were served as the people gathered.

A few women came in well-patched garments, others in their morning frocks. Mr. Arthur Payne had a little frock, and cap made entirely of flour sacks. Very few men made any attempt to appear in any but their Sunday togs. One did come in old clothes, and seeing the others well dressed, went home and returned in good clothes. After a social time was spent, a little program was given. The auxiliary sang, "Be Loyal." Mrs. O. B. McIlvena sang "Hard Times" with Mrs. J. Hawthorne, and Mr. Johnston Blakely assisting in the chorus. Mrs. Forsythe gave an outline of missionary work in China, and particularly that part of West China's one hundred millions, for which the United church is particularly responsible. Mrs. Lazarus Payne recited "The Israelites" (Mrs. Payne is the oldest member, Mrs. James Hawthorne sang "Better Bide A Wee". Miss Clara Payne recited "The Ruling Passion." Rev. W. B. Herrington told of the bad effect of the peculiar religious beliefs in China and in India, also of the lack of regard for women. The Chinese do not object to women being educated but do not see the need of it. In India, especially among some castes, the very shadow of a woman pollutes, and education for women is considered dangerous. Mrs. Robert Moore, president, recited "The Last Hymn". Messrs Wm. Darling, Clarence Payne, David Miller and J. Blakely, dressed as harvesters, sang "The Old Oaken Bucket" and led in the National Anthem.

This social was postponed from Friday evening on account of the roads.

The United Church Ladies' Aid held a meeting at the parsonage on Saturday. The president, Mrs. Herrington, was well enough to preside. The treasurer reported a good surplus, after all bills are paid as well as over forty dollars, their share towards paying for the new roof. Sides, led by Mesdames H. Digweed and W. Selkirk were chosen to get new members by March 31.

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was observed in the United Church on Sunday evening, and the Board met at Bethel on Monday afternoon.

The agriculture and millinery classes did not begin until Monday afternoon. The millinery class, under Mrs. Hawkey, started with seventeen girls, and the agriculture class with ten boys.

MADOC LIBRARY.

Board Held Annual Meeting on Monday—Has Balance on Hand.

MADOC, Feb. 4.—The annual meeting of the Library Board took place on Monday evening, with Rev. A. H. Foster presiding. The minutes were read and adopted, and treasurer's report for the year. The total receipts shown were $436.47 and disbursements $411.65, leaving a balance of $44.82.

The officers of the past year were re-elected for 1926 and are as follows: Rev. A. H. Foster, chairman; Miss J. MacIntosh, vice-chairman; Mr. C. L. Jewell, secretary; Mr. Charles Hart, treasurer! Messrs. Fred Curry, Reeve of Madoc; J. B. Hough, J. E. Marcellus, G. S. White, Rev. A. Strother, Rev. F. G Marshall, and Misses E. Crawford and C. Caldwell.

The book committee was appointed as follows: Rex. A. H. Foster, Miss J. Aylesworth, librarian, Messrs. C. Hart and C. L. Jewell and Misses J. MacIntosh, E. Crawford and C. Caldwell.

THE PRICE OF GAS.

Large users of gas will be glad to learn they are to be benefitted by a reduction in the price of gas, as announced by the Hydro Commission on Saturday. Peterboro has had a rate altogether out of line with the average of cost in the Province, and now that a start has been made it is hoped that further reductions will be possible. The domestic user does not find any relief as yet, but if this year's Council will continue the fight for lower gas prices they might be able to convince the Hydro Commission that it is possible to give further relief, and that the householder will be benefitted.

A start has been made in the right direction, but further reductions seem necessary before our gas rate will produce a bill that we do not grouch over every time we pay it.

A FRIENDLY VOICE FOR 4.4.

At last a friendly voice has been raised on behalf of 4.4 beer.

That famous beverage, press-agented as a concoction that would please everybody, seemed to be without a friend in the land until the other day when a Labour deputation waited upon the Provincial Government, and one of the deputation caused general surprise by declaring that Labour viewed 4.4 as a palatable beverage, but the price at which it was offered had killed its sale.

There undoubtedly is much truth in that view.

Mr. Ferguson's contribution toward the list of legal thirst-quenchers contained just kick enough to put the whole prohibition party up in arms and not enough for the individual who wanted a punch in his drink, but it might have been more or less popular as a safe and refreshing beverage had it not been for the Dominion and Provincial taxes boosting the price to a point at which the consumer lost all interest in the new brew.

There have been many complaints about the effect of taxation on business, and no better demonstration has been given than that afforded by the quick death of Mr. Ferguson's magic beverage.

At 5c a stein 4.4 might have lingered in popular favour for a while; it never had a chance at the 10c price.

THE ESTIMATES FOR EDUCATION.

The decision of the Board of Education to hold a special meeting to further consider the estimates for the year before submitting them to the Council was one upon which the Board will be commended, as offering an earnest of the co-operation for which the city fathers have asked all the local civic spending bodies.

The demand for education this year is high, the total $223,600 being $11,700 in excess of last year.

Both Public Schools and Collegiate Institute are to cost more than last year, according to the figures presented at this week's meeting of the Board, and while it may be the case that these increases are unavoidable, the Board will come to the Council with a much better case as a result of having submitted the estimates to another searching inquiry before bringing them before the Mayor and Aldermen.

The suggestion to reconsider the figures will do much to reassure the public, and if, after all, it is found impossible to do any further paring, the members of the Board will profit because of the educational value of a thorough examination of the estimates.

The people will trust that their representatives will approach this further consideration of their demand upon the Council with a determination that if saving can be effected in any detail there will be no hesitation in applying the pruning knife.

Education is costing the citizens of Peterboro a very substantial sum, and a further additional expenditure, nearly $12,000, will be received with feelings akin to dismay unless there is every assurance given that the larger expenditure is unavoidable.

THE VALUE OF WATCHDOGS.

One man is dead, a chicken thief, and the farmer from whom he was stealing is in a precarious condition from a bullet wound in the neck, says the London Advertiser. That is the sordid sequel to a thieving expedition on Saturday night near Welland.

No one will deny that a man has the right to defend his own property from attack in any way he sees fit, but the trouble in this, as in other cases, was that the persons doing the thieving were also armed, so that the man who set out to defend his property was at a disadvantage from the start as there were two armed men against one.

In a catalogue recently issued by Hon. John Martin, dealing with his own chicken farm at Port Dover, there is one picture showing a very powerful and none too friendly appearing dog, and it is explained on the same page that a dog of that sort is invaluable around a place where many chickens are kept. On another chicken farm some distance east of London, where there are from our to five thousand birds, the owner has three dogs, and he keeps them locked in the barn during the day so they will not have a chance to become familiar with strangers. At night they are given their liberty, and although chicken thieves have operated in the neighborhood they have never bothered this particular place.

Good dogs are the best sort of protection for a chicken coop that is worth while protecting. Going out gunning for chicken thieves may be legitimate, and there can be little sympathy for thieves who suffer in consequence, but it is too dangerous a form of protection because the thieves have as much or more advantage right from the start than the man whose property they are attacking.

THE HYDRO BUSES.

Officials of the Hydro-Electric railways declare that there is no justification for the complaints that Hydro buses have been driven past street cars, menacing the safety of those leaving or getting on board these cars.

The drivers, they state, understand that their jobs depend upon the care with which they drive, and realize that they must, like other motorists, conform to the traffic regulations.

The buses come to a stop when approaching a street car that has stopped to let off or take on passengers, and people who patronize the new vehicles regularly confirm the officials in this statement.

The Examiner is glad to give publicity to these facts.

The original complaint was referred to in these columns because we felt that if there was any tendency on the part of Hydro drivers to think that this regulation could be treated as non-existent the moral effect upon all other motorists would be serious.

The buses are welcomed as a very notable addition to the city's transportation facilities, and it is a pleasure to be able to report that the management is apparently determined that the safety of passengers and the public in general shall be carefully looked after by all employees whether operating street cars or motor buses.

That is a very satisfactory policy upon which to commence operations, and it will be the duty of every employee to see that it is adhered to in every detail.

New problems are created by new means of transportation, but public safety should be the first consideration under any circumstance.

THAT EXTRA $4.50 PER TON.

(Edmontno Bulletin.)

The residents of Eglington, a suburb of Toronto, bought a carload of Alberta coal, which had landed there, for $15 per ton. They are getting good fuel, of course, and if no other can be obtained for less money they showed good sense in buying it at that price. But why should Alberta coal cost $15 laid down at Toronto or any other place in Ontario?

So far as reported, the railroads have not applied for the bonus money posted by Parliament to recoup any losses they sustained in hauling Alberta coal to Ontario for $7 per ton. The inference is that they have not lost any money at that rate, could go on indefinitely hauling at the same rate. If the railways are content with $7 per ton for landing that car of Alberta coal at Eglington, other interests somewhere along the line collected profits which boosted the price, less freight rate, to $8 per ton.

Coal retails at Edmonton for about $6 per ton, delivered in the bins anywhere in town. It is loaded into cars at the pit mouth anywhere in the Province for export for $3.50 per ton. Who got the extra $4.50 per ton that boosted the laid down price of that carload of Alberta coal to $15 per ton at Eglington? That is a question for which the answer will have to be found before Alberta can become the source of the Ontario fuel supply.

Under normal conditions Alberta coal cannot sell in Ontario at $15 per ton against United States coal and Welsh coal. With the railways hauling coal at $7 per ton, it is not necessary that any such price should be asked for it. The carload at Eglington only brought the price because U. S. coal and Welsh coal could not be got at any price. Somebody simply took advantage of the opportunity to exploit the Ontario consumer without conscience; and equally without regard to the reaction upon the prospect of selling Alberta coal in Ontario in future.

If Alberta is to sell coal in Ontario the trade will have to be reduced to a strictly business basis. Ontario consumers have no money to hand out to hold-up artists who intervene between the Alberta mines and their empty bins. They do not have to submit to that under normal conditions, and will not do it. Alberta coal should cost Ontario consumers $3.50 per ton, plus $7 per ton freight, plus a fair profit to anyone who has a legitimate claim for services rendered in negotiating the transaction. A $15 price will do more to kill the Ontario demand for Alberta coal than any other conveniently possible factor.

A NATIONAL FUEL POLICY.

The present crisis in the fuel problem in Canada is an opportune time for the Federal Parliament to consider the inauguration of a national fuel policy, says the Brantford Expositor. The attention of the whole country is focused on the question because of the distressing conditions, due largely to the inadequate market for coal, that exist in the mining districts of Nova Scotia, for which relief has been asked from the Federal Treasury, while at the same time Central Canada is short of fuel. Thus, while the mines of Nova Scotia and Alberta are idle for a considerable period every year, Central Canada is either importing coal from the United States, or else is enduring the hardship of a coal shortage.

Temporary shipments of coal from Alberta and Nova Scotia are not a solution of the problem. They are merely experiments to provide for an emergency that may recur again and again. What is needed is a national fuel policy, that will develop the coal industry of Canada, both in the East and in the West, providing an adequate and constant supply of domestic fuel for Canada so that the country will be entirely independent of the United States. The question is now before Parliament in a very forceful manner. Mr. Church has introduced his bill to amend the Railway Act so as to provide special rates for coal, and the Hon. Charles Stewart has intimated that the whole question of rates will be referred to the Dominion Railway Board. Now is the time for Parliament to act. Canada has the coal, and the Canadian National Railways traverse the entire country, so that transportation is already assured.

The solution of the problem depends on cheap transportation. If it is necessary to do so, Parliament ought to authorize the Government to absorb the excess cost of freight so that the coal from Nova Scotia may be marketed as far west as Quebec Province, and Alberta coal as far east as Ontario. The question is urgent, and Parliament, in a non-partisan spirit, ought to solve the problem now. The economic gain to Canada would more than offset the loss by the high cost of transportation. The present policy of delay is wasteful, unpatriotic and a detriment to the industrial development of Canada. If necessary, this national coal policy, if the country bears a part of the cost of transportation, could be designed to include the price of coal at the mines, the cost of transportation, and the retail profit in delivering it to the consumers.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The present Parliament is giving the people of Canada considerable to read about, but it is doubtful whether that will be accepted as a substitute for legislation.

It is to be hoped that the members of Parliament will not be looking for overtime as a consequence of these all-night sessions.

They're playing baseball in Alaska—but it is not yet safe to suggest that country as a rival of Florida.

The independent candidate in Prince Albert will at least obtain a considerable amount of publicity out of his action in opposing Rt. Hon. Mr. King.

MARMORA NEWS.

MARMORA, Feb. 3.—Mrs. P. Gordon is visiting her parents at Eldorado.

Mr. W. J. Cottrell spent Saturday evening at Deloro as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Kirkpatrick.

In the absence of Mrs. Litt, organist at St. Paul's, through illness, Miss Ada Pearce took the organ for Sunday's services.

Mrs. Robert Wright's condition is most critical.

Mrs. J. Gordanier is slowly making improvement.

It is just thirty years since the American team carried off high honors in the first revival of the Olympic games at Athens.

Wise and Otherwise.

Women like long prayers in church because it gives them a chance to look at the hats.

There is a fortune for a man who can invent a reverse gear for gas and electric meters.

Every married man knows a stitch in time is a surprise.

Only a few more shopping months before light underwear.

It's perfectly all right for autos to go from Quebec to Ontario f.o.b. —unless the initials mean full of booze.

You can't figure that a man feels like helping a would-be son-in-law in the future, just because he feels like booting him into the middle of next week.

My sympathy goes out today to the man whose wife refused to talk loud enough to produce an echo for fear said echo would have the last word.

He told her three good reasons why
They never could be wed.
"I have two kiddies and a wife,"
Is what he meekly said.

Why the dickens does a man lie to his wife so he can get out and play poker, when, if he'd just tell the truth—he wouldn't lose any money.

When you begin to feel that you're one of the best people your office has turned out, be careful that doesn't happen to you.

Irate Father: When you were in the hall, last night, I distinctly heard that young man kiss you. Explain yourself.

Daughter: Why, daddy—it isn't nice to make a young man stand out on a cold front porch.

A lot of people sing with feeling—but not for other people.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

IT IS MUTABILITY THAT MAKES SO MANY MEN MISERABLE

The quality of mind that can accept the mutability of all earthly things is a powerful possession. Sometimes it takes the form of cheerful philosophy, at other times the sense of humor.

We all know that Time hatches out new troubles and that these perplexing problems are a sure as sunshine and shadow.

Now the point is Expect difficulties. Look for trouble. Be ready for the conflict of change.

The Pollyanna belief that everything will come out right is all rot. Everything does not come out right, but we cannot help anything by worrying. We can look for trouble and be ready to meet it intelligently.

The ostrich idea exhibits your well-cushioned vertebrae.

We all know that there is nothing on earth that is durable. Mountains crumble, oblivion obscures many of the conspicuous consequences of ages, strong minds are diverted, weak minds are washed upon the shore, vows are forgotten, accidents mar grace, and age wrinkles beauty. Change is sure to come.

It is mutability that makes so many men miserable, because they cannot be reconciled to the fact that things change. Many men expect to be exempt from troubles—troubles that are as sure to come as that pleasure is the parent of pain.

We begin life with a cry and we end it with a groan. In the meantime there is much happiness.

The idea of anticipating trouble is farthest from my real meaning and what has been said here has been said to set you thinking. Here is my idea: Prepare to meet any trouble, at any time, intelligently.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal
Winnipeg

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Feb. 3. — Prices on exporters are steady, but the state of the British market is said to warrant a lower level here if the business is to show any profit.

The trade in butchers cattle was not active this morning. Sellers claimed prices were easier, but the buyers took the opposite view. Export heifers sold steady at $7.25 to $7.50 a cwt., and equal quality butchers sold at the same price. A bunch of nice light handyweighs went at $7.35 a cwt., and a bunch of just good butchers were $6.75 a cwt. Heavy enough steers were not a good sale. Ed. Parsons and Neil Coutts each bought loads of feeders 800 to 900 lbs. each at $6 to $6.50 a cwt. Heavy butchers cows were easy, but the mediums were steady. Good to choice butchers bulls were $5 to $5.75 a cwt. One lot of good export steers sold at $7.90 a cwt.

A load of calves was bought for Buffalo today and prices remained firm. Choice calves sold at 14 cents a pound, and good calves 12 to 13 cents a pound. Medium calves brought 9 to 11 1-2 cents.

Lambs were slow and packers were making bids this morning. Old ewe lambs sold with calves at 14 cents a pound. One choice sheep brought 8 cents a pound.

Hog receipts this morning were over 2,100, but none were expected to be sold below Tuesday's price of $13.25 a cwt. f.o.b. Packers' buyers were asking for a $13 market.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Feb. 3 (Canadian Press).—The domestic cash grain was again quiet today.

The demand for fresh eggs was confined chiefly to small lots to meet actual wants and sales of extras were made at 47 cents to 48 cents, firsts at 43 cents to 44 cents, and seconds at 35 cents to 36 cents per dozen. The receipts today were 865 cases.

Storage eggs were weaker and prices scored a further decline of 1c to 3c per dozen. Round lots of extras were offering at 25 to 27c, firsts at 23c, and seconds at 18c per dozen.

The market for Quebec potatoes was unchanged. Prices remained at the same level as yesterday.

The receipts of butter were 29 packages. The trade was without any special feature to note, business being again quiet. The receipts of cheese were 35 boxes, the trade in all directions was generally slow and the market was dull with early makes nominally quoted at 21c to 21 1-2c per lb., and current receipts at 17 1-4 to 17 3-4c per lb.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Feb. 3 (Canadian Press).—Broadened European demand for North American wheat, together with persistent rain hampering the movement of the Argentine crop, did much today to bring about a new advance in wheat values. Chicago closing prices on wheat were unsettled at 1 to 1 1-2 net advance, May (new) $1.77 3-8 to $1.77 1-2 and July $1.55 1-8 to $1.55 1-4. Corn finished 1-4 to 3-8c up; oats at 1-8 to 3-8c gain, and provision varying from 2c decline to a rise of 15c.

In the face of profit-taking sales that reached a large total, the wheat market displayed strength from start to finish. Export business consisted partly of Durum wheat from the United States, but the great bulk was Canadian. In this connection it was stated that the Canadian growers' pool had disposed of practically all wheat which the pool was holding at Georgian Bay ports and at Buffalo.

The fact was pointed out that according to a trade authority the world's wheat carry-over will amount to only 80,000,000 bushels at the close of the present season. On the other hand, the fact was noticeable that profit-taking sales today became of heavily increased volume at $1.78 and above for the May delivery here.

MINNEAPOLIS GRAIN

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn, Feb. 3 (Canadian Press).—Flour unchanged to five cents lower at $9.70 to $9.80 a barrel. Shipments 32,079 barrels. Bran $25.50.

Wheat—No. 1 northern $1.72 to $1.75; May $1.69; July $1.64 3-4.

Oats—No. 3 white, 38 3-8 to 38 5-8c.

"We Got Our Exercise at the Woodpile"

In the good old days when we were boys in the country there was no lack of exercise. But wood piles are scarce now and we suffer from indigestion and constipation.

In the great majority of homes Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are constantly kept on hand as the best means of regulating the liver, kidneys and bowels and thereby counteracting the effect of too little exercise.

With these filtering organs active the poisons are swept from the body and the cause of pains, aches and serious disease is removed.

Use them when you have headache, backache, constipation, indigestion. Their action is direct. Relief comes quickly and you soon feel fine.

REV. C. F. M'INTOSH HAS RECEIVED CALL FROM EDMONTON CHURCH

Former Campbellford Pastor Has Supplied Pulpit for Three Months.

HAS 900 MEMBERS

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 4.—Rev. C. F. McIntosh, formerly pastor of St. Andrew's church here, has received a unanimous call to become pastor of Knox church, Edmonton, and will accept the invitation if the matter meets wtih the necessary approval of the Presbyterians interested.

Mr. McIntosh has a host of friends in Campbellford who will be pleased to hear of the success that he has met with after a short experience in the western city. He was in Campbellford for eight years and resigned the pastorate of St. Andrew's when that congregation decided to remain in the Presbyterian denomination. He was then engaged as associate pastor of what is now St. John's United church, and remained in that position earning the esteem of both elements until he was granted leave of absence last summer. On that occasion the congregation presented him with a purse of over $300.

Mr. McIntosh went to Edmonton to supply the pulpit of Knox church for three months. The call to the regular pastorate comes to him at the end of two months of his service. This call carries with it a stipend of $3,000 a year, with a manse and the usual holidays, and the congregation will pay the moving expenses of Mr. McIntosh from Toronto, where his family is now residing, to Edmonton.

Knox church congregation has over 900 members and is credited with having a hearty missionary interest. It expects to meet in full its allocation of $7,000 for the maintenance and extension fund.

Mr. McIntosh expects to come east about the middle of this month and to return to Edmonton with his family. Before he goes back to his new charge his friends here hope that he will be able to spend a few days at least in Campbellford so that they may have the opportunity of congratulating him personally on his success. These friends have always believed that his gifts would be recognized and that some good position in the United church field awaited him and now their faith has been justified.

Rev. Thomas H. Mitchell, formerly pastor of St. Andrew's church, Peterborough, and who is now in one of the Presbyterian churches in Edmonton, is interim moderator in the call to Mr. McIntosh.

CALLED TO EDMONTON.

DAMAGE SLIGHT FROM SHELLS IN LISBON REVOLT

Guns Seized From Artillery School By Small Group of Portuguese.

SUPPORT FAILED.

Insurgents Surrendered Wednesday After Two Day Outbreak.

LISBON, Portugal, Feb. 4. — (Canadian Press).—A revolutionary movement which began at dawn on Tuesday morning was suppressed yesterday by the voluntary surrender of the revolutionists. They capitulated when they found the support which had been promised had failed.

In the meantime, however, Lisbon was shelled, apparently without much damage being done, and the insurgents were subjected to a cross fire from the guns of the loyal troops. The movement included both soldiers and civilians, and was under the direction of Major Lacerda Almeida, of the gunnery school at Vendas Novas. At the time President Machado was absent from Lisbon, visiting in the northern section, but he returned Tuesday night and immediately put into operation effective measures to put down the revolt.

Official Account.

An official communication issued last evening describes the affair as follows:

"Yesterday at dawn a group of insubordinate civilians and soldiers, with the intention of a revolutionary movement of a radical nature, attacked the artillery school barracks at Vendas Novas, seizing seven guns and wounding one officer and a sergeant.

"They went by train to Seixal, where they freed the prisoners from the jail and seized motor lorries and cars. Next they proceeded to Almada (which lies just opposite Lisbon), where they camped with their material. There were 150 soldiers and 50 civilians armed with rifles.

"From this place they began shelling Lisbon and were answered by a cross fire from St. George's Fort. The Government took immediate measures, sending troops to the south side of the Tagus, where they disembarked, supported by the gunboat Bengo."

Nominal Defeat Of Government In House of Lords On Irish Land Purchase Had No Political Effect

LONDON, Feb. 4 (Canadian Press).—The Government was defeated in the House of Lords yesterday when a vote of 35 to 33 was recorded in favor of a motion by Lord Cranmore and Browne to appoint a committee to examine the pledges given by the Ministers between 1920 and 1923 regarding the completion of the Irish land purchase and report whether these pledges had been fulfilled.

The Government opposed the motion, but the nominal defeat has no political significance. Some of the members cried jokingly, "Resign."

Lord Cranmore's motion was actuated by the dissatisfaction of the landowners in Southern Ireland at their alleged unfair treatment under the schemes whereby their lands were purchased with Government aid to enable tenants to become small owners.

The Lord Chancellor, Viscount Cave, denied that the Government had broken any pledges. He added that the Irish Free State Government alone could arrange land purchase, but the House, by a small majority, refused to accept this argument.

LINDSAY PLANS ORANGE PARADE

Celebration of 12th of July Expected to Attract 15,000.

COUNTY MEETING.

LINDSAY, Feb. 4. — At the annual meeting of the County Orange Lodge, of Victoria County, which concluded its labors on Tuesday night, a committee was appointed to arrange for a monster celebration of the Twelfth of July in Lindsay this year.

Already invitations have been sent out to many outside lodges and the committee figure that fifteen thousand Orangemen will assemble ehre for the occasion. Walter Magee of Omemee was elected County Master.

During the day there was a competition in degree work between a number of lodges for the Scott Shield. The award was made to Woodville Lodge, Reaboro runners up, won a silver cup.

On behalf of the County Lodge, Past County Master Scott of Lindsay, who is leaving the legal profession to become a clergyman of the Presbyterian church, was presented with an address and a Past County Master's regalia.

Several distinguished members of the Order attended the convention, including Judge J. H. Scott of Perth, P.G.M., of Grand Orange Lodge of British America; and Past Grand Sovereign of the Triennial Council; A. A. Gray of Toronto, Past Grand Master of the Grand Orange Lodge, of Ontario West; C. R. Carrie, of Toronto, Past Grand Lecturer of the Grand Lodge of Ontario West; and Rev. Nichols, of Manilla, Past Grand Chaplain of the Past Grand Orange Lodge of Ontario East.

CAMPBELLFORD JAIL TO BE REMODELLED

So That Prisoners Waiting Trial Need Not Be Taken to Warkworth.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 4—The Council has decided to remodel the old jail at a cost of about $80 so that ino the future it will not be neecssary to take prisoners who are awaiting trial to Warkworth. The Council has also investigated the case of the four young men recently sent to Cobourg for B.O.T.A. and finds that the complaint of the father of one of the boys was unfounded and that the commitments and entire proceedure were regular in every way. The application of the father for a rebate of part of the fine imposed on his son will accordingly be denied.

COW ATTACKS BOAT.

WIARTON, Ont., Feb. 4.—A cow hurled into the lake here, while being unloaded from a small steamer, turned upon the boat and attacked it with such force that it punctured the hull below the water line. The boat was taken to a marine railway, where it was found that it would be necessary to put it in dry dock for repairs.

TEAM RAN AWAY AT BAILIEBORO

Motor Traffic on the Highway to Peterboro Continues.

DRIFTS DUG OUT.

BAILIEBORO, Feb. — Considerable excitement was aroused here on Saturday evening when a team of horses with a sleigh dashed frantically down the main street. The owner of the team and sleigh, H. Dawson, had tied his young team to the tie post in front of Robert Harper's general store and had just got inside the store door when he heard the tie ropes snap. For some unknown reason the horses had become frightened, and jumped, snapping the ropes, which gave them liberty. At the foot of the hill, opposite the residence of C. Byers, the horses plunged into the ditch and struck a big maple tree. One horse was held by the deep snow of the ditch, but the other horse broke the harness and got completely away from the sleigh. It ran into C. Byer's yard, where the owner and a number of the villagers managed to round up the runaways.

Fortunately there was no damage done to the horses and only the harness and one runner on the sleigh were broken. With the assistance of some of the villagers the sleigh and harness were soon mended, and Mr. Dawson had no trouble in driving the horses home.

Cars on the Highway.

Although the storm filled the roads full of snow during the middle of last week, still the motor cars are travelling on the highway. On Friday the big Roy Andrews' truck made the trip from Toronto, although the road gangs had to dig the north hill of the village, and Wood's big hill near Fraserville, out, in order that the big truck might pass through. The cars are now running in the highways as before, but the snow is too deep along the side lines for motors to travel on.

Mrs. William Fell of Peterboro is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Roy Greer.

Donald Long of Oshawa spent the week end the guest of his parents Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Long.

H. Barnard and Mr. Jos. Graham drove to Port Hope on Sunday, and were the guests of Mr. Barnard's father, Mr. Asa Barnard, who has been quite ill for some time.

The many friends of Miss May Wood will be glad to learn that she is recovering favorably after her serious illness.

NORHAM NEWS.

NORHAM, Feb. 3.—On account of the severe storm on Thursday Mr. Free the Campbellford baker was unable to make his return trip and spent the night with Mr. and Mrs. Norman Gummer.

Miss Margaret Huycke left on Tuesday to take a position in Grace Hospital, Toronto.

Miss Annie Huycke is in Rochester the guest of Mrs. Howard Clayton Betts, nee Eader Woodard.

Mr. Fred H. Huycke accompanied his daughters as far as Toronto, on Tuesday.

The storm on Thursday blocked the road so Mr. George Colbourne, the Warkworth and Colbourne mail carrier was unable to make his trip on Friday.

Mrs. Oney Isaac and Lenore are spending a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carruthers of Harwood.

Henry Dunn had the misfortune recently to give his foot a gash with the axe. The wound needed several stitches.

Miss Lulu Mitchell of Peterboro Normal school spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert I. Mitchell.

Miss Eva Denike of Picton, visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Denike on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cooke, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cosby, lately of Stirling but formerly merchants at New Liskeard have purchased what is known as the Chappelle farm and recently took possession.

Mrs. Arthur Bertrand had charge of the service in Mount Olivet United church on Sunday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Gummer, Cecil and Kenneth spent Sunday the guests of friends at Dartford.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Brenton, Mr. Phillip Brenton and Mrs. Roy McDonald were in Trenton Saturday attending the funeral of the late Mr. Fred Brenton who died in Toronto hospital after an illness which extended over about a year.

The social evening held at Mr. J. Wesley Newman's on Friday evening was much enjoyed by all who were present.

COMMITTEES OF SCHOOL BOARD

George O'Sullivan is Elected Chairman at First Meeting.

FOUR NEW MEMBERS.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 4. — George O'Sullivan was unanimously elected chairman of the Board of Education at the annual meeting last night. Mr. O'Sullivan has been a member of the Board for the past 15 years and in that time has served on all the committees and is perfectly familiar with every branch of the work. He is an appointee of the Counties Council.

The new chairman welcomed the new members, R. J. Allan, Glenn Thompson, J. C. Birmingham and P. C. Denyes, and in referring to the retiring members said that John Hall had, during his two year term, given the public more personal service than any other member.

The following committees were appointed for the year:

Finance: Dr. H. B. Longmore, who is also vice-president, J. A. Irwin, R. J. Allan and P. C. Denyes.

Property: J. C. Birmingham, J Jeffs, W. M. Stephens, W Cock and Glenn Thompson

Internal: Major J M. Bygott, D. J Lynch, Dr. Watson and J. A. Loucks

The first named in each case is chairman.

Principal Greig was reappointed as the Board's repreesntative on the Public Library Board. Wesley Stephens was also reappointed secretary-treasurer.

Here is food for the under-nourished

Only a balanced diet, like oats and milk, will really FEED your child.

Sealed Cartons Only

Your child may eat heartily, and yet be under-nourished and thin. Its food may not contain the necessary elements in correct proportions. The digestive fluids or "enzymes" go on strike . . . proper assimilation does not take place . . . indigestion and constipation follow, and a nervous condition sets in.

Quaker Oats is the best balanced of all cereals. With whole milk, make it a regular breakfast dish. It has carbohydrates (58%), the great energy producers . . . proteins (16%), the bone and muscle builders . . . and the vitamines that hasten assimilation. It has the "bulk" that stimulates the intestine and overcomes faulty elimination.

No other cereal is so delicious as oats . . . no other oats so good as Quaker Oats. Economical, too—costs but a cent a meal. Say "No" to substitutes.

The YELLOW STUB by Ernest Lynn

COPYRIGHT 1926 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

HENRY RAND, middle-aged business man, is expected home to help celebrate his son JIMMY'S 27th birthday. The gathering includes Jimmy, his sister JANET, his mother, and BARRY COLVIN, Janet's fiance.

While they are waiting, police phone that Henry Rand is dead in a cheap hotel. The body is found in a gas-filled room, a small welt on the back of the head.

The only clews are a woman's handkerchief and the stub of a yellow theater ticket.

Janet Rand breaks her engagement with Colvin because of the "disgrace." Jimmy, learning that the stub is from the Paragon Theater in Chicago, goes there with DETECTIVE MOONEY. They learn that the ticket is a permanent reservation in the name of THOMAS FOGARTY.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER VII.

"All right, Mooney." Jimmy slapped the detective on the back. "We'll go down to Mr. Fogarty's hotel and let him try to explain this."

"Not so fast, not so fast," shot back Mooney. For all of his surprise, he had been doing some rapid thinking He turned to the ticket seller. "Have you got two seats right behind this one for next Monday night?"

"See what I can do." The young man began to scan through a stack of tickets. "Here you are—seats 30 and 31 in Row 1. Just what you want. By the way, has Big Tom Fogarty got into a jam?"

"I'm not saying, brother." Mooney reached for the tickets and tossed a bill through the grating.

The ticket seller flushed. "None of my business, of course, but if you can get anything on Fogarty you'll be the first one that's been able to do it."

"Yeah? Well, they all make mis the tickets. He turned to Jimmy. "We're not showing our hand to Fogarty yet. We'll have a chancet takes sometimes." Mooney pocketed the tickets. He turned to Jimmy. "We're not showing our hand to Fogarty yet. We'll have a chance to find out a few things about him, and Monday night we'll get a good look at him."

They turned away from the window, leaving the clerk ablaze with curiosity.

"Why wait?" Jimmy asked Mooney. "Fogarty's the man we're looking for. Why give him a chance to get away?"

"He's not running away," declared Mooney. "I know the kind of gent we're dealing with, and I'm not talking to him until I have something more to go on."

* * *

"We want something more to go on," Mooney had said. Well, they had it. What they learned about Fogarty was sufficient in Jimmy's mind, to put him behind the bars for a lengthy stay.

"Crooked as a snake, declared Mooney, after a talk of several hours with a friend in the Chicago detective bureau.

"A ward heeling politician and the best little vote buyer that ever threw an election. Mixed up in a lot of high pressure bootlegging and suspected of knowing a lot about one or two highjack murders. But they can't get a thing on him. We've heard a lot about that bird back in Grafton.

"Got plenty of money and plenty of influence. A professional bondsman, too.

They had gone later to the Mayfair Hotel, where Mooney had learned the number of Fogarty's room and promptly had learned from a chambermaid that Fogarty had not slept in his room the previous Tuesday night.

"That was the night before your father's murder, said Mooney, "the night this H. A. Jones of New York registered at the Canfield Hotel. It might not mean a thing and then again it might. This fellow Fogarty's been living in the same hotel for five years and the maid says he's often out all night.

"Still, it's something for him to explain. We've got the stub of the theater ticket he bought and he's got to account for that, too. You see, Rand, it doesn't pay to rush at things too fast. Now when we see Fogarty he'll have to have a pretty tight little story to work himself loose. You wanted to clamp down on him with just the ticket to go on."

The little detective smiled at his own cleverness . . . Jimmy couldn't help admiring him.

Mooney, it seemed, had some other work on his hands in Chicago. There was an automobile theft case which the chief had told him to look into while he was there.

"Killing two birds with one stone," smiled Mooney. "We've gone pretty near as far as we can now until we see Fogarty. I'll be busy Sunday and part of Monday. Suppose we get together Monday afternoon and plan our reception for Mr. Fogarty. That'll give you Monday morning to look around for that job you were talkin' about. That is," he added with a wink, "if you still think you'll be here long enough to need one."

"I'm beginning to think it might not be necessary," Jimmy answered, "although this Fogarty thing looks almost too good to be true."

Sunday morning Jimmy sent a telegram to his mother and sister; "Feeling fine and making progress. Write to me." He sent along his address.

The day passed swiftly. In the evening he hunted up a church. Slipping into an empty pew he sat listening to the organ while the church gradually filled up. He reached for a hymn book and idly skimmed through it. Most of the hymns were familiar to him—Janet used to play them on Sunday evenings at home.

He became gradually aware of a girl sitting just across the aisle from him. He could see her profile. The thought occurred to him that he would like to be an artist long enough to paint it. Her nose, slightly tip-tilted, and her firm little chin seemed so clearly etched against the background of light. . . . He could not see her eyes, and the small hat she wore hid most of her hair. What he could see of it was black and straight and bobbed. . . Her whole pose seemed to him to fit naturally into a church background.

They were praying. He found himself on his knees, not listening to the regular prayer, but praying of his own accord. When he looked up he glanced involuntarily across the aisle. The girl was looking at him. He half expected to see amusement in her eyes and flushed slightly. Instead, he could have sworn there was sympathy, and understanding. She turned her eyes away and Jimmy noticed that they were blue, with heavy black lashes . . . .

He had walked for perhaps half a block before he became dimly conscious that she was walking ahead of him. He wondered, half guiltily, whether she might not suspect him of following her—there was no one else near.

He was about to turn around when he saw an automobile pass him and then slow down when it reached her to accommodate itself to her gait. He could see two young men in the front seat. One of them was speaking to her.

She drew away to the inside of the sidewalk and quickened her pace. The automobile kept even with her. She stopped then and glanced around. She was plainly distressed. He hurried. One of the men was getting out of the car.

Jimmy was beside her. "Sorry to keep you waiting," he said hurriedly, lifting his hat, "I was delayed inside." He wondered whether he was "getting away" with his bluff. He wasn't looking for trouble. He suddenly thought of Janet.

He saw that he wasn't fooling the man who was getting out of the car. He was handsome in a way, but a loose-lipped mouth spoiled what otherwise would have been a down-right good-looking face.

"What a smooth worker you are," he sneered to Jimmy. "Come on, sister, hop in."

Jimmy edged over toward the curb. "Beat it," he said quietly.

"Let's take a crack at the wise guy." The man at the wheel was climbing out, too. Jimmy could smell liquor. He stiffened. Suddenly he lashed out with his fist and caught the nearest man flush on the chin.

THREE CHILDREN DIED WHEN FIRE DAMAGED HOUSE

Asphyxiation Caused Death of Tots in Village Near Montreal.

ONE CHILD SAVED.

Father Made Vain Attempts to Bring Out Rest of Family.

MONTREAL, Feb. 4 (Canadian Press) — Three children lost their lives in a fire which early this morning badly damaged the home of Alphonse Verdon at Sault Au Recollect. The victims are: Roger Verdon, 5 years of age; Fernande Verdon, 4 years of age; Cecile Verdon, 18 months old. A fourth child, three years of age, was rescued by its mother, Mrs. Verdon.

The Verdons occupied the top floor of a two storey wooden house, the proprietors of the property, Mr. and Mrs. F. X. Filion, occupying the ground floor. It was Mrs. Filion who discovered the fire before one o'clock when she smelled smoke. She aroused the Verdons who set about getting their children to safety. Mr. Verdon seized the infant Cecile and his wife carried out the three year old girl. Cecile died a few minutes later of asphyxiation.

Verdon in the meantime had made vain attempts to re-enter his home where Roger and Fernande were menaced by fire, but the flames were so intense that he was beaten back.

When the firemen arrived the flames had secured a firm hold on the upper storey and the men fought for 4 minutes before it was possible to enter the premises. The firemen found the body of Roger Verdon in a corner of the front room and in another room the body of Fernande. Both had apparently died of asphyxiation, there being only slight burns on the face of one boy.

LESS PRODUCTION OF LUMBER URGED

At Lumbermen's Convention in Montreal.

MONTREAL, Feb. 4 (Canadian Press).—Lumbering manufacturers should decrease their output 10 per cent. so as to ease the problem of over-production in the industry and make prices firm; lumber wholesalers should show less greediness in taking all the business available whether at a profit or not; lumber retailers should stop price-cutting tactics in seeking business.

These were three suggestions, in respect to the three branches of the lumber business under analysis, offered by Dwight Hinckley of Cincinnati, Ohio, president of the National American Wholesale Lumber Association, in the course of an address yesterday at the 18th annual convention of the Canadian Lumbermen's Association.

"I think we are at fault in our methods of doing business today," said Mr. Hinckley. "That includes the manufacturer, the wholesaler and the retailer. No matter how much building there is, the manufacturer can make more lumber than can be used. So we are always faced with this great menace of over-production, which follows the industry like the Spirit of Death follows an army."

CAMPBELLFORD NEWS

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 4.—St. John's Epworth League met on Monday evening in the church at 8 o'clock with a good attendance. The President, S. A. Maguire, was in the chair. Miss Alma Upton gave the Bible reading, Mrs. A. Malcolm sang a solo and Miss Flora Caddell gave a reading. Mr. Carl Maguire gave the last of his report on the Winter School that was held in Cobourg some time ago. The league chose up four sides for contests during the coming year.

St. Andrew's Church.

The young people of St. Andrew's Church held their weekly "Endeavour" meeting on Monday evening. The President, Mr. John Storie, was in the chair, and the usual routine of programme was given. After the meeting they played games. Next Monday evening will be a special treat for all.

W.M.S. of St. John's.

The ladies of the W.M.S. of St. John's Church held their monthly meeting on Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, with an attendance of over forty. Some time was given to studying the new constitution of the society. Mrs. Geo. Smith made herself a life member of the society. Arrangements are being made to hold another "Initial Tea" sometime in the near future. The next regular meeting will be held March the 2nd.

Personals.

Mr. Thos. Atkinson spent a few days of the past week in Belleville with his daughter Mrs. C. F. Maybee.

Mr. Sd. Nancarrow, who was seriously ill in Nicholls Hospital, is very much improved.

LAND LOWERED BY EARTHQUAKE OF LAST WINTER

Vertical Displacement of Four-Tenths of Foot in Quebec Province.

LAST FEBRUARY.

Geodetic Surveys Report at Land Surveyors' Meeting.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 4.—(Canadian Press.)—An interesting feature of the report of the geodetic surveys committee presented at the annual meeting of the Association of Dominion Land Surveyors, which opened here Wednesday, was the statement by J. E. R. Ross, D.T.S., that the precise levelling operations carried out in the past year indicated a vertical displacement of the region in the Province of Quebec where the earthquake was felt on February 28, 1925. The results showed a general lowering of the land from St. Pacome westerly reaching a maximum of about four-tenths of a foot near Montmagny.

During the year the final link of an international triangulation survey circuit of 1,800 miles extending from Montreal to the Bay of Fundyl was closed by connecting with stations of the United States' coast and geodetic survey. Preliminary communications indicate remarkably accurate work, the closing error being equivalent to an accuracy of measurement of one foot in 240,000 feet or 45 miles.

The Canadan portion of the field work of a geodeitc triangulation along a 1,250 mile arc of the 49th parallel of latitude or international boundary, westward from the Lake of the Woods was completed last season.

During the year arrangements were made fro the co-ordination and publication of geographic and levelling results The central levelling bureau for Canada is now in a position to supply information about elevations above sea-level over 57,000 miles of levelled lines.

Will Test Theory.

In an address before the Association, R. Meldrum Stewart, chief astronomer of the Dominion Observatory, speaking on "the proposed world circling longtitude net," said that the proposed observations in conjunction with others in the future will furnish evidence either for or against the geological theory which holds that the continents are practically floating on a semi-viscous substratum and have been very gradually shifting their relative positions throughout geological time.

The development of the possibilities of wireless time signalling in the last few years has made it possible in one operation to tie together a chain of longitude stations encircling the globe. Wireless rhythmic time signals will be used and for Canada, the Dominion observatory will observe at Ottawa and Vancouver.

Longitude Arcs.

Longitude may be expressed in degrees or hours. In hours, it is the difference between local mean time and the time at the initial meridian at Greenwich. The proposal therefore involves very accurate comparisons of time from point to point around the earth. In other words, "longitude arcs" will be measured between chosen stations and, if at a subsequent time these arcs are again measured and found to be different, it will be taken as evidence that the continents have "floated."

The project is under the direction of a joint committee of the International Astronomical Union, and the International Geodetic and Geophysical Union. It is planned to begin operations in October, 1926, and continue for two months.

DIED AFTER GAME.

Capt. W. W. Kidd, of Grimsby, Died in Car.

GRIMSBY, Feb. 4.—Capt. W. W. Kidd, one of Grimsby's most prominent citizens and ex-police magistrate, died suddenly Tuesday evening while attending a hockey game. During the progress of the game Capt. Kidd left the arena apparently with the intention of going home. After the game his friends found him seated in the car dead. He had been ailing for thepast two weeks, but his condition was not thought serious, and his death came as a sad blow to a very wide circle of friends and acquaintances.

defeats in his own ridings. Dr. Manion declared that, as a returned soldier, he resented any suggestion that a limitation should be placed upon a young man in this country "who was winning the Military Cross in France when Mr. King was working for the Rockefeller Institute."

The statement had been made that the Government had had some of its limbs amputated. Dr Manion thought that the amputation had taken place "just under the chin." The people, he declared, were waiting for the opportunity to wipe out the group system of government. A stable Government was required in Canada.

J. S. Woodsworth (Labor, North Winnipeg Centre) asked Dr. Manion for his definition of a stable Government.

In reply, Dr. Manion declared that a stable Government was one that did not have to offer bids or try to make purchases in the House.

Upon a point of order being raised, Dr. Manion declared that he had only defined the term stable Government. If members drew the inference that he was referring to the Government in office, that was not his fault. However, he was quite prepared to make withdrawal of any objectionable remarks.

"This Government is suffering from shell shock, and it is going to go on until it blows up from spontaneous combustion," said Dr. Manion. It was the duty of members of Parliament to stay in Parliament, earn their money and try to carry on the business of the country.

Customs Collections Up.

Hon. Mr. Robb reviewed the Customs collections for the past few years, showing that they had increased from 1921 to 1925 except for the year 1924. Officials were more strict than before, he said. The Government recognized that it was hard to stop smuggling, particularly in view of the length of the boundary. When the United States went dry, smugglers of whiskey into the United States looked for a return load, and cigarettes, on which a high tax had been placed, proved very profitable. The Government was doing its best and asked for the full co-operation of every member of the House when the special committee was appointed.

Bennett's Objections.

Hon. R. B. Bennett (Conservative West Calgary) quoted Parliamentary precedent to prove his contention that the Government had no right to ask for any adjournment in the present circumstances except adjournment from day to day. His point was that an incoming Government was entitled to a recess for the organization of its Cabinet, but a continuing Government was not. He recalled that at the death of Sir John A. Macdonald, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, then leader of the Opposition, challenged the Government's motion for an adjournment for eight days because the Government had not disclosed its plans concerning the leadership and personnel of its new Government. Before any adjournment was taken, Parliament was entitled to know what Premier King intended to do during the recess, which portfolios would be filled and approximately in what ridings the new Ministers would seek election.

During the time which the Government asked for a recess, the House could very well be going on with the ratification of trade treaties, the striking of committees, legislation for immigration, and, above all, consideration of the smuggling scandals which Hon. H. H. Stevens had just disclosed. One of the reproaches Mr. Bennett offered to the Government, and which he said the people of the country would demand an explanation for, was the fact that while Parliament last session voted $350,000 to be used to combat smuggling, only $221,100 had been spent in nearly a year for this purpose. The Government had admitted this, and at the same time had admitted that a good deal of smuggling had been going on during that period. Canadian business men would demand an explanation of the Government's apparent apathy in the situation which imposed so much competition upon them from goods smuggled into Canada duty free.

Members of Parliament would fail in their duty as representatives of the people if they granted the adjournment. The recess for six weeks requested by the Government was contrary to Parliamentary practice and procedure. When business was before Parliament and a committee of Parliament had asserted itself to be the Government, that Government should "function or resign."

Self Party Support.

Donald Sutherland (Conservative, South Oxford) quoted a Saskatoon despatch, bearing a date prior to the opening of Parliament, in which the "Whip of the Progressive party" was quoted as saying that his group would "sell its support in the best interests of the West."

H. E. Spencer, Progressive Whip (Battle River), denied knowledge of the interview. M. N. Campbell (Progressive, Mackenzie) stated that the interview in question had purported to quote him. He had, however, never used the word "sell."

Continuing, Mr. Sutherland declared that the motion for adjournment of the Government was in defiance of public opinion.

Mr. Sutherland was still speaking when the House adjourned at six o'clock.

The average amount of gold in sea water is one ounce to 31,000 tons.

BANQUET TO WARDEN

had a lot of high places and honor in your time but you were never given the reception that has been tendered you tonight."

Praise from Opponent

Reeve Davidson of Campbellford—"Mr. McCubbin has always been a friend of mine and never more so than at present after he won out against me. I thought I had him trimmed but Agnes McPhail broke her promise and so did some of the men who had promised to support me. There is not a man in the Counties Council of whom I think more highly than I do of our new Warden."

Deputy Reeve Maher of Cobourg—"Reeve Davidson after the election for Warden, proved himself a big man and a good loser. He was the first to cross the floor of the house and congratulate the man who had just defeated him."

The Toast List

The toast list was a long one, every speaker was fully primed with oratory and it was 2 a.m. before the singing of Auld Lang Syne brought the proceedings to a close. The last speaker was the Warden himself who in a brief address thanked the people feelingly for the splendid expression of their appreciation. He made special reference to one of the men present, Sam Black of Warkworth who is 93 years old and whom he has known for over half a century. The following was the toast list and the speakers:

The King.

Canada and the Empire—Proposed by Rev. G. E. Loughead of Warkworth and responded to by ex-Warden Fowlds of Hastings.

Province of Ontario—Proposed by Rev. W. W. Jones, Warkworth, and responded to by Sam Clarke, M.L.A.

The United Counties-Proposed by Deputy Reeve Nelson of Percy and responded to by Reeve Davidson of Campbellford, Reeve Clarke of Cramahe, Reeve Bedal of Brighton township, Reeve Baker of Brighton village and Deputy Reeve Maher of Cobourg.

Township of Percy—Proposed by George H. Kingsley of Cobourg and responded to by ex-Reeve John O'Reilly of Percy, ex-Reeve W. H. Hermiston of Percy, Councillors Laver and Sykes of Percy.

The Professions — Proposed by Ben Buchanan and responded to by Doctors Armstrong and Allen.

Agriculture — Proposed by J. F. Freure and responded to by R. Honey, W. S. Nelson and C. H. Curtis.

Our Visitors—Proposed by J. F. Everson of Norham and responded to by Deputy-Reeve Peake of Seymur and Deputy Reeve Pallisar of Campbellford.

The health of the Warden was proposed by P. S. Ewing, clerk of Percy, in one of the best speeches of the evening.

Sent Their Regrets

The following sent telegrams containing expressions of regret for the inability of the senders to attend the banquet: Counties Clerk N. F. MacNachtan, M. E. Maybee, M.P., Reeve Hess of Hastings and Patrick Moran.

The Musical Programme

A splendid musical programme was furnished by Stanley Weir, the well known vocalist of Norwood, who rendered a number of solos, being encored after each number. One of his best selections was the rendering of one of the late Caruso's favorite pieces as preserved in the phonograph records, Mr. Weir getting away with the Italian language as easily as he sang in his native tongue. He certainly established his reputation with his audience as a first class entertainer.

There was also community singing and a number of selections by the Warkworth orchestra composed of Rev. W. W. Jones, M. Maycock, Frank Gallagher, Bruce Thompson and Joe Dixon, pianist. Nothing was lacking to make the function one of the best affairs of the kind ever held in the United Counties.

The Banquet Itself

George H. Kingsley of Cobourg, the genial proprietor of the British Hotel in that town, gave his opinion as an expert in that line, that the bill of fare was one of the best possible and that the service was excellent. He praised the management of the hotel for the manner in which they had handled a difficult situation.

There were covers laid for 87 in the main dining room and about 30 were taken care of in the hotel office and corridors. Warkworth never before tackled such a proposition and as usual not a single detail had been overlooked by the committee.

Excels in Oratory

There were plenty of people at the banquet who knew that the people of Percy excel in agriculture and business, and that every Fall they hold one of the best exhibitions in Ontario. It was a revelation to these outsiders last night to learn that the township contains orators of a high order, men who are equipped to take their places among the best in any gathering where neatly turned encomiums are what count.

But it is not alone in oratory music and literature that the people of Percy excel according to expert opinion. Sam Clarke, M.L.A., gave them a certificate for intelligence and honesty. He said he never attended a gathering in which he saw so high an order of the former characteristic As for their honesty, he has been doing business all his life in that community; he has trusted everybody and has never lost $25 by doing so.

A Financier Too

J. F. Freure, who is manager of the local branch of the Royal Bank, gave Warden McCubbin a certificate other than as an expert in municipal law. According to Mr. Freure, he is a financier too. "I have known Mr. McCubbin for years," he said, "and I known him to be a man of good judgment, of excellent moral character, and no man has a better grasp of the many duties which he is called upon to perform as a public servant."

ALLEGED FRAUD

to jobbers and from the latter to wholesalers or retailers and thence to the consumer. The business of the broker was to get as high a price for his client, the farmer, as possible.

But the Nash interests, Duncan reported, maintained both brokerage and jobbing companies throughout Western Canada and the shareholders of the latetr owned the former as well. The Nash people in Minneapolis held the control in all cases, he wrote, while the minority shareholders were for the most part employees.

Summed up, Duncan charged that the brokers, breaking their trust to the growers, sold all the produce they collected to the jobbing outfits on the same string for as little as possible and so enabled the jobbers to make a huge profit in their sales at market price, to compete on unequal terms with their competitors and drive many of the small rivals out of business altogether or else compel them to pay tribute to the alleged combine.

Something Remained.

But although the brokerage firms are charged with using this means of swelling the profits of the jobbers, Mr. Duncan refused to believe that they starved themselves in the process. The 184 pages of his report fairly teem with details of unethical business methods. There are whole chapters dealing with alleged false records, false returns made to growers, detailed accounts of concealed deductions from amount due producers for goods sold but never wholly paid for, of growers being paid at low grade prices when the goods were sold at top grade, the Nash interests reimbursing themselves at the expense of the growers.

Concealed Profits.

One one car load of produce, for instance, he said, the growers received $143.60 and the brokers got $119.83. On a shipment of 18 crates of tomatoes which the brokers sold for $506.50 they accounted for only $412.60, while on one season's transactions with a tomato growers' association, $3247.63 was improperly concealed by falsely stating the sums actually realized. On a car load of rhubarb a retainer of $107.60 was concealed On strawberries heavy rebates were allowed by the brokers to their own jobbing houses at the growers' expense.

The commissioner told the story of a crate of cabbage selling to a jobber for four cents a pound, or $460. The sale had been reported to the grower at three cents, or $345 and the broker had charged an additional 17 cents commission and also $115 had been improperly withheld

These citations are not outstanding but only typical of the great many made by Commissioner Duncan in his report

As would be expected the document in two volumes made a tremendous sensation In addition to citing such cases as these it reproduced the most intimate letters between various officials of the Nash companies holding prominent people up to ridicule and all tending to show that these official secretly started all manner of bickering and disputes in co-operative producers' organizations with the aim of breaking up factions not amicable to the Nash firms or of smashing organizations which would not do business with them

Not Too Scrupulous

"The Adam's apple of every member of the Co-operative Union will be travelling up and down like an elevator as soon as this propaganda lands" reads a section of one letter from George Snow manager of the Mutual (Vancouver) Limited one of the Nash firms, to W. E. Carruthers, head of the interests in British Columbia and Alberta.

Another letter says: "We have four men at work in the Hatzic (B.C.) district, including two directors (of a co-operative body), and we are sure that each one of the four has no idea that the others are wearing our brand. We think it will be quite in order to commit any crime, murder excepted, to land this Hatzic bunch as a unit."

The value placed on the Toronto agency for the Associated Growers of British Columbia is indicated in the following wire, quoted as having been sent to "Dear George" from someone in Minneapolis. "Play Associated strong, give them plenty of wiseacre wires how you are pulling for them, etc., lots of bull, no stint, for what you get in strong, so when next year deal comes up we going to ask exclusive Vancouver, Toronto and Montreal agencies or they go to hell on the prairies." This indicated it was planned that a greater value was placed on the eastern business than on that on the prairies.

No One Asked.

Duncan charged that some of the moneys from alleged concealed deductions were used to make payments of "blow-backs" to certain members of what Snow, the Vancouver manager, described as the "loyalty gang" of jobbers on Water Street, Vancouver's wholesale row.

After Duncan had made his report, the Dominion Government waited for six months for one of the four western provinces to act on it. When none of them prosecuted, Ottawa took the affair into its own hands, and in July staged a great simultaneous raid on all the Nash firms in the west. Officials coming down to work in Winnipeg, Moose Jaw, Edmonton, Calgary, Vancouver and the other cities, found mounted police in charge. The latter seized every document in the place, with the exception of some needed to carry on business with. There was consternation for a time, but there was no recourse, and most members submitted with good grace.

HEATH—WILSON.

MARMORA, Feb. 4.—Amid a beautiful floral setting and in the presence of an assemblage of relatives and friends, the home of Mrs. R. D. Wilson was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Thursday afternoon, Dec. 31, when their elder daughter, Mary Alice, was united in marriage to Mr. Clarmont Heath, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Heath of Melita, Manitoba. The bride, who entered the room on the arm of her father to the strains of Lohengrin's Bridal Chorus, played by Miss Lily Page of Salmon Arm, made a charming picture in her wedding gown of ivory crepe de chine, flaring at the lower edge over a slip of ivory satin. Her veil was held in place by a coronet of orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses and narcissus. Mrs. Douglas Wilson, gowned in a frock of geranium flat crepe, acted as matron of honor, while Miss Katherine Wilson, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid and wore a frock of jade green crepe de chine. Little Miss Helen Heath, sister of the groom, as flower girl was dressed in maize crepe de chine and carried a little basket of roses and narcissus. Mr. Abbott Wilson acted as groomsman and Rev. W. P. Bunt officiated.

During the signing of the register Mrs. J. S. Haigh sang, "I Love You Truly," accompanied by Miss Page. The rooms were beautifully decorated in streamers of white and pink, festooned with wizard ferns.

Following the ceremony an informal reception was held, Mr. and Mrs. Heath receiving the guests under a flowery archway, centred with a white bell.

The happy young couple left on the afternoon train for Victoria and other points, and will return to their home in Melita in the spring.—Fraser Valley Record.

The groom is a nephew of Mr. Wesley Heath of Springbrook, among numerous relatives in Hastings County.

OBITUARY.

J. EDWARD DIAMOND.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 4.—The funeral of the late Edward Diamond whose death occurred in Toronto on Saturday, took place from the residence of his brother, T. Leslie Diamond, on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The remains arrived on the 1.33 train and were taken to Mr. Diamond's residence, where Rev. W. Elliot, pastor of St. John's, conducted the funeral services. Interment took place in the English Line Cemetery.

The chief mourners present were his wife of Toronto and son Ralph of British Columbia. His business partner, Mr. Gordon Griffes of Toronto, Mr. W. Diamond, his brother, and Mr. Lon Simpson of Brighton accompanied the body.

The pallbearers were all old friends—Messrs. Neil Morrison, L. A. Denike, Chas. Davidson, Edward Plummer, David Owen and Thomas McCook.

MRS. WILLIAM MARSH.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Feb. 4.—Mrs. William Greigg received the sad news of the sudden death of her sister, Mrs. William G. Marsh of Richmond Hill on Thursday night. Mrs. Marsh passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. F. H. Todd, whom she went to visit two weeks ago. While on her way she contracted a cold on the train and this developed into pneumonia. The deceased was in her seventy-third year and was formerly Miss Emma McLean of Mount Pleasant, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James McLean. Mrs. Greigg left on Friday afternoon to attend the funeral of her sister at Richmond Hill.

MRS. JOHN WALSH.

MADOC, Feb. 4.—The death occurred on Saturday at the Hotel Dieu in Kingston, of Mrs. Margaret Walsh, widow of the late John Walsh. Mr. and Mrs. Walsh were pioneer settlers in Madoc township, and made their farm one of the most prosperous in this part of the county.

The funeral of Mrs. Walsh was held on Monday morning at the Church of the Sacred Heart, Father O'Riordan officiating. The large number of friends present testified to the high esteem in which Mrs Walsh was held, and much sympathy is extended to the bereaved family.

JAMES McCOY.

MADOC, Feb. 4.—There passed away in Madoc township on Monday, January 25, after a long illness a well known farmer and lumberman, Mr. James McCoy. Mr. McCoy was born in Belleville in 1859, but when thirteen years of age he came with his parents to a farm in Madoc township. Forty-eight years ago Mrs. McCoy married Flora Miller and they settled on the homestead.

The funeral took place on Friday from the home of a son, Mr. John McCoy. Rev. Marshall of St. Peter's Presbyterian church conducted the service, and interment was made at Lakeview cemetery, Madoc. Mr. McCoy is survived by his wife and seven sons, five of whom live in the West, one in Madoc township, and one, Mr. Robert McCoy, in Madoc village. There is also one sister, Mrs. Leonard Sine, of Thurlow.

MRS. MARY COWLING

The funeral of the late Mrs. Cowling will be held from 304 Park street. Service will be held at 8.00 o'clock this evening and the remains will be taken to Millbrook tomorrow morning for interment in Bowmanton cemetery, Haldimand.

JOINS REDEMPTORISTS.

BROCKVILLE, Feb. 4.—(Canadian Press.)—Rev. Charles Augenthaler, who has been working among the Czecho-Slovakian population of Baltimore for some years, has joined the Faculty of St. Mary's Redemptorist College here.

A Pimply Face Is Unsightly

Miss C. C. M. Smart, South Battleford, Sask., writes:—"A while ago I was troubled with facial blemishes, especially pimples, and was really ashamed to go out with such a bad looking face.

I tried 2 or 3 different remedies, but they didn't help me any, so one day a friend, who had been troubled the same as I was, advised me to use

Burdock Blood Bitters

After I had taken two bottles there wasn't a pimple of any kind left on my face, and I now have a clear, smooth and velvety complexion."

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE FIRE DEPARTMENT, 1925

Fire Chief, George Gimblett has submitted the following report to the City Council for the year 1925.

Alarms, Fires and Losses.

During the year the Department responded to 375 alarms, as follows: Telephone 305, Box 35, Verbal 29, Chief's Special 5. This being a decrease of 61 alarms over 1924, of the above number of calls for the Department. 51 fires were of a more or less serious nature and were responsible for a loss of $28,761.82.

The attached tables will give the complete workings of the Department for the year 1925.

During the year the Department laid 17,400 feet 2½-inch hose, 100 ft. 1½-inch hose, 2600 ft. chemical hose, 1026 ft. ladders, 1093 gallons chemical and 3 quarts of pyrene.

During the year there were 9 calls for the Pulmotor in addition to the above number of alarms.

The Inspections for the year totalled 2106.

Apparatus.

The Apparatus of the Department consists of the following:—6-cylinder McLaughlin Roadster, LaFrance Combination, (6) Reo Hose Wagon (4), Horse-Drawn Seagrave Ladder Truck. In reserve, 800-Imperial gallon Waterous Engine, Hose Wagon, Sleigh Bobs and Cutter.

There is one horse and one mare in the Department.

Discipline.

The conduct of the members has been very good during the year with the following exceptions: Late 8, Absent from alarms 8, Insubordination 1, Insolence 2.

Recommendations.

I would recommend the following for your consideration, a Bungalow Fire Station in the south end, as a larger percentage of alarms comes from that section of the city than any other.

That a Triple-Combination-Pumper be purchased as in the case of a large fire in the mercantile district or one of the large factories, we would be able to get increased pressure as the pumper could be hooked right on to a hydrant and you could get four lines whereas now you have only two, whereas at the present time if I want the steamer I have to send back to the hall and valuable time is lost and the avilable force is thereby weakened. The Ladder Truck should be motorized as there is quite a delay with the horses arriving at a fire and the horses disposed of.

Gentlemen, I have recommended these for your consideration before, and you have done nothing as yet; I hope you will be able to take these different items up this year and grant some of them, as they will be for a more efficient Department.

I would recommend that 1000 feet of 2½-inch hose (Paragon Brand) be purchased to keep the supply up to the proper standard and to replace hose worn out in service.

That a 35-gallon tank and 300 feet of chemical hose be purchased and put on the Reo, and convert the same into a Combination.

More alarm boxes should be added to the system as there are several sections that should have them.

There are 8000 feet of 2½-inch hose in the Department; 2650 feet of first-class; 5350 second-class and 200 feet was discarded as unfit for further service.

I recommended that the Council take ways and means to establish a pension fund for the Department. Since then I have had a book printed—a history of the Peterborough Fire Department, of which I will go into detail later.

Improvements.

6-cylinder McLauchlin roadster, Reo, 4-cylinder Chassis, 4 shutoff nozzles, 2 Pyrenes, 2 electric lamps and 500 feet 2½-inch hose.

In closing this my fourth annual report, I desire to tender my thanks to His Worship the Mayor, the City Council, and the Chairman and members of the Fire, Water and Light Committee for co-operation in the discharge of my duties as Chief Engineer of the Fire Department.

I also wish to tender my thanks to the City Clerk and other city officials, Police Department and the Press, for the very impartial manner in which they reported the workings of the Department.

I thank the members of the Fire Department for the able manner in which they have carried out their duties and their loyal co-operation during 1925.

I hope, gentlemen, you will be able to grant these recommendations, as they will be to make a more efficient Department.

RECORD OFFICE FOR RED LAKE

Announcement of Official For New Gold Camp Made Yesterday.

SCENE OF ACTIVITY.

TORONTO, Feb. 4. (Canadian Press. — Active interest in the Red Lake district which has recently come into prominence as a potential gold producing area of major importance, led to announcement yesterday at the Parliament buildings by Hon. Charles McCrea of the Governments' intention to establish a local recording office there. The office, which is expected to be opened by the first of March, will be 50 miles north of the Canadian National Railway, and will be accessible in summer time by a 180 mile canoe route from Hudson station, and in winter time by a 128 mile dog team route from the same place.

Despite the rigors of winter Red Lake at the present time is the scene of prospecting and development activity. Prospectors are pressing in to stake claims in the snow.

HUMANS CAN LIVE IN POLAR REGIONS

Amundsen Says if There is Land There Men Can Live.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 4 (Canadian Press).—Capt. Raold Amundsen, arctice explorer, commenting today on his proposed dirigible flight over the North Pole next spring, said that the region surrounding the Pole may be inhabited by human beings.

"It all depends on whether land exists in that region," he said. "If so, there is no reason why human beings cannot subsist there, 'living on the country,' as Stefansson put it."

EMPIRE CONFERENCE IS BEING ARRANGED

Premier Baldwin Says He Hopes To Announce Date Shortly.

LONDON, Feb. 4 — (Canadian Press).—Premier Baldwin stated in the House of Commons to-day that he hoped to make an announcement shortly as to the date on which an Imperial conference will be held. He said the Government was communicating with the Dominions and India with a view to fixing the date.

Replying to another query in connection with the proposed conference as to whether the Imperial conference would include an economic conference simultaneously, Premier Baldwin said "obviously" it would.

Activity Is Moderated On Toronto Stock Exchange

TORONTO, Feb. 4 (Canadian Press).—Some moderation of activity was shown on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, accompanied by signs of a slight reaction. Brazilian, again dominating by volume of turnover, closed the morning 3-4 lower at 93½, and Consolidated Smelters, the other leader, closed a like fraction lower at 217. Duluth eased one at 29½, and Alcohol 3-8 at 17¼. The list was not wholly easier, however. Crow's Nest sold up another four at 85, though it later sold back to 81. Canada Steamships Preferred advanced 1 3-4 at 62 3-4, and Steel of Canada climbed 1½ at 100¼, both substantial gains. Twin City and Burt were fractionally stronger.

Wheat Prices Down To-day Foreign Reports Cause Drop

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 4 (Canadian Press).—Wheat prices here underwent an early decline to-day, influenced by a set-back in values at Liverpool and Buenos Aires. Better weather in Argentina counted as a bearish factor and so, too, did lower exchange rates to Argentina. Besides, English flour millers were reported as buying only on a hand to mouth basis, with some mills in Great Britain closing down for the present. Chicago opening prices ½c to ¾c lower, May (new) 1.76 to 1.76¼, and July 1.54¼ to 1.54 5-8, were followed by a moderate further downturn.

Corn and oats eased down with wheat. After opening at ¼c to 5-8c decline, May 83 5-8, the corn market continued to sag. Oats started unchanged to ¼c off, May 44 to 44 1-8. Later all months showed some loss. Provisions lacked support.

Higher Call Money Rate Checks Upward Movement

NEW YORK, Feb. 4 (Canadian Press).—The marking up of the call money rate to 5½ per cent. as the result of heavy calling of loans by out-of-town banks started a selling movement in to-day stock market which temporarily checked the upward movement of prices. Baldwin, American Smelting, Consolidated Gas, Canadian Pacific and several other popular rails and industrials were carried 1 to 2 points below yesterday's final quotations on this reaction, but the offerings were readily absorbed and the market was headed upward again in the early afternoon. The buoyancy of the high-priced specialties was one of the features, Nash Motors soaring 55 points to 64, a new high record.

Barry Hollinger In Lead Of Heavy Mine Session

TORONTO, Feb. 4. Canadian Press.—With Barry Hollinger in the lead and Baldwin and Columbus Kirkland also prominent, trading was the heaviest during a single session for many months on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning. The transactions totalled 673,348. Barry was outstanding in strength climbing 6 3-4 to 46 3-4 at the noon close; Baldwin advanced 1 3-8 at 4 1-8.

Weakness was shown in places and Keora lost one at 11½ in heavy dealings. Columbus Kirkland eased a ½ at 71 and Consolidated West Dome an eighth at 22 3-4.

Teck Hughes gained 2 at 360 and Tough Oakes fractionally. Silver leaders were strong, Amulet gaining 12 at 139 and Mining corporation 2 at 394.

ROSENEATH, Feb. 2 — Mrs Fred Norris left on Wednesday for a visit with friends at St Catharines and other points west.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Comfort have returned to their home in Grimsby after a visit with her parents, Mr and Mrs. O. Varcoe.

Mrs. Albert Halstead is very ill.

Born—To Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Linton, on Thursday, January 28, a son.

Owing to the heavy storm and bad roads, the mail drivers could not make their trips on Friday.

A shower and dance on Wednesday night in honor of Mr. and Mrs H. Prettie was very much enjoyed by a host of friends. The bride (nee Carrie Sherwin) received many useful and beautiful presents, among them a silver berry spoon and cold meat fork, in Old Colony, presented by the girls of the C.G.I.T., of which the bride was a member. The young couple will reside in Centreton.

The ladies of the Women's Institute have postponed their social on account of the heavy storm which blocked the roads on Friday night. Unless something unforseen takes place, it is to be given in the Town Hall next Friday evening, February 5.

The service on Sunday evening was very interesting, given by Rev. Lovelace. Several new members have entered the choir, which is also appreciated.

The W.M.S. met at the home of Mrs. A. Tucker on Tuesday last with a goodly attendance and a lesson given to each one present. A social cup of tea and lunch was served at the closing.

Mr. George Mouncey has installed a new radio.

Many of the farmers are busy hauling wood to the village when the roads are passable.

At the telephone meeting held on Wednesday afternoon it was decided that Mr. and Mrs. Walter Mason would continue in keeping central, as they had given satisfaction throughout the year 1925.

Coal is carried more than five miles from a mine in a mountain in New Zealand by mixing it with water and flowing it down a large pipe, saving the expense of a railway or aerial carrier.

Married Three Times Lives To Age of 138

ROSTOV, Russia, Feb. 4 (Canadian Press).—Ivan Tretya, reputed to be the oldest peasant in Russia, died near here at the age of 138.

Ivan was married three times, taking his third wife in his 100th year. He had 24 children, the eldest of whom, a daughter, is now 101. He never left the soil and was never ill and retained his hair and teeth to the end. He claimed to have fought in every war in which Russia was engaged for the last 118 years.

PAINTINGS FOUND.

Two From Brush of Paul Peel Had Been in Storage.

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 4.—(Canadian Press.) — Two Paul Peel paintings stored away some 35 years ago after they were purchased here, from the artist's studio for $50 each by Geo. S. Birrell, of New York City, a former Londoner and friend of Paul Peel, have been brought to light by Mr. Birrell's son, George V. Birrell, after learning only recently of Paul Peel's rise to fame, through his masterpiece, "After the Bath." They have been valued by New York art critics at more than $5,000 each.

STARTING FOR FLIGHT.

Aviator of Wilkins' Polar Expedition Sailing From Seattle.

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 4 (Canadian Press).—Carl Eielson, aviator of the Wilkins trans-Polar flight, will sail for Alaska Saturday with the airplanes to be used in the expedition. Captain George Hubert Wilkins, leader of the expedition, will follow later.

Wilkins and Eielson will first fly from Fairbanks in the interior of Alaska to Point Barrow, where they will hop off for the flight across the million square miles "blind spot" of the Arctic Ocean sometime between March 31 and April 21.

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 3.—(Canadian Press.) — The gross earnings of the Canadian National Railways for the period ended January 31, 1926, have been $5,753,746 as compared with $5,605,956 for the corresponding period of 1925, an increase of $147,790 or three per cent.

ABANDON HOPE FOR MEN IN MINE

Workers Are Sealing Up Entry in Order To Smother the Fire.

SIXTEEN ENTOMBED.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Feb. 4. Canadian Press.—Abandoning hope that any of the 16 miners unaccounted for after an explosion in the Horning mine late yesterday were alive, rescue workers early to-day sealed off the entry where they were entombed in order to smother the fire that had been raging for hours, and make possible the recovery of the bodies.

Twenty-one men were at work in that section, two miles back in the pit when the blast occurred. Two escaped alive and three bodies have been recovered.

Easy to Gain With Yeast and Iron

New Combination of Yeast with Vegetable Iron Builds Up Weight in Three Weeks

This new combination of yeast vitamines with vegetable iron, renews the action of sluggish blood cells, drives out dangerous body poisons, increases energy and endurance and supplies the system with the vitamines that build up weight.

For years yeast has been known as a rich vitamine food but not until we perfected "ironized yeast" — which comes in concentrated tablet form was it possible to take yeast and iron in the right proportions to build up weight.

Vegetable "Iron" when combined with yeast is quite easy to digest, therefore better for the system. And "yeast" when ironized, becomes just twice as beneficial as ordinary fresh or cake yeast.

Ironized Yeast tablets are composed of concentrated food elements, therefore, they are pleasant to take and free from drug-like effects. It makes no difference how old you are—or how young you are—how long you have been underweight—or how much under-weight you are, "ironized yeast" tablets are positively guaranteed to pick you right up, and add from five to twenty pounds of good firm flesh in three weeks' time. If they fail get your money back.

Sold by druggists, at $1.00 for a large 60-tablet package. Harold F. Ritchie & Co., Ltd., Toronto, Canada.

ECLIPSE FASHIONS

Exclusive Patterns by Hazel Rayne

Simple Lines Keynote of the Chic Daytime Dress

This dress, fashioned of plaid surrah, or taffeta, derives its chic from its slim lines and extremely neat and trim appearance. The convertible collar ends in long revers that are turned back, revealing a set-under panel. The revers may be turned forward meeting at the center front, and the collar buttoned high, making an ideal frock for street wear. A wide girdle circles the hips and is crushed into a buckle at the front. The sleeves are long and tight, and finished with a tailored cuff. No. 1299 is in sizes 16, 18 and 20 years (or 34, 36 and 38 inches bust only). Size 18 years (36 bust) requires 3⅝ yards 39-inch, or 2¾ yards 54-inch material. Price 20 cents.

The secret of distinctive dress lies in good taste rather than a lavish expenditure of money. Every woman should want to make her own clothes, and the home dressmaker will find the designs illustrated in our new Fashion Book to be practical and simple, yet maintaining the spirit of the mode of the moment. Price of the book 10 cents the copy.

Menus for the Family

BY SISTER MARY.

Breakfast—Baked apples, rolled oats, top milk, scrambled eggs with crisp broiled bacon, whole wheat muffins, marmalade, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Creamed muchrooms on toast, hearts of celery, jellied fruit pudding with whipped cream, milk, tea.

Dinner—Baked finnan haddie with oysters, cabbage with pimentoes, baked squash, peach cottage pudding, whole wheat bread, milk, coffee.

Marmalade is added to the breakfast menu to furnish a piquant touch. The apples, cereal, eggs and muffins are such bland foods that the breakfast would be quite insipid without the tang of the marmalade.

Creamed Mushrooms on Toast.

One-half pound mushrooms, 3 hard cooked eggs, 1-2 cup canned peas, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 cup milk, 4 tablespoons cream, 1-2 teaspoon salt, paprika.

Melt butter and add mushrooms cleaned and cut in slices. Saute over a low fire for five minutes. Sift over flour and stir with a fork until perfectly blended. Add milk and cream and cook, stirring constantly until thickened and smooth. Add peas and eggs cut in neat dice or slices and make very hot. Season with salt and paprika and serve on slices of hot buttered toast.

If top milk is available it can be used in place of the milk and cream.

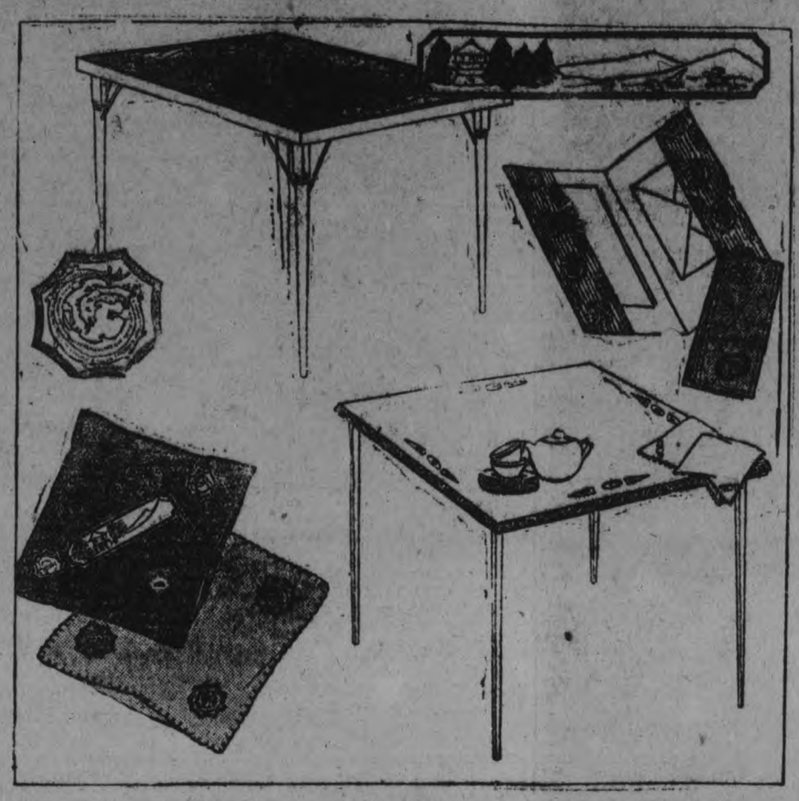
FOR THE BRIDGE TEA - - - - - By Annette Bradshaw



A pleasant afternoon at bridge and tea, which will be remembered for its novelty, may be extended by a hostess to her friends, with a little forethought and ingenious planning.

The bridge table is made fresh and attractive by tacking on a new square of dark green leatherette or oilcloth. The effective gold and red Japanese motifs come in the decalcomania form ready to be permanently applied with a bit of liquid glue or varnish. They are a delightful invention, which make such an alteration as this a lasting pleasure.

A bright couch cushion of the same materials is distinctly new. Several are pictured here.

The sofa cushions can be made to match the table, being made of oilcloth with the same Japanese designs applied.

Either as a prize or as souvenirs, the smart Japanese paper-covered portfolios containing a few sheets of dainty notepaper will be appreciated. The folder is made of a double square of the heavy fancy paper. At the inside a pocket is made at each side of the folder by gluing an extra strip of paper along either edge. Any ordinary bridge score-card can be made new and colorful when covered with a brilliantly designed paper.

Another bridge table holds the tea things. The table is laid with a square of crisp linen; many a time a large, odd dinner napkin is just the right size. An edge of Cluny or a coarse imitation lace is sewn at the edges of the cloth. A figure in the pattern of the lace is followed out or worked over a coarse colored cotton thread; the lace looks altogether new and foreign done in this manner; as a matter of fact, this work is seen a great deal in France just now.

A Fashion Model's Diary

—By Grace Thorncliffe—

SHE DESCRIBES A CHECKED SILK FROCK.

Marie, who does fashion articles for one of the smart magazines, phoned today.

"How about asking Madame to let me photograph some new model of hers to show in our next issue?" she asked.

The magazine in question is one of the leading fashion periodicals, and I thought Madame would not mind, so I said:

"Have lunch with me, and I will ask in the meantime and let you know."

So we arranged a meeting place, and then I went to consult Madame. She has permitted her frocks to be photographed before for this same magazine, so she readily gave her consent.

"Now," she said, "the next question is what shall we photograph?"

"I should advise the most Spring-like thing you have," I answered. "It will be a good while before the next issue comes out."

"Then I have the answer," Madame assured me. "It will be the smart little checked silk you have just modeled, and it shall be photographed on you."

I always get a thrill out of seeing my picture in magazines, as I do occasionally. For Madame always has her frocks photographed on her own manikins, or else on a smart actress.

"Then you make all arrangements with Marie," Madame told me.

This I did over the luncheon table. Marie is a girl of action, and she asked me to be at the photographer's in the afternoon, dress in hand.

Marie met me there and helped me to don the frock.

She raved over its smartness, and as I like it tremendously myself, I am preserving a sketch of it here.

The silk is as soft as crepe, and it is an exceedingly smart beige and navy blue check. The red suede which edges the pockets, cuffs and scarf collar is as soft as the silk.

This Beige and Blue Silk Frock Is Trimmed with Red Suede.

Marie pulled the little navy blue satin hat down to my eyes and declared she had never seen me look better.

CHEAP CURTAIN MATERIALS.

Cheap materials that are attract for curtain use are constantly in d mand.

A set of blue and white gingham cu tains has a border of small childr cut from plain white material. T costume effect is quaint and the litt faces are colored just enough to brin out the effect. They are appliqued i place with fine blue floss which make them stand out from the material in a most effective way. The edge of the curtains is scalloped and bound with white linen tape.

Block printing done on white, unbleached muslin is very attractive and the curtains so decorated are lovely. In many instances the block designs are black, though some go in for colors. Many use the stencil decorations which are also very pretty and easier to do than the block printing. Silhouettes are also applied cut from very fine black linen. They are very effective especially so in the dancing figure and bubble design. Another novel way of trimming these curtains is to make a border of the old-fashioned patter work. It is very effective and will wash if soaked in strong y sa ted water before any soap is used on them. Cretonne cut-outs is another mode of decoration which is a so attractive.

The ruffled dimity curtains are as popular as ever for bedroom use. These curtains are frequent y made of a favorite color and trimmed with crisp white ruffles. If the ruffles are made fu enough to flute when laundered, the curtains retain their beauty. The fad of putting colored curtains under thin white ones is sti noticeable and in many places it is an attractive way to curtain a window.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a gir of seventeen and have been going with a young man one year older than I. I love him dearly, and he says he loves me yet he goes to places of amusement with other girls. Do you think he really cares for me? PEGGY.

PEGGY: It seems that the young man cares for you, Peggy, but he likes the friendship of others also, even though you may have first place in his affections. You are both too young to have no other friendships. Why not go out with other young men and do not tie all of your affections to the one man, just yet.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, and emulsified creosote hat is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other fords of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchical asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to direction. Ask your druggist Creomulsion Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

HEDDA HOYT TALKS ABOUT THE THINGS THAT INTEREST THE BUSY WOMAN OF 1926.

RAINY DAYS

(Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 (United Press). —The woman who wears dilapidated clothes on rainy days is in the same class with the one who powders her nose on party occasions only. We can't afford to look slovenly even in sloppy weather.

With this thought in mind, manufacturers of rubberized materials are constantly turning out duplications of current styles in rubber materials. They are trying to make garments for rainy days that will be as beautiful as they are sane. For instance, we now have leggins of rubberized silk which fit snugly to the leg over the sheer silk stocking. These extend above the knee and button at the side. They are made in the fashionable hosiery colors as well as in black and brown. Not only are they smart looking but they add no excess bulk to the leg and protect the wearer of chiffon hosiery.

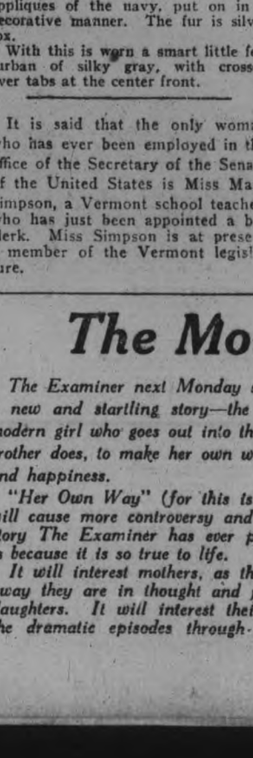
There are so many smart rubberized silk raincoats in lovely bright colors that seem to bolster one up on dull days! They are usually straight-lined but made large enough to fit over the fur coat. Newer even than these, are bright colored leather coats which shed rain. Some of these leather models have little up-standing collars trimmed in white ermine with this fur extending down the front closing to the hem-line. A well known costume designer recently returned from Paris wearing such a model in lip-stick red leather, trimmed in white ermine.

Slickers, of course, are popular with the young girl of college age and just recently small umbrellas of slicker material have been introduced to carry with them. These umbrellas are called 'slickersols' and they come in slicker yellow, in red and in green. Handles are of plain wood although occasionally the umbrella has motifs painted in oil paints at one side.

Patent leather envelope purses are perhaps the best ones to carry with the rainy-day outfit. They come in an assortment of colors among the prettiest of which is black trimmed in appliques of contrasting colored leather in floral motifs.

Today's Fashion

By Vera Winston



This Navy Velvet Coat Is Trimmed with Silver Gray Velvet and Silver Fox.

Velvet is so extremely fine and soft these days, that it is treated exactly like the softest silk. It is being used just now for very smart dress coats which may be worn far into the Spring.

Navy blue velvet is used for the graceful model shown above. Silver gray velvet makes the border, which has appliques of the navy, put on in a decorative manner. The fur is silver fox.

With this is worn a smart little felt turban of silky gray, with crossed over tabs at the center front.

It is said that the only woman who has ever been employed in the office of the Secretary of the Senate of the United States is Miss Mary Simpson, a Vermont school teacher, who has just been appointed a bill clerk. Miss Simpson is at present a member of the Vermont legislature.

LETTERS FROM MISSION FIELD

Read at Meeting of Millbrook Mission Circle—From the West.

THANKS FOR GIFTS.

MILLBROOK, Feb. 4. — The Golden Links Mission Circle held a special meeting at the home of the president, Mrs. J. McKnight, on Tuesday evening, a fair number being in attendance.

An interesting letter from Mrs. (Rev.) Sanson, wife of the missionary at Kishpiax Indian Mission, B.C., was read, thanking the Circle members for the box of personal gifts sent at Christmas time. The three children of Mr. and Mrs. Sanson were particularly pleased with the dolls, paint books, aprons, etc., which helped to fill their stockings, and the parents also found the gifts especially for them most acceptable. quainted with Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Sanson, having met them and their family in Vancouver last June, brought with her to the meeting some snapshots taken during the holiday from their Indian field, thus supplying a bond of closer friendship between the workers in the far West and those interested in their welfare in the local society.

The Kishpiax Field.

The United Church ministers to about 18,000 Indians in Canada, 18 of the missions being in British Columbia, and Mrs. Sanson gave some interesting facts about the Kishpiax field, where she and her husband have spent two years, moving there from Hazelton, ten miles south, to which point they still have to go for mail and groceries. "In the summer we all go in our car. Maybe in Millbrook you wouldn't call it a car, for it certainly is not very handsome, but for the most part the roads in the West are not very handsome either, so a good car would not be good very long."

Writing in January, Mrs. Sanson says the winter has been exceptionally mild, with little snow, an improvement on last winter. "I am not used yet to coming down in the morning and having to thaw out the milk, marmalade, and bread. Last winter, when I went to get the bread for breakfast, it was just like a brick, but after a few minutes in the oven it would be all right."

Pack Year's Supply.

"Last fall we all drove thirteen miles north to where the road ends and the trail begins to see the 'pack train' start carrying the year's supply of food to the men at the telegraph stations. These stations are thirty or forty miles apart, and have two men in each cabin. The 'train' consisted of 29 horses fully packed, and five men on horseback to look after them."

There are about 350 Indians at Kishpiax, the men trapping in the winter months, mink, fox, bear, beaver, weasel, etc., and in April men and women go south to the canneries at the mouth of the Skeena River, where the men fish and the women work in the sheds. The missionaries then have to drive quite a distance to hold services.

Mentions Mild Winter.

A letter from Miss E. C. Hawken, W.M.S. missionary at Wahstae, Alberta, was also read, thanking the local workers for the big box sent for the Ruthenian children at Christmas. Miss Hawken, who has many warm friends in Millbrook and vicinity, also mentions the unusually mild weather, and told some interesting events in connection with the Christmas concerts at the Home and Boarding School, and the two outside Sunday schools.

"No trouble here to get up before the sun in winter. Our shortest day the sun rose at 9 a.m. and set at 4."

"There were thirty-two of us here for Christmas dinner, and we had a royal time. The only thing lacking was the dear home folk."

The warm quilts were particularly appreciated, one going to help a Ruthenian woman whose home had been burned.

To Hold Entertainment.

During the discussion of business items, on motion, the Circle decided to augment its funds by holding a public entertainment the last week in March. The hot supper which the members intended serving on the day of the Winter Fair, and which proved a success last year, will be left with the group joining the Women's Missionary Auxiliary from the former Presbyterian Church, which has a certain amount of money yet to make up to meet its obligation. This group will also serve a hot lunch during the afternoon, with a hot meal at the regular tea hour.

The meeting closed with a social hour, the next regular gathering to be held the last of this month.

Personal Notes.

Messrs. H. A. Fallis and V. R. Hunter are in Toronto this week, attending the annual convention of the Ontario Ploughmen's Association.

Miss M. E. Needham went to Toronto on Tuesday to attend the annual convention of the Ontario Fairs and Exhibitions Association, under which board she has served as a departmental judge at a number of county fairs for the past two years.

Messrs. J. A. Vance and N. Belch are delegates from the local Agricultural Society at the Fairs and Exhibitions convention in Toronto this week.

Killed Carter Snake.

Though winter still holds sway in this locality, apparently signs of spring are not altogether lacking. D. Robison, east of the village, reports killing a snake of the common green garter variety, near his home on Sunday, January 31. Mrs. Robison drew her husband's attention to the reptile, which was over two feet in length, crawling on the snow. Towards the end of March is the earliest date a similar occurence has been reported in previous years.

The A.Y.P.A. of St. Thomas' Church will send two members to participate in the debate for the district cup with the A.Y.P.A. of All Saints' Church, Peterboro, on Monday, Feb. 8. Last year the cup came to the local association by default, and was won by them the previous year. Permanent possession is assured if they win this year.

WARKWORTH NOTES.

WARKWORTH, Feb. 4—Born to Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Ingram, Feb. 2nd, a son.

Mrs. W. H. Gregory of Toronto is spending a few days with her daughter who is ill at the home of Mrs. Emma Richardson.

Mr. Jack Drewry and Mr. J. F. Freure attended a dance at Trenton on Monday evening.

Mr. Alex MacGregor of Campbellford was in town on Tuesday.

The Hastings road was opened by Mr. Jno. Doherty on Tuesday so that cars have no difficulty getting through on that road.

The California League of Women Voters is planning a State survey of health conditions of working women.

Guard Against "Flu" With Musterole

Influenza, Grippe and Pneumonia usually start with a cold. The moment you get those warning aches, get busy with good old Musterole.

Musterole relieves the congestion and stimulates circulation. It has all the good qualities of the old-fashioned mustard plaster without the blister.

Rub it on with your finger-tips. First you feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief. Have Musterole handy for emergency use. It may prevent serious illness. The Musterole Co., of Canada, Ltd Montreal.

Better than a Mustard Plaster

The Modern Girl's Challenge

The Examiner next Monday starts publication of a new and startling story—the story of a typical modern girl who goes out into the world, just as her brother does, to make her own way to future success and happiness.

"Her Own Way" (for this is its name) probably will cause more controversy and comment than any story The Examiner has ever published. But that is because it is so true to life.

It will interest mothers, as they will see how far away they are in thought and judgment from their daughters. It will interest their daughters, for in the dramatic episodes through which Julia Dean and her girl friends move they will find a repetition of their own problems.

The story as far as these experiences are concerned is true, having been told to the author (whom the reader readily will see cannot reveal her identity) by girls in all walks of life, from the sheltered young woman of the drawing room and limousine to the wide-awake girl of the street car and the telephone exchange of a smart hotel.

The soul of the young woman of to-day will be brought into the bright light of every day contact with the readers of The Examiner. Don't fail to start this remarkable story—in next Monday's Examiner.

The ORACLE

This day we fashion Destiny, our web of Fate we spin.
—Whittier.

Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute.
—Milton.

Silver Rocks.—You are satisfied with yourself and with your way of doing things. You do not seek for new methods in your housework or in the way you wear your clothes. You are quite deeply religious. You will find that work is the keynote of your life. Do not try to sidestep it. Keep always busy at your job, whatever it may be. You will be happiest when you make your home as neat and tidy and comfortable as possible—also when you curb your tongue. Do not find fault with others. You have faults yourself. You will have excellent health and age will not bring you much change. You will grow old gracefully—if you do not eat too much. And as you grow old, you will grow more mellow. A ripe and youthful old age is a happy prediction for you. When you are tired, seek the out of doors. It is handy and will help you greatly. Wednesday is your luckiest day, the day on which you were born.

Steel and brick are your colors.

A. G.—You have a very hopeful, honest nature, and are kind, amiable and neat. You are strong physically and possessed of exceptional creative power. You are apt at times to tend to the coarse side of things, but have unusual understanding and sympathy, which you must develop as your life advances. You may not achieve much in a material way, but you will be a leader in your own sphere and people will expect much of you. Do not disappoint them. Guard against carelessness in money matters and with personal belongings. A quick temper and tendency to worry will hamper you also and you are not as strong physically as mentally. You should always live a simple, wholesome life. Marry someone born in February, May, August or March. And practise the Golden Rule always. In this way, you will accomplish much more than those who are actuated by selfish desires only.

You were born on Saturday. The day of which you enquire, a Sunday, is one for exercising patience and care in relations with others around you.

Your colors are blue and cream.

M. D. O.—Well, Mike, you are nice enough, but you have one tormenting quality—you are changeable. Like the weather-vane, you veer from thought to thought, and constancy does not belong to you at all. You would be a fickle fellow in love and the woman who marries you will have to be prepared for squalls. You might be one of those who are the salt of the earth, if you would take the time to conquer your quick temper, your tendency to nag and your sarcasm. You have ability enough, but you love to put things off. "Tomorrow" will do as well any time, according to your viewpoint. You had better get next to yourself. You have plenty of time yet. Yours are not the great faults that drive others to madness. They are small, petty things—the suspicious, jealous instinct, the tendency to coddle your own feelings and ride rough-shod over those of others—and above all else, this maddening changefulness that keeps those who love you in constant hot water. You could rise to great heights. Do you think it is worth a trial?

You were born on Wednesday.

Your color is pink.

Lonely.—You are fond of happiness and pleasure and can make others about you happy, if you try not to be so sensitive. You make a good friend and a mighty bad enemy. Although you are possessed of deep affections, you may appear cold to strangers. You are inclined to be changeable and should watch this trait in your nature and correct it at all times by learning how to concentrate on one particular thing or line of endeavor. Learn to recognize opportunity when she comes knocking at your door, even though she may have changed her dress from the last time you grasped her hand. Perfect honesty and truthfulness should be the keynotes of your life. You may suffer in learning this fact. When you have had your lesson, you will not forget it. Do not force your way through life. Use cleverness and salve your way with diplomacy. It will pay you better and get you more. Read good books. "Knowledge is power." April and August are your best months, and Saturday the luckiest day of the seven. Wear a scarf pin with a sapphire, opal, turquoise or chrysolite.

You were born on Tuesday.

Your color is pink.

T. D.—You are fond of pleasure and good cheer, and have an aptitude for singing and dancing. You should never try to play the lone wolf. You will go farther and fare better when co-operating with others in any enterprise. Do not forget this. You are generous and affectionate and possessed of many good qualities but are inclined to pick people to pieces. You are fond of travel and will find change of scene beneficial. You will be happiest in places where everything is neat, tidy and comfortable, and will, if you guard against intemperance in eating and drinking, live to a ripe and hearty old age. A certain measure of material success is indicated in your reading, as you are careful in money matters. Do not worry over imagined slights and cultivate frankness with your friends. Do not be deceived by smooth exteriors and do not be a toady. Never eat while you are angry. This rule applies to all people, but to you especially.

You were born on Thursday, not Monday, as you state.

Your characteristics vibrate to no color, hence your keynote is black, the absence of all color.

"Bunty."—You should be able to accomplish a good deal in any career that has to do with science or business. Your best method to pursue towards success is the one where you use diplomacy rather than force to get what you want in life. As you make your way in the world, and you have quite a long way ahead of you yet, remember that a smile gets you a good deal more than a frown. You are endowed with great possibilities, but you will have to guard against building air castles, rather than getting down to real hard work. Do not be timid of danger and do not choose your friends with a snobbish outlook toward birth or connection. The worthwhile people are those whom, the world styles "the common herd." Most great men had their roots in humble surroundings. Do not put things off from day to day and do not break promises. Learn to be self-reliant and study hard how to concentrate. Take advantage of your opportunities.

You were born on Tuesday.

Your colors are opal and tan shades.

C. E. T.—You have good creative ability and a great deal of tenacious force. You must guard against such things as are coarse and material, as they appeal to a certain side of your nature. Do not eat the rich foods that you like. You will be at your best when associated with others in any undertaking. Do not try to stand alone. You are kind-hearted and generous, very idealistic, but inclined to take dislikes to people without any real cause and you should try to correct this while you are still in the formative stage. Do not criticize. It is a losing game. You are quite likely to choose the wrong man when you marry, as you are governed by emotion to a certain extent. Look him over carefully. You will have a long, useful life, if you guard against stomach trouble and head pains. You will do best and be happiest in a city.

You were born on Tuesday.

The date enquired for is past.

Your colors are blue and silver, also green.

Auzelia.—Yours should be a sunny life, not great or wonderful or prominent in a worldly way but an ideal life for a woman. Your nature is peace-loving, even-tempered and kind, affectionate and amiable, without much initiative or efficiency. You will be achieving your highest destiny in life when you concentrate on bringing joy and happiness to others, and in this way, earning happiness for yourself. Do not be dissatisfied and nervous. The life you are living at present is the life for you, and if you demand always of yourself that your better nature rule, you will be a tremendous power for good. You must guard, even with your amiable nature, against a tendency to whine and nag at times, and should strive always for good health, as, when ill, these qualities manifest themselves very unpleasantly. Cultivate moderation in your work and strive to make your home as comfortable as possible. Do not worry over fancied neglect and indifference in your friends. Most of it is in your own mind. Keep your conversation free from personalities and your hands and feet still.

Yes, you were born on Sunday.

Your colors are gold and violet.

M. E. G.—You are inclined naturally to be of a somewhat mysterious temperament, conservative in your ways and inclined to religion and mysticism. But circumstances of your life demand that you bring happiness to those about you, so that you will have to push this secretive side of your nature into the background as much as possible. You are fond of pretty attire and like comfortable surroundings. You are possessed of an excellent physique. Do not pick flaws in others and do not eat or drink too much. You have a fine nature, but must cultivate individuality and self-reliance. Remember, too, that money and aristocratic appearances do not count for much. They are not listed in the real things of life. The hand-clasp of one genuine friend is worth much more. Do not alienate it by unjust criticism.

You were born on Thursday.

Your colors are steel and brick.

C. E. G.—You should attain a good deal in any pursuit connected with science or business. As you very very young, try to map out your life along these lines. You would make an excellent nurse. Remember as you make your way along the common pathway, that honey gets more flies than vinegar. Cleverness, rather than force, will lead to success for you. You are inclined to be restless, and must guard against this by turning your quick energies into channels in which they will be of use, rather than hindrance, to you. Do not attempt to take too much on yourself. Let others help themselves. And cultivate esteem of your own powers. Too much modesty is a bad thing for the workaday world dweller. Do not talk so much and keep from asking unnecessary questions. It is a very irritating habit. Begin important undertakings in May or June, and preferably on Saturday.

You were born on Thursday.

The date you ask about is past.

Your colors are variations of the tan and canary shades.

Hair can be made to grow on bald spots if the roots are still alive.

WHERE HUMAN THRESHING MACHINES ARE STILL USED.

The yak has long been famed in song and story because of his peculiar name and strange appearance. He is the hairiest of animals and the deep fringe of hair that is his outstanding characteristic falls over his shoulders, his sides and his tail.

In Tibet, India, however, the yak is more than a strange animal with a stranger name. He is a beast of burden and it is a source of income, for its hair and its milk are readily saleable. The yak is really a cross between a bison and an ox. It is a large, clumsy animal with great feet that stamp about heavily.

It is because of these great stamping feet and the fact that this animal is excited almost to a frenzy by noise, that the Tibetans make use of the yak as a threshing machine.

After the barley is cut down and gathered it is strewn in an enclosure of hard earth reaching over an area of about half an acre. The grain is stacked several inches deep.

Then the farmer and his wife, with all the children and the neighbors, too, gather at the household. This process is in the nature of social gathering as well as a farming event. All the rattles, bells, cans, pots, pans and old drums are collected to provide the instruments for the orchestra that is to incite the yaks to their work.

There is a grand bang and a clamor as the orchestra "tunes up." As the clamor increases the yaks become infuriated and rush blindly through the grain, trying to find an opening somewhere in the enclosure. As they plunge from side to side, vainly trying to escape from the noise, the barley is crushed beneath their lumbering feet. And the louder grows the noise, the higher do they rise their fringed tails and the more madly do they rush about.

Thus the threshing is done in Tibet, while the natives have one of the social gatherings of the year and the children have a glorious picnic of noise. Whether the yaks would share in the general satisfaction over this event is something that we will never know.

FIRST AID HELPS

BY DR. HUGH S. CUMMING.

Many do not understand how delicate are the organs of hearing. The human ear is essentially a mechanism by which vibrations of the air are carried to the brain.

When a musical instrument is played it sets the molecules nearest it in motion. These strike the next and so on, the motion of the musical instrument being transmitted through the ear like a wave.

The human ear is divided into three parts or chambers, according to the arrangement of the mechanism of sound transmission. These are known as the outer, middle and inner ear. The outer ear consists of a shell of cartilage which gives to the ear its shape. This shell is covered with skin.

A canal leads from the outer ear into the head and ends in a thin membrane called the ear drum. In this auditory canal are glands secreting wax. The middle ear consists of a chamber in the temporal bone bounded on the outside by the drum.

Two Canals.

The cavities forming the inner ear consist of two sets of canals in the solid inner part of the temporal bone. One canal bends two and a half times around a circular column resembling very much a circular stairway or a small snail. This is known as the cochlea. The cochlea opens at the lower end into a tiny chamber which also connects with the other canals. These canals are the semi-circular canals, three in number, and lie at right angles to one another.

In the cochlea is a sort of projecting shelf of bone and on this shelf rest the cells which constitute the real hearing part of the ear. This consists in part of cells having connection with the nerves of hearing and ending in tiny hairs which project into the liquid of the canal.

Sound Hits Drum.

The sound waves now entering the auditory canal of your ears are striking upon the ear drum. This drum is set in motion and is pulling on the small bones attached to it. The end of the stirrup is now being pulled back and forth on the membrane, to which it is attached in the entrance of the inner ear. This is producing waves in the liquid of the internal ear, the hairs on the cells of the cochlea are vibrating in the liquid in which they float and this is stimulating the nerves which are carrying the impulse to the brain. Your brain cells are interpreting these stimuli as sounds. This, in brief, is a simple description of the structure and action of the human ear. You can readily see that the organs of hearing are indeed complex structures delicately adjusted.

Human mechanism of such fine construction and adjustment must, therefore, if it is to function completely, be treated with the same care and consideration as a delicate mechanical instrument. You do not repair watches with the same screwdriver you use in repairing your automobile. The same principle applies in the treatment of your ears.

COMMUTER.

I lived in the city's dust and smoke, and I says to myself, says I, why, this is no place for a healthy bloke. A guy is a foolish guy to breathe the stuff that's afloatin' 'round, and fillin' his lungs with muck. I know where there's plenty of country ground, so I guess I'll try my luck.

I hie to the open, wide and free, an' through suburb street I roam. I find just the place for my wife and three. It's the country type of home. We pack our things and we move right in, and we notice right away the lack of the city's smudge and din. It's the place for kids to play.

A runnin' wild are the tots I own, 'cause they're living mid nature's touch. Their mother can let them run alone, and she doesn't worry—much. I always laughed at commuter folk till the time my own turn came. Commutin,' I'll still admit's no joke—but it's worth it, just the same.

BREAK A CHEST COLD WITH HEAT OF RED PEPPERS

Ease your tight, aching chest. Stop the pain. Break up the congestion. Feel a bad cold loosen up in just a short time.

"Red Peper Rub" is the cold remedy that brings quickest relief. It cannot hurt you and it certainly seems to end the tightness and drive the congestion and soreness right out.

Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers, and when heat penetrates right down into colds, congestion, aching muscles and sore, stiff joints relief comes at once.

The moment you apply Red Pepper Rub you feel the tingling heat In three minutes the congested spot is warmed through and through. When you are suffering from a cold, rheumatism, backache, stiff neck or sore muscles, just get a jar of Rowles Red Pepper Rub, made from red peppers, at any drug store. You will have the quickest relief known. Always say "Rowles."

SWEETS.

"If I had my choice," said a youngster of ten, "I'd git me a job in a drug store and then I'd learn all the stock, in the real druggist's way, and wait on the people who call every day.

"Imagine the fun sayin' 'what'll ya have; some aspirin, toopaste, tobacco, er salve?" And say, I'll jes' betcha the thrill of it's swell—amixin up things that will make people well.

"I'd even run arrunts, and take things around. My bicycle covers a whole lot of ground. I'd sweep out the place and I'd dust, every day. Now, maybe ya wonder how I get that way.

"Well, slocks, I'll admit it; I might just as well. I'm thinkin' of other things all drug stores sell. Just picture the sodas, an' sweets on the shelf. I kinda been doin' that same thing, myself.

"I'd sling me a soda or classy frappe, an' nibble on chocolates and bonbons all day. What matter how little the sal'ry I made? Whatever was shy, I would take out in trade."

ADVENTURES of the TWINS

by OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

NO. 3—THE TWINS TRY TO TALK.

"Dear me!" thought Nancy. "What am I going to do in this queer land, if I can't say what I want to? Every time I open my mouth, queer words come rushing out that I don't want to say at all!"

And Nick was thinking the same thing to himself that Nancy was thinking to herself. "We'll never, never find the blue cherry to take back to the Fairy Queen if this keeps on," he said over and over.

"Come with me," said the blue kangaroo in a business-like voice just then. "I am called Jumping Jupiter, but you may call me Jupe for short. I'll take you anywhere. But first of all I shall have to take you to Blue Whiskers himself to see if he won't restore your speech. I certainly do wish you had come in by the wicket. Then this wouldn't have happened. Where are your skates?"

"Skates!" the Twins tried to say. But Nancy found herself reciting "Birdie, wait a little longer," and Nick began to give the first rule for using capital letters.

"Oh, dear!" thought the Twins helplessly. "It is getting worse and worse. We'd better be going home at once if we're going to be so silly."

But Jupe seemed to understand their thoughts. "I know what you are trying to say," he said. "You're surprised at me for mentioning skates. Isn't that it?"

The Twins nodded as hard as they could, as much as to say, "That's it—that's exactly the truth."

"Everybody is," said Jupe. "But I'll tell you why you need skates. Nobody can keep up with a kangaroo when once he starts going. My jumps are twenty-five feet long. And that's pretty fast going, even for a little boy and girl with magic shoes. But I'm usually prepared."

So saying, Jupe reached into his coat pocket and pulled out two pairs of roller-skates.

"Put these on," he said, "and then we'll go to see old Blue Whiskers and ask him if he can't take the twists out of your tongues."

The Twins sat down and strapped on the roller skates, and then Jupe said it was time to start.

"I'll keep about two jumps ahead so you don't skate on my tail," he said. "Just follow me, and if the bridge isn't down, we'll be at Blue Whiskers' house in ten minutes."

Away he started and Nancy and Nick followed. They could hear him muttering, "If only they had come in by the wicket! All this extra work because they didn't know enough to come in by the wicket! And I was just reading the next to the last chapter in 'The Tittering Titmouse,' too."

Suddenly he stopped and held up his little short arm.

"The bridge is down," he said. "It never rains but it pours. I think Blue Whiskers must be having a card party. When he runs short of tables, he always sends for the bridge. I'll just whistle for the alligators."

"Alligators!" the Twins tried to say, but the minute Nancy opened her mouth she cried out, "Grandmammy Tippy Toe, lost her needle and could not sew."

And Nick began to repeat "The rose is red."

"Oh!" they thought. "Oh, oh, oh. We'll never get the blue cherry and we'll never get anything else, if this keeps on."

But Jupe remarked, "Don't worry, my friends. I know what you are trying to say. You are surprised that we should find alligators when we are looking for cherries. But do not be surprised or alarmed at anything you see in this land. It is the queerest land in the world."

(To Be Continued.)

YOUR HEALTH

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

During the past Winter there have been an unusual number of cases of lame back following colds mild or severe Various names have been given the symptom. It has been called neuralgia neuritis rheumatism and lumbago.

It makes little difference what name is given any painful ailment. It hurts and that is enough to make it important to the victim.

Along the backbone and across the hips are a great many muscles some large some small. Each of them has muscle cells and fibres delicate coverings and nerve supply making a finished product which will perform its functions perfectly if kept in perfect health. Unfortunately a mechanism so complicated is liable to disturbances.

Neuralgia of the nerves supplying a muscle is called "myalgia." Inflammation of the musele tissue is known as "myositis." No matter what its form or name may be any disturbance in the back muscles will produce about the same set of symptoms.

There may be a dull ache or a sense of stiffness. This may be noticed only when the muscles of the back are called upon for some action. Sitting down attempting to get up out of bed or out of a chair trying to put on the shoes or to turn over in bed—any movement or attempted movement which calls the back muscles into play will be followed by discomfort if not actual acute pain.

In pronounced cases the pain is constant. Even though the victim may keep perfectly quiet the back aches and throbs with pain. There may be violent cramps.

You know the causes of rheumatism, at least the popular causes. Exposure to cold or wet is a common one. Over-exertion, or hard lifting, or reaching upward for a long time—these are common causes. The trouble is more likely to be brought on by overexertion if the body is overheated at the time.

All these causes, or any one of them, may bring on the symptoms we are describing. It is usually the case that the sufferer can recall exactly what was done to bring on the attack.

Certain diseases may have chronic backache as one of the symptoms. Among such are gout, diabetes, anemia, kidney disease and hardening of the arteries.

Sometimes the wearing of wrong shoes will cause trouble. If the heels are too high or too low, there may be wrong posture and much strain in consequence.

For the pain, heat gives great relief. It may be applied dry or moist. Hot fomentations, or hot water bottle will help a lot. Capsicum vaseline and a harmless liniment are irritating enough to cause you to overlook the pain of the ailment. On this account such applications assist considerably.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES.

A READER. Q.—I am troubled with gases and pain around my heart. What would correct this trouble?

A.—Careful diet and proper intestinal elimination should relieve you. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

A battle royal was raged in the last game of the evening, but all the goals were scored by the Brintons. First one team and then the other would be hemmed in each goal keeper turned aside dozens of shots from all directions and ranges. Both teams were foiled right at the very goal mouth on several occasions.

The game was marred, especially in the second period, with a certain amount of rough play, in which the losers were rather the worse offenders, and the penalty box was kept well decorated.

Pete King was the ace of the game. He made the score three nothing on his own efforts, scoring once from a scramble, once on a shot from close in, and once on a bullet like drive from the blue line. The other goal was scored by Wes. White. Every member of the Brinton team took part in the attacks, McMartin in particular being dangerous on his rushes. Holland, Maudsley, and Mahood led the Crescent attackers but were unable successfully to penetrate the stalwart defence of the Carpet Makers.

Brintons—Goal, LeBarr; defence, Lackey and McMartin; centre, Rose; wings, King and Cripps; subs, D. White, W. White, Woods and Chidley.

Crescents—Goal, Hall; defence, Holland and McDonough; centre, Jones; wings, Maudsley and Milloy; subs, Collins, Richea and Mahood.

HAMILTON VICS TAKE TANKARD

Beat Toronto Queen City in Final By 3 Shots.

BURDEN FINALS.

TORONTO, Feb. 4 (Canadian Press).—Hamilton Victorias won the Ontario Silver Tankard yesterday afternoon at the Toronto Curling Club, when they defeated Toronto Queen City in the finals by three shots. The new champions were always on the top end, thanks to Muir getting the "jump" on Rice and at the half-way mark Muir had his opponent 15 to 4. It was the first tankard victory for Hamilton Victorias.

The Burden Trophy has reached the semi-finals, Plattsville playing Sarnia this morning while Collingwood meet the winners in the afternoon, the latter going into the finals when Queen City defaulted last night.

CONACHER SIGNING LEAF CONTRACT

Baseball history was made in Toronto last week when Lionel Conacher, football, hockey and lacrosse star, accepted terms to play with the Maple Leafs. Conny may or may not make good, but Mr. Howley is of the opinion that an athlete of his calibre, apart from being a box office asset, should be useful to the club as a player. In the above picture Conacher is shown signing his contract with Manager Howley and Cecil (Babe) Dye, star N.H.L. hockey player, also of the Leafs, looking on.

WORTH IN SPORT KNOWING

Frankie Frisch of the Giants has hung up quite a notable record as a world series performer.

Frisch has been in four fall classics. In every one of them he hit .300 or better. In 1922 he set up a mark of .471, one of the best on record. He got 10 safeties twice, nine another time and eight once. He scored a total of 11 runs, and stole five sacks.

Here's his hit record for each series; 1921, .300; 1922, .471; 1923, .400, and 1924, .333.

DRAWN BATTLE AT NEW YORK

St. Pats and Americans Battle Overtime To 1-1 Tie.

TORONTO OUTPLAYED.

NEW YORK, February 4. — Canadian Press. — The Toronto St. Patricks and the New York Americans put on a one-goal drawn battle before seven thousand professional hockey followers here last night in a game that showed the locals brandishing a machine like combination attack against the bulldog defence wall thrown up by the Irish. The Toronto six, apparently weary after their clash against Boston on Tuesday, were clearly outplayed by the Madisons in the first two frames.

Billy Burch and his men hit off from the beginning of hostilities in a pretty short-passing game that threw St. Pats back to the defence of their citadel.

GRANGE HAS ENDED FOOTBALL SEASON

Home For Rest, Then Starts in Movies.

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 4—Harold ("Red") Grange, gridiron flash, has completed his football schedule for the season, and has turned to a new field for laurels. Monday he led the Chicago Bears to a 34-to-0 victory over a team of Pacific northwest football players, captained by George Wilson, former University of Washington halfback and all-American choice.

"Red" has returned to Chicago and from there will go to his Wheaton (Ill.) home for a three weeks' vacation before returning to Los Angeles to fill a motion-picture contract.

Out of twenty-eight games the Bears played on their tour, Grange took part in twenty-three. C. C. Pyle, Grange's manager, announced the trip was "very successful." He said Grange is through with football until next year.

There was a time when some of his team-mates were jealous of him and tried to steal his thunder, but that was when he first made his professional debut, and the harmony which prevailed after was probably accounted for to a large extent by Grange's generosity. Here is what Hanna says:

"A story regarding the accuracy of which I have had no corroboration—or, for that matter, denial—has come to me anent Red Grange and his associates of the Chicago Bears. It is, in brief, that Grange, after the pro. football game at the Polo grounds last fall, gave each of his fellow-Bears $500 from his bit from that game.

"The Bears, as an organization, received from Tim Mara, the New York promoter, $54,000 as their split of that rich gate. Of this, Grange's share was $27,000. If he gave each of his fellow-players, and there must have been 16 of them, it would be $8,000. And $8,000 would be ... big slice of his day's ... Charleston Champions Had To Call Ambulances

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Some one in a Broadway ballroom at midnight suggested a Charleston contest.

It started immediately.

During the next three hours ambulances carried four dancers to hospitals.

The orchestra quit after three and a half hours.

Four hours saw two girls and seven men still at it and the girls, Miss Mary Connolly, aged 18, and Miss Nonnie Sheid, aged 21, announced they would claim the Bessie Love trophy for long-distance Charlestoning.

Hospitals said the losers all had revived and gone home after first aid.

MISS WILLS DESIRES GIFT OF WARDROBE

Rumor of Present of Gowns and Frocks.

PARIS, Feb. 4 (Canadian Press)—Both Miss Helen Wills, from Cannes, and Jean Patou, designer of gowns, frocks and coats, in Paris, yesterday characterized as "preposterous" the story that the Parisian designer had presented the United States tennis champion with a thousand dollar wardrobe.

Miss Wills defended her amateur status stoutly, while M. Patou declared: "You know I never gave anything away in my life." He remarked that Miss Wills had bought several models from him, but insisted, "Tennis may be a health pastime, but I certainly am not in business for my health."

BOWLING with the CHAMPION

Jimmy Smith

CONDITION.

Many bowling fans have asked me what they should eat in order to keep in tip-top shape. And if there are any strict rules about dieting they should follow in order to enhance their work on the alleys.

In answering them I can best cite my own case. I eat anything I want and as much as I want. As a rule, however, I only have two meals a day. Not because I think it better or enough. But because my bowling engagements keep me up late at night and I consequently don't arise very early. This, obviously, means a late breakfast—almost a lunch, in fact.

I've never had any trouble with my stomach; have never known a sick day during the 25 years I've been in the pastime. In a word, I always feel in the proverbial pink.

To those seeking bowling laurels I would say this: Don't eat a big meal and then go on the alleys. Either wait an hour or two or else delay eating until after you've bowled.

You cannot do justice to your game any more than can a football or baseball player or any other sport pastimer, if you rush for the alleys immediately after eating.

If you must eat first, give your food plenty of time to digest; it's better to bowl first and eat later, however.

WORLD CHAMPION.

Leila Brooks of Toronto, Canadian speed champion, who won the world's outdoor skating crown in the recent St. John meet when she captured a total of 90 points.

Smilingly, but modestly, Toronto's new champion shoulders the glowing honor of a world's title at the tender age of 17 years. Miss Lela Brooks, the "Yellow Flash," "the "Orchard Peach," "Pride of the Queen City," and product of "The Home of Real Champions" has at last reached the goal which the little miss set for herself four years ago when she first donned the steel blades as the first girl member of the Old Orchard Speed Skating Club. MARMORA LOST GAME AT HOME

Tweed Broke Record of Losers For Their Home Games.

SCORE WAS 4-3.

MARMORA, February 4. — Ideal weather favored the second visit of the Tweed hocky team to Marmora on Tuesday evening, and a large crowd of spectators saw Tweed win a strenuous game by the same margin as they suffered defeat here on their previous visit. They retired the victors by the odd goal in seven.

Play was fast from the commencement. Houston for Tweed early displayed his customary agility. It was left to A. Geraldi to open the scoring, which he did in the first period on a shot 40 feet out. Both goalies did much shooting but goalies were sound. Bond had a few deadon shots but Wagar was not to be caught napping.

In the second period M. Geraldi increased the score for the visitors by back handing one in less than three minutes. Again withir that same period he sent in another which Neal failed to clear. The Marmora youth seemed to be off his game at that time. Beaten up to this point by a superior combination of the Blue and Whites no one expected the wondrous recovery which Marmora made. With sudden dashes, Bond, Auger and McWilliams scored in rapid succeession within the period of five minutes. The period closed with the score evened, 3-3.

Play in the final period was unusually fast. Ere five minutes had passed, Tweed had again taken the lead, through another goal from A. Geraldia similar to his first. Marmora pressed heavily in endeavors to equalize. For fully five minutes they swarmed around the Tweed nets but success would not come their way. Tweed thus took away Marmora's home record and made the remaining games of the league the more momentous thereby. Jack was outstanding for the losers although Bond and Berry put in some fine work.

Tweed were minus Dr. Dales and Brown of their regular team so that their victory was all the more creditable. For a game played at such a speed it was remarkable that only one penalty should be handed out.

Referee Rose gave the utmost satisfaction to both teams. The ice was in the best of condition.

Line up of teams:

Tweed: Goal, H. Wagar; right defence, A. Geraldi; left defence, R. Quinn; centre, B. Houston; right wing, F. Geraldi; left wing, M. Geraldi; subs, R. Fawcett and G. Geraldi.

Marmora: Goal, C. Neal; right defence, R. C. V. Jack; left defence M. Auger; centre, J. A. Bond; right wing A. G. Berry, left wing, G McWilliams; subs, R. Neal and C. Brady.

Goal umpires: J. Nardie and C. Gladney.

Referee, D. Rose of Peterboro.

GROVE BEAT T.C.S.

Port Hope Boys Were on Short End of 7-3 Score.

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 4.—A determined attack in the end of the second period and all the third period turned a close game into a decisive victory for the Grove yesterday after noon, and the Trinity College School team from Port Hope went home with the short end of a 7-3 score. The victory was well merited by the home team. The teams:

T.C.S.—Goal, Stratton; defence, Thompson and Hewitt; centre, Dulmage; wings, Gwynn and Biggar; subs., Martin, Nisbett and Pattee.

Grove—Goal, Strickland; defence, Loosemore and Pullen; centre, Hudson; wings, Griffiths and Cockburn; subs., Robertson and Earle.

UNFAIR TO PETERBORO FANS

"Supporters of the Peterboro' O.H.A. senior team are loud in their protestations of the action of the Peterborough management in transferring next Friday's game with Osgoode Hall from the Lift Lock City to Toronto. Despatches from Peterboro are to the effect that the game is being transferred because the team 'cannot do itself justice on its home ice.' Followers of the team, who have accorded it their financial and moral support, not only this season, but heretofore, complain, and not without reason, that they are being unfairly dealt with. It does seem a bit rough on those who have stuck to the team throughout its ups and downs to be deprived of the privilege of seeing the very game, which means most to them without coming to Toronto to do so."—Frederick Wilson, Sports Editor of The Toronto Globe.

BASKETBALL

By THE CAPTAIN

NO. 20—GUARD TO FORWARD TO GUARD

Long passes as a rule are to be advised against in basketball. Short, snappy ball passing is usually the best. But long passes have their place, especially when a short length floor prevents free and successful use of short passes. Under these conditions the guard to forward to guard formation is very adaptable on the tap off.

The left guard is entrusted with the duty of starting the play. Taking the tap, close in to the center, he pivots sharply and passes back to where he was before the ball was thrown up into the air.

The left forward, starting the instant the ball is put in play and keeping to the outer side of the court, goes down to the position left vacant by the left guard. His opponent is not likely to follow him and he serves two purposes there.

The left forward, by darting down to cover the left guard's stand is in a position to take the pass and make an open return up the floor to the basket. He is also ready for defense should the play miscarry.

The right guard, after luring his opponent into center, swings to the right-hand side of the court and goes up to the basket. There he takes the left forward's pass and tries for goal.

The right forward's main duty is to keep his opponent out of the play as well as out of the way of the right guard coming up to score. Once his teammate has swung past him, the right forward follows and is ready to shoot should the right guard miss. The center cuts around his opponent, preferably to the left-hand side and he too is ready for a follow shot.

The play is entirely safe for it keeps the left forward and a guard in the backfield to cover the danger should possession of the ball be lost.

FRANCIS OUIMET—SMOOTH, SLOW BACK SWING

Some time, notice a fine, accurate hitter and see for yourself how easy and rhythmical his back swing is, and you will not wonder at his accuracy. There are so many things to think of that it is impossible to remember them all, but this one is vitally important. Common sense will tell you that a person cannot throw a baseball any great distance if he jerks his arm back quickly. He cannot do that. He must bring his arm up easily until he is back as far as he wishes, and then he puts real power into the throw when he delivers the ball.

The same thing is true in golf. The idea of obtaining distance is the ability to allow that club-head to meet the ball when the head is traveling at its maximum speed. As in the throwing of the baseball, the same is true in the golf swing. By taking the club back easily and slowly, it enables the player to increase the speed on the down swing and allows him to hurl the head of his club at the ball with lightning velocity. Then, too, his wrists, arms, shoulders and body are much more apt to work in harmony.

BILLY EVANS Says:

RUTH'S COMEBACK ECCENTRIC WADDELL HUGGINS INTERESTED

Babe Ruth is probably the greatest showman baseball has ever had. The Babe has a way of doing things that keep him in th headlines-lines. Rube Waddell was one of the few players to have rivaled Ruth as an attraction.

As great a pitcher as Ruth is a slugger, Waddell was always doing something that had the fans gossiping. Waddell was far more eccentric than Ruth.

Rube was born about 20 years too soon to cash in on his assets as a drawing card. He packed the parks in his day but the capacity of most of them was closer to 15,000 than 50,000.

In addition Waddell had a great partner in Catcher Ossie Shreck. He used to handle Waddell's blinding speed and fast-breaking curve in his gloved hand.

With no one on the bases it was not unusual for Shreck to rest on his knees or even sit on the ground and catch Waddell.

When Ruth is delivering the goods he is the big noise, when he is slipping the fans are equally interested in his attempt to come back.

Ruth had a big year in 1921 when he cracked out his record-breaking mark of 59 home runs.

That winter Ruth turned actor, played the vaudeville houses and accumulated a lot of fat and poor helth. He was more or less of a flop the next season in baseball.

During the winter of 1922-23 he formed. His next two seasons were decided improvements. Last year he experienced another slump, due largely to poor physical condition.

The season of 1926 I understand terminates Ruth's fancy contract with New York. Apparently the big fellow realizes that he must step at top speed this year to have it renewed.

Two months ago Ruth began to condition himself, something unusual for him as he always waits until the last minute and several times has been a trifle late, starting the season poorly.

..Intensive work in the gymnasium, featuring hand ball, with care as to diet, has gotten Ruth to 212, by far the lightest weight of years at this particular time.

No doubt Miller Huggins is much interested in Ruth's early season training stunts.

Ruth in tip top condition means much to Huggins, for the big fellow playing his best game, has an important effect on the general play of the Yankees.

A year ago, in discussing Ruth with Huggins, the manager of the Yanks said:

"I don't like to see Ruth too much under normal weight. When he made the 59 home runs in 1921 he was around the 225 mark all year. He must have power back of his swing."

Will Babe Ruth do another comeback? Fans everywhere are hoping so for the game can ill afford to lose so colorful a player, a big attraction at the gate.

HOFF ONE OF WORLD'S MOST VERSATILE ATHLETES

Norwegian Has Hung Up Noteworthy Records in 14 Events.

By ART CARLSON.

Europe's greatest all-round athlete!

That's Charles Hoff, the lean and lanky Norwegian, who is now in our midst on a three months' athletic invasion.

As a versatile performer, Hoff, who is 23, is pretty much in a class by himself. A glance at the records he has established in various events—14 of them—shows his wonderful versatility.

While the lad from Norway has gained most of his fame as a pole-vaulter (he holds the world record for the event), he's also a notable pastimer in the sprints, middle-distance runs, high, broad and hop, step and jump performances, shot-put, discus, javelin and hurdles.

Close to Best.

In fact, when an athlete has built up the proficiency in 14 different track and field accomplishments as Hoff has, the matter of locating and nominating his all-round rival is a tough task indeed.

While only one of his marks—the pole vault—is a top-notch effort, several of the others are close enough to the best to cause a bit of apprehension.

The Norwegian should become a popular performer with track and field followers in America. Far more so than was that other distinguished invader, Paavo Nurmi, the flying Finn. Nurmi was a taciturn sort of fellow, hard to warm up to. He kept more or less out of the way of his admirers; seemed bent on dodging those who gloried in his feats, those who would pay him homage.

Hoff is a vastly different type. He's a smiling, good-natured individual, with a splendid personality. Contrary to general belief, he speaks English well, if not fluently. In a word, he should gain unusual favor for an invader during his sojourn.

In case you don't know, Hoff's world record for the pole-vault is 13 feet, 11 13-16 inches, just shy of the 14-foot mark. Not so many years back 12 feet was considered enough to win in any competition. Hoff has cleared almost two feet higher than that and hopes to push the bar a bit more skyward ere he retires.

Call Him "Bamboo."

It's fairly easy to see why the Norwegian is the greatest vaulter of them all. To be a star in the event you must, as a rule, have height, long legs, long arms and not too much weight. In fact, as a prominent coach once remarked, "You almost need to be a living skeleton to star as a pole-vaulter."

Of course, he stretched the point somewhat. But you find it smacks of the truth when you are informed that Charles Hoff is "6-2" and only weighs 147 pounds. In Europe they call him "Bamboo," showing they have a sense of humor over there.

Hoff's Athletic Feats.

100 meters—10 4-5 seconds.

FRIDAY THE THIRTEENTH

(By W. F. D.)

Reminiscent of 1925 which had three portentious days, was a play by Miss Catheleen McCarthy by Miss Catheleen McCarthey ("Jeannette" of The Examiner) and staged last night at St. Alphonsus' Lyceum. The combined calamities, however, which may have befallen on the ominous dates last year would not have approximated those which were expected by Mrs. Len Primrose around whose superstitious nature was wound the warp and woof of the plot.

The author has succeeded in ramming into a brief thirty minutes the action of a number of hours. She has introduced successfully the close harmony which prevails in the average home while the several light touches are administered in a manner which denotes knowledge and skill. While the major role is carried by the highly strung Mrs. Primrose, the other characters are intensely human and give an excellent opportunity for real acting. The lady of the house, like a true daughter of Erin, connects every omen with some grim disaster which is sure to follow. The bluff assurance of her husband fails to relieve her, and even he is almost converted to her belief in certain misfortunes. Throughout the afternoon the children have plagued her by their continued invocation of catastrophe as they have been continually doing "unlucky" things. In the first place they were sent home from school, an event which was of itself a cataclysm, but when Bobby tried to kill a black spider and Betty put up her umbrella in the house, poor Mrs. Primrose was near the verge of nervous collapse.

Even before the children came home the mother sensed something which indicated the grim shadow of death. Mrs Hart, a neighbor, had called, and in her teacup, her thumb, she read that her visitor, or possibly one of her relatives, was doomed to be hanged by the neck till she was dead. Needless to say, the kindly-intentioned guest fled hastily.

At the supper hour, the children who had been banished from the table sat disconsolately on the floor. The warmly paternal nature of Mr. Primrose was touched and he solved their woes and his conscience by flinging numerous choice tid-bits to them from the family board. Afterward the table was cleared and the older members of the family, including big brother and big sister, gathered round the table to discover the merits of a mystic board which had been thrust upon the gullible Mrs. Primrose by an ingenious salesman. When the candle, which was an essential adjunct to the board, flickered and went out, the distracted lady fainted, to be resuscitated immediately by the lightning-like administration of the fiery contents of Mr. Primrose's hip pocket flask.

The arrival of a telegram signalized the peak of interest as Mrs. Primrose, who, like all women to whom "wires" are uncommon, suspected that someone was dead and that the dread news was the culmination of the long series of omens which had fore-warned her. The discovery that the telegram was for someone else and the later chiming of the midnight hour lifted the curtain of suspense and concluded the play.

The piece, which owed much of its excellence to the admirable and professional type of directing given it by Mr. J. J. Southern, who kindly consented to train the actors and look after the production, also to the co-operative spirit of those taking part, every one of whom united in a combined effort to do their very best, was well enacted and the stage setting was very attractive. The to the principal actor, Miss Lillian Simons, who took the role of Mrs. Len. Primrose, the superstitious mistress of the house. Miss Simons' work in this part was splendid, and the continued laughter of the audience was a proof of the way in which she "put over" the varied superstitious episodes. Mr. A. J. Reynolds, as her husband, Len Primrose, gave a bluff and masterful presentation of the head of the house, and his acting added much to the interest of the piece. Miss Florence Giroux, as Norah, the daughter of the house, was an attractive figure, and enacted her part in fine style. As Jimmy, Harold Whaley appeared to be especially fitted for the part of the young son, and his natural presentation of his role was exceptionally good. Mr. Charles Carson received plenty of applause on his appearance as Professor Gaunt, purveyor of charms and potions, his excellent acting and good appearance giving a dramatic touch to his brief but well-enacted role. As Mrs. Hart, the visiting neighbor, Mrs. Nagle E. Phelan imparted a sincere and likeable touch to a small part, giving the opening lines with Mrs. Primrose a very real atmosphere, which caught the attention from the first moment of the play. Two diminutive characters who were perfectly natural and very good in their cunning parts, were little Joseph and Mary McFadden, children of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald McFadden. The serious interest and careful attention to cues and action which these small mits gave to their parts as Betty and Bobby Primrose, made them attractive small adjuncts of the production. Dorian McDonald, the telegraph messenger boy, was a suitably garbed addition to an excellent cast.

Assisting with the production, their work adding immensely to the successful staging of the one-act comedy, were Messrs. Gerald McFadden and Ed. Riley.

The evening's entertainment, which concluded with a debate by playing of a trio composed of Mrs. F. A. Hodgson at the piano and Messrs. F. Clarke and P. Loescher playing banjos, whose bright music received much applause, and the well-rendered selections of an orchestra composed of pupils from St. Peter's High School.

The debate, for which Rev. P. Butler acted as chairman, was based on the resolution: "That poverty tends to develop character more than riches," and those taking part were youthful members of the Second Form of the school. The decision by the judges, Rev. Monsignor McColl, Rev. J. J. O'Brien, and Rev. J. Guiry, went to the negative, taken by the girls: Carmelita Theobald, Hilda Sullivan and Marie Turcotte. The boys taking part were Jack Hallahan, John Carroll and George Reynolds. Everyone of the young debaters had an excellent address, their clear diction, self-composed manner and good arguments making the debate very interesting.

Additions to the programme were a recitation by Eugene Snider, "Papa's Boy," and a vocal sextette, singing "Sweet and Low," composed of Olive O'Connell, Marguerite McCarthy, Veronica Scollard, Bernardine Scollard, Helen Archambault and Mary Buchanan. Mary Reynolds and Margaret Carroll provided accompaniment at the piano.

At the conclusion of the programme, Rev. P. Butler congratulated the pupils on their good work, and also extended thanks to Miss McCarthy and Mr. J. J. Southern in connection with the production of the play. Stage furniture for the occasion was kindly loaned by Messrs. Gerald McFadden, Lane and Eano, H. G. Rumary, R. J. Soden and A. J. Reynolds.

DRUSES ASKING FOR PEACE NEGOTIATIONS

French Commissioner Says They Must Lay Down Arms.

BERUT, Syria, Feb. 4 (Canadian Press).—The Druse tribesmen, who have been fighting against French rule, have asked for the opening of direct peace negotiations, the semi-official Havas Agency is informed.

The quest was contained in a letter addressed to the French High Commissioner, Henry de Jovenel, by El Attrash Pasha in the name of the Druse nation.

M. de Jeuvenel has replied that the Druses first must lay down their arms.

Theatre

AT THE GRAND

The name of Donald Gallaher has been familiar to playgoers for the past two generations. This because Mr. Gallaher began his stage career at the age of four years, with Sol Smith Russell in "Poor Relations". The talent he displayed at that time so impressed the late Charles Froham that Mr. Gallaher was placed under contract and appeared in many of the Froham productions, Clyde Fitch and other playwrights often writing parts especially for the young actor. After he grew up and had his schooling, Mr. Gallaher again began to act, but meanwhile he decided that he preferred to be a producer rather than an actor, while not giving up the footlight labors entirely. Thus he formed a partnership with James W. Elliott and under the title Donald Gallaher and James W. Elliott they brought their first play "The Gorilla" to production. It was an instant success for not only has it mystery but is a whale of a laughing show, burlesquing as it does, all other mystey plays. Messrs. Gallaher and Elliott will preesnt "The Gorilla" at the Grand Opera House Saturday, Feb. 6.

AT THE CAPITOL

NAVAJO INDIANS RUN CAREY TRADING POST.

Harry Carey, western star, whose latest picture, "The Texas Trail," is now playing at the Capitol Theatre, where it will remain for three days, claims as one of his paramount interests, the Navajo Indian. He first met these original Americans when he was in Arizona and he became extremely fond of them and they of him. He lived among them for several months studying their domestic habits and trying to understand the psychology of their lives.

Then he went to California where he bought a huge ranch for himself and later established a trading post as an amusing establishment. The post was intended to have an Indian store and so Mr. Carey sent to Arizona for some of his friends to come and work in it. An entire family was installed to both operate and stock the store. They sell all kinds of Indian handiwork which the women industriously make, including Navajo rugs and blankets, basket beads, headbands, etc., while the men spend their time making silver and matrix ornaments, quaint rings and bracelets and all sorts of charms.

All Hollywood has been out to visit Carey on his ranch and none has returned without stopping at the Indian store to purchase some of the Navajo wares so that now Indian trinkets have quite a vogue in the picture colony. Tourists, too, who visit the Carey post leave well stocked with souvenirs for the folks back home.

HOFF ONE OF WORLD'S MOST VERSATILE ATHLETES

Norwegian Has Hung Up Noteworthy Records in 14 Events.

By ART CARLSON.

Europe's greatest all-round athlete!

That's Charles Hoff, the lean and lanky Norwegian, who is now in our midst on a three months' athletic invasion.

As a versatile performer, Hoff, who is 23, is pretty much in a class by himself. A glance at the records he has established in various events—14 of them—shows his wonderful versatility.

While the lad from Norway has gained most of his fame as a pole-vaulter (he holds the world record for the event), he's also a notable pastimer in the sprints, middle-distance runs, high, broad and hop, step and jump performances, shot-put, discus, javelin and hurdles.

Close to Best.

In fact, when an athlete has built up the proficiency in 14 different track and field accomplishments as Hoff has, the matter of locating and nominating his all-round rival is a tough task indeed.

While only one of his marks—the pole vault—is a top-notch effort, several of the others are close enough to the best to cause a bit of apprehension.

The Norwegian should become a popular performer with track and field followers in America. Far more so than was that other distinguished invader, Paavo Nurmi, the flying Finn. Nurmi was a taciturn sort of fellow, hard to warm up to. He kept more or less out of the way of his admirers; seemed bent on dodging those who gloried in his feats, those who would pay him homage.

Hoff is a vastly different type. He's a smiling, good-natured individual, with a splendid personality. Contrary to general belief, he speaks English well, if not fluently. In a word, he should gain unusual favor for an invader during his sojourn.

In case you don't know, Hoff's world record for the pole-vault is 13 feet, 11 13-16 inches, just shy of the 14-foot mark. Not so many years back 12 feet was considered enough to win in any competition. Hoff has cleared almost two feet higher than that and hopes to push the bar a bit more skyward ere he retires.

Call Him "Bamboo."

It's fairly easy to see why the Norwegian is the greatest vaulter of them all. To be a star in the event you must, as a rule, have height, long legs, long arms and not too much weight. In fact, as a prominent coach once remarked, "You almost need to be a living skeleton to star as a pole-vaulter."

Of course, he stretched the point somewhat. But you find it smacks of the truth when you are informed that Charles Hoff is "6-2" and only weighs 147 pounds. In Europe they call him "Bamboo," showing they have a sense of humor over there.

Hoff's Athletic Feats.

FRIDAY THE THIRTEENTH

(By W. F. D.)

Reminiscent of 1925 which had three portentious days, was a play by Miss Catheleen McCarthy by Miss Catheleen McCarthey ("Jeannette" of The Examiner) and staged last night at St. Alphonsus' Lyceum. The combined calamities, however, which may have befallen on the ominous dates last year would not have approximated those which were expected by Mrs. Len Primrose around whose superstitious nature was wound the warp and woof of the plot.

The author has succeeded in ramming into a brief thirty minutes the action of a number of hours. She has introduced successfully the close harmony which prevails in the average home while the several light touches are administered in a manner which denotes knowledge and skill. While the major role is carried by the highly strung Mrs. Primrose, the other characters are intensely human and give an excellent opportunity for real acting. The lady of the house, like a true daughter of Erin, connects every omen with some grim disaster which is sure to follow. The bluff assurance of her husband fails to relieve her, and even he is almost converted to her belief in certain misfortunes. Throughout the afternoon the children have plagued her by their continued invocation of catastrophe as they have been continually doing "unlucky" things. In the first place they were sent home from school, an event which was of itself a cataclysm, but when Bobby tried to kill a black spider and Betty put up her umbrella in the house, poor Mrs. Primrose was near the verge of nervous collapse.

Even before the children came home the mother sensed something which indicated the grim shadow of death. Mrs Hart, a neighbor, had called, and in her teacup, her palm and by a peculiar line on her thumb, she read that her visitor, or possibly one of her relatives, was doomed to be hanged by the neck till she was dead. Needless to say, the kindly - intentioned guest fled hastily.

At the supper hour, the children who had been banished from the table sat disconsolately on the floor. The warmly paternal nature of Mr. Primrose was touched and he solved their woes and his conscience by flinging numerous choice tid-bits to them from the family board. Afterward the table was cleared and the older members of the family, including big brother and big sister, gathered round the table to discover the merits of a mystic board which had been thrust upon the gullible Mrs. Primrose by an ingenious salesman. When the candle, which was an essential adjunct to the board, flickered and went out, the distracted lady fainted, to be resuscitated immediately by the lightning-like administration of the fiery contents of Mr. Primrose's hip pocket flask.

The arrival of a telegram signalized the peak of interest as Mrs. Primrose, who, like all women to whom "wires" are uncommon, suspected that someone was dead and that the dread news was the culmination of the long series of omens which had fore-warned her. The discovery that the telegram was for someone else and the later chiming of the midnight hour lifted the curtain of suspense and concluded the play.

The piece, which owed much of its excellence to the admirable and professional type of directing given it by Mr. J. J. Southern, who kindly consented to train the actors and look after the production, also to the co-operative spirit of those taking part, every one of whom united in a combined effort to do their very best, was well enacted and the stage setting was very attractive. The honors of the play went, of course, to the principal actor, Miss Lillian Simons, who took the role of Mrs. Len. Primrose, the superstitious mistress of the house. Miss Simons' work in this part was splendid, and the continued laughter of the audience was a proof of the way in which she "put over" the varied superstitious episodes. Mr. A. J. Reynolds, as her husband, Len Primrose, gave a bluff and masterful presentation of the head of the house, and his acting added much to the interest of the piece. Miss Florence Giroux, as Norah, the daughter of the house, was an attractive figure, and enacted her part in fine style. As Jimmy, Harold Whaley appeared to be especially fitted for the part of the young son, and his natural presentation of his role was exceptionally good. Mr. Charles Carson received plenty of applause on his appearance as Professor Gaunt, purveyor of charms and potions, his excellent acting and good appearance giving a dramatic touch to his brief but well-enacted role. As Mrs. Hart, the visiting neighbor, Mrs. Nagle E. Phelan imparted a sincere and likeable touch to a small part, giving the opening lines with Mrs. Primrose a very real atmosphere, which caught the attention from the first moment of the play. Two diminutive characters who were perfectly natural and very good in their cunning parts, were little Joseph and Mary McFadden, children of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald McFadden. The serious interest and careful attention to cues and action which these small mits gave to their parts as Betty and Bobby Primrose, made them attractive small adjuncts of the production. Dorian McDonald, the telegraph messenger boy, was a suitably garbed addition to an excellent cast.

Assisting with the production, their work adding immensely to the successful staging of the one-act comedy, were Messrs. Gerald McFadden and Ed. Riley.

The evening's entertainment, which concluded with a debate by pupils of St. Peter's High School, was rounded out by the excellent playing of a trio composed of Mrs. F. A. Hodgson at the piano and Messrs. F. Clarke and P. Loescher playing banjos, whose bright music received much applause, and the well-rendered selections of an orchestra composed of pupils from St. Peter's High School.

The debate, for which Rev. P. Butler acted as chairman, was based on the resolution: "That poverty tends to develop character more than riches," and those taking part were youthful members of the Second Form of the school. The decision by the judges, Rev. Monsignor McColl, Rev. J. J. O'Brien, and Rev. J. Guiry, went to the negative, taken by the girls: Carmelita Theobald, Hilda Sullivan and Marie Turcotte. The boys taking part were Jack Hallahan, John Carroll and George Reynolds. Everyone of the young debaters had an excellent address, their clear diction, self-composed manner and good arguments making the debate very interesting.

Additions to the programme were a recitation by Eugene Snider, "Papa's Boy," and a vocal sextette, singing "Sweet and Low," composed of Olive O'Connell, Marguerite McCarthy, Veronica Scollard, Bernardine Scollard, Helen Archambault and Mary Buchanan. Mary Reynolds and Margaret Carroll provided accompaniment at the piano.

At the conclusion of the programme, Rev. P. Butler congratulated the pupils on their good work, and also extended thanks to Miss McCarthy and Mr. J. J. Southern in connection with the production of the play. Stage furniture for the occasion was kindly loaned by Messrs. Gerald McFadden, Lane and Eano, H. G. Rumary, R. J. Soden and A. J. Reynolds.

DRUSES ASKING FOR PEACE NEGOTIATIONS

French Commissioner Says They Must Lay Down Arms.

BERUT, Syria, Feb. 4 (Canadian Press).—The Druse tribesmen, who have been fighting against French rule, have asked for the opening of direct peace negotiations, the semi-official Havas Agency is informed.

The quest was contained in a letter addressed to the French High Commissioner, Henry de Jovenel, by El Attrash Pasha in the name of the Druse nation.

M. de Jeuvenel has replied that the Druses first must lay down their arms.

Theatre

AT THE GRAND

The name of Donald Gallaher has been familiar to playgoers for the past two generations. This because Mr. Gallaher began his stage career at the age of four years, with Sol Smith Russell in "Poor Relations". The talent he displayed at that time so impressed the late Charles Froham that Mr. Gallaher was placed under contract and appeared in many of the Froham productions, Clyde Fitch and other playwrights often writing parts especially for the young actor. After he grew up and had his schooling, Mr. Gallaher, again began to act, but meanwhile he decided that he preferred to be a producer rather than an actor, while not giving up the footlight labors entirely. Thus he formed a partnership with James W. Elliott and under the title Donald Gallaher and James W. Elliott they brought their first play "The Gorilla" to production. It was an instant success for not only has it mystery but is a whale of a laughing show, burlesquing as it does, all other mystey plays. Messrs. Gallaher and Elliott will preesnt "The Gorilla" at the Grand Opera House Saturday, Feb. 6.

AT THE CAPITOL

NAVAJO INDIANS RUN CAREY TRADING POST.

Harry Carey, western star, whose latest picture, "The Texas Trail," is now playing at the Capitol Theatre, where it will remain for three days, claims as one of his paramount interests, the Navajo Indian. He first met these original Americans when he was in Arizona and he became extremely fond of them and they of him. He lived among them for several months studying their domestic habits and trying to understand the psychology of their lives.

Then he went to California where he bought a huge ranch for himself and later established a trading post as an amusing establishment. The post was intended to have an Indian store and so Mr. Carey sent to Arizona for some of his friends to come and work in it. An entire family was installed to both operate and stock the store. They sell all kinds of Indian handiwork which the women industriously make, including Navajo rugs and blankets, basket heads, headbands, etc., while the men spend their time making silver and matrix ornaments, quaint rings and bracelets and all sorts of charms.

All Hollywood has been out to visit Carey on his ranch and none has returned without stopping at the Indian store to purchase some of the Navajo wares so that now Indian trinkets have quite a vogue in the picture colony. Tourists, too, who visit the Carey post leave well stocked with souvenirs for the folks back home.

WOMEN PREFER FREER MARRIAGE

Men Wish To Retain Registration, According To Russian Survey.

SOVIET TO DECIDE.

MOSCOW, Feb. 4. United Press. —Surveys taken in Russia on the question of whether marriages hence forth may be concluded without registration, show that the women of the city are in favor of liberalizing the regulations when the men and the country want the present form maintained.

The question is causing wide discussion as the government has postponed its decision, awaiting the voice of the people, as to whether more "free love" shall prevail.

Many women say that the unregistered marriage would be preferable, because then the unmarried mother can claim the same rights of support of herself and child as the married mother who has her wedding registered.

IN POLICE COURT

Two terms of imprisonment for one month each, and a fine of $10 and costs, were the results in the police court this morning of offences committed last night. There were two convictions for drunkenness.

One man refused to tell where he obtained his liquor and was sent to jail to spend a month or such time that he would choose, to reconsider his decision.

A local tailor grew voluble as he told of working hard all day on a dress suit order. At eight o'clock he had ceased work, and some time later had taken his "little dog" out to get something to eat.

He and the little dog were picked up and spent the remainder of the evening in a police cell.

One man pleaded guilty to vagrancy. Asked if he had no place to go he declared that there were lots of places. Questioned by the Magistrate as to whether or not he desired to be sent down, he replied: "By Gosh! don't send me down too far!" sentence of one month in jail was imposed.

L.O.B.A. BANQUET GREAT SUCCESS

Eastern Star Lodge Celebrated Its Third Anniversary.

MANY GUESTS.

Eastern Star L.O.B.A. No. 525 celebrated its third anniversary in regal style last night in Victoria Hall.

One of the main events of the evening was a carpet bowling contest in which fourteen teams were entered. The contest was won by a ladies' team, composed of Miss Myrtle Frost, Miss Curtis and Miss Hartford.

At the conclusion of the contest, a banquet was served, about 120 guests being present. The arrangements were in charge of Mrs. H. Freeman (convenor), Mrs. Huffman, Miss Sexsmith, Miss Curtis and Miss Hartford. The toasts were: "The Lodge," proposed by W. Lockie and responded to by W. Mistress E. Brown and D. Mistress M. Frost.

E. F. Reid, in a brief speech, congratulated the Lodge on the success of the evening, and assured the members that their progress was something of which they might well feel proud.

J. Brown and Jack A. Smith rendered several very enjoyable musical numbers which were thoroughly enjoyed by those present. Encores were demanded in no uncertain manner. Dancing completed what was termed the best evening that the Lodge had ever staged.

LEADERS TO SPEAK.

Meighen and Ferguson Will Address Ontario Conservatives.

TORONTO, Feb. 4 (Canadian Press).—Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen and Premier G. Howard Ferguson, Dominion and Provincial Conservative leaders, will be the chief speakers at a banquet on March 26 next, which will be held in connection with the annual meeting of the Conservative Association of Ontario.

OBITUARY.

ANDREW McFARLANE.

Word was received in the city today of the death yesterday afternoon, at the residence of his son, J. E. McFarlane, Claremont, California, of Andrew McFarlane, 509 Homewood avenue.

The deceased, whose death was unexpected, was 76 years of age.

Accompanied by his wife, he left here during the first week in January, to pay a visit to his son in California.

Leaving Claremont on Saturday, the remains will be brought to this city for interment next week.

When a man wearing a recently patented device raises his arms at the command of a highwayman he can shoot his assailant with concealed pistols by pressing electric buttons in his hands.

Score Dead in Path of New England Storm

WINTER WHIRLS ANOTHER DISASTROUS BLIZZARD ALONG NEW ENGLAND COAST WITH HEAVY LOSS OF LIFE AND PROPERTY ON LAND AND DISTRESS AT SEA

Coastwise Craft With Thousands of Passengers Storm-bound in Long Island Sound—Heaviest Snowfall of the Winter in Northeast States.

TWO SHIPS AT SEA CALLED FOR AID; TRANSPORTATION IN CITIES HARD HIT

19,000 Snow Shovellers in New York City—Storm Raged Eighteen Hours — Three Die of Exposure.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5 (Canadian Press).—The north-eastern section of the United States last night was digging itself out from under the heaviest snowfall experienced this winter.

The storm, after wreaking its fury for 18 hours upon the Atlantic seaboard from Georgia to Maine, lifted yesterday afternoon as suddenly as it had descended, and went whirling its way along the ship lanes toward Newfoundland. In its wake it left a snow blanket varying in depth from a few inches, in the south, to two feet in the Allegheny Mountains.

Nearly a score of deaths, property damage and partial disruption of transportation were recorded throughout the storm area.

Shipping, harried by more than a week of severe storms, suffered new disasters. Thousands of passengers on coastwise liners were snowbound in Long Island Sound where the steamers anchored to await a clearing of the atmosphere.

Two Ships Crippled.

Two ships were reported in distress at sea, and a third, the Dutch freighter Stad Zalt-Bommel, wirelessed that she was burning coal from her cargo to reach port at Providence, R.I., after her bunkers had been emptied by her long battle with the storm. The Furness freighter, Manchester Producer, bound from Halifax to Manchester, was drifting with a broken rudder, about 800 miles from Halifax. The German steamer Hanover has gone to her aid. The collier Selyn Eddy was reported in danger off the Delaware Capes. The freighter George 2nd was standing by, and a coast-guard cutter was proceeding to the collier's aid from Cape May, N.J.

Seven lives were believed to have been lost in the sinking and grounding of three barges off the New Jersey coast. In what was characterized as one of the most heroic rescues in coastguard annals, three men were rescued from the barge Metropolitan No. 21, which had grounded off Asbury Park. Two of the rescued men died from exposure after they were brought ashore. The living survivor, N. L. Carver, did not know the names of the dead. Six other barges broke loose from their tugs and were left to the mercy of the storm. Some of these were believed to have crews aboard.

Other Fatalities.

Three persons lost their lives in New York through exposure to the storm, and several others were injured in traffic accidents.

Six persons were killed at New Britain, Conn., when the wall of a brick foundry collapsed under the weight of tons of snow on the roof.

Other fatalities were reported from scattered points in the storm region.

In the larger cities armies of workmen and hundreds of trucks and motor snow sweepers were put to work to keep the main thoroughfares open. In New York City this force numbered more than 19,000 men, and it was estimated the cost of clearing the streets would total $1,000,000.

Surface cars were able to keep in operation, but were subject to frequent delays. Commuting trains ran from a few minutes to half an hour behind schedule, and most through express trains from distant points were delayed.

Ship Battered on Rocks.

....SCITUATE, Mass., Feb. 5 (Canadian Press).—Burning a distress signal and cut off from help by stormy seas, an unidentified schooner was being battered last night on the rocks of Cedar Point, where she was blown ashore in the snow storm late Thursday. Through the pitchy darkness, watchers on shore could see a torch burning, but could not make out the vessel's dimensions. A 60-mile gale was blowing, and it was feared the ship would go to pieces during the night.
